RED LAKE COURIER.

CONTINUING THE RED LAKE COUNTY COURIER.

VOLUME VI.—NUMBER 5. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 5, 1903. WHOLE NUMBER 265.

HERMAN BISCHOFF IS KILLED

Crushed By Threshing Engine Tuesday Night—Runaway on Clearwater Bridge.

A horrible accident, in which Herman J. Bischoff lost his life, occurred at the Clearwater bridge shortly after twelve o'clock Tuesday night.

Mr. Bischoff had engaged John Barry's gasoline threshing outfit to thresh for him Wednesday morning and had gone out east of town Tuesday evening to assist Mr. Barry in bringing the rig to his farm. Mr. Bischoff was driving a four-horse team hitched to the gasoline engine, and while going down the steep grade just east of the bridge a runaway team came tearing down the hill behind the engine, and in attempting to pass frightened the horses hitched to the engine. It is the general opinion that Mr. Bischoff was thrown from his seat under the heavy wheels. Mr. Barry was immediately behind the engine with another team, and when he reached the scene Bischoff was dead. Quite a number of north side people were just returning from the Odd Fellows' party, and were near the bridge when the accident occurred, but of course it was impossible to do anything to prevent it.

The runaway team which frightened Mr. Bischoff's horses had been tied on the north side of town, and broke loose and decided to come home of their own accord.

Herman Bischoff was a prominent farmer living just south of town. He was well-to-do, and interested in many public enterprises. During the past two or three years he has been secretary of the local creamery association. He was married about six years ago to Miss Theressa Bourque, of Thief River Falls, and one child has been born to them. The funeral will be held tomorrow from St. Mary's, of which church the deceased was a prominent member. Mr. Bischoff was about thirty-two years of age, and has been a resident of the county for the past fifteen years.

NEW YORK CITY DEMOCRATIC

Ohio Goes Republican By Tremendous Majority—Results Elsewhere of the Election.

New York city elects George B. McClellan mayor and the full Tammany ticket by upward of 70,000 plurality.

Ohio goes Republican by upward of 100,000, electing Myron T. Herrick governor and assuring the return of Senator Hanna.

Nebraska is probably Republican by a small majority.

Iowa rolls up the customary 50,000 Republican majority.

Governor Beckham and the entire Democratic ticket wins in Kentucky.

Massachusetts goes Republican by a reduced majority.

Maryland goes Democratic by a small majority.

Governor Garvin, Democrat, is re-elected governor of Rhode Island.

New Jersey and Pennsylvania go Republican, and Virginia and Mississippi are Democratic.

THIEF RIVER ELECTION WARM

Mayor Frank H. Kratka Re-elected by the Meager Majority of 4—Bishop Re-elected.

The city election at Thief River Falls Tuesday was the warmest municipal fight in the history of the town. Naturally a large vote was polled, and in many instances was very close between the opposing factions. There is some talk of contests, but it is likely that peace and harmony will be restored in a few days. The result is as follows:

Mayor—
F. H. Kratka	262
Ira C. Richardson	258
Treasurer—
J. W. Wallin	418
Aldermen-at-large—
K. J. Weeks	239
D. B. Bakke	274
C. C. Jackson	233
Alderman, First Ward—
Hans Laugseth	173
Alderman, Second Ward—
M. C. Harlow	62
Emil Zeh	60
Alderman, Third Ward—
J. L. Higgins	81
Joseph Lang	62
Municipal Judge—
J. M. Bishop	142
L. G. Browning	140
S. T. Johnson	130
H. W. Lee	68

W. C. Smiley, Frank Cernosek and Chester Retallick were elected justices of the peace. The proposition that the city accept and maintain at the expense of the city the present public library was defeated by a vote of 232 in favor to 121 against—a two-thirds vote being required to carry the proposition.

If you are thinking of going to school this winter, you should write to J. C. Sathre for a new catalog of the Crookston College. Tuition is $6 per month. and good board and room in private family for $3 per week. Have several places on hand where girls can do a little work for board and room.

RESULT OF CITY ELECTION

Waterworks Bonds Fail to Carry by Large Majority—Only One Contest for Office.

NEW CITY OFFICIALS.

Mayor	JOHN A. DUFFY
Alderman-at-large	HENRY HENNEMUTH and M. A. HATTEN.
Alderman, First Ward	JAMES BRADY
Alderman, Second Ward	FRED BORCHERS
Alderman, Third Ward	THOMAS A. CROMPE
Treasurer	OVIDE EMARD
Justices of the Peace	A. P. TOUPIN and S. L. LEWIS.
Waterworks	NIT ! ! !

The city election Tuesday was a rather tame affair, as there was no contest on any of the offices except for aldermen-at-large. The proposition for bonding the city for the purpose of constructing a system of waterworks met with considerable unexpected opposition, and was defeated by a large majority. It requires a two-thirds vote to authorize the issue of bonds, and the proposition did not even get a majority. The first ward voted almost solidly against it. The vote as returned by the canvassing boards is as follows:

	1st Ward	2nd Ward	3rd Ward	Total
Mayor—
John A. Duffy	68	52	105	225
S. A. Swanson	7	7	14	28
Aldermen-at-large—
Henry Hennemuth	66	55	47	168
M. A. Hatten	45	40	73	158
Simon Paul	24	27	74	125
Treasurer—
Ovide Emard	59	41	89	189
Joseph Salley	24	26	36	86
Justices of the Peace—
A. P. Toupin	55	58	98	211
S. L. Lewis	45	44	59	148
Waterworks Bonds—
Yes	8	39	56	93
No	62	18	45	125

James Brady, Fred Borchers and Thomas A. Crompe were elected aldermen respectively in the first, second and third wards without opposition. Mr. Swanson's candidacy for mayor was not announced until election morning, and of course his name was not on the ballot. The newly-elected officials will not be installed until January 1. The general feeling is that the city has secured a splendid set of officials, and THE COURIER hopes that their terms of office will redound to the credit of the city.

Naturalized Citizens.

During the present term of court Judge Watts has issued naturalization papers to the following residents of Red Lake county:

Erick G. Fellman, Finland;
George Gunderson, Norway;
Peter N. Anderson, Norway;
Gust Nelson, Norway;
John A. Wig, Norway;
Andrew A. Buringrud, Norway;
Halvor O. Rollag, Norway;

"Taming of the Shrew."

Some spicy lines in "The Taming of the Shrew" to be given by Mr. Sanford Dodge and talented company, which, together with "Gringoire, the Ballet Monger" makes a very entertaining program:

Petruchio—Come, Come, you wasp, i'faith, you are too angry.

Katherine—If I be waspish, best beware my sting.

Petruchio—My remedy then, is to pluck it out.

Katherine—Ay, if the fool could find it where it lies.

Petruchio—The fool knows where the honey lies, sweet Kate.

Katherine—'Tis not for drones to taste.

Petruchio—That will I try. (Tries to kiss her—she strikes him.)

Petruchio—I swear I'll cuff you if you strike again. Nay, come, Kate, come, you must not look so sour.

Katherine—How can I help it when I see that face?

This play will be given Tuesday November 10, at Metropolitan opera house.

Seats now on sale at Anderson & Healy's furniture store.

St. Mary's Fair.

The fair given under the auspices of St. Mary's church closed last Thursday evening, and it was a most decided success from every standpoint. The organ was won by Miss Anna Campbell, and the other contestant, Miss Carrie Patnode, was given a beautiful gold watch and chain in recognition of the good work she had done in behalf of the church. The doll was won by Miss Lucy Patnode. The net receipts were a little more than $800.

LANDSEEKERS ARE DELUDED

Many Rushing Into Red Lake County, Thinking the Diminished Reservation Will be Opened.

Nearly every business man in Red Lake county has had his hands full for the past two months writing answers to letters of inquiry with regard to the lands to be opened in the old Red Lake reservation on the 10th of this month. In some manner the impression has gone abroad that these are the lands that the people of Thief River Falls have been fighting to have opened, but as a matter of fact nothing can be farther from the truth. The opening of November 10th is a delayed part of the opening which took place seven years ago, and the lands to be opened are principally impassable swamps, and fit for no human use at the present time. And at any event, Thief River Falls is not the proper point from which to go into the country to be opened. In spite of the publication of these facts by the Interior department a steady rush of people into Thief River Falls has been going on for weeks back and yesterday the Great Northern train arrived there from the south with several box cars full of land seekers, the rush having exhausted all the available passenger cars at Crookston.

Most of these people turn back on reaching here and learning the true conditions, but a few push out through the swamps and look for themselves. The former are wise.

It is to be understood that the lands of the diminished reservation, a large part of which is in Red Lake county, are not open at this time and will not be until a treaty is arranged with the Indians. These are the rich agricultural lands on the Red Lake reservation which have been advertised as about to be opened. But beyond these lie the lands to be opened on November 10th, and their value is so little that not a dozen residents of the county are contemplating securing a home there.

Of the lands to be opened on the 10th all that is of value lies far from Red Lake county and should be reached by going to Winnipeg, and thence via the Canadian Northern to Beaudette or some other point along the border. At all events Thief River Falls is not the point from which to get into this country. It is hoped that the publication of these facts will help to stop the rush to this useless land and prevent in a measure the suffering and distress which will inevitably result this winter if the present stampede continues.

GRIND OF DISTRICT COURT

Large Number of Important Cases Disposed of During This Week's Session.

District court has been grinding continuously since our last issue, and promises to require another week before the calendar is cleaned.

The hardest-fought if not the most important case on the calendar was the action brought by Carl Dahl vs. the Village of St. Hilaire, in which plaintiff sued for $3,000 damages because of alleged injuries to property and health by reason of proximity to the village dumping grounds. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant, which is somewhat paradoxical with the answers the jury gave to certain questions propounded by Judge Watts. The questions were as follows: (1) What is the rental value of plaintiff's property without dumping ground? Answer—$6 per month. (2) What is the rental value of plaintiff's property with the dump ground? Answer—$4. (3) Is the dumping ground a nuisance? Answer—yes. J. K. Hannay and W. E. Rowe were attorneys for the village, and Francis Bergstrom for Mr. Dahl.

The case of M. C. Harlow vs. Dennis Connelly was tried before a jury Thursday and Friday, and a verdict was brought in favor of the defendant. The action involved a dispute over the placing of a corner stake, by reason of which both parties claimed ownership of about forty acres of land, worth approximately $50 per acre.

The case of J. J. Rue vs. Fred Borchers was settled out of court and dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

By mutual agreement the case of Agnes C. J. Rutherford vs. Matt Barzen and Louis Hanson will be tried in chambers at Crookston before December.

The action brought by Knute Jacobsen against M. O. Sortedahl has been dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

The case of Ed. L. Healy vs. Patrick McNerthney has been settled out of court and dismissed on plaintiff's motion. This action involved a commission alleged to be due for the sale of defendant's farm last summer.

The action brought by M. V. Evenson vs. Mrs. G. E. Lipscomb et al. was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

The case of Martin Bothun vs. Thea Knutson, sequel to the case of Thea Knutson vs. Martin Bothun, has been dismissed at plaintiff's motion. After Miss Knutson recovered $500 worth of heartease in her breach of promise suit last week, Mr. Bothun wisely decided it would be hard to prove a case of slander on the part of Miss Knutson for circulating reports to the effect that they were engaged to be married.

In the case of Elsie Brekke vs. Olof Jore a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff and damages assessed in the sum of $150. The defendant was accused of slander by circulating evil reports concerning the chastity of plaintiff.

The case of John F. Magnussen et. al. vs. board of county commissioners, being an appeal from the action of the board in refusing to establish the Rocksbury ditch, will be tried at St. Hilaire next week. By agreement of the attorneys it is to be a court case.

The case of Kate Harris vs. Chas. Hallas has been continued until the March term.

Big Game Licenses.

County Auditor Ford has issued fifteen big game licenses during the present season. The purchasers are as follows: Christopher Sandmoen, St. Hilaire; Swan Gjerberg, Red Lake Falls; I. E. Joslyn, Thief River Falls; B. F. Joslyn, Thief River Falls; Gust Nelson, Red Lake Falls; K. A. Henderson, Wyandotte; O. A. Olstad, Thief River Falls; J. J. Soll, St. Hilaire; Sven A. Osland, Equality; Ole O. Lee, Equality; John Aasmundsen, Equality; Peter Stachen, Gervais; John Bremseth, Fmardville; Gus Konikson, River Falls.

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

Easy Pill

Easy to take and easy to act is that famous little pill DeWitt's Little Early Risers. This is due to the fact that they tonic the liver instead of purging it. They never gripe nor sicken, not even the most delicate lady, and yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. They cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, headache, malaria and ward off pneumonia and fevers.

EARLY RISERS

A NEW HORSE DISEASE.

Thread-like Worms Cause an Annoying Disease of the Throat.

Dr. S. H. Ward, of the State live stock sanitary board, is engaged at present in fighting verminous bronchitis in horses and opthalmia in cattle. The former is caused by long, round, thread-like worms about two inches in length. The life history of these worms has not been determined, but they are supposed to be taken up in embyro with water and feed. The disease is most prevalent in wet weather and on low land.

The first symptom noticed is a peculiar cough, which has been designated as "hoose," owing to the peculiar sound. If this is noticed in one animal very little attention is paid to it until there is a succession of cases. Then the owner becomes alarmed and requests aid. Later the animal is noticed to breathe harder, loss of strength follows, and finally appetite is lost and death occurs, resulting from a massing of these worms in round balls in the small bronchial tubes.

HELD A POW WOW.

Representative of Red Lake Indians Talked Reservation Matters.

Crookston Journal: After the arrival of the train on Saturday night a delegation of three from the Red Lake band of Indians visited Hon. Halvor Steenerson, as accredited representatives of that band, to lay before Mr. Steenerson the wishes of the Red Lakers in regard to the eleven townships on the west end of the reserve that are sought to be opened for settlement.

The chiefs found it impossible for them to come in person, so one of their number, Ke-be no din, came with Bem-way-ben-ness and Nathan Head, the interpreter. They brought credentials from all the chiefs of the band, which read: "My Friend: There are the men we have sent you. Listen to what they have to say. They carry with them the thoughts of the Red Lake Indians."

The council was held at Red Lake Oct. 29th, and the messengers represented to Mr. Steenerson that it was their earnest with to sell the land in the eleven townships, but that they wanted pay for the lands in sections 16 and 36, and that they did not want the Pembina band to be included in the distribution of the money. Mr. Steenerson informed them that he would draft a bill covering the case and that it would be along the lines suggested by them, and if possible he would secure its passage at the session of the legislature this winter.

Chief Ke-be-no-din presented Congressman Steenerson with a magnificent pipe made from the famous red pipestone, and asked that he accept it as a token of good will. The old chief lit it and after a few whiffs he passed it to the Ninth district member, who did the same, and it went around the room, each one present taking a pull at it. The pipe is to be taken to Washington and is likely to grace the rooms of the committee on Indian affairs.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contains Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used, except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Assessment Raised.

The total assessed valuation of personal property in Minnesota, as fixed by the state board of equalization, is $156,583,197. This is an increase of more than nineteen millions over last year when it was $137,240,064. After the $100 exemption has been deducted the taxable value will remain at about $133,000,000. The increase over last year is almost twice as large as any previous increase made in personal property value.

COLE'S COUGH CURE

MINNESOTA SCHOOL HOUSES.

Over $16,000,000 Invested in School Buildings in This State.

Minnesota has always paid much attention to education, and a large sum of money has been invested in school houses.

During the past year, according to to the state superintendent, there have been erected in Minnesota 294 new school houses, at a cost of $710,053. In 1903 there were 332 school houses built, at a cost of $686,002. Of the school houses built for the year 1903, 233 were frame buildings, 45 brick buildings and 16 log buildings. In 1902 there were 286 frame school houses built, 31 brick, and 15 log.

There are in Minnesota at the present time 7771 school houses, of which number 6839 are frame buildings, 641 brick, 49 stone and 242 log.

The total value of all school houses in Minnesota is $15,991,895. The total value of the apparatus in these school houses is $548,724. The total value of all desks and seats is $1,021,421. The total value of all school houses in the state, their entire equipment, including libraries, is $18,000,000.

Minnesota has reason to feel proud of this showing. The money expended for school houses has been well invested, as the steady decrease of illiteracy in the states proves.

FOOD IS BETTER.

Pure Food Laws Have Brought Practical Results for Good.

Statistics of the food analysis by the dairy and food department for the last ten months shows most eloquently of what practical value are pure food laws and their rigid enforcement.

For the two years ending Dec. 15, 1902, the department analyzed 10,119 samples of foods, of which 3,499 or 34 per cent, were illegal.

Where the samples examined for 1901 and 1902 shows an average of 24 per cent of illegal meat, this year's analysis shows but 6 per cent of the meat samples impure.

This year but 13 per cent of the whisky samples were impure, as against 28 per cent for 1901 and 1902.

Vinegar shows but 21 per cent illegal this year, as against 44 per cent for 1901 and 1902.

Although milk, jellies and syrups show a lower standard, it is largely owing to the fact that a larger number of samples were investigated than ever before.

Remember that the handmaids of beauty are seven—fresh air, sunshine, warmth, rest, sleep, food and whatever stirs the blood, be it exercise or enthusiasm.

Furs are now cut and trimmed like cloth. They are very much "worked up," to use the technical term, and for cutting has become an art as complicated as dressmaking.

The smallest woman on earth is Miss Florence M. Tate of Granite City, Ill., who is only two feet high, while her age is 34 years. She has an excellent education and is active in church work.

Half the ailing women do not need medicines. What they need is fresh air, cheerful company and rest—plenty of rest. We all go tearing around these days as if the world were to arrive at the terminal station next day. It is a mistake.

When a Man's Married.

Chicago Chronicle: Ex-Governor Hoard, when he comes to town, always brings a new story with him, though how he manages to get so many out of Fort Atkinson is a mystery. His latest is of a teacher in one of the public schools who had talked long and faithfully to her class until she had thoroughly drilled into the scholars the idea that when a man has two wives it is bigamy; when it exceeds two it becomes polygamy, while to have but one is monogamy.

The next day she had an examination and asked a boy the following questions:

"What is it when a man has two wives?"

"Bigamy."

"What is it when he has more than two?"

"Polygamy."

"What is it when he has only one?"

"Monotony," replied the urchin with confidence, and the teacher thought he might be more than half right.

FUTURE OF ALASKA.

Prospect of Its Becoming a Great Farming District.

It Is Believed the Country Will Be Capable of Supporting 10,000,000 Persons in Something Like Comfort.

Some idea of the future of Alaska and its almost boundless resources is given by Harrington Emerson in the Engineering Magazine. Mr. Emerson believes that Alaska can support a population of 10,000,000 persons in comfort, and that at no distant day it will be one of the world's richest mining and farming districts. The ideas of this explorer are expressed in part as follows:

"The Yukon, the fourth largest river in the world, navigable for more than 2,000 miles above its mouth and running in a great semi-circle from southeastern to northwestern Alaska, forms a natural highway. All this was known long ago; but it was not known that the interior contained 100,000 square miles of farming lands and almost limitless areas of the richest mineral lands in the world. It is in this unsubdued country that thousands of miles of railroad must be built, that great areas will open for settlement, absorbing and keeping busy 2,000,000 workers as fast as they choose to go.

"It is, however, not the agricultural resources that will immediately attract the largest influx of population and capital. About 140 miles from Valdez in the Chittyna valley are very great copper deposits, which during the last season have been visited by many experts. Some of the ores run 85 per cent. copper, and there are many thousand tons in sight assaying 16 per cent.

"A great mountain slide has occurred in this region revealing, it is claimed, as much as 40,000,000 tons of high-grade copper ores. Valdez bay and the low pass north of it are the American gateways to the Yukon valley, and already a railroad has been surveyed and partly graded to the interior, for the copper, though it can be quarried like the iron ores of Lake Superior, without a railroad will remain worthless. The railroad itself is assured an unlimited tonnage. It is the shortest line to Dawson and the Yukon valley, and what is of more importance, it can carry supplies delivered at Valdez from sailing vessels or deep draft ocean steamers in all the months of the year, with only one break of bulk at Valdez, and also reach the deep navigable Yukon and the Koyukuk a month earlier than by the Yukon mouth, which is closed by Behring sea ice until July 1.

"As shown in the history of the White Pass railroad, the ingoing traffic would in itself be sufficient to warrant a railroad, but from Dawson the only export is gold, about 70 tons a year, while this road will not only carry all the United States government troops and supplies, for which many hundred thousand dollars are spent, but it will have the unlimited outbound tonnage of high-grade copper ores, which, with a freight rate of two dollars a ton from Valdez to the smelters of Puget sound will scarcely be treated in the interior.

"It is not too much to expect that improvement in transportation facilities alone will convert central Alaska into as closely a populated and prosperous region as Colorado, as the Black Hills, of South Dakota, as the rich mining region of British Columbia."

NEW PHASE IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

Artists Now Go to Patrons Instead of Awaiting a Call from Them.

It is no longer regarded as the proper thing in society to go to a photograph gallery to have one's picture taken. Leaders of the smart set at the east have decreed that the artists shall come to the house of the sitters, although an extra charge is involved in the new arrangement. Only Fifth avenue photographers are willing to photograph women in their homes and the men who do this at-home work must be artists of the first class, reports a New York paper. These pictures in the home have revolutionized one fashion. Formerly a woman would wear all her jewels and take her stand before the camera in her most pretentious frock, but now these display pictures are tabooed and the woman dresses simply. A favorite pose with one photographer has the subject in a picture hat, with bare shoulders and wearing a simple string of pearls.

More recent even than the dashing hat and glistening shoulders is the photographing of young matrons with their children. In England these pictures are in great vogue and the woman who poses wears a house gown suggestive of the calm of the nursery. The photograph of the lovely countess of Warwick with her daughter was one of the most popular in England. Lady Warwick's arms were entwined about the pretty child, and the picture was sold just the same as those of Ellen Terry, Edna May and other celebrities. Another woman who is photographed always with her child is Rachel, countess of Dudley, wife of the lord lieutenant of Ireland. The countess is one of the great English beauties.

ICE STOVES ARE IN VOGUE.

They Are Fed with Salt and Will Keep the House Cool in Warm Weather.

There'll be unalloyed joy for the fat man this summer. He won't have to go around with a wilted collar and with perspiration pouring from his face. No more will the irritating and profanity-provoking "prickly heat" make him feel as if he were being slowly tortured to death by piercing with cambric needles. Prof. Willis Moore, chief of the weather bureau, has determined to put on the market his "ice stove," which is guaranteed to make any homes cool enough for a polar bear to live in with comfort, says a Washington report.

The icepick will take the place of the poker, and, instead of sitting around wielding a palm-leaf fan, all that will be necessary will be to throw a couple of hundred pounds of ice into the "stove." Instead of going to the refrigerator for one of the component parts of a "high ball," you need only open the door of the "ice stove," select a chunk to fit the glass and proceed as usual. Scotch and siphon water, together with tomatoes and lettuce, may be kept together in the stove.

The "ice stove," like all other stoves, comes in all sizes. It is a big copper cylinder, which is filled with ice and salt. These directions accompany each stove:

"If in a bedroom and the temperature outside is more than 106 degrees, put three pair of blankets on the bed, chuck 50 pounds of ice into the stove, close the windows and retire."

"Users of the ice stove are cautioned to keep overcoats and earmuffs where they can be quickly put on. Don't store in camphor at the bottom of the trunk. No moths can live where there is an ice stove.

"Don't go into the warm open air when frostbitten by the use of the ice stove. Scrape some snow from the side of the stove and rub ears or extremities vigorously.

"Use the pick, which is sent free with each stove, to break the ice in the water pitchers every morning. A hammer or an iron dumbbell may be used in emergencies, but the pick is better.

"Don't put mint and butter in the same compartment in the stove. The mint is often stronger than the butter, and when the latter is spread on hot bread the flavor is often distasteful, even to those who like julips.

"All bottled goods may be kept in the ice stove. The tubular arrangement in the cylinder is excellently adapted for keeping bottled goods, even after being opened."

When tramps visit a home where the ice stove is in use, instead of being made to chop wood they can be made to cut the ice into cubes for the stove. In return they should be given their dinner and permitted to cool off in front of the stove.

Prof. Moore says that an ice stove sufficient to heat a room 15 by 15 can be bought for $200, and that $75 worth of ice will keep it going all summer.

FEED CALVES COD LIVER OIL.

Young Animals Said to Make Great Gains on This Kind of Nourishment.

An attempt is being made to substitute cod-liver oil for the natural fat of milk in feeding calves, according to the Philadelphia Record. Milk contains, as is generally known, all the nutrients necessary for the full development of young animal life. If one of these elements is removed it has to be replaced with a substitute of like kind in order to insure thrifty development. Butter fat and cream, of course, are the most highly prized and valuable of dairy products and some resourceful individual suggested that these might be extracted by pressing the whole milk through a separator and their loss be made up to the calf by adding an equivalent amount of cod-liver oil, another fat nutrient.

Experiments have accordingly been in progress for some time at one of the agricultural colleges in Yorkshire and recent reports seem to indicate that they are entirely successful. There is but little labor involved. The cod-liver oil and skim milk is a cheaper feed than the whole milk and the calves appear to thrive on it. During a feeding experiment embracing some 28 weeks it was found that the average daily gain of the calves fed on whole milk until they were weaned was two pounds; those fed on skim milk and oil and continued on an oil ration, 2.4 pounds, while those which had been fed oil and milk, but from which the oil was subsequently withheld, only 2.1 pounds.

On slaughtering the animals no injurious effects on the flesh could be discovered. The daily ration that appeared to be successful was made up of five quarts of skim milk and two ounces of cod-liver oil. Fortunately the calves do not develop that aversion to cod-liver oil which is natural to most human beings, but, on the contrary, readily become accustomed to it.

MISSING WORDS.

Annoying Gaps In English Language That Cause Inconveniences.

The English language may fairly claim to be the most prolific in the world. Not content with its native riches, it possesses in a special degree the faculty of assimilating everything useful from other tongues, ancient and modern. It ought indeed to be the most perfect vehicle of thought in the world, and in some respects no doubt it is.

But, curiously enough, there are deficiencies in English not to be found in far less copious languages. While in many cases we have half a dozen words expressing the same or practically the same thing, there are, on the other hand, certain ideas that have no appropriate words to express them.

In the words denoting relationship some notable gaps are found. The most glaring instance is the want of a word to distinguish between a male and female cousin. Other languages, such as French and Italian, have a separate word for each, but in English some addition or explanation is required in order to make it clear which sex is intended.

Curious gaps occur here and there in our language if we look into it. The word "show" expresses the idea of making to see, but there is no word for making to hear—a phonograph, for example. "I took the phonograph to my friend and"— What? "Got him to listen to it" would probably be the inelegant finish to the sentence.

On the other hand, "audience" means those who hear and applies very well to those present in a lecture hall or concert room. But what of those who see a cricket match, for instance? "Spectators" is the nearest word, but it does not correspond exactly to "audience."

There is one deficiency in the language so awkward and irritating that even at this late hour it ought to be made good. Need it be said that reference is made to indiscriminate use of the personal pronoun to denote either the person speaking or the person spoken of? This may not be a defect peculiar to English, but it is one from which the ancient classical tongues are entirely free.

"He said he had offered him money, which he had declined," would be quite comprehensible either in Greek or Latin, but in English it necessitates a number of bracketed explanations which are positively annoying and destructive of grace and fluency.—London Answers.

THE GENTLEMAN BURGLAR.

He Can Exist Only In Fiction, Never In Real Life.

Whenever a thief who is dressed otherwise than in rags falls into the police net there are chronicled the adventures of a "gentleman burglar."

Such a being is, of course, impossible. He is a literary creation, like the "Invisible Man," the Frankenstein monster, Kipling's Mowgli and the rest of the crew of prodigies that dwell within book covers.

As a character in fiction the "gentleman burglar" could be made plausible and picturesque, for when we get into the realm of fancy there is an implied contract that the reader shall accept the author's premises and not bother about possibilities.

A burglar is just a thief—about the meanest of thieves.

To a man endowed with qualities of refinement and consideration of others and honor—which are the attributes of a gentleman—burglary or other theft is impossible. The pride of such a man, his regard for his own opinion of himself, would prevent his sneaking into another man's house and taking his plate or his wife's jewelry. Then it must be remembered that the burglar is prepared to do murder to accomplish his robberies, and the idea of a gentleman committing murder for gain is too inconsistent even for fiction.

A "gentleman burglar" is a contradiction of terms, like a brave coward or a tall pygmy. He may be better dressed or his booty may be larger than that of most burglars, but when it is all summed up he is a thief—just a plain thief—with the moral code and impulses of a pickpocket or a card swindler or any other predatory creature whose natural home is a prison and whose deserved and fitting raiment is a suit of stripes.—New York American.

She Got the Wool.

"A young American girl, on her first trip to Italy, entered a shop in search of black darning wool," says a writer in Harper's Bazar. "She spoke no Italian, the clerk spoke no English. She pantomimed darning a hole and pointed to her stocking. The clerk brought white darning cotton. She showed that her stocking was black, and black darning cotton was produced. But she wanted wool. A long pause, then 'Ba-a!' bleated the American girl. She got the wool."

"I was just telling our friend here, Molly, that it was storming on the day of our marriage."

"Surely not, Hiram! The weather was perfectly lovely!"

"Well, well! I don't know how I got so mixed up about it—probably because it's been storming ever since!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Possibility of Error.

On one occasion Voltaire spoke highly of Haller and then was told he was very magnanimous to do so, as Haller had spoken in quite the contrary way of him. "Perhaps," remarked Voltaire, reflectively, and after a pause, "perhaps, we are both mistaken."

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM, Northwest Cor. 7th and Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

COL. GEO. B. McCLELLAN is elected mayor of Greater New York by a plurality of 70,000. It is evident that the voters of Manhattan don't want reform of the Low brand.

ANENT the extra session the Thief River Press decides "the chances are in favor of the body accomplishing fully as much as usual." This might appropriately be termed "veiled Sarcasm."

A THEIF RIVER subscriber wants to know if Ann is old enough to get married, and if so to send her address. We are not running a matrimonial bureau, and would advise our correspondent to look up the home supply.

MARK HANNA has been given another six years of dictatorship in Ohio. The secret of Mark's success is not easy to find. He is not a statesman, nor has he shown any of the magnetism, brilliancy or qualities of leadership naturally to be expected in an idol of a great political party. But there are others, so why wonder at Mr. Hanna's victory?

THE election results show little advantage for either party. The Republican states went Republican and the Democratic states were true to their colors. Possibly the election of McClellan as mayor of New York and a Democratic governor in Rhode Island may give the Democrats renewed courage, but these victories are offset by large Republican majorities in Ohio and other states of the middle west.

GREAT BRITAIN'S ambassador to the United States has come to be a very important personage among us, and apparently the British government thoroughly realizes this fact, for she has now for the first time sent a full-fledged ambassador to Washington, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, who has represented his country at Madrid since 1900. Heretofore the practice has been to elevate a minister to the embassy here, and while this has resulted in the choice of excellent men for the post, it gratifies us to observe that Washington has come to be regarded as a diplomatic station quite as importtant as most if not all of the European capitals.

NOT much sympathy is wasted upon the English anarchist arrested in New York and deported under the law passed by the last congress which provides that persons who believe in and advocate the overthrow of government may be turned out of the country within three years of their arrival. The soundness of this law was unquestioned at the time of its enactment, the only criticism being that it was hastily passed as a result of McKinley's assassination and did not go far enough. The man Turner, who came here for the express purpose of preaching anarchy, is not a particularly dangerous person, but his case comes under the law referred to, and so home he goes, crying out sarcastically against the injustice of a "free" country which will not permit him to advocate the overthrow of its government.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

St. Peter Free Press: Mr. Eddy should know that the governor has nothing to do with tariff revision.

Granite Falls Journal: Yes, that is the proper thing to do—let up on the merger and third term business. Give it a rest.

Fairbault Journal: This is a conundrum. If it takes a column of solid nonparell for the board of control to explain why it can't pay the college professors their salaries promptly, how many lines of agate would be needed to tell why they supplied the feeble-minded in Faribault with glucose instead of molasses?

Fargo Argus: There will always be found those who will say to the newspaper publisher, why don't you do this, and why don't you do that? No doubt their advice is good—if the man with the bank roll would stick to the proposition. But, as has been said before—even in Shakespeare's time—"Aye, there's the rub." A newspaper is a business proposition, not a carry-all. The average man who undertakes to tell the publisher how to run his paper doesn't know where he is at "when the ghost walks."

Princeton Union: Those who think that agricultural conditions in this section of the country have not been just what they should have been are not alone in regrets over the way the weather man has treated the country this year. Hardly a section of the whole United States has escaped from the ill effects of unseasonable weather. Out West the grass could not cure because of the wet weather, and cattle would not ripen for beef. Down East they almost dried up early in the season, and the crops were light in many respects. The cold weather has checked raisin-curing in California, the cotton crop plant has deteriorated, and is not what was anticipated, and, in fact, the chicken crop seems to be the only one that has really escaped.

St. Cloud Journal Press: The people of the West can hardly understand the bitter fight being made against W. J. Bryan in the Bennett will case. The deceased in his life time was a warm friend of Mr. Bryan, and if from his great fortune he wished to give his friend $50,000 for a specific purpose, in the name of decency and fair play, why should Mr. Bryan be charged with using reprehensible and dishonest methods? We have very litile faith in some of his political views but that he is dishonest and a trickster we do not believe. The fight made against him, with the evidence at hand, seems to be an outrage.

Must Have Warrants.

Following the lead of the Soo line in prohibiting deputy state game wardens from inspecting the baggage of passengers without a search warrant, the Minneapolis Union Depot company has issued orders to the effect that wardens will not be allowed to enter the baggage rooms without a warrant.

The warrant must bear the date of the day upon which it is presented as well as the description of the property which the game warden desires to search.

This limits the game warden to the examination of baggage on which they have received information from correspondents out in the country. The move is made not only to protect the passengers, but to avoid annoyance caused by the wardens in overhauling the baggage in the room.

> "Never marry a man until you have seen his upper lip. Man has an advantage over us, because he can read us through our lips. We cannot read him through his mustache, which, no matter how beautiful, is an expressionless adornment. The upper lip tells the character of both men and women. If long and thick there is coarseness. If thin there is cruelty. If short and Cupid bowed there is delicacy. If straight and well drawn against the teeth there is resolution. Before saying 'yes' to your lover made him shave and stay shaved for a month. You will then learn his character."

It is told of a Crookston man who, when he came home drunk, explained to his wife that his condition was due to the fact that he had mixed his drinks. "John," his wife advised, "when you have drunk all the whiskey you want you should ask for sarsaparilla." 'Yes," retorted her husband, "but when I have drunk all the whiskey I want I can't say sarsaparilla."

Farm Notes Worth Noting

Everything should be made snug for the winter.

In Hawaii the average wage of a farm hand is $20 a month.

Let economy be the watchword—waste nothing. But don't be mean.

It is said that Texas alone markets $50,000,000 worth of cattle annually.

The agricultural experiment station of South Dakota has shipped 200 pounds of marcaroni wheat to South Africa.

Whenever a dozen eggs sell for the price of a pound of butter, the man with the hens is ahead of the man with the cows.

Ginseng root, which brings such a high price, is nearly all sold to the Chinese. It is supposed by them to preserve youth.

Pennsylvania farmers refuse to pay more than $20 per month for school teachers, but are offering $2 per dny for men to dig potatoes.

Farm laborers in Mexica may be secured at from 18 to 30 cents a day, though in many parts of the country they are scarce and unreliable.

Do not let the rats get into the corn crib. Line the crib with a wire netting of three-eights inch mesh. You will be well repaid for your trouble.

Nearly all the broom corn on the face of the earth is grown in three little countries near the eastern line of Illinois. Illinois sweeps the world.

Nature is a better companion than society, and the farmers always have her. Let us not talk of isolation with so instructive a teacher and friend by us.

According to statistics recently gathered, about 30,000,000 are living in prohibition territory in this country. This is more than one-third of the entire population.

No young fruit tree will do well in any soil unless it has been worked long enough previously to free it from grass roots, weeds, etc, and make it mellow and fine.

Aluminum shoes for horses have been tested in the Russian cavalry. Each test was made with one aluminum shoe and three of iron. In every test the former outlasted the latter.

The estimated acreage of rice in Texas this year is 300,000 acres. The state crops should, therefore, be 5,400,000 sacks. This sold at $3 per sack, would make the crop bring $16,000,000.

H. J. Carpenter of Ferrisburg, Yt., had a field of 17 acres of White Russian oats, and some of the heads measure 16 inches. One head that was counted contained 140 kernels of large size.

One of the senators who recently returned from Alaska says that it is a very poor farming country. The many thousands of dollars spent by this government in experimenting has not revealed anything new.

To attact minks fry the fat of any kind of flesh, put it in a bottle, and leave the cork out until the oil beeomes rancid and loud smelling. A few drops of this on any bait will entice the animal into almost any trap.

The chicken industry is about the only industry in this country that seems not to be overdone. Everybody can safely grow chickens—they are two folds in profits; lay eggs all summer and yield their carcasses in the winter.

The best food for fattening fowls is buckwheat meal. If this can not be procured, get an equal mixture of Indian and barley meal. Each bird is to have as much as it will eat at one time, but no food must be left to become sour.

Debt and blues wear the life out of more farm folks than all the hard work they do. The debt we may not always be able to escape. The blues we can largely drive away. Courage and a good dose of philosophy will do wonders in that direction.

Russian hens are progressive. They laid 1,250,000,000 eggs for export last year. The eggs are sold in Russia at from six to ten cents a dozen. They are exported to Hungary, then sold to Germany as Hungarian eggs, and finally to England as German eggs.

THE NEW MILL COMPANY.....

There never was a mill better fitted for making good flour than ours. No mill has ever been better situated for getting the best wheat from first hand. Few have our long years of experience in making flour. "Gold Seal" is the product of this combination of material, machinery, skill and experience. No one can doubt that it is good flour. Only those who have used it know how good it is. We would like to have you join this class.

To the Farmers: Bring in your wheat and we will exchange with you either for our "Gold Seal" or our "White Star" flour. We guarantee either of these flours to make good, sweet, white and perfect bread, as we use only the very best wheat. If you find upon trying the flour that what we say is not true, we will pay you for hauling it back, charge nothing for what you may have used, and pay you for the wheat. That is fair.

MONEY FOR INDIANS.

Government to Pay for Kansas Land Granted to Settlers.

Nearly Two Million Dollars to Be Divided Among 6,000 Red Men of the Six Nations in New York State.

The interior department, through Indian Commissioner Jones, is making preparations to pay $1,998,744 to the Six Nations Indians of New York state, awarded to them by congress three years ago, as the result of their famous Kansas land claim against the United States government. The Indians who will receive the money number about 6,000 and are included in the Onondagas, Oneidas, Cayugas, Senecas, St. Regis, Tuscaroras, Stockbridges, Musees and Brothertowns tribes. Each individual will receive approximately $300, and the money will be paid by check to prevent frauds, says a Washington report.

The history of the Six Nations' claim against the government is interesting and shows another attempt of the white man to cheat the redskin out of what was rightfully his. Several historical documents of almost priceless value figure in the case.

One of the documents is a sheepskin parchment, dated 1793, and signed "Knox, Secretary of War." This paper was issued during Washington's administration. The paper is addressed "To the Sachems, Chiefs and Warriors of the Six Nations," and is a request from the government for the Indians to hold a convention and sign a treaty with the newly established commonwealth wrested from Great Britain. As a result of this the treaty with the New York Indians of 1794 was signed, which brought peace to the western boundaries of the infant republic.

The second document is dated "War Department, May 14, 1798," and is signed "Joseph W. Henry, Secretary of War." It is a statement from Uncle Sam, showing that the sum of $100,000 had been received on deposit from the Six Nations at the United States treasury. Both of these papers are originals and very valuable. The $100,000 referred to is the sum received by the Indians from Robert Morris, the Philadelphia capitalist, for 5,000,000 acres of the richest land in New York state. In 1797, when Morris bought the land, he paid for it at the rate of two cents an acre.

The Kansas claim originated in 1838, although nothing was heard of it at that time. In that year the New York Indians decided to move west and purchased 500,000 acres of land in Wisconsin. For some reason they did not make the trip and the same year the Indians traded the land in Wisconsin to the government for 1,824,000 acres of land in Kansas.

A project to settle on this land also fell through, and the Indians did not go to Kansas. In 1860, when the portion of Kansas where the land lay was opened for settlement, white men took up the Indians' land and in 1873 congress passed a law to sell the Indians' land in Kansas to white settlers, in spite of the fact that 40 years before they had given this land to the Indians. After 20 years of constant efforts congress in 1900 passed the law authorizing the payment of nearly $2,000,000 for the land in dispute.

The Six Nations, now numbering about 6,000, still retain 55,000 acres in the richest part of New York state. They are wealthy and industrious, and have in the United States treasury a large sum of money. The $100,000 obtained from Robert Morris in 1797 is still untouched and to that has been added by various sales of land sums which have made the total nearly $250,000, on which the Indians annually draw interest.

Oldest Family in the World.

"The oldest family in the world lives in Bell county, Ky.," said B. F. Creech, a prominent merchant of Four Mile. "I do not mean that they have the longest pedigree, but that they have been here a long time, and have a family history that is perhaps the most unique in the world. Lewis Green is 93 years old; his wife, Virginia Green, is 92 years old. They were married 73 years ago, and went to live on a farm at the mouth of Bingham's creek, in a bend of the Cumberland river. They are still living in the same house to which they went as bridegroom and bride three-quarters of a century ago. They have ten children, the youngest is now 43, and there has never been a death in the family. All of which makes me believe that Bell county is the healthiest place on the face of the globe. The Greens live about ten miles from Pineville."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Clean Fuel in Germany.

It has been repeatedly stated that the outward cleanliness of Berlin and other German cities is principally due to the general consumption of brown-coal briquettes for household and steam fuel; further, that they are made from ordinary German lignite without the use of tar or other artificial binder; that they are compact to store, clean to handle, easy to kindle, burn with a clear, strong flame, are cheaper than a good bituminous coal and are made practically smokeless.—N. Y. Sun.

Man of Simple Tastes.

"Did you enjoy your trip abroad?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox; "but I must say I missed the kind of cooking I'm used to."

"Couldn't you get anything you wanted?"

"Possibly. But you see mother and the girls hadn't taken the trouble to learn the French for pork and beans."—Washington Star.

SOME SOLDIERS TOO YOUNG.

Great Precautions Taken in War Department to Keep Minors Out of the Army.

The war department is determined that the recruiting officers shall reject all applications for enlistment from minors. Instructions given to that end several months ago, however, have been found not to serve the purpose desired. There are still numerous enlistments of young men who prove to be under 21 years of age, though said to be older, leading to applications to the war department from parents and friends for their discharge on the ground of minority, says a Washington report.

It is therefore desired that every possible precaution be taken to avoid the improper enlistment of persons under the age of 21 years. To this end young men who meet other requirements and say they are fully 21, or even a few years over that age, should not only be carefully interrogated and their antecedents be carefully investigated, but the written consent of the parents to the enlistment must also be obtained if the recruit appears to be under 21 years of age. In case such a recruit fails to obtain this consent he will be required to furnish his own sworn statement in writing regarding his age, supported by the sworn statement of two other persons, and these must be satisfactory to the recruiting officer, otherwise the applicant will be rejected. When the written consent of parents or the sworn statements indicated are furnished and accepted in such cases they will be attached to the enlistment papers.

NAPOLEON AMONG ANIMALS.

Commander of 20,000 Men Who Daily Put to Death Thousands of Food Animals.

Imagine a procession of 10,000 cattle, marching two by two, in a line 15 miles long; let 20,000 sheep follow them, bleating along 12 miles of road; after them drive 16 miles of hogs, 27,000 strong; then let 30,000 fowls bring up the rear, clucking and quacking and gobbling, over a space of six miles; and in this whole caravan, stretching for nearly 50 miles and requiring two days to pass a given point, you will see the animals devoted to death in the packing houses of Swift & Co. in a single day, says the Cosmopolitan. Surely a Buddhist would think that the head of that establishment had much to answer for. Never before in the world's history was a massacre of the innocents organized on such a stupendous scale or with such scientific system.

The commander of the army of 20,000 men engaged in this work earned his first penny picking cranberries in a swamp on Cape Cod more than 50 years ago. It was at Sagamore, on that historic peninsula, that a son was born to the house of Swift on June 24, 1839, and named Gustavus Franklin. A few years later, when the boy was not picking cranberries, he drove hogs along the cape. It was like Napoleon exercising his infant armies at school.

HIS FACE SPOILS RAZORS.

Philadelphia Barber Has a Customer Whose Skin Is Always Full of Grit.

"Did you see the man who just went out?" asked an uptown barber of a customer, as a swarthy individual left the shop, according to the Philadelphia Telegraph. "Yes? Well, he spoils a razor every time I shave him, and he comes here twice a week regularly. He is a stonecutter, and the grit and dust is so imbedded in the pores of his face that it is like drawing a razor over the side of a stone. I always use the best tools I have upon him, but they are not stone-proof, and a dull razor is the result when his beard is removed.

"He is a customer upon whom I lose money, and I am glad to say that he is the only stonecutter who favors me with his patronage. I often wonder how it is that he doesn't wince when the razor strikes a section of stone that is imbedded in his face and bounds off, but it is probably because his skin is so hardened that he feels no ill effects."

Football Havoc.

The Maryland Medical Journal produces figures which show that returns from 60 colleges covering ten years of time and including 1,374 separate teams prove the dangerous character of football. Of the 22,766 men in these teams 654 received injuries serious enough to prevent college work, the ratio being one for every 2,846 players. The deaths were too numerous, but the figure is not given. The number playing decreases, but the injuries increase in an ominous manner. Beginning with 1893 and ending with 1902, the injuries ran thus: 40, 46, 40, 48, 52, 52, 67, 90, 76, 143.

Legislation on Kissing.

A kissing certificate may be one of the luxuries of life if a certain American physician has his way. The senate of the state of Minnesota is considering a bill for the prohibition of kissing unless the people wishing to salute each other thus possess health certificates stating that they are fit subjects. The bill has a clause forbidding such health certificates being given to people with weak hearts, as this is declared an obstacle to the emotion aroused by kissing.

Tommy Atkins' Tight Togs.

The tight-fitting British uniform is alleged to be the cause of so much heart-disease among soldiers.

DUTCH IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Are Better as Farmers and Politicians Than the English, Says an English Writer.

The Dutch are better men on the land than the English. Mr. Rhodes affirmed it as strongly as Benjamin Kidd. Not only are they better men but they are much cleverer politicians, writes W. T. Stead in Booklovers Magazine. Dr. Gordon Sprigg, the present premier of Cape Colony, told me last year that the rough Dutch farmers from the back country had such a natural intuitive genius for politics that after three weeks in parliament they could give points to any British member who had been in the house for months.

Not only are they better men all round on land, not only are they abler politicians all round in the houses of parliament, but, what is far more important, they are better breeders of men. The British colonist, following the example of the Frenchman and the New Englander, shrinks from the primal task of multiplying and increasing and replenishing the earth. The Dutch cradle is never empty. If the hand that rocks the cradle sways the world, it is not less true that the race that fills the cradle will possess the world. Hence the destiny of South Africa seems tolerably certain to be that of a federation of self-governing states, preeminently Dutch, which will or will not be sheltered by the union jack, according to the readiness of the imperial government to recognize that it has no authority over Africanders.

ASSESSING A BRONX LOTLET.

Forty-Four Square Inches of Ground in New York Valued at Two Hundred Dollars.

The assessors have been called upon to assess what is relatively the most valuable piece of real estate in the entire city, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, and have appraised it at $200. This may seem a paradox. But $200 is full value for the parcel—and the parcel is in the Bronx. The "lotlet" is at the northeast corner of Third avenue and One Hundred and Forty-ninth street. It is triangular in shape and measures 6 inches on the avenue, 14 inches on the street and 13 inches on the northeasterly line. It, therefore, contains 40 square inches.

Last May it sold for $200, or $5 a square inch. That would be $720 a square foot, or at the rate of $1,800,000 for a full lot of 2,500 square feet, a price unequaled even in the financial section of Manhattan. Prior to the adoption of the full value assessment plan the "spot" of land, which is about big enough for a man to stand upon on one foot, was assessed at about $30 and the taxes were about 70 cents. The assessors evidently read the accounts of the sale on May 20 last year, tucked the clippings away for future use and swooped down on the owner with an assessment on January 12 of $200. The taxes this year, therefore, will be at the $1.45 rate, $2.90.

A CHILL FRANCHISE.

Peculiar Qualifications Required of Voters in a Certain Illinois Town.

What constitutes a legal residence and entitles one to vote has been often a matter of dispute. In his "Recollections" John M. Palmer tells an amusing story of the peculiar credentials accepted by a certain town in the west.

The town was in Illinois. One of the qualifications required of a voter was residence in the state for six months previous to the election. On one occasion a man named Hoskins appeared for registration; but when asked how long he had lived in the state, confessed that the time was somewhat less than six months.

The registration officer, after telling him he had not been in the state long enough, hesitated a moment, then asked if he had "had the chills."

"Yes, I had one yesterday," said Hoskins, "and I feel one coming on now."

"Put him down," said the clerk to his assistant. "The chills are as good as a six months' residence!"

Mr. Hoskins's name was thereupon placed on the list.

Treasures of the Sea.

Divers recently raised from the Mediterranean, off Sicily, about thirty old guns which, they say, belonged to the Dutch and Spanish ships sunk by the French in 1676. At any rate, nine of the guns are adorned with the ancient insignia of the Netherlands. There is greater treasure in the sea than out-of-date guns, and when submarine navigation has become safer, one may expect exploring expeditions in the great deep which will yield results as rich as any which crown the efforts of explorers on land.

International Telephones.

Great activity is now being displayed in the extension of international telephones. Brussels and London and Paris and Rome are already connected. Negotiations are now in progress between the Russian and German governments to still further enlarge the area of international telephones by a direct line connecting St. Petersburg and Berlin.

Handkerchiefs for Soldiers.

The Russian government has decreed that in future all soldiers of the empire must use handkerchiefs—heretofore not one soldier out of a thousand has indulged in this luxury—and that all the handkerchiefs must contain pictures emblematic of a soldier's life, both in battle and in time of peace.

Buck's Swift Pace.

Mapleton Enterprise: There is a lesson in the defalcation of Alfred A. Buck. He travelled the pace that kills. His associations were not such as to inspire confidence, and would not have done so but for the honored career of his noble father. He had a beautiful home, surrounded with every comfort, has been twice honored with the highest position within the gift of the people of the community. Instead of appreciating his position and endeavoring to build up the cummunity his example was such as to be demoralizing to the rising generation. His habits and associations were not in keeping with the position he occupied as a citizen or as a man, and has simply reaped what he has sowed and from now, henceforth is a fugitive upon the face of the earth, with the shadow of prison walls staring him in the face, his aged father bereaved and his family disgraced. It is certainly a gloomy picture and carries foward in a convincing manner the old precept "honesty is the best policy." Albert Buck simply travelled the pace that kills.

Pain
From Inflammatory Rheumatism
Would Have Killed Our Son.
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills Saved Him.

"We began to use Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills six years ago. My wife had liver trouble and a neighbor gave her some of your liver pills to try, after which we bought a bottle of them and my wife used them until cured. Since then I have used them and I must say that I have never used any pills that gave me the satisfaction these have. We also use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with greatest satisfaction. Three years ago our son Harry had inflammatory rheumatism. He had suffered so much that I believe if we had not given him Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills which relieved him almost instantly he would have died. I am always glad of the opportunity for praising Dr. Miles' Remedies."—James Evertt, Alton, Ills.

"I was afflicted with neuralgia for years and never found any permanent relief till I began using Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They are a sure cure for headache and neuralgic pains. Only this morning I recommended them to a friend with a severe headache and in a half hour he came into the store smiling. The headache was gone. We use them in the family and find them excellent for the women folks. This high altitude makes them very nervous. Grandma says I should tell Dr. Miles she could not live here were it not for the Anti-Pain Pills that she takes occasionally."—L. B. Morris, Helena, Montana.

The Rotary Hook displaces the old, out-of-date, unmechanical and troublesome shuttle.

The Frictionless ball bearings and perfect mechanical construction enable it to be operated with one-third less exertion than is required by ordinary machines. It sews three yards of goods while a shuttle machine sews two.

It makes the most elastic and most perfect stitch whether sewing light or heavy goods.

With our superior attachments the greatest variety of work is possible.

ACTING IS AN ART

By EDWARD J. MORGAN, Leading Man in "The Christian"

"IS ACTING AN ART?" you ask me. UNQUESTIONABLY, I should say. How can it be regarded otherwise? UNLESS IT BE AN ART THERE CAN BE NO PROGRESS IN IT, and no one can doubt that there has been progress.

IS ACTING "PURELY IMITATIVE?" Ah, that is an entirely different question. It is apt to be in part imitative, strive against it as we may. Yet who can say that it is not better so? If it were not so the stage could not profit by the experiences of the past, and the "art" of the stage would remain at a standstill until a new "genius" has been born and receives the baptism of recognition.

All actors possessed of the virtue of merit, or the ambition to be thus possessed, SEEK ORIGINALITY IN THEIR IMPERSONATIONS; but thus seeking, one must of necessity first know the treatment accorded the theme by others or else mayhap he will be credited with being but an imitator after all, albeit an unconscious one. If he seeks knowledge of the "original" conception of his predecessors or contemporaries, in order that he may avoid them, in what strange predicament does he find himself! For the very conception he seeks to avoid may constitute the only true advancement made in a decade and perforce a conception far superior to his own.

THE REAL TRUTH IS—DENY IT OR SEEK TO DISGUISE IT AS WE MAY—WE ARE, BY THE VERY FORCE OF CIRCUMSTANCES, THOUGH UNINFLUENCED PERHAPS BY OUR OWN DESIRES, ALL MERE IMITATORS, AND THE PROBABILITIES ARE THAT HE WHO DENIES IT MOST LOUDLY AND MOST PERSISTENTLY IS THE GREATEST IMITATOR OF ALL, OR, IF NOT, PERHAPS IT WOULD BE BETTER FOR HIM AND THE PUBLIC IF HE WOULD IMITATE MORE AND ORIGINATE LESS.

FROM OLD WORLD TO NEW IN FORTY-FOUR HOURS

By Sir ROBERT BOND, Premier of Newfoundland

THE ACTUAL TIME INVOLVED IN A JOURNEY BETWEEN NEW YORK AND LONDON, or vice versa, is best proved by the statement of the time occupied in forwarding the mail, which is subject to no delay. The United States post office department issued a statement last year showing the average time which actually elapsed between the mails leaving New York post office and reaching the London post office, as follows:

Ship.	Line.	Mail landed.	Hours to London.
Lucania	Cunard	Queenstown	157.1
Teutonic	White Star	Queenstown	170.2
Bismarck	Hamburg-American	Southampton	170.3
New York	American	Queenstown	172.1
Havre	North American	Southampton	184.6

FEW WILL FAIL TO NOTICE, THEN, THAT UNDER THE MOST FAVORABLE CIRCUMSTANCES IT REQUIRES SIX DAYS TWELVE HOURS TO MAKE THE JOURNEY FROM NEW YORK TO LONDON.

* * *

BY WAY OF NEWFOUNDLAND it could be made in five days four hours, or A SAVING OF THIRTY-TWO HOURS in all over the present actual running time, with only about seventy-two hours of ocean travel—viz, sixty-seven and one-half hours between the British isles and Newfoundland, distance 1,650 miles, and two and one-half hours between Port aux Gasque, in Newfoundland, and Aspey, in North Sydney, distance sixty-five miles. The time occupied in making the ocean trip is calculated on the Deutschland's best record, attained last year, of 588 miles in twenty-four hours, or twenty-four and one-half miles an hour. If turbine ships could be put on the service with a mean speed of thirty-six miles an hour the time of coming from the British isles to Newfoundland would be forty-four hours.

A London dispatch recently published a sketch that the Southeastern and London, Chatham and Dover Railway company had ordered for delivery next season A TWENTY-FIVE KNOT TURBINE STEAMER, 300 by 40 feet, to cover the passage BETWEEN ENGLAND AND FRANCE IN FORTY-FIVE MINUTES. If successful, it is expected the turbine system will be EXTENDED TO ATLANTIC TRAFFIC.

* * *

It is within the bounds of possibility, then, by the application of the turbine system TO BRIDGE THE ATLANTIC VIA NEWFOUNDLAND so as to bring the old world and the new WITHIN FORTY-FOUR HOURS, OR LESS THAN TWO DAYS' journey, of each other, or, by placing on the route such a steamer as the Deutschland, to reduce the journey to sixty-seven and one-half hours.

I HAVE THE FULLEST CONFIDENCE IN THE PROJECT I HAVE JUST OUTLINED, AND I ALSO BELIEVE THAT IF THE BRITISH SHIPPING MEN DO NOT AVAIL THEMSELVES OF THIS ROUTE OUR FAR-SEEING AND ENTERPRISING AMERICAN NEIGHBORS WILL DO SO.

TELEGRAPHY AS A BUSINESS SCHOOL

By Colonel ROBERT C. CLOWRY, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company

I BELIEVE THERE IS NO BETTER BUSINESS SCHOOL for the young man than telegraphy, and the careers of many leading business men of this city confirm this belief. Fully 85 per cent of the railway managers of the United States were telegraph operators in their younger days, and I constantly meet men of prominence in every branch of business who served an apprenticeship at the key. Every one of them is proud of his former occupation.

How Old is Ann.

The burning question of the hour, down east, and which started somewhere in the vicinity of Harvard, is "How old is Ann?" The question has been the exclusive rage in the eastern cities for a time and will be the burning question in the west from now on. We will start in with a push by asking how old Ann is? The question has conquered the east and has been sent west for an answer. Here is the problem: Mary is twenty-four years old. Mary is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann? Figure it out and send us the solution.

We're Big Meat Eaters.

With only 50 per cent more population than Germany, the United States kills three times as many cattle, nearly five times as many pigs, and seven times as many sheep annually. Deducting the amount exported, and there is left three times as much meat for every head of the population as used in Germany. This shows that we need more golden grain belt beer and less meat. The beer furnishes the same nourishment in form easy to digest and is more economical. You will enjoy it on your table three times a day. RED RIVER VALLEY
FARM LANDS
Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

"True Blue" next Monday evening.

Grant Van Sant come up from St. Paul today to look after his real estate interests in this part of the country.

Rev. Fathers Augustine, of Moorhead, George, of Barnesville, Charles, of Thief River Falls, and Bernard, of St. John's university, were guests of Father Ansgar yesterday.

Wilhelm Michelet, of Detroit, Minn., was in the city today looking over the city with a view to engaging in the practice of law. Mr. Michelet is a brother of the Indian agent, Simon Michelet, at the White Earth reservation.

"True Blue," the great military drama, will be presented at the Metropolitan opera house next Monday evening, November 9, under the auspices of the Crookston militia company. It is understood that a special train will run from Crookston to bring the company.

A very enjoyable card party was given by the I. O. O. F. lodge Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. August Riechel and their daughter, Miss Lulu, who expect to leave within the coming week for their new home at Portland, Oregon. Cinch was played until 11 o'clock and the head prizes were won by Prof. F. A. Whiteley and Mrs. William Findeisen. The booby honors were carried off by B. Sivigney and Mrs. John E. King.

THE COURIER office had a narrow escape from destruction by fire today at noon. One of the employees was starting the gasoline engine, and in some way a little gasoline had been dropped on the floor, and in a second the floor under the engine was in flames. With the prompt and efficient assistance of the fire department the blaze was extinguished before a great deal of damage was done. THE COURIER desires to extend its sincere thanks to the fire boys for their timely aid.

S. P. Swedberg, of McIntosh, was indicated by the recent grand jury on the charge of selling liquor without a license at Grit postoffice last Fourth of July. He was arrested Eriday at McIntosh by Deputy Sheriff Jarman, and arraigned before Judge Watts Monday morning, but the indictment against Mr. Swedberg was dismissed because of a clerical error. Mr. Swedberg was placed under a $300 bond to appear before the next grand jury, at which time it is likely another indictment will be found against him.

SECURE YOUR SEATS NOW

The appalling accident at the Clearwater bridge last Tuesday night again calls to mind the necessity for a foot bridge across the river. There is no more dangerous place in the country for a runaway than down the steep hill approaching the bridge, and when it is remembered that four times a day during the school year the bridge is thronged with children, and it is the only gateway to the north side of town, it is little short of providential that serious accidents have have not been more numerous. It is time that the city council made proper provision for safeguarding the lives of the hundreds of people who use the Clearwater bridge daily. A terrible accident is inevitable unless something is done soon to minimize the danger.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

President Issues Proclamation to the People.

President Roosevelt has issued the following proclamation, calling on the people of the United States to observe November 26 as Thanksgiving day:

"By the President of the United States of America—A proclamation:

"The season is at hand when, according to the custom of our people, it falls upon the president to appoint a day of praise and thanksgiving to God.

"During the last year the Lord has dealt bountifully with us, giving us peace at home and abroad, and the chance for our citizens to work for their welfare unhindered by war, famine or plague. It behooves us not only to rejoice greatly because of what has been given us, but to accept it with a solemn sense of responsibility, realizing that under heaven it rests with us ourselves to show that we are worthy to use aright what has thus been entrusted to our care.

"In no other place and at no other time has the experiment of government of the people, by the people, for the people, been tried on so vast a scale as here in our own country in the opening years of the twentieth century.

"Failure would not only be a dreadful thing for us, but a dreadful thing for all mankind, because it would mean loss of hope for all who believe in the power and righteousness of liberty.

"Therefore, in thanking God for the mercies extended to us in the past, we beseech him that he may not withhold them in the future, and that our hearts may be roused to war steadfastly for good and against all the forces of evil, public and private.

"We pray for strength and light, so that in the coming years we may with cleanliness, fearlessness and wisdom do allotted work on earth in such manner as to show that we are not altogether unworthy of the blessings that we have received.

"Now, therefore, I Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the 26th day of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land people cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for his manifold mercies. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 31st day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-eighth.

PARTICULARS OF FATALITY

How Edmund Marchildon Was Killed by Railroad Train at Tacoma.

The remains of the late Edmund Marchildon, who was killed at Tacoma, Wash., on October 27, arrived at Red Lake Falls Monday morning of this week over the Northern Pacific. The funeral was held from St. Joseph's Tuesday forenoon. No particulars of the young man's death were obtainable last week, but from letters received since then it seems that Edmund had been visiting the Tanasse family, former neighbors in Lake Pleasant township, for a few days, and on the morning of the accident John Tanasse and Edmund were returning from a photographic studio, on the railroad track, when a train approached unawares. Mr. Tanasse saw it just in time to jump from the track, but Edmund was caught by the engine and instantly killed. He was about 22 years of age, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Marchildon, of Lake Pleasant.

Later Particulars.

Regarding the fatal accident to Edmund Marchildon, the Tacoma Ledger says:

Edmund Marchildon, of Red Lake Falls, Minn., was struck by a freight train and killed in Dead Man's cut, between Tacoma and Puyallup, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while coming to Tacoma with one of the boys of the Tannasse family, whom he was visiting.

The boys were walking along the left hand track when a passenger train was seen approaching, and they stepped over on the right hand track, when a freight train rushed upon them unnoticed from the rear. Tannasse was walking between the tracks at the time, and escaped, but Marchildon was struck and run over.

The freight train was stopped as soon as possible, and the members of the crew hurried back to where the body was lying, but the unfortunate man was found stone dead. His head had been severely cut and the right leg crushed nearly its length, being entirely severed at the ankle.

The remains were brought in to Tacoma on the freight train and were met at the depot by Coroner Brown. They were moved to Mellinger's undertaking establishment on Tacoma avenue, to be prepared for burial.

The dead young man was the son of George Marchildon, living at Red Lake Falls, to whom a message was sent last evening giving news of the accident. The young man arrived in Puyallup only a week ago to visit his old friends.

ASKING QUESTIONS.

The Art of Interrogation Should Be Devoid of Impertinence.

"Do not ask questions" is the worst piece of social advice which age can give to youth. A man who never asks questions is the dullest fellow in the world. He had better ask too many than too few. We can defend ourselves against curiosity, but no armor avails against indifference. We must resign ourselves to be bored to death.

What is the secret of the art of interrogation? Putting aside quick sympathies, which lie at the root of every social art, we believe the most essential quality for those who would excel in it is directness. The art of asking questions so as to learn, instruct, please and influence is not the art of beating about the bush. The questions which offend and silence are the questions which suggest some ulterior motive. It is a found out scheme which makes men angry. Anything of the nature of a trap keeps us on our guard. If we once fall into one we resolve it shall be the last time. Suspicion kills confidence. Interrogative hints are utterly useless. The average man does not dislike to be questioned. He hates to be startled, crossed, interfered with, reproached, wearied or betrayed. He hates the questions which are not asked with a simple intention.

There are questions which are asked not because the asker wants to know, but because he intends to tell. Others, while ostensibly directed to find out a man's opinion, are really intended to reflect upon his character. Some men inquire as to their neighbors' projects in order to put difficulties in their way. Strings of meaningless questions are poured out by those who desire to pretend an interest in some subject which they neither know nor care anything about.

We believe the conclusion of the matter to be this: The art of interrogation is a serious branch of the social art. Well asked questions are of the essence of agreeable intercourse, but the interrogative mood will not justify an impertinence, an interference, a verbal assault—nor, for the matter of that, a bore.—London Spectator.

A Hallowe'en Frolic.

Hallowe'en, October 31, "Woodbine cottage," the residence of Mr. Ovide Emard, presented a queer appearance—rooms dimly lighted by Japanese lanterns or entirely dark, with grotesque jack-o'-lanterns peering from the many windows, as if looking for something pleasant to happen, which occured when groups of jolly girls belonging to the Daisy sewing circle began to appear. They had planned to pass the evening together and by mystic arts pierce the dim future and find what Fate had in store for them. Entering the house, they were greeted at every turn, by more jack-o'-lantern faces, each with a jolly grin of welcome. While waiting for the appearance of all the members, time was whiled away by telling ghost stories, which, in the dimly lighted room, caused delightful shivery feelings to thrill the participants. As soon as all, with the exception of two members who could not be present, had arrived, each young lady was ushered into a perfectly dark room, save for mysterious lights playing around one corner, which upon approaching was found to be the abode of a "witch," who foretold events pertaining to their future. They next fished from a bowl of water little lumps of lead, which upon opening were found to contain an answer to the question. "When shall I be married?" Some of the girls found out that the happy event would occur "when the next airship sails for the moon," and "when South America becomes an island," etc. Following this, each one being blind folded, dipped the fingers of the left hand into one of three bowls containing respectively, milk, water or nothing all all, denoting whether the young lady will marry a bachelor, widower or remain a spinster. Then bright colored candles were chosen, around each of which was wrapped another prophecy in poetry, after which the candles were lighted and left to burn at their own sweet will, while the children partook of the many refreshments, the candle burning out first insuring its owner of being the first to be married. But as the interest in the distant event was slight, the question was left undecided, the hour being late and the candles long at burning. The table was lavishly loaded with good things, brought by the little ladies, and looked very bright and pretty, with the numerous candles lighting up the little yellow pumpkins, hollowed out and lined with paraffine paper, heaped with candies and nuts, flanked by more substantial danties. The feature of the supper was "the fortune cake" containing a thimble, a dime, a ring and a key. The cake was cut into the required number of pieces and passed to each in succession. Esther Zaiser got the dime, denoting wealth to the fortunate possessor, Rebecca Hunt found the ring denoting the first to be married. Mary Cadieux drew the unlucky thimble denoting hard work for a living and Beatrice Emard drew the key denoting extensive travel for her happy future. Many expressions of enjoyment were heard as they departed en masse for home and next day two small girls were overheard to say with a long drawn out sigh "Oh, I wish our "Hollowe'en party was coming again instead of being a thing of the past!"

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

CROOKSTON MEETS DEFEAT

Local Foot Ball Team Badly Worsts the Boys From the Parlor City.

The final score of the game of foot ball played Monday afternoon on the local grounds between the Crookston and Red Lake Falls teams was 16 to 5 in favor of the home team. At least that is the way we are inclined to view the situation. Referee Westerberg of Crookston insists that Crookston is entitled to another touchdown and goal making the total 16 to 11 in favor of Crookston. But which ever way you look at it the local boys clearly outplayed the visitors and the score does not in any manner indicate the relative merits of the two teams. The home boys in both their offense and defense proved to be far superior to their opponents and won the game on its merits.

The game opened up very auspiciously for Crookston. Capt. Ittner won the toss for the home team and took the west goal. The visitors kicked off and a few moments after secured the ball and worked it down to Red Lake Falls' three yard line. But here the home team braced and held for downs with the ball within a few inches of a touch down.

On the first play the field captain of the locals called for a punt, but the center passed before being signalled and the ball rolled to one side where a Crookson player fell on it for their first and only touchdown. After this the home boys braced and it was simply a question of the visitors being unable to gain except an occasional end run, and being unable to stop the heavy line plunges of Ittner, Richards and Fletcher of the home team. Ittncr scored two touchdowns from line bucks, and Pepin one for the home team after an end run of 60 yards. But one touchdown was converted into a goal by the home boys. Ittner, was the bright and particular star of both teams, although the playing of all the home boys deserves the warmest commendation. Especially is this true of the boys who were playing their first game.

For the visitors Budd was their only sure ground gainer, his run of sixty yards in the second half being one of the features of the game. And this was the play that finally broke up the game. Budd was given the ball on Crookston's twenty yard line and circled Red Lake Falls' left end with almost a clear field before him. At about the thirty yard line of the home team he was forced out of bounds by the home tacklers, but the referee declared otherwise and permitted the score to stand. This ruling of the referee was so apparently unfair that the home boys refused to continue the game.

In connection with this ruling of the referee we wish to say that it is the opinion of several gentlemen of well known standing that the runner was at least six feet outside the line. In fact several outsiders who were uninterested one way or the other so declared. But this Referee Westerberg, who was in the center of the field and considerably behind the runner declared otherwise. It is apparent that he had no desire to be fair in the matter, for from where he was he could not see the play but he refused absolutely to inform himself. And the remarks made by the gentleman after the game are only in keeping with one who gained the reputation he did at a certain ball game in Crookston last summer.

Twice Its Value.

The man who reads a well conducted country paper is not likely to be imposed upon by the sharpers who are traveling through the country for the purpose of swindling farmers. And the farmer who does not take at least one good country paper is not to be greatly pitied if he is occasionally bitten by these sharks. It is every man's duty to keep himself posted in regard to the world's doings.

COLLINS OUT FOR GOVERNOR

St. Cloud Jurist Decides to Make the Race on an Anti-Merger Platform.

Loren W. Collins, justice of the supreme court, Tuesday announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor of the state.

The announcement was made through the St. Cloud Journal Press and copies were also furnished the Twin City newspapers.

Judge Collins takes up with the recent interview with Gov. Van Sant on the merger question and says:

"My personal relations with Gov. Van Sant and my conviction is that his earnest effort to prevent a violation of our statutes showed him to be an earnest and conscientious citizen. I do not regard the recently published interview in which he announces his position as indicating that he himself is in the field.

"On the contrary, I construe it as an indication that he will keep out of the race and is to be considered as a probability no longer. With this condition presenting itself I announce my candidacy and solicit the support of all Republicans who believe in and propose to stand by the platform of 1902."

A NEW RED LAKE TREATY

Congressman Steenerson Will Soon Introduce a Bill for Opening of Reservation.

A Washington correspondent says Congressman Steenerson has about completed a bill providing for the opening of the Red Lake Indian reservation, and will soon introduce it.

It differs in many respects from the bill which passed congress at the last session, the most important feature being the inclusion of sections 16 and 36 which, under the new bill, will go to Indians instead of the state for school purposes.

The bill will not provide for any payment to the Pembina Indians, and will provide explicitly for the manner in which lands will be sold.

It is claimed that the Pembina tribe is strongly represented in Washington by some attorneys, who have succeeded thus far in preventing the ratification of any treaty unless a stipulation for such payments are included.

The Red Lake Indians will consent to the Steenerson bill as drawn and have so stated to him.

The Pembinas, according to Mr. Steenerson's views, are not warranten in interfering with the Red Lake proposition, and if they have a legitimate claim he thinks they should submit it in some other way, than to oppose the opening of Red lake lands. The Pembinas and their council will find that Congressman Steenerson means business, and that he will oppose any hold-up methods which have been threatened.

Mr. Steenerson will probably introduce his bill during the special session.

CLAIM IT'S A FAKE.

Chain Card Moral Movement is Denounced As A Fraud.

In these days one cannot tell when he may be lending himself to the promotion of a fraud.

So many and so various are the schemes of the modern grafter, that everybody is bound at times to fall victim.

Let one send his name to the U. S. Moral Society at Philadelphia, believing that he is thereby promoting so worthy a cause as a campaign against the cigarette habit and he may have simply contributed his name for the use of a designing schemer who is compiling a list of names of bona fide residence of this locality, to be used for commercial purposes.

It is now claimed by persons who say they have investigated the matter, that there is no U. S. Moral Society in Philadelphia, and no intentions on the part of anyone to send a gigantic petition to Congress asking the passage of an anti-cigarette law.

Numerous young people in Red Lake Falls have recently received "chain postal cards," asking for their names and addresses to be appended to a petition such as above mentioned. Each one receiving a card is asked to write four more postals and address them to friends, with a request to continue the chain.

Doubtless hundreds of thousands of addresses are being secured in this way. But interested persons have made an investigation and are publishing broadcast the annoucement that the scheme has no moral purposes behind it.

One newspaper has this to say of the matter: "It may be well to state for the information of those who have given the matter serious thought, that lists of the names and addresses of young people are often sought and paid for by selfishly interested or unprincipled people. Trashy papers will then be sent to these addresses filled with advertising of objectionable schemes. They are deadly enemies of the home."

NEW TIME CARD NEXT WEEK

Great Northern to Inaugurate New Passenger Service Between St. Paul and Winnipeg.

The new passenger service to be inaugurated by the Great Northern between St. Paul and Winnipeg, by way of the St. Vincent line, which is to go into effect Sunday, November 22, will result in many changes in the schedule now in force.

The present passenger service on the Moorhead & Northern between Fargo and St. Vincent will be changed to the Red Lake Falls line, and a local train will run from Crookston to St. Vincent. As near as can be learned the train for Red Lake Falls will leave Fargo at about 5 a. m., arriving at Crookston at 8:30; leaving again at 9:30 for St. Hilaire, Thief River and Red Lake Falls, and arriving here about 12:20. On the return trip the train will leave Red Lake Falls about 3 p. m., arriving at Crookston at 5:30, and reaching Fargo at 9:30. This shortens the time between the arrival and departure of the train considerably, and leaves but two hours for the business men to attend to their correspondence in order to get letters answered the same day received. It would seem that this line is entitled to better service, and there will undoubtedly be objections from the Red Lake county towns.

The new Winnipeg train will reach Crookston about 10 o'clock at night, east bound, and the Duluth train will leave Grand Forks about 8 o'clock in the evening and make connections with it there. The north bound Winnipeg train will reach Crookston from St. Paul shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning and the train from Duluth will make connections at Crookston.

The new trains will take the numbers of 7 and 8, and will be run by way of the Fergus Falls division to Crookston and from there on the St. Vincent line to Emerson, and then on the Canadian Northern into Winnipeg. To take the place of trains 7, and 8, between Crookston and Minot, the change rumor says that trains 9 and 10, now running from St. Paul over the Willmar division to Winnipeg, will be run from Grand Forks to Minot on about the same time as trains 7 and 8 now.

Trains 25 and 26 now running between Duluth and Crookston will be run to Grand Forks, arriving from Duluth in the morning and leaving for Duluth in the evening.

Other changes are rumored, but nothing official has been given out regarding any of the changes outlined.

FORTUNE IN SHADE TREES.

States Pays $600,000 to Encoruage Tree Planting.

Minnesota has paid $600,000 since 1873 to encourage the planting of trees in prairie districts. Few states in the Union have expended a larger sum for this purpose. It is estimated that from 50,000 to 100,000 acres have been planted with trees in the last thirty years.

Most of this tree planting has been done west and south of what is called the Big Woods, which run south from Otter Tail county, through Douglas, Stearns, Meeker, Carver, Le Sueur, Waseca and into Freeborn. The trees have been planted in patches of less than ten acres, largely to form wind-brakes and beautify farms and country residences.

Cottonwood and box elder are favorite trees for this purpose. These trees grow very rapidly and in ten or fifteen years reach an altitude of a dozen feet. Spruce and ash are sometimes used and are highly recommended by experts on forestry. Experts say farmers should plant strips of willows about the tract for shelter.

The state gives a bounty of $2.50 an acre. No one person, however, can receive bounty for more than ten acres, and it is discontinued after six years. Until the last legislature the trees had to be planted eight feet apart, but under the new law the distance is twelve feet.

WILD SCRAMBLE FOR LAND

Crookston Land Office a Busy Place Tuesday During the Red Lake Opening.

"If you ever had a mother or even a grandmother, stand back and have mercy on these women."

This was the remark of a man who stood in the crowd that thronged the lobby of the United States land office at Crookston at 8:55 Tuesday morning. It was called forth by the fact that the dozen or more women were jammed in among the struggling mass that was seeking to file on government land. No attempt had been made to form a line, as the owner of the building had excluded all the landseekers until Tuesday morning. This made it a mob instead of an army.

Inside of the office the force had been systematized to handle the intending settlers exclusively. The applicants were admitted in squads of four and approached the desk, where were ranged Register Peterson, who administered the oaths; Clerk Malone, who received the filings; Receiver George, to whom the filing fee was paid, and Clerk Montague, who entered the filing on the books. In this way an average of one person a minute was disposed of.

Three burly policemen stood at the door and admitted the squads of four. There was a fight each time, the crowd outside struggling wildly for the privilege of getting inside.

The first squad contained three men and a woman. The latter was Miss Gustav B. Anderson, of Elk River, who secured the filing on a school section in Clearwater county, twenty-five miles southwest of Red lake. She had stood at the door since six o'clock in the morning for fear she would fail to be on time. She looked tired but happy as she received her receipt for the $14 which is required as a fee on $60 acres of land.

The second applicant was W. R. Craig of Beaudette, who sees in his luck a fortune in town lots. Another portion of of the territory covered by that growing city was filed upon by George Quel, and later on several others offered filings on the same property.

Several ladies filed among the first thirty-five admitted and the work was completed in as many minutes, which is a record for land office work up to date.

The opening exceeded in interest all expectations and it is believed that every foot of land that has present value will be claimed either at this office or before some one of the various United States commissioners at remote points in the district before the final windup today.

Some of the "sooners" who were anxious to be first at the desk of Register Peterson when the doors opened to admit the intending settlers at the United States land office this morning figured out a scheme to outwit the police. The officers twice yesterday frustrated their plans to form a line, and the fiat went forth that they would not be allowed to gather at the door of the office in the second story of the building until 6 o'clock this morning.

Several were unable to get rooms in the hotel building in which Uncle Sam has his office, or at any place near at hand, but secured from the obliging land attorneys whose offices are on the same floor the privilege of sleeping on the floor in their rooms.

In consequence, rolled in blankets or sleeping in fur overcoats, a large number, sufficient in fact to cover the floors of the offices, dreamed last night of success in their efforts to secure a farm on the morrow. As there are six large office suites on the same floor as the United States land office many were able in this manner to get accommodations at close range, in fact; directly on the firing line. Every man had his papers made out to cover the particular piece of land desired. The papers had been examined and re-examined by competent authorities so that there was no doubt of their being in proper form. A flaw would result in a delay that might be fatal to their hopes.

Register Peterson said: "I do not look for a large number of claimants at once, but the papers will continue to come for a week from commissioners all over the northern part of the state. The clause requiring homesteaders to see the land before they make entry is responsible for this. They will go to look at the lands and will file with the nearest commissoner."

Speaking of the land and the business to be done Receiver Geoege said:

"The lands are not what the intending settlers expected to find, and in many instances those who have gone to see them will not file. The struggle will come in cases where rival squatters are claimants, and there will likely be many contests later on. We will experience no trouble in taking care of the business, and it will extend over a fortnight owing to the fact that many filings will be made before commissioners. This will relieve our office of much of the work."

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Easy Pill

Easy to take and easy to act is that famous little pill DeWitt's Little Early Risers. This is due to the fact that they tonic the liver instead of purging it. They never gripe nor sicken, not even the most delicate lady, and yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. They cure torpid liver, constipation, billiousness, jaundice, headache, malaria and ward off pneumonia and fevers.

EARLY RISERS

A Terribly Strange Bed

— By —
WILKIE COLLINS

SHORTLY after my education at college was finished I happened to be staying at Paris with an English friend. We were both young men then and lived, I am afraid, rather a wild life in the delightful city of our sojourn. One night we were idling about the neighborhood of the Palais Royal doubtful to what amusement we should next betake ourselves. My friend proposed a visit to Frascati's, but his suggestion was not to my taste. I knew Frascati's, as the French saying is, by heart; had lost and won plenty of five franc pieces there merely for amusement's sake until it was amusement no longer and was thoroughly tired, in fact, of all the ghastly respectabilities of such a social anomaly as a respectable gambling house. "For heaven's sake," said I to my friend, "let us go somewhere where we can see a little genuine, blackguard, poverty stricken gaming, with no false gingerbread glitter thrown over it at all. Let us get away from fashionable Frascati's to a house where they don't mind letting in a man with a ragged coat or a man with no coat, ragged or otherwise." "Very well," said my friend. "We needn't go out of the Palais Royal to find the sort of company you want. Here's the place just before us, as blackguard a place, by all report, as you could possibly wish to see." In another minute we arrived at the door and entered the house.

When we got upstairs and had left our hats and sticks with the doorkeeper, we were admitted into the chief gambling room. We did not find many people assembled there, but few as the men were who looked up at us on our entrance they were all types—lamentably true types—of their respective classes.

We had come to see blackguards, but these men were something worse. There is a comic side, more or less appreciable, in all blackguardism. Here there was nothing but tragedy—mute, weird tragedy. The quiet in the room was horrible. The thin, haggard, long haired young man, whose sunken eyes fiercely watched the turning up of the cards, never spoke; the flabby, fat faced, pimply player who pricked his piece of pasteboard perseveringly to register how often black won and how often red never spoke; the dirty, wrinkled old man, with the vulture eyes and the darned greatcoat, who had lost his last sou and still looked on desperately after he could play no longer never spoke. Even the voice of the croupier sounded as if it were strangely dulled and thickened in the atmosphere of the room. I had entered the place to laugh, but the spectacle before me was something to weep over. I soon found it necessary to take refuge in excitement from the depression of spirits which was fast stealing on me. Unfortunately I sought the nearest excitement by going to the table and beginning to play. Still more unfortunately, as the event will show, I won—won prodigiously, won incredibly, won at such a rate that the regular players at the table crowded round me and, staring at my stakes with hungry, superstitious eyes, whispered to one another that the English stranger was going to break the bank.

The game was rouge et noir. I had played at it in every city in Europe, without, however, the care or the wish to study the theory of chances, that philosopher's stone of all gamblers, and a gambler in the strict sense of the word I have never been. I was heart whole from the corroding passion for play. My gaming was a mere idle amusement. I never resorted to it by necessity because I never knew what it was to want money. I never practiced it so incessantly as to lose more than I could afford or to gain more than I could coolly pocket without being thrown off my balance by my good luck. In short, I had hitherto frequented gaming tables just as I frequented ballrooms and opera houses—because they amused me and because I had nothing better to do with my leisure hours.

But on this occasion it was very different; now, for the first time in my life, I felt what the passion for play really was. My success first bewildered and then, in the most literal meaning of the word, intoxicated me. Incredible as it may appear, it is nevertheless true, that I only lost when I attempted to estimate chances and played according to previous calculation. If I left everything to luck and staked without any care or consideration, I was sure to win—to win in the face of every recognized probability in favor of the bank. At first some of the men present ventured their money safely enough on my color, but I speedily increased my stakes to sums which they dared not risk. One after another they left off playing and breathlessly looked on at my game.

Still, time after time, I staked higher and higher and still won. The excitement in the room rose to fever pitch. The silence was interrupted by a deep muttered chorus of oaths and exclamations in different languages every time the gold was shoveled across to my side of the table; even the imperturbable croupier dashed his rake on the floor in a (French) fury of astonishment at my success. But one man present preserved his self possession, and that man was my friend. He came to my side and, whispering in English, begged me to leave the place, satisfied with what I had already gained. I must do him the justice to say that he repeated his warnings and entreaties several times and only left me and went away after I had rejected his advice (I was to all intents and purposes gambling drunk) in terms which rendered it impossible for him to address me again that night.

Shortly after he had gone a hoarse voice behind me cried: "Permit me, my dear sir—permit me to restore to their proper place two napoleons which you have dropped. Wonderful luck, sir! I pledge you my word of honor, as an old soldier, in the course of my long experience in this sort of thing I never saw such luck as yours—never! Go on, sir—sacre mille bombes! Go on boldly and break the bank!"

I turned round and saw, nodding and smiling at me with inveterate civility, a tall man dressed in a frogged and braided surtout.

If I had been in my senses, I should have considered him personally as being rather a suspicious specimen of an old soldier. He had goggling, bloodshot eyes, mangy mustaches and a broken nose. His voice betrayed a barrack room intonation of the worst order, and he had the dirtiest pair of hands I ever saw, even in France. These little personal peculiarities exercised, however, no repelling influence on me. In the mad excitement, the reckless triumph of that moment, I was ready to fraternize with anybody who encouraged me in my game. I accepted the old soldier's offered pinch of snuff, clapped him on the back and swore he was the honestest fellow in the world—the most glorious relic of the grand army that I had ever met with. "Go on!" cried my military friend, snapping his fingers in ecstasy. "Go on and win! Break the bank—mille tonnerres, my gallant English comrade, break the bank!"

And I did go on—went on at such a rate that in another quarter of an hour the croupier called out, "Gentlemen, the bank has discontinued for tonight!" All the notes and all the gold in that bank now lay in a heap under my hands; the whole floating capital of the gambling house was waiting to pour into my pockets!

"Tie up the money in your handkerchief, my worthy sir," said the old soldier as I wildly plunged my hands into my heap of gold. "Tie it up as we used to tie up a bit of dinner in the grand army. Your winnings are too heavy for any breeches pockets that ever were sewed. There, that's it—shovel them in, notes and all! Credie, what luck! Stop—another napoleon on the floor! Ah, sacre petit polisson de Napoleon, have I found thee at last? Now then, sir—two tight double knots each way with your honorable permission and the money's safe. Feel it—feel it, fortunate sir—hard and round as a cannon ball— Ah, bah, if they had only fired such cannon balls at us at Austerlitz—nom d'une pipe! If they only had! And now, as an ancient grenadier, as an ex-brave of the French army, what remains for me to do? I ask what? Simply this—to entreat my valued English friend to drink a bottle of champagne with me and toast the goddess of fortune in foaming goblets before we part."

Excellent ex-brave! Convival ancient grenadier! Champagne, by all means! An English cheer for an old soldier—hurrah, hurrah! Another English cheer for the goddess Fortune—hurrah, hurrah, hurrah!

"Bravo—the Englishman, the amiable, gracious Englishman, in whose veins circulates the vivacious blood of France! Another glass? Ah, bah—the bottle is empty! Never mind! Vive le vin! I, the old soldier, order another bottle and half a pound of bonbons with it!"

"No, no, ex-brave; never, ancient grenadier! Your bottle last time; my bottle this! Behold it! Toast away! The French army, the great Napoleon, the present company, the croupier, the honest croupier's wife and daughters—if he has any—the ladies generally, everybody in the world!"

By the time the second bottle of champagne was emptied I felt as if I had been drinking liquid fire—my brain seemed all aflame. No excess in wine has ever had this effect on me before in my life. Was it the result of a stimulant acting upon my system when I was in a highly excited state? Was my stomach in a particularly disordered condition, or was the champagne amazingly strong?

"Ex-brave of the French army," cried I in a mad state of exhilaration, "I am on fire! How are you? You have set me on fire! Do you hear, my hero of Austerlitz? Let us have a third bottle of champagne to put the flame out!"

The old soldier wagged his head, rolled his goggle eyes until I expected to see them slip out of their sockets, placed his dirty forefinger by the side of his broken nose, solemnly ejaculated "Coffee!" and immediately ran off into an inner room.

The word pronounced by the eccentric veteran seemed to have a magical effect on the rest of the company present. With one accord they all rose to depart. Probably they had expected to profit by my intoxication, but, finding that my new friend was benevolently bent on preventing me from getting dead drunk, had now abandoned all hope of thriving pleasantly on my winnings. Whatever their motive might be, at any rate they went away in a body. When the old soldier returned and sat down opposite to me at the table, we had the room to ourselves. I could see the croupier in a sort of vestibule which opened out of it eating his supper in solitude. The silence was now deeper than ever.

A sudden change, too, had come over the ex-brave. He assumed a portentously solemn look, and when he spoke to me again his speech was ornamented by no oaths, enforced by no finger snapping, enlivened by no apostrophes or exclamations.

"Listen, my dear sir," said he in mysteriously confidential tones, "listen to an old soldier's advice. I have been to the mistress of the house (a very charming woman, with a genius for cookery) to impress on her the necessity of making us some particularly strong and good coffee. You must drink this coffee in order to get rid of your little amiable exaltation of spirits before you think of going home—you must, my good and gracious friend! With all that money to take home tonight it is a sacred duty to yourself to have your wits about you. You are known to be a winner to an enormous extent by several gentlemen present tonight, who, in a certain point of view, are very worthy and excellent fellows; but they are mortal men, my dear sir, and they have their amiable weaknesses. Need I say more? Ah, no, no. You understand me! Now, this is what you must do—send for a cabriolet when you feel quite well again, draw up all the windows when you get into it and tell the driver to take you home only through the large and well lighted thoroughfares. Do this, and you and your money will be safe. Do this, and tomorrow you will thank an old soldier for giving you a word of honest advice."

Just as the ex-brave ended his oration in very lachrymose tones the coffee came in, ready poured out in two cups. My attentive friend handed me one of the cups with a bow. I was parched with thirst and drank it off at a draft. Almost instantly afterward I was seized with a fit of giddiness and felt more completely intoxicated than ever. The room whirled round and round furiously; the old soldier seemed to be regularly bobbing up and down before me like the piston of a steam engine. I was half deafened by a violent singing in my ears; a feeling of utter bewilderment, helplessness, idiocy, overcame me. I rose from my chair, holding on by the table to keep my balance, and stammered out that I felt dreadfully unwell—so unwell that I did not know how I was to get home.

"My dear friend," answered the old soldier, and even his voice seemed to be bobbing up and down as he spoke—"my dear friend, it would be madness to go home in your state. You would be sure to lose your money. You might be robbed and murdered with the greatest ease. I am going to sleep here. Do you sleep here too. They make up capital beds in this house. Take one, sleep off the effects of the wine and go home safely with your winnings tomorrow—tomorrow, in broad daylight."

I had but two ideas left—one, that I must never let go hold of my handkerchief full of money; the other, that I must lie down somewhere immediately and fall off into a comfortable sleep. So I agreed to the proposal about the bed and took the offered arm of the old soldier, carrying my money with my disengaged hand. Preceded by the croupier, we passed along some passages and up a flight of stairs into the bedroom which I was to occupy. The ex-brave shook me warmly by the hand, proposed that we should breakfast together and then, followed by the croupier, left me for the night.

I ran to the wash hand stand, drank some of the water in my jug, poured the rest out and plunged my face into it; then sat down in a chair and tried to compose myself. I soon felt better. The change for my lungs from the fetid atmosphere of the gambling room to the cool air of the apartment I now occupied, the almost equally refreshing change for my eyes from the glaring gaslights of the "salon" to the dim, quiet flicker of one bedroom candle, aided wonderfully the restorative effects of cold water. The giddiness left me, and I began to feel a little like a reasonable being again. My first thought was of the risk of sleeping all night in a gambling house; my second, of the still greater risk of trying to get out after the house was closed and of going home alone at night through the streets of Paris with a large sum of money about me. I had slept in worse places than this on my travels, so I determined to lock, bolt and barricade my door and take my chance till the next morning.

Accordingly I secured myself against all intrusion, looked under the bed and into the cupboard, tried the fastening of the window and then, satisfied that I had taken every proper precaution, pulled off my upper clothing, put my light, which was a dim one, on the hearth among a feathery litter of wood ashes and got into bed with the handkerchief full of money under my pillow.

I soon felt not only that I could not go to sleep, but that I could not even close my eyes. I was wide awake and in a high fever. Every nerve in my body trembled; every one of my senses seemed to be preternaturally sharpened. I tossed and rolled and tried every kind of position and perseveringly sought out the cold corners of the bed, but all to no purpose. Now I thrust my arms over the clothes; now I poked them under the clothes; now I violently shot my legs straight out down to the bottom of the bed; now I convulsively coiled them up as near my chin as they would go; now I shook out my crumpled pillow, changed it to the cool side, patted it flat and lay down quietly on my back; now I fiercely doubled it in two, set it up on end, thrust it against the board of the bed and tried a sitting

FEMALE WEAKNESS

PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

F A. MIZEN, Agent.

groaned with vexation as I felt that I was in for a sleepless night.

What could I do? I had no book to read, and yet, unless I found out some method of diverting my mind, I felt certain that I was in the condition to imagine all sorts of horrors, to rack my brain with forebodings of every possible and impossible danger; in short, to pass the night in suffering all conceivable varieties of nervous terror.

I raised myself on my elbow and looked about the room—which was brightened by a lovely moonlight pouring straight through the window—to see if it contained any pictures or ornaments that I could at all clearly distinguish. While my eyes wandered from wall to wall a remembrance of Le Maistre's delightful little book, "Voyage Autour de Ma Chambre," occurred to me. I resolved to imitate the French author and find occupation and amusement enough to relieve the tedium of my wakefulness by making a mental inventory of every article of furniture I could see and by following up to their sources the multitude of associations which even a chair, a table or a wash hand stand may be made to call forth.

In the nervous, unsettled state of my mind at that moment I found it much easier to make my inventory than to make my reflections and thereupon soon gave up all hope of thinking in Le Maistre's fanciful track, or, indeed, of thinking at all. I looked about the room at the different articles of furniture and did nothing more.

There was, first, the bed I was lying in; a four post bed—of all things in the world to meet with in Paris—yes, a thorough, clumsy, British four poster, with a regular top lined with chintz, the regular fringed valance all round, the regular stifling, unwholesome curtains, which I remembered having mechanically drawn back against the posts without particularly noticing the bed when I first got into the room. Then there was the marble topped wash hand stand, from which the water I had spilled in my hurry to pour it out was still dripping slowly and more slowly on to the brick floor. Then two small chairs, with my coat, waistcoat and trousers flung on them. Then a large elbow chair covered with dirty white dimity, with my cravat and shirt collar thrown over the back. Then a chest of drawers with two of the brass handles off and a tawdry, broken china inkstand placed on it by way of ornament for the top. Then the dressing table, adorned by a very small looking glass and a very large pincushion. Then the window—an unusually large window. Then a dark old picture which the feeble candle dimly showed me. It was the picture of a fellow in a high Spanish hat, crowned with a plume of towering feathers—a swarthy, sinister ruffian, shading his eyes with his hand and looking intently upward, it might be, at some tall gallows on which he was going to be hanged. At any rate, he had the appearance of thoroughly deserving it.

This picture put a kind of constraint upon me to look upward, too—at the top of the bed. It was a gloomy and not an interesting object, and I looked back at the picture. I counted the feathers in the man's hat. They stood out in relief—three white, two green. I observed the crown of his hat, which was of a conical shape, according to the fashion supposed to have been favored by Guido Fawkes. I wondered what he was looking up at. It couldn't be at the stars. Such a desperado was neither astrologer nor astronomer. It must be at the high gallows, and he was going to be hanged presently. Would the executioner come into possession of his conical crowned hat and plume of feathers? I counted the feathers again—three white, two green.

While I still lingered over this very improving and intellectual employment my thoughts insensibly began to wander. The moonlight shining into the room reminded me of a certain moonlight night in England—the night after a picnic party in a Welsh valley. Every incident of the drive homeward, through lovely scenery, which the moonlight made lovelier than ever, came back to my remembrance, though I had never given the picnic a thought for years; though, if I had tried to recollect it, I could certainly have recalled little or nothing of that scene long past. Of all the wonderful faculties that help to tell us we are immortal which speaks the sublime truth more eloquently than memory? Here was I in a strange house of the most suspicious character, in a situation of uncertainty and even of peril which might seem to make the cool exercise of my recollection almost out of the question, nevertheless remembering, quite involuntarily, places, people, conversations, minute circumstances of every kind which I had thought forgotten forever, which I could not possibly have recalled at will even under the most favorable auspices. And what cause had produced in a moment the whole of this strange, complicated, mysterious effect? Nothing but some rays of moonlight shining in at my bedroom window.

I was still thinking of the picnic, of our merriment on the drive home, of the sentimental young lady who would quote "Childe Harold" because it was moonlight. I was absorbed by these past scenes and past amusements when in an instant the thread on which my memories hung snapped asunder. My attention immediately came back to present things more vividly than ever, and I found myself, I neither knew why nor wherefore, looking hard at the picture again.

Looking for what?

Good God! The man had pulled his hat down on his brows! No; the hat itself was gone! Where was the conical crown? Where the feathers—three white, two green? Not there! In place of the hat and feathers what dusky object was it that now hid his forehead, his eyes, his shading hand? Was the bed moving?

I turned on my back and looked up. Was I mad, drunk, dreaming, giddy again or was the top of the bed really moving down, sinking slowly, regularly, silently, horribly, right down throughout the whole of its length and breadth, right down upon me as I lay underneath?

My blood seemed to stand still. A deadly, paralyzing coldness stole all over me as I turned my head round on the pillow and determined to test whether the bed top was really moving or not by keeping my eye on the man in the picture.

The next look in that direction was enough. The dull, black, frowzy outline of the valance above me was within an inch of being parallel with his waist. I still looked breathlessly, and steadily and slowly—very slowly—I saw the figure and the line of frame below the figure vanish as the valance moved down before it.

I am, constitutionally, anything but timid. I have been on more than one occasion in peril of my life and have not lost my self possession for an instant, but when the conviction first settled on my mind that the bed top was really moving, was steadily and continuously sinking down upon me, I looked up, shuddering, helpless, panic stricken beneath the hideous machinery for murder, which was advancing closer and closer to suffocate me where I lay.

I looked up, motionless, speechless, breathless. The candle, fully spent, went out, but the moonlight still brightened the room. Down and down, without pausing and without sounding, came the bed top, and still my panic terror seemed to bind me faster and faster to the mattress on which I lay. Down and down it sank till the dusty odor from the lining of the canopy came stealing into my nostrils.

At that final moment the instinct of self preservation startled me out of my trance, and I moved at last. There was just room for me to roll myself sideways off the bed. As I dropped noiselessly to the floor the edge of the murderous canopy touched me on the shoulder.

Without stopping to draw my breath, without wiping the cold sweat from my face, I rose instantly on my knees to watch the bed top. I was literally spellbound by it. If I had heard footsteps behind me, I could not have turned round. If a means of escape had been miraculously provided for me, I could not have moved to take advantage of it. The whole life in me was, at that moment, concentrated in my eyes.

It descended. The whole canopy, with the fringe round it, came down—down, close down—so close that there was not room now to squeeze my finger between the bed top and the bed. I felt at the sides and discovered that what had appeared to me from beneath to be the ordinary light canopy of a four post bed was in reality a thick, broad mattress, the substance of which was concealed by the valance and its fringe. I looked up and saw the four posts rising hideously bare. In the middle of the bed top was a huge wooden screw that had evidently worked it down through a hole in the ceiling, just as ordinary presses are worked down on the substance selected for compression. The frightful apparatus moved without making the faintest noise. There had been no creaking as it came down. There was now not the faintest sound from the room above. Amid a dead and awful silence I beheld before me in the nineteenth century and in the civilized capital of France such a machine for secret murder by suffocation as might have existed in the worst days of the inquisition in the lonely inns among the Harz mountains, in the mysterious tribunals of Westphalia. Still as I looked on it I could not move. I could hardly breathe, but I began to recover the power of thinking, and in a moment I discovered the murderous conspiracy framed against me in all its horror.

My cup of coffee had been drugged and drugged too strongly. I had been saved from being smothered by having taken an overdose of some narcotic. How I had chafed and fretted at the fever fit which had preserved my life by keeping me awake! How recklessly I had confided myself to the two wretches who had led me into this room, determined for the sake of my winnings to kill me in my sleep by the surest and most horrible contrivance for secretly accomplishing my destruction! How many men, winners like me, had slept, as I had proposed to sleep, in that bed and had never been seen or heard of more! I shuddered at the bare idea of it.

But ere long all thought was again suspended by the sight of the murderous canopy moving once more. After it had remained on the bed, as nearly as I could guess, about ten minutes it began to move up again. The villains who worked it from above evidently believed that their purpose was now accomplished. Slowly and silently, as it had descended, that horrible bed top rose toward its former place. When it reached the upper extremities of the four posts, it reached the ceiling too. Neither hole nor screw could be seen. The bed became in appearance an ordinary bed again, the canopy an ordinary canopy, even to the most suspicious eyes.

Now, for the first time, I was able to move, to rise from my knees, to dress myself in my upper clothing and to consider how I should escape. If I betrayed by the smallest noise that the attempt to suffocate me had failed, I was certain to be murdered. Had I made any noise already? I listened intently, looking toward the door.

No; no footsteps in the passage outside, no sound of a tread, light or heavy, in the room above; absolute silence everywhere. Besides locking and bolting my door, I had moved an old wooden chest against it, which I had found under the bed. To remove this chest (my blood ran cold as I thought of what its contents might be) without making some disturbance was impossible, and, moreover, to think of escaping through the house, now barred up for the night, was sheer insanity. Only one chance was left me—the window. I stole to it on tiptoe.

My bedroom was on the first floor, above an entresol, and looked into the back street.

With caution I raised my hand to open the window, knowing that on that action hung by the merest hairbreadth my chance of safety. They keep vigilant watch in a house of murder. If any part of the frame cracked, if the hinge creaked, I was a lost man. It must have occupied me at least five minutes, reckoning by time—five hours, reckoning by suspense—to open that window. I succeeded in doing it silently, in doing it with all the dexterity of a housebreaker, and then looked down into the street. To leap the distance beneath me would be almost certain destruction. Next I looked round at the sides of the house. Down the left side ran a thick water pipe which seemed very solid. It passed close by the outer edge of the window. The moment I saw the pipe I knew I was saved. My breath came and went freely for the first time since I had seen the canopy of the bed moving down upon me.

To some men the means of escape which I had discovered might have seemed difficult and dangerous enough. To me the prospect of slipping down the pipe into the street did not suggest even a thought of peril. I had always been accustomed by the practice of gymnastics to keep up my schoolboy powers as a daring and expert climber, and I knew that my head, hands and feet would serve me faithfully in any hazards of ascent or descent. I had already got one leg over the window sill when I remembered the handkerchief filled with money under my pillow. I could well have afforded to leave it behind me, but I was revengefully determined that the miscreants of the gambling house should miss their plunder as well as their victim. So I went back to the bed and tied the heavy handkerchief at my back by my cravat.

Just as I had made it tight and fixed it in a comfortable place I thought I heard a sound of breathing outside the door. The chill feeling of horror ran through me again as I listened. No; dead silence still in the passage. I had only heard the night air blowing softly into the room. The next moment I was on the window sill, and the next I had a firm grip on the water pipe with my hands and knees.

I slid down into the street easily and quietly, as I thought I should, and immediately set off at the top of my speed to a branch "prefecture" of police which I knew was situated in the immediate neighborhood. A "subprefect" and several picked men among his subordinates happened to be up, maturing, I believe, some scheme for discovering the perpetrator of a mysterious murder which all Paris was talking of just then. When I began my story in a breathless hurry and in very bad French, I could see that the subprefect suspected me of being a drunken Englishman who had robbed somebody, but he soon altered his opinion as I went on, and before I had anything like concluded he shoved all the papers before him into a drawer, put on his hat, supplied me with another, for I was bareheaded, ordered a file of soldiers, desired his expert followers to get ready all sorts of tools for breaking open doors and ripping up brick flooring and took my arm in the most friendly and familiar manner possible to lead me with him out of the house. I will venture to say that when the subprefect was a little boy and was taken for the first time to the play he was not half as much pleased as he was now at the job in prospect for him at the gambling house.

Away we went through the streets, the subprefect cross examining and congratulating me in the same breath as we marched at the head of our formidable posse comitatus. Sentinels were placed at the back and front of the house the moment we got to it. A tremendous battery of knocks was directed against the door. A light appeared at a window. I was told to conceal myself behind the police. Then came more knocks and a cry of "Open in the name of the law!" At the terrible summons bolts and locks gave way before an invisible hand, and the moment after the subprefect was in the passage, confronting a waiter half dressed and ghastly pale. This was the short dialogue which immediately took place:

"We want to see the Englishman who is sleeping in this house."

"He went away hours ago."

"He did no such thing. His friend went away. He remained. Show us his bedroom!"

"I swear to you, M. le Sous-prefect, he is not here. He"—

"I swear to you, M. le Garcon, he is. He slept here. He didn't find your bed comfortable. He came to us to complain of it. Here he is among my men, and here am I ready to look for a flea or two in his bedstead. Renaudin (calling to one of the subordinates and pointing to the waiter), collar that man and tie his hands behind him. Now, then, gentlemen, let us walk upstairs."

Every man and woman in the house was secured, the "old soldier" the first. Then I identified the bed in which I had slept, and then we went into the room above.

No object that was at all extraordinary appeared in any part of it. The subprefect looked round the place, commanded everybody to be silent, stamped twice on the floor, called for a candle, looked attentively at the spot he had stamped on and ordered the flooring there to be carefully taken up. This was done in no time. Lights were produced, and we saw a deep raftered cavity between the floor of this room and the ceiling of the room beneath. Through this cavity there ran perpendicularly a sort of case of iron thickly greased, and inside the case appeared the screw, which communicated with the bed top below. Extra lengths of screw, freshly oiled; levers covered with felt, all the complete upper works of a heavy press, constructed with infernal ingenuity so as to join the fixtures below and when taken to pieces again to go into the smallest possible compass, were next discovered and pulled out on the floor. After some little difficulty the subprefect succeeded in putting the machinery together and, leaving his men to work it, descended with me to the bedroom. The smothering canopy was then lowered, but not so noiselessly as I had seen it lowered. When I mentioned this to the subprefect, his answer, simple as it was, had a terrible significance. "My men," said he, "are working down the bed top for the first time; the men whose money you won were in better practice."

We left the house in the sole possession of two police agents, every one of the inmates being removed to prison on the spot. The subprefect, after taking down my "proces verbal" in his office, returned with me to my hotel to get my passport. "Do you think," I asked as I gave it to him, "that any men have really been smothered in that bed as they tried to smother me?"

"I have seen dozens of drowned men laid out at the morgue," answered the subprefect, "in whose pocketbooks were found letters stating that they had committed suicide in the Seine because they had lost everything at the gaming table. Do I know how many of those men entered the same gambling house that you entered, won as you won, took that bed as you took it, slept in it, were smothered in it and were privately thrown into the river, with a letter of explanation written by the murderers and placed in their pocketbooks? No man can say how many or how few have suffered the fate from which you have escaped. The people of the gambling house kept their bedstead machinery a secret from us, even from the police! The dead kept the rest of the secret for them. Good night, or, rather, good morning, M. Faulkner. Be at my office again at 9 o'clock. In the meantime au revoir."

The rest of my story is soon told. I was examined and re-examined. The gambling house was strictly searched all through from top to bottom. The prisoners were separately interrogated, and two of the less guilty among them made a confession. I discovered that the "old soldier" was the master of the gambling house. Justice discovered that he had been drummed out of the army as a vagabond years ago; that he had been guilty of all sorts of villainies since; that he was in possession of stolen property, which the owners identified, and that he, the croupier, another accomplice, and the woman who had made my cup of coffee were all in the secret of the bedstead. There appeared some reason to doubt whether the inferior persons attached to the house knew anything of the suffocating machinery, and they received the benefit of that doubt by being treated simply as thieves and vagabonds. As for the "old soldier" and his two head myrmidons, they went to the galleys. The woman who had drugged my coffee was imprisoned for I forget how many years. The regular attendants at the gambling house were considered "suspicious" and placed under surveillance, and I became for one whole week, which is a long time, the head "lion" in Parisian society. My adventure was dramatized by three illustrious playmakers, but never saw theatrical daylight, for the censorship forbade the introduction on the stage of a correct copy of the gambling house bedstead.

One good result was produced by my adventure, which any censorship must have approved—it cured me of ever again trying rouge et noir as an amusement. The sight of a green cloth with packs of cards and heaps of money on it will henceforth be forever associated in my mind with the sight of a bed canopy descending to suffocate me in the silence and darkness of the night.

Just as Mr. Faulkner pronounced these words he started in his chair and resumed his stiff, dignified position in a great hurry. "Bless my soul!" cried he, with a comic look of astonishment and vexation. "While I have been telling you what is the real secret of my interest in the sketch you have so kindly given to me I have altogether forgotten that I came here to sit for my portrait. For the last hour or more I must have been the worst model you ever had to draw from."

"On the contrary, you have been the best," said I. "I have been trying to catch your likeness, and while telling your story you have unconsciously shown me the natural expression I wanted to insure my success."

Life

Renewed. Left Side Badly Affected.

Liable to Paralytic Stroke.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Me New Life.

"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Remedies quite extensively, especially the Restorative Nervine, which has done wonders for me. Six years ago I had nervous prostration and again three years ago, at which time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I kept taking it for six months and have taken an occasional dose during the last two years. I am practically a new man and feel that I have been given a new lease of life. I used to have very bad attacks of stomach trouble but since using the Nervine I can eat most anything I want with impunity. I was examined in Omaha by a noted German doctor three years ago. He told me I was liable to a paralytic stroke any moment; that my whole left side was badly affected. That was just before I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My work for two years and a half has been very trying on my nerves. I am a presiding elder, traveling my districts at the rate of ten thousand miles a year, preaching on an average of five times a week, besides many business meetings, and the multitudinous cares of my work in general. Thanks to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I have been gaining in flesh despite this hard work until now I weigh a hundred and ninety-six pounds, nearly twenty pounds more than in all my life. I preach Nervine wherever I go to those afflicted with nerve, heart or stomach trouble."—Rev. M. D. Myers, Presiding Elder, Free Methodist Church, Correctionville, Ia.

THE report on the postoffice scandals, prepared by Forth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, was placed in the hands of President Roosevelt on Oct. 24. The report is very long, and it may be some time before it will be given to the public. The president will be assisted by Postmaster General Payne and Attorney General Knox in reviewing the report.

PRIVATE banks at LeSueur and Jordan have failed during the past week, and evidence of crookedness is not lacking. In the interest of depositors, and for the good of the reliable and well-officered private banks, why wouldn't it be wise for the legislature to make all of them subject to official examination, and require them to publish occasional reports of their condition?

GOVERNOR VAN SANT takes himself altogether too seriously in making public announcement to the effect that he is the only person in the state qualified to hold the governor's office. The merger never was an issue, and it matters little to the people of Minnesota whether or not the contentions of the Northern Securities company are sustained by the supreme court. The two railroads involved have been operated in harmony with mutual understandings for more than ten years, and the supreme court decision can in nowise change present conditions.

A TREASURY surplus of over $13,000,000 has melted away between October, 1902, and October, 1903, the statement given out on Saturday showing that the first four months of the current fiscal year have ended with only half a million on the "right side of the ledger"—a negligible amount in federal finance. The disappearance of our vaunted surplus in the treasury is readily explained by the fact that customs receipts so far this year has fallen off $8,000,000, while expenditures, also compared with last year, have increased more than $11,000,000, five millions in naval outlay and six millions for miscellaneous civil and military expenses. The remainder of the year is expected to make a better showing.

IT seems that the uniform scheme established by Mr. Roosevelt's secretary is not a new one. The Washington correspondent to the New York World says: "John Addison Porter, secretary to President McKinley, was another who tried to make the White house look like a foreign court. He ordered Captain Loeffler, the president's doorkeeper, who is an officer in the army, to appear in his dress uniform. Mr. McKinley spotted Loeffler when he opened the door the first time and asked why he was in uniform. Captain Loeffler referred him to Secretary Porter, who said he thought it would look more dignified to have all the attendants uniformed; Mr. McKinley was very angry. "This is a republic," said Mr. McKinley, "not a monarchy. Send Loeffler home to change his clothes." Until Loeb's advent no one since then has had the courage to suggest uniforms at the White house."

CONQUEST OF WESTERN CANADA

All the talk about the Alaskan boundtry and revision of the tariff system of England and her colonies, and Canadian amalgamation increases the interest of the American people in their neighbors on the north, says the St. Paul News. And it does not take more than half an eye to discover a marked similarity between the development of Canada and the history of the development of the United States or to foresee a period of remarkable and long-drawn-out prosperity for Great Britain's empire colony, from the rugged banks of Newfoundland even to the fartherest stretches of the Portland canal.

The history of Canadian progress will, for the period of a quarter of a century at least, revolve about the greater transcontinental railroad that is opening up the Western reaches, just as the Union Pacific opened up new nations to add stars to Columbia's diadem.

The extent of the immigration of the home and fortune seekers into Western Canada can be understood better by the statistics of the Canadian Pacific railroad, which sold last year upward of 2,500,000 acres of land, at an average of about $4 per acre. Three years ago its sales fell short of 400,000 acres, but the year following they increased to nearly 1,600,000 acres, which averaged about $3 per acre.

So in three years 4,500,000 good, rich acres of the West have been taken up by individuals who doubtless will achieve the success that came open-handed to the early settlers of our Western plains and mountains. Within five years the gross receipts of the Canadian Pacific have almost doubled, a slight earnest of the business that is bound to come when the doughty pioneers begin to reap their golden harvests.

Weather Affects Cigars.

The majority of smokers seem to be unaware of the extraordinary receptiveness of cigars to the weather. During wet weather it is almost impossible to keep cigars dry, and they do not burn evenly or well and the flavor becomes strong and often disagreeable. It pays to know that golden grain belt beer never changes—it is always delicious and invigorating. A great many ladies can drink golden grain belt beer who do not like other beers, and any doctor will tell you it's a splendid tonic. Use it regularly to get the most benefit. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Clothes.

Robert is not yet four years old. One day his mother saw him looking intently at the medallion representing the "Judgment of Paris."

Presently he asked, "What is it about, mamma?

His mother told him the old story of the golden apple and the beautiful woman, adding, half playfully, as she finished, "Now, whom do you think the more beautiful, Robert?"

He studied earnestly a minute, then replied, "I can't tell, because they haven't their clothes on."—Harper's Magazine.

The Butterick Publishing company writes us that it has printed over one million copies of the Delineator for December. Every lady in the city should own a copy of this superb number. Only 15c at Bangs & Co., next door to postoffice.

A new line of linen cloth papetries —25 sheets letter paper and 25 envelopes—just received at THE COURIER stationery store. The best of these goods sell for only 35 cents per box. A large line of the fancy hemstitched papers are now on hand.

Judge Watts finished the October term of district court Tuesday afternoon, and went to St. Hilaire where the Rocksbury ditch case is being heard. It is a court case, and the Judge will probably reserve his decision for several weeks.

J. F. LaFramboise is having bills printed for an auction at his farm in Lake Pleasant township on Monday, November 23. Mr. LaFramboise intends to go west and will sell everything he owns in the line of stock, machinery, household goods, etc.

Joe Normandin complains that he has seen nothing of his cow since it disappeared from his barn on Hallowe'en. Mr. Normandin knows who took the cow from the barn, and advises them to call and make settlement if they want to keep out of the courts.

T. Richard will have an auction sale of all his stock, machinery, etc., next Monday, November 16, at his farm in Black River township. This will be a big sale and worth attending, if you need anything in his line. Look for bills for futher particulars.

August Grimm and Miss Katie Schoenauer were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schoenauer, living just south of town. These young people have many friends who will wish them a happy and prosperous married life.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week to the following persons: C. M. Rolland and Miss Lizzie A. Sinclair, both of St. Hilaire; Arthur LaPlante and Miss Annie Cyr, both of Red Lake Falls; August Grimm and Miss Katie Schoenauer, both of Red Lake Falls.

The Racket Store has a larger line of staple notions and fancy goods than ever before. It is surprising how low the prices are at this place. When you need anything in the way of dishes, tinware, notions, or household novelties of any kind call at the Racket Store.

Mrs. F. L. Tracy, wife of the Great Northern agent, arrived last Saturday to join her husband. She came from Hillsboro, N. D., where she has been visiting for the past several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Tracy are looking for a residence, and expects to go to housekeeping in the near future.

THE COURIER was remembered last Saturday with a large bunch of pansies grown in Mrs. Hennings' garden. It is quite unusual for garden flowers to bloom at this season of the year, and goes to show that northern Minnesota has had as much good fall weather as any part of the country.

There are others, but there is only one "Blue Banner" brand of chocolate creams. Forty-two years experience and expert labor enables the Boston manufacturer to make us a line of confections that are well-nigh unequalled. A baker's dozen of rare flavors.—Bangs & Co., next door to postoffice.

Work has been commenced on the new German Lutheran church building, for which P. A. Rogge has the contract. It is being erected in the block just north of Matt Skala's store and will cost about $1,000. With favorable weather Mr. Rogge expects to have the edifice completed before Christmas.

O. B. Loomis, special correspondent and descriptive writer for the St. Paul Globe, has been in the city this week collecting material for a page write-up of the manufacturing and business enterprises of Red Lake Falls. As Mr. Loomis is an exceptionally able writer, the article will undoubtedly be a good one.

The band concert at the opera house Friday evening attracted a large audience, and the entertainment was one of the best ever given by the band. The instrumental solos by Prof. Onstad and J. B. Armstrong, and the vocal solos by Miss Delia Toupin added not a little to the otherwise meritorious program.

The trial of Dolphis Beausoliel, charged with adultery, was heard by the district court last Friday, and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The defendent was given the option of a $150 fine or four months in the penitentiary. On Tuesday of this week the fine was paid and Mr. Beausoliel is again at liberty.

The Sanford Dodge company presented "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Hamlet" at the Metripolitan Tuesday and Wednesday evenings to large audiences. Mr. Dodge is one of the best actors in the country, and is supported by an exceptionally strong company of artists. Red Lake Falls people will hope for a return engagement.

At Fairmont, five families have formed a club and rented a house, secured a competent cook, and all of them will take their meals at this club house. Everything will be run on the co-operative plan, except that each family will provide their own table furnishings. Lack of kitchen help has driven these people to this unique method of living.

F. J. Altnow informs THE COURIER that the firm of Altnow & Rollig have decided to move their foundry and machine shop from Winthrop to Red Lake Falls in the spring. They expect to put up a modern building to house their plant. The building and machinery will represent an outlay of about $25,000, and will be one of the largest concerns of the kind in the state.

Thief River Press: Work on the excavation for Thief River's new $18,000 opera house is progresing rapidly, ten teams and a dozen men or more being employed in the work. The dirt is dumped on the street and low places in the immediate neighborhood. Mr. Rising has already sold many tickets for the opening night and there is no reason to doubt that within a few months this city will be supplied with one of the best opera houses in the northwest.

An exchange calls attention to the fact that on September 1st, the law passed by the last legislature to protect the lives of hotel guests from fire took effect. It provides that there shall be more than one means of egress from each floor above the first; also that in each outside bedroom there shall be in plain sight a three eight inch rope securely fastened in the room and leading directly to the ground. Failure to comply with this law renders the hotel management liable to imprisonment for not more than 90 days or a fine not in excess of $100.

Mr. and Mrs. August Riechel and daughter, Miss Lulu, and Fred Gesswein left Tuesday evening for Oregon City, Oregon, where they expect to make there future home. Mr. Riechel does not expect to engage in business this winter, but if they like the country and find a good opening may conclude to undertake a mercantile venture next spring. Red Lake Falls people are sorry to lose this estimable family. They have lived here a long time and are universally esteemed. THE COURIER joins with all the rest of the folks in wishing them good luck in their new location.

The famous military drama, "True Blue," was presented at the opera house Monday evening under the auspices of the Crookston militia company. The attendance was not large and the militia company undoubtedly lost considerable money on the play. This is accounted for from the fact that Sanford Dodge was billed for the two nights succeeding, and also from the fact that nearly every person from Crookston that had been over for the past two weeks asserted that the play was not of much account. The militia company secured a special train from Crookston to Red Lake Falls for the occasion, but the train was as poorly patronized as the show and the boys failed to make good their guarantee by about $75.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. AMERICAN BANKING SYSTEM.

Democratic in Its Tendencies and Well Adapted to Needs of Vast Territory.

Ever since Andrew Jackson overthrew the Second bank of the United States, the American banking system has consisted of a large number of small institutions possessing little desire or power of helpful cooperation. Large banks with numerous branches, such as exist in Carada and Scotland, have been unknown in the United States, save for a few transient enterprises of ante-bellum days, writes Prof. Charles J. Bullock, in Atlantic. A central institution, enjoying federal patronage and serving to unify banking interests, has been a political impossibility since Nicholas Biddle rashly ventured upon a trial of strength with the masterful statesman from Tennessee. National banks, state banks, private banks, trust companies, competing vigorously for public favor, have met tolerably well the needs of the country in fair weather; but in times of stress and storm these separate institutions have been unable to oppose a united front to the forces of financial disorder. Yet, upon the whole, this decentralization of banking interests has been generally approved as democratic in its tendencies and well adapted to the diverse needs of our vast territory.

At the head of the system stand the national banks, which possess the exclusive power to issue circulating notes. For 20 years following the civil war this privilege remained sufficiently remunerative to gain for these institutions a decided predominance over the banks of deposit and discount incorporated by the several states; but since the early eighties causes which are well understood have reduced the profit derived from the issue of notes, and have decreased the attractiveness of a federal charter. . . . In point of resources and banking power the national associations still retain their preeminence, having nearly three times the capital and over twice the deposits shown by the state institutions; yet banks of the latter class are increasing more rapidly than those of the former, despite the temporary influence of recent changes in the national banking laws.

FASHION'S PASSING FADS.

It Is Better to Keep in Line with Them Than to Be Considered a "Back-Number."

The man and the woman of average intelligence, average good sense and an average amount of cash have reached the conclusion that it is, as a rule, far better to obey the decrees of fashion than to defy them and seek to be beyond their influence, says the Baltimore American. The man who wears a last year's straw hat when he can afford a new one simply invites unfavorable criticism, and the woman who does the same thing has never yet been discovered. This does not mean that all sensible people are fashion's slaves, but it does mean that they generally treat her varying decrees with more consideration than they give to many rules which are laid down for their conduct.

One of the latest decrees issued from this temple where so many worship is to the effect that bric-a-brac has outlived its usefulness and must depart. Just where it is to go is not specified, but it can with safety be placed in the garret or thrown at the members of the feline opera company which insist on giving midnight concerts, with the back fence as a stage. Bric-a-brac has long been a word of all kinds of meaning, including ornaments from a little china dog to a valuable mosaic. Of course, all cannot be treated alike, and good judgment must be used in bringing about their final departure.

Good reasons are given for this decree. Bric-a-brac has so multiplied in many parlors that the visitor has to be very careful lest he sit down on some frail ornament or knock half a dozen incongruous and wholly uninteresting pieces of glass or china off the center table or the mantel. Reducing the number of these things may, therefore, prove a distinct blessing to men, the majority of whom are more or less awkward, and cannot fail to lessen the burdens of the housekeeper and of the maid who is expected to dust all this collection of animal and mineral freaks at least once a week.

Business Epitaph.

Amusing epitaphs are not difficult to find, if one is seeking them. The Cheshire Republican cites a most singular one, which may be found on a monument in eastern Tennessee.

"Sacred to the memory of John Smith, for 20 years senior partner of the firm of Smith & Jones, now J. J. Jones & Co."

The names are not really Smith and Jones, but they will answer for the purposes of the story. "'I met Jones lately,'" says the narrator, "and he gave me a frank explanation of the inscription.

"Smith was a bachelor, without relatives," he said, "but he knew a tremendous lot of country people, and if any of them happened to see his grave they might think that the old house had closed up and gone out of business. So I thought it no more than right than to let them know that the firm was still alive."

What News.

Taddles—I used to think a good deal of straddles, but,—

Waddles—You don't say so? What has he done?

"The other day I asked him to call round and give me his opinion of an article of mine on 'The Impending Crisis.' Well, he came, all right; but he brought a little thing of his own for me to hear, and, confound him, he wasted all the evening with his egotistical trash."—London Tit-Bits.

BATTLES WITH SWORDFISH.

Fisherman Attempts to Kill Sea Monster, But Almost Receives His Quietus Instead.

Christopher Horwaugh, one of the best known fishermen of the fleet which hails from Block island, near New York city, engaged in a terrific battle the other day with a swordfish which weighed 500 pounds. In the battle Horwaugh sustained injuries which sent him to a hospital.

Horwaugh was one of the crew of the catboat Lindsey, Capt. Edwin Dodge. When six miles south of the island a man on the masthead sighted a huge fish. A boat headed for it. When the boat neared the fish Capt. Dodge, sighting the monster about three feet below the surface, threw a harpoon with good aim. It struck the swordfish and Horwaugh went off in a small boat to finish it off.

The fish began to circle swiftly around the boat which Horwaugh was in. The fish dived deep, and, turning quickly, came up directly under the stern of the boat. The sword struck the bottom of the boat, penetrated it, and entered the fisherman's left leg and was forced through the fleshy part, the point of the sword being pushed entirely through the flesh, coming out at the hip. The flesh of Horwaugh's leg was torn from the bone. Horwaugh was found to be terribly torn and was bleeding profusely. It was feared he would bleed to death if the flow was not stopped, and with the injured man aboard the boat made for the harbor.

FROM THE CANNIBAL ISLES.

Hawaiians Were Refused Rooms in Chicago Hotels by Timorous Landlords.

Representative Aylett in a speech before the Hawaiian legislature in favor of advertising the islands, told of his experience in Chicago at the world's fair. The hotel manager who accommodated the Hawaiians at Chicago was densely ignorant concerning the people of the islands. "When you get up in the morning," said the cautious host to the amazed Hawaiians, "put on your trousers. Don't go out with nothing on."

"When we got into Chicago," said Aylett, "we could not get into any hotel because we were supposed to be from a heathen land. We were in the depot from nine o'clock in the morning to six o'clock in the evening, and we finally got accommodations at a place seven miles outside the city. After the first day I asked why people were so afraid of us and was told it was because we were from cannibal islands."

Aylett said the only way to correct such impressions on the mainland was by proper advertising, to show the people of the states the true conditions in the islands.

FALL OF CZAR FORETOLD.

Prof. Milyoukov in a Recent Lecture Says Revolution Is Near in Russia.

That the power of the czar is on the wane and that representative and constitutional government is a thing of the near future in Russia were conclusions reached by Prof. Paul Milyoukov in his lecture on "Russian History and Institutions" at the University of Chicago recently.

"The revolutionary movement has become particularly insistent within the last few years," he said. "It has gained headway in spite of the restrictions of the policy and censorship systems and has had almost phenomenal growth in the universities and academies. Professors of a liberal turn of mind have been banished, the number of students has been decreased, the fees for tuition increased, spies of the government introduced within the institutions and student gatherings of every description interdicted. The restrictive measures of the government have even gone so far as to exercise a censorship over the lectures delivered in the classrooms. But these laws have been of no avail and are not likely to change the situation in the future."

BRITISH YOUTH DEGENERATE.

London School Board Report Shows Physical and Mental Defects Are Rapidly Increasing.

Coming close upon the heels of the debate in the house of lords, the London school board report on the degenerate condition of a large percentage of the school children has caused a profound sensation.

Two per cent. of the pupils are declared to be so deficient as to be unteachable; ten per cent. have so defective eyesight that they are thrown back in their work, and ten per cent.'s hearing is seriously defective, and one per cent. have defects in their ears, which lead to a fatal result.

Classes have been opened in 61 centers for feeble-minded children, while the percentage of actual imbeciles has grown so that the asylum accommodations at present available are entirely insufficient. Early marriages, underfeeding, drunken parents, bad air and neglect are mentioned as causes of this terrible state of affairs.

Are One Hundred Years Old.

Sunday schools were born 100 years ago—on July 13, 1803—in a funny old round building in London, which is now used as a wagon shop, but which was known as the Surrey chapel in those days.

Switzerland's Liberal School System.

The public schools in Switzerland are operated by the government, and civil service rules are strictly applied. The teachers, who are mostly women, are very well paid and never discharged except for cause. When they get so old they can't teach they are pensioned liberally. The result is that the country has an excellent corps of educators.

Rheumatism
Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terribe aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away wth liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rhuematism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles i muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, utting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, nd the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish rculation stimulated and quickened, and soon the stem is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles d joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lastg cure of this most painful disease effected.

Doctors presribed for me for over two months withou giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advetised and decided to try it. Immediately commenced its use I felt better, and remrked to mother that I was glad I had at last und some relief. I continued its use an am entirely well. I will always feel deply interested in the success of S. S. S. nce it did me so much good.

NEW SOCIETY FAD.

Evanston, Ill., Women Spend Summer in Nature Study.

Woods in the Vicinity Are Scoured for Specimens of All Kinds of Insects and Museums Are Started in Homes.

Bugs, toads, beetles, butterflies and all kinds of insects are fleeing in terror from society women on the shore of Lake Michigan in the vicinity of Evanston, Ill. For the nature study fad has seized the exclusive set and the woods are being scoured for specimens.

In the underbrush along the lake smartly clad women are prying, armed with microscopes and cyanide jars, on the lookout for insects. The fad started recently and reached its climax when the "Back Lot" society was formed that the studies might be pursued systematically.

So far 57 women have signified their intention of joining the society. They live in Evanston and the towns north of there.

Prof. John H. Gray, of Northwestern university, has taken over the society and joined it with his infant class, which was organized some time ago, and will be instructed by Miss Harriett Lehmann.

It is not a perfunctory study of nature that has been undertaken by the clubwomen. They are going into the movement in earnest. The opening days saw a stampede to book stores for scientific publications and instruments for the capture and care of the specimens, and when the supply ran out more were ordered.

In addition to this museums are being built in private residences, where collections are being stored.

"You see, this is more profitable than killing time at a summer resort," Mrs. Gilson said. "It is really quite instructive and entertaining at the same time. There is quite as much pleasure in chasing a butterfly with a net as in playing golf."

FIRST WOMAN CARPENTER.

Energetic Miss of Montclair, N. Y., Receives Invitation to Join Master Carpenters' Association.

Miss Louise Christiana Hinck, sister of Ernest C. Hinck, a real estate operator of New York city and Montclair, N. J., is the first woman to receive an invitation to become a member of the Master Carpenters' association of Montclair. Miss Hinck is an energetic young woman, and inherited her taste for real estate from her father. She is wealthy and has constructed a large number of handsome residences, thus beautifying the town. She is also a lawyer, but practices little.

Miss Hinck received her preliminary education at Hanover, Germany, and subsequently entered Vassar college, where she received honors. At the New Jersey Business college she was presented with a gold medal. At the New York university law school the degree of bachelor of laws was conferred upon her five years ago. A year later the degree of master of laws was conferred, and a short time afterward she was admitted to practice in New York state. She plays golf and tennis, and she is a splendid bicycle rider.

TO PARIS BY RAIL.

Frenchman Is Promoting a Line Which Will Run Under Behring Straits.

Locqui Lobet is promoting the building of a trans-Atlantic-Siberia railroad and thereby affording an all-rail route from New York to Paris, shifting the commercial axis from the Suez canal to Behring straits. In 1898 Lobet visited Alaska on a scientific mission and it was there he first thought of the scheme that has since interested many wealthy men of Europe and resulted in the formation of a big company, he says, which has pledged him ample funds to carry it out. He is now making a tour of the world in the interest of this railroad scheme.

The present plans outline a road across the United States from New York via Chicago to San Francisco, thence northward through California, Oregon and Washington, along the coast to Juneau, thence to Fort Cudahy, and thence to the most westerly point of Alaska, extending into Behring sea. Here a tunnel will connect the two mainlands and thence the road will go through Siberia to St. Petersburg, and then finally through Europe to Berlin and Paris.

SAYS CHURCH IS BIGOTED.

Seattle (Wash) Pastor, Although Urged to Remain, Withdraws from Ministry and Gives Reasons.

Rev. Thomas C. Wiswell, pastor of University Congregational church, in Seattle, Wash., resigned his pastorate recently and announced his withdrawal from the ministry because of his objection to sectarianism and orthodox theology. Mr. Wiswell is a socialist and holds very liberal theological views. He read an address giving his reasons for resigning, charging, among other things, that the church is bigoted and subservient to mammon. He is popular with his congregation, who urged him to remain.

Mr. Wiswell is a graduate of the Chicago Theological seminary and has been pastor of University church for six years.

Two Different Things.

Many have been killed in Venezuela in the recent battles there. That is not revolution, says the Chicago Daily News—it is war.

HATS MADE OF RICE STRAW.

A New Industry About to Be Established by Japanese in the Southern States.

According to Col. S. F. B. Morse, general traffic manager of the Southern Pacific railroad, the Japanese colony at Port Lavaca will establish a plant for the manufacture of matting and hats from rice straw, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. The Japanese are the pioneer rice growers of the world, and cultivate the staple on a more scientific basis than the American farmer. In Japan every product of the rice crop is utilized to some purpose, while in the United States the planter relies entirely upon the rice proper for his home.

"The Japanese of Port Lavaca," said Col. Morse, "will soon begin the manufacture of Japanese matting and the finest of hats from rice straw, and it is only a question of time till our own rice planters in Texas and Louisiana will take up this industry, thus making the south the center of supply for matting and straw hats of the finest texture and manufacture. The best mattings in the world are made in Japan, while the high grades of the rice straw hats are known the world over. There are several kinds of grass growing along the gulf, so the Japanese tell me, that can be utilized for making matting of a good grade. They tell me it is identical with that used in Japan for this purpose, and there is no reason why this should not become a paying industry in Louisiana and Texas."

STOLEN CAMERA LENSES.

New Branch of Trade That Comes to the Pawnbroker in Which There Is Great Profit.

"The sale of camera lenses is a comparatively new branch of the pawnbroker's trade," said a dealer in photographic supplies, according to the New York Times, "but a large number from that source come to the trade to be refitted with shutters and flanges. A good lens costs anywhere from $50 to $150, and is as easy to raise money on as a good watch. But you will notice that lenses you see in pawnbrokers' windows are without flanges. That is a sure sign they have been stolen. Very few sneak thieves know enough to lift out the shutters and all, but they can get the lens and make away with it by a simple turn of the wrist. If a man who owned a camera were to take his naked lens to a pawnshop and say he owned it he would not be believed, and would have to be content with the extremely small loan usually made upon a stolen lens. Pawnbrokers are willing to take chances with them, because the risk of detection is almost nil and the profits greater when they make a sale. Amateur photographers who know their business can pick up a good many bargains in the New York pawnshops."

AUSTRALIAN TEA DRINKERS.

Drink the Brew All Day Long and at a Strength That Would Seem to Be Poisonous.

In the interior of Australia all the men drink tea. They drink it all day long, and in quantities and at a strength that would seem to be poisonous. On Sunday morning the teamaker starts with a clean pot and a clean record. The pot is hung over the fire with a sufficiency of water in it for the day's brew, and when this has been boiled he pours into it enough of the fragrant herb to produce a deep, coffee-colored liquid.

On Monday, without removing yesterday's tea leaves, he repeats the process; on Tuesday da capo and on Wednesday da capo, and so on through the week. Toward the close of it the great pot is filled with an acrid mash of tea leaves, out of which the liquid is squeezed by the pressure of a tin cup.

By this time the tea is of the color of rusty iron, incredibly bitter and disagreeable to the uneducated palate. The native calls it "real good old post and rails," the simile being obviously drawn from a stiff and dangerous jump, and regards it as having been brought to perfection.

SINGERS AND CROAKERS.

An Indiana Farmer Who Could Supply Bass Singers by the Dozen.

The extent to which the agricultural portions of the middle west are now supplied with modern conveniences may be inferred from the story which follows: There came a ring at the telephone in a farmhouse in northern Indiana one day last summer, and the farmer himself responded, relates Youth's Companion.

"Hello!" he said.

"Hello!" said the voice at the other end of the wire. "Can you furnish me a bass singer for to-morrow night?"

"A bass singer? Why, yes, I reckon so," answered the farmer, laughing. "What do you want one for?"

"Because the one we've had up to now is sick. What would be your terms?"

"Well, I usually furnish 'em by the dozen. I won't charge you anything for one. How do you want him sent?"

"What are you talking about?"

"Who do you think you're talkin' to?"

"Isn't this the Indianapolis opera house?"

"No. This is the Barataria frog farm."

Can't Stop Tongues.

A man in Cincinnati applied to the courts for an injunction to restrain the tongues of the gossips of the neighborhood. He learned from judicial sources that there are some things beyond the control of the highest human power.

DIDN'T LIKE THE EAST ROOM.

Woman Visitor at the White House Was Not Favorably Impressed with Furnishings.

"Is it solid gold?"

The eager questioner was a country woman, a member of a large party which a railroad agent was piloting through the East room at the white house. She pointed to the piano with the gold-leaf coating as she asked the question.

The guide attempted to evade the woman's question by referring to the seals of the 13 original states which adorn the sides of the instrument, and explained that it is the one hundred thousandth piano manufactured by a prominent American firm, says the Washington Times.

"Is it solid gold?" the woman interposed.

Still the guide did not answer. "You will notice that there are 13 settees in this room, one for each of the original states," he continued.

"But I want to know whether the piano is solid gold," the woman insisted.

"No, madam, it is not solid gold," the guide remarked, with a slight display of temper.

"Huh!" the woman retorted. "I've seen calliopes that looked better and I'd hoped that it had value to recommend it. When there's only one real piece of furniture in a room of this size a person sort of expects that it'll be worth while coming to see. I can't find anything fine about this room but the view you get from the south windows."

MINING AT GREAT DEPTHS.

Copper Shaft in Lake Superior Region Extends Nearly a Mile Under Ground.

In no other district in the world are active mining operations carried on at such depth as in the Lake Superior copper region, says the Chicago Chronicle. The No. 5 shaft of the Tamarack mine is the deepest in the world, having attained a verticle depth of 4,940 feet, nearly a mile. Not far behind it is the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla, which is down 4,920 feet. Another deep shaft of the Calumet & Hecla is the No 4 of the Calumet branch of the property. This is down 7,800 feet on an incline of a mile and a half. In view of the marvelous efficiency of the modern hoisting engine no considerations of a mechanical nature need limit the prospective depth of shafts.

The greatest obstacle to deep mining is the proportionate increase in temperature. In the Lake Superior copper district State Geologist Lake has ascertained that the temperature in the mine varies one degree for every 110 feet. The temperature in the deepest shafts at the Tamarack and Calumet & Hecla varies between 85 and 90 degrees, and in view of these conditions it is evident that considerable depths can yet be attained in this section.

ARTIFICIAL AIR.

A New and Ingenious Process for Producing Oxygen from Solid Substance.

The progress of invention in submarine navigation has stimulated efforts to produce oxygen by cheaper and easier methods. If oxygen, the vital element in air, can be supplied as wanted, the length of time that men can remain under water may be indefinitely prolonged. A process of making oxygen, invented by George F. Jaubert, a French scientist, promises to answer the requirement, says Science. His object was to find a solid substance which would produce oxygen as calcium carbide produces acetylene gas. He selected for the purpose a peroxide of sodium, or of potassium, which can be cheaply manufactured by electrochemical means. It is called "oxylithe," and is made in little cubes and pellets, some only half an inch in diameter. When decomposed with water it gives off oxygen. Two or three ounces of this substance supply enough oxygen to enable a diver to remain under water for an hour. By suitable apparatus the carbonic oxide produced by respiration is withdrawn into the oxygen generator, and fresh oxygen takes its place.

CANOPIED FIELDS.

Many Acres of Tobacco in the Connecticut Valley Covered with Big Tents.

Travelers in the Connecticut valley may sometimes see many acres covered with white cheesecloth supported, at a height of nine feet from the ground, on a framework of posts and wires. Under these vast tents Sumatra tobacco is grown. Experiments conducted by the department of agriculture led to the use of this system of protecting the tobacco plants, and the results have been found excellent. The light, sandy soil along the Connecticut river is well suited for the growth of Sumatra tobacco. The United States government furnishes the seed and supervises the cultivation, preparation and sale of the product, the farmers paying the cost and receiving the profit. That the great cloth canopies can withstand storms was proved a year ago last July, when a hail-storm caused much damage to crops in open fields, but the acres of covered tobacco escaped injury. The cost of the shade is from $260 to $360 per acre.

Wants to Beat the Rabbit.

MILLIONS TO SPEND.

National Museum at Washington to Have Building Costing $3,500,000.

The New Structure Will Be Devoted to the Display of the Scientific Collections of the Government.

Plans have been completed for the new $3,500,000 structure that is to be erected for the National musum in Washington and bids for its reconstruction will soon be called for, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The regents of the Smithsonian institution are superintending this work and it is their idea when the new building is completed to have a complete rearrangement of the exhibits now in the National museum and the Smithsonian institution buildings.

The new structure is to be devoted to the scientific collections of the government, the present National museum building to the industrial arts and the old Smithsonian building to the Smithsonian and National musum library and art collections. The regents propose that the scientific collection in the new building shall be the finest in the world, and an officer of the institution makes the statement that already many of the branches to be covered have reached a perfection that is not equaled in any other museum in the world, even the great British museum. The chief subjects to be covered are biology, anthropology, geology, zoology, botany and American history. The present National museum building will be given up to a great exposition of industrial art, including the already immense and unique collection of the museum, and many additions that the regents are planning to secure as rapidly as possible. The museum will be modeled in its scope and general plan after the Victoria and Albert museum of Great Britain. Among the chief departments will be those of land transportation, boat models, implements of war and electrical apparatus, of which the museum already has rich collections.

The plans for the Smithsonian building contemplate the creation in time of a magnificent library and art gallery. The scientific library of the institution is already one of the finest in the world. Its scope will be broadened and it will become a much more important unit in the general scheme of the institution. The plans for the art gallery are as yet tentative. The new structure will be 486 feet long and 345 feet broad, with a height of four stories.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

Arthur LaPlante Married.

Arthur LaPlante, manager and one of the proprietors of the J. B. Cigar company, was married on Tuesday afternoon at St. Joseph's church to Miss Annie Cyr, of Grand Forks, N. D., a charming young lady who has frequently visited at Red Lake Falls and is known to many of our people. Arthur Mercier officiated as best man and Miss Rosa Cyr as bridesmaid. After the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of the bride's uncle, Dennis Cyr, where supper was served.

The many friends of the groom will wish him many happy returns. Certainly Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante start out on their matrimonial journey under the most favorable auspices.

Small Pox Increases.

Reports of smallpox received for the week ending Oct. 20 show a total of twenty-three new cases in the state, as compared with three the week before. The greater number this week does not necessarily indicate an increase in the disease, for it frequently happens that local health authorities are not prompt in sending in their reports, and when they do make returns they have an accumulation of cases. The largest number in any one locality reported last week six cases at Hodges town ship, Stevens county. There were four cases in Newton township, Otter Tail county, three from the city of St. Cloud and three from St. Cloud township, Stearns county; two from Paxton township, Renville county, and one each from Florence township, Goodhue county; Maine Prairie, Stearns county; Breckenridge, Wilkin county; Howard Lake, Wright county; and Minneapolis.

It Helps Dairying.

"The low price of beef cattle is booming the dairy industry," says Dairy Commissioner McConnell. "It is claimed that the packers are responsible for the fall in the market, because they have not allowed their buyers to bid up for cattle. Whether that is true or not, the state of the market is causing farmers to look with more favor on dairy cattle, which are a steady source of income all the year round and in hard times as well as good times. The hard times following the panic of 1893 saw a great growth of the dairy industry, and there is no question but that the demand for dairy cattle has increased since the price of fat cattle began to decline."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contains Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. ANSWERS VAN SANT.

Dunn's Manager Gives Out Reply to Governor's Interview.

Governor Van Sant's interview on state politics has called out the expected reply from the supporters of Robert C. Dunn. George A. Flinn, former land clerk under Mr. Dunn and now manoger of his political interests, has given out the following statement:

"The Republican party of the state of Minnesota is big enough and old enough to select its own candidates for governor and to make its own platform. No individual, whether he be Governor Van Sant or any one else, can dictate who the candidate shall be or what the platform shall contain. The Republican party of the state has never submitted to a boss yet, and never will. R. C. Dunn, against whom the Van Sant newspapers say this fulmination of the governor was directed, will be nominated by the duly elected delegates to the Republican convention in 1904, and he will stand upon the platform adopted by that convention and upon every plank of it.

There are plenty of good men, honest, capable men, in this state, outside of Dunn, Eddy and other named candidates, who would be debarred from the gubernatorial nomination if Governor Van Sant's say-so had any effect."

This reply from Mr. Dunn's authorized spokesman will cause almost as much of a sensation as the interview with the governor which gave rise to it. It is evident from Mr. Flinn's statement that he considers the governor's interview an attack on Dunn and that it willl be a fight to a finish between the state administration and the Dunn supporters.

WILL CONTEST KRATKA.

Mayor-Elect of Thief River Falls Will Not Have Clear Sailing.

Crookston Journal: Attorney H. W. Lee of Thief River Falls was here last evening and instituted a contest against declaring Frank Kratka to be the mayor of Thief River Falls, alleging illegal votes were cast to that end. The contest is brought as a private citizen, but it is understood the members of the citizen league are behind Mr. Lee. The case is in the hands of Attorney R. J. Montague of this city and the papers will be filed at Thief River Falls today.

THE MEN BEHIND THE GUNS

By Admiral GEORGE DEWEY

THE GREATEST SOURCE OF STRENGTH IN THE AMERICAN NAVY IS FOUND IN THE INTELLIGENCE OF THE MEN. THE BRAINS ARE NOT CONFINED TO THE OFFICER. ASIDE FROM THE FACT THAT OUR MEN ARE THE GREATEST FIGHTERS IN THE WORLD, THEY OUTRANK IN CAPABILITY OF UNDERSTANDING AND DOING. THIS MEANS THAT WHENEVER OUR SHIPS ARE PUT TO THE TEST THEY WILL WIN UNLESS THE ODDS AGAINST THEM ARE OVERWHELMING, FOR INTELLIGENCE IN THE CREWS NEVER COUNTED FOR AS MUCH AS IT DOES TODAY.

The modern battle ship is a great machine shop. To operate it successfully the MEN WHO DO THE WORK MUST HAVE BRAINS. They cannot be dull and win battles. I know our men, and I know what they can do. I am free to say that if every officer on a United States war ship should be killed in battle THE ENLISTED MEN COULD AND WOULD take the ship and FIGHT HER TO VICTORY.

* * *

Because of the great increase of enlisted men, due to the rapidity with which our navy has grown, our target practice fell off a bit on the whole, BUT IT IS IMPROVING NOW. The improvement will continue until a satisfactory degree of efficiency is attained, and that efficiency will be maintained. Our men are naturally THE BEST MARKSMEN IN THE WORLD. The navy is filling up with young MEN FROM THE WEST. They are keen, quick to learn and intensely patriotic and are the BEST RAW MATERIAL WE EVER HAD.

SCIENCE AND OUR SENSES

By Dr. ANDREW WILSON, Physicist

TRUE IS IT THAT ALL THINGS IN THIS WORLD ARE RELATIVE WHEN ALL IS SAID AND DONE, AND IF WE ADMIT SO MUCH THEN THERE IS EVERY REASON TO HOLD THAT, AS IT IS A MORAL DUTY TO MAKE THE MOST AND THE BEST OF THE FAIR WORLD WE LIVE IN, IT MUST BE A MORAL EXERCISE TO CULTIVATE THE SENSES, WHICH ARE THE VERITABLE WINDOWS OF THE SOUL WITHIN.

This topic leads us naturally and easily in other directions of thought. For example, we are led to inquire into the LIMITATIONS OF OUR SENSES and also into the question OF THE POSSIBILITY OF OUR EXTENDING THEIR RANGE through the aids of science, as, naturally, we might pass to an inquiry regarding the senses of our lower neighbors and seek to learn something of their special extent and powers.

The electrical side of the world's phenomena is that to which we naturally turn with the highest expectation of receiving confirmation that the RANGE OF HUMAN SENSES IS BEING EXTENDED APACE. A quarter of a century ago or so Hertz discovered the electric waves which bear his name and made wireless telegraphy possible. A further development leads us to note how certain conditions may interfere with the progress and direction of such waves.

SCIENCE HAS LONG SINCE DEMONSTRATED THAT OUR FIVE SENSES HAVE CERTAINLY TO BE INCREASED BY THREE OR FOUR OTHERS, among them the heat sense and the sense of weight. Our senses and ourselves are the products of a long, long evolution, and it has been asked whether, in the future of humanity, a development of what may be called AN ELECTRICAL SENSE might not be possible. With, say, an eye adapted for the exercise of such functions it has been said we might be ABLE TO SEE FROM LONDON WHAT WAS HAPPENING IN NEW YORK or witness the progress of any movement in Melbourne. But these things are dreams today—ONLY SOME DREAMS "COME TRUE."

THE WOMAN OF OTHER YEARS

By Rev. Dr. LYMAN ABBOTT

THE WOMAN OF OTHER YEARS NEVER DREAMED THAT SHE WAS GREAT OR THAT SHE WAS SPECIALLY USEFUL OR THAT SHE HAD ACHIEVED ANYTHING WORTH LIVING FOR. HER UNCONSCIOUSNESS WAS HER CHARM. SELF CONSCIOUSNESS WOULD HAVE SPOILED HER.

She was not a great woman; at least no one thought her so. IN TRUTH, THEY DID NOT THINK MUCH about her. THEY SIMPLY LOVED HER. She wrote no books; her letters never circulated in a wider circle than that of a few favored friends. Her song of love was too sacred and she was too shy to sing it to the public or to strangers. She had admiration for women with a "gift;" sometimes she was a trifle tempted to envy them. But she had no "gift" herself. Her only singing was a lullaby to her own baby.

HER SPHERE WAS HER HOME. It grew up quietly, as quietly as a flower grows, and no one knew—she did not know herself—how much she had done to tend and water and train it.

HER HUSBAND HAD ABSOLUTE TRUST IN HER. He earned the money; she expended it. And as she put as much thought in her expenditures as he put in his earning EACH DOLLAR WAS DOUBLED in the expending.

This was the woman who in other years MADE HAPPY HOMES and husbands. THIS IS THE WOMAN STILL FOUND IN THE WORLD BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW WHERE TO LOOK FOR HER.

Ah, blessed home builder! You have no cause to envy women with a "gift," for there is NOTHING SO SACRED on earth AS A HOME and no priest on earth so divine as the WIFE AND MOTHER WHO MAKES IT and no gift so great as the gift which grafts the bud of heaven on the common stock of earth.

FOR THE WOMEN ONLY

The corset trust is the latest. Somebody will get squeezed.

Don't wear high, unyielding collars. They were not intended for pretty necks.

In London the ladies use parasols for self-defence. What's the matter with the hat pin?

It is said that every mother should spend a few minutes each day playing with her babies toes.

The tiny chains of habit are seldom heavy enough to be felt until they are too strong to be broken.

To prevent stockings wearing at the heels paste a piece of black velvet in the back of the shoes.

It is said that keeping busy will help to keep us young. Well, maybe that is true, but there is a limit.

Occasionally give your conscience a dash of freedom, but see that it is not roaming when needed at home.

Don't feed the baby with adult food. Giving the child this sort of nourishment too early produces soft bones.

Pleasure and happiness depend so much more upon our inner selves than on any outward surroundings or influences.

Women would do well to remember that smartness is one of the greatest aids to those who do not possess actual beauty.

There's an epidemic of stylishitis, and there isn't any detention hospital for those who have the disease. Isn't that a shame?

One of the most prominent of oil magnates in Los Angeles is a woman, who is said to control about halt the whole product.

It is tomorrow, that dreadful tomorrow, that whitens the hairs, bends the shoulders and brings the lines between the brows.

The whole number of patents granted in the United States to date is 736,046. Of this number, about 12,000 have been issued to women.

Don't think it enough to be a beauty; in order to approach perfection a woman should try to improve herself morally and intellectually, as well as physically.

The difference in size between the waist and bust—the measurement being taken just under the arms—in the well-formed woman should be from eight to ten inches.

Bear all burdens that come to you as patiently and uncomplainingly as you can, but do not carry any more than a proper proportion of those belonging to your neighbors.

Don't grow old, associate with youth folks; have a good time every day; laugh; don't worry; don't think you are growing old and you will be surprised how long you will keep young.

Don't let the children play with matches, nor leave matches laying around. Several women have been fatally burned by stepping on matches and thus catching their skirts on fire.

ORIENTAL LANTERNS.

How They Are Made and Uses to Which They Are Put.

The lantern of the east is as old as civilization. Its primary object is to protect the flame from sudden drafts. Beyond this is the concentration of light for the convenience of a reader and, last and least, the regard for beauty. The oldest form is a perforated cylinder or rectangular box. Of this type there are numberless varieties, old and new. The ancient ones which have been preserved are of iron, copper and brass, nearly all simple in construction and finish, but a few richly decorated. Occasionally one runs across lanterns made of silver or ivory. These come from palaces or temples and in most instances are richly carved. Not infrequently the perforations are fitted with pieces of colored glass, rock crystal, amethyst and garnet.

In China and Japan the traveler's or street lantern is a feature. This is a sphere or ellipsoid ranging from six inches to two and even three feet in diameter, made of oiled paper, cloth or silk. In Cathay this lantern is used to show the rank of its owner by the coloring or inscriptions on its exterior. The humble citizen uses a small affair in white or red, the official of low rank a sphere a foot in diameter hanging in front of his sedan chair, while the high mandarin employs a huge lantern, resplendent with his titles in colors, carried by an ablebodied cooly who walks a yard in advance.

It is in house lanterns that the greatest variety is found. Of these the general type is a four, five, six, seven, eight or ten sided box, whose length is usually twice its width. Each side is a pane of glass, plain, ground, frosted or decorated. From the angles hang pendants of many sorts. The framework is usually of teak, but ebony, rosewood, mahogany and other woods are employed. Often the sides of the lanterns are alternately wood and glass, the latter being covered with ground designs and the former richly carved in relief or inset with ivory, mother-of-pearl or silver.

Upon the pendants the artificers put their hardest work. Some are made of colored beads, strung and massed with fantastic shapes and knots. Others are strings of little bells, which ring with every passing breeze. Lines of glittering tinted glass balls betray the origin of a favorite mode of decorating Christmas trees. Quaint objects in gaudy enamel or colored porcelain, connected by threads, chains or wires, constitute a fourth and very pleasing group. Floral festoons made of artificial flowers are popular, especially with the fair sex.—New York Post.

BURNED ALIVE IN A STABLE

Henry Knutson Perished East of St. Hilaire Sunday While Trying to Save His Horses.

Henry Knutson, of Edmore, N. D., was burned to death in an old stable eight miles east of St. Hilaire Sunday morning, together with five horses.

Knutson, in company with his two sons, Carl and Elven, and his uncle, Arne Kittleson, were driving across country with three teams of horses, intending to secure work in the logging camps this winter. They left St. Hilaire about 9 o'clock Saturday night, expecting to reach the farm of the stepfather of the Knutson boys at Clearwater crossing the same evening, but mistook the road and were forced to find shelter at a deserted stable.

At about six o'clock on Sunday morning the building was found to be on fire and the four had the greatest difficulty in making their escape. Henry at once rushed back into the burning building for the purpose of saving the horses, but was unable to reach the door again.

His body was found in the ruins of a small shed adjoining the stable, he having evidently crawled through a small opening and attempted to escape in that way, but being overcome by smoke before finding the outlet he fell within a few feet of safety and was burned to a cinder. One horse only was rescued. Coroner Grundy has made an examination and decided that an inquest is unnecessary.

It's like a "dig in the fountain of youth." Touches the cheek so gently that "youth lingers on the face of old age." That's what Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

THE THIRD VICTIM.

Chicago Sportsman is Mistaken for Deer and Shot Near Kelliher.

Bemidji Pioneer: Word reaches Bemidji of an accidental shooting that occurred in the woods in Itasca county, a short distance from Kelliher, yesterday, which cost a Chicago sportsman his life. He was mistaken for a deer by another hunter and instantly killed. The accident is the third to occur in Itasca county since the first day of the open season and the coroner could not be reached yesterday, as he was absent from Grand Rapids on a similar errand. The name of the dead man could not be learned. He was one of a party from Chicago who had established camp in the woods near Kelliher and the man who shot him was one of the party.

Little Game is Killed.

Bemidji Pioneer: The opening of the hunting season this year is not marked by any accounts of large killings in the woods. The conditions have not been favorable and the fleet footed deer and clumsy, yet agile, moose have had all the best of it so far. The driving method is the only one that is successful at present but snow before the close of the season will give the hunters a decided advantage. The woods are very dry now and it is impossible to get through them without making a noise and this fact works to the disadvantage of the hunter. Up to the present time 240 licenses have been issued at the court house to hunt big game.

GARNES STORE IS BURNED

E. K. Gjernes Loses His Building and Stock of General Merchandise By Fire.

E. K. Gjernes, the Garnes merchant, was in town last evening and reported the total destruction of his store building and stock of general merchandise by fire at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, entailing a loss of nearly $4,000, without a cent of insurance. Nothing was saved from the flames, not even the account books.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. No one had been at the store that morning, and no fire started in the stoves. The loss is a severe one, and means the sweeping away of nearly all of Mr. Gjernes' earnings during a long and prosperous business career.

It is likely that the business will be resumed as soon as another building can be erected.

For Thanksgiving.

Gov. Van Sant has issued the customary Thanksgiving proclamation, urging the general observance of the day, Thursday, Nov. 26, as fixed by the president. The governor, in addition to the usual expression of formalities says:

"Upon said day let us all, in the church and at the fireside, reverently give acknowledgment of the blessings we have enjoyed and make manifest our gratitude by words of praise to Almighty God.

"Also let us not be unmindful of the poor and unfortunate, but unselfishly share with them our bounty, remembering that he that has mercy for the poor, happy is he."

FEELING RUNS VERY HIGH

Personal Encounters Are Every Day Affairs at East Grand Forks Since the Crusade.

Crookston Times: Interesting developments continue to follow the recent sensational charges against Mayor Brandt, of East Grand Forks. A greater change never took place in any city in so short a time. Prior to the recent meeting of the council the saloons were allowed to run twenty-four hours every day. The stranger who came to the city could take his choice in patronizing any of the forty saloons. Now every saloon in the place has the strictest orders to close every night at eleven o'clock and remain closed with no back door privileges till five o'clock in the morning. This week, for the first time in many years, every saloon was closed.

The saloon men as well as the gamblers are complaining bitterly, as this is the season of the year when the men who have been threshing farther west are heading for the lumber camps. East Grand Forks is always one of their favorite stopping places and as all of them have good rolls of money the harvest reaped by the gamblers and saloon men is a rich one. No matter what sort of a game was looked for by the transients, they could find it, and as a rule would be steered up against something whether they were looking for it or not. Now not a slot machine or other gambling device can be found within the corporate limits.

Another radical step that has been taken is the cleaning up of the houses of ill-fame in the famous "Hollow." About 100 women scattered in all directions.

One of the strange features of the case is the manner in which some of the saloonkeepers have lined up. "Dominican" Dan Sullivan, who is perhaps as widely known as any saloon man in the northwest and who has a palatial place, and has always harbored gambling devices, has allied himself with the reformers, believing evidently that due deference should be accorded public opinion.

The feeling is running high and there have been several personal encounters. The followers of the present administration assert that the city will be ruined if the reformers do not recede from the radical position that has been taken. The latter maintain that a clean-up had to come and the sooner the better for all concerned.

Here's a Good Suggestion.

Albert Lea Standard: The following from the Northfield News, deserves thoughtful consideration, not only of farmers but of many in Albert Lea and other towns. When men have enough why don't they quit, give others a chance, and use their surplus wealth not only for their own comfort and that of their families but also to promote charity and enterprises for the general public good? "We often wonder why it is that men have not sense enough to know when they have enough—enough property, position and money. There are men by the hundreds all over the country at fifty and sixty years of age, worth from $25,000 to $50,000, owners of the best farms in the world, working and slaving year in and year out, to make more money and buy more land, when the very best they can make of the job is ten years or so of fret and worry, then a funeral and a probating of a will and a scattering of their hard earnings."

STEENERSON IS HUSTLING.

Urges His New Bill for Cession of Red Lake Lands.

Representative Steenerson had a conference with Secretary Hitchcock and Commissioner Jones of the Indian bureau last week relative to his bill for the cession of the Red Lake lands. He found both favorable to some features of the bill, but neither was willing to commit himself until after further examination.

Mr. Steenerson also asked that Inspector McLaughlin be sent to Red Lake again to submit the new proposed agreement for the acceptance of the Indians. Nothing was decided as to submission, but the whole subject will be taken up with Major Scott, the Indian agent, in a week or ten days.

Major Scott will be in Baltimore in a few days for the interment of the remains of his wife, who died in Minnesota last week, and will undoubtedly come to Washington before returning to Minnesota. Several other matters relative to the administration of ths affairs of the Leech Lake agency will be discussed while Major Scott is in Washington.

KEEP TAB ON TUBERCULOSIS.

State Board May Require Cases to Be Reported.

The state board of health is considering the advisability of requiring cases of tuberculosis to be reported to the board, so that it can assist in preventing a spread of the disease. This requirement is made by New York and some other states, and it is said, has proved eminently satisfactory.

The purpose of the requirement is not to quarantine the cases, but to keep the board in touch with the progress of the disease and to enable it to recommend sanitary measures to the patient and the attending physicans. Such recommendations in general would be that the patient be allowed plenty of sunshine and fresh air; that certain food be furnished, including an abundance of eggs and milk; that the sputum be disposed of, and that disinfection be enforced.

New York has gone still further to prevent the spread of the disease, especially among the poorer classes who are unable to go to sanitariums. Free dispensaries are provided where those suffering from the disease may secure expert treatment and learn how to prevent infection. The Phipps institute at Philadelphia is managed somewhat on the same plan but its work is more extensive than the ordinary dispensary. The institute has fifty-two beds, and 1,600 cases have been treated since last February, when it opened.

Got the Job.

Redwood Gazette: That wasn't so bad, either, on the part of the governor, when a man wrote and asked him for an appointment to office, no matter what the office was, or whether it carried emoluments or otherwise, for the governor to send him back a notice that he had appointed him a notary public and to return the usual notarial fee for the work of Private Secretary Jamison. That is where the governor proposed to get some money for making the appointment.

Bob Dunn Gives the Collins Boom a Severe Jolt.

Last week's issue of the Princeton Union has the following to say above the signature of R. C. Dunn relative to the Collins candidacy:

"The expected has happened. Judge Collins has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The Judge has been a candidate several times before. The Sixth district is a large, thickly populated and intelligent district, but its claims to both the governorship and United States senatorship will not meet with general approval. We are in position to say that Judge Collins will not be nominated by acclamation.

"If the Judge gets any delegates outside of Stearns county he will have to fight and hustle as never before. Hundreds of letters received at the Union office from all parts of the state, and assurances of support from a large majority of the country newspapers, gives us general grounds for this belief.

"A candidate for governor who has any regard for his oath of office will stand for the fearless and impartial enforcement of law, and will show no favoritism to corporations or individuals.—R. C. Dunn."

If you are thinking of going to school this winter, you should write to J. C. Sathre for a new catalog of the Crookston College. Tuition is $6 per month. and good board and room in private family for $3 per week. Have several places on hand where girls can do a little work for board and room.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Easy Pill

Easy to take and easy to act is that famous little pill DeWitt's Little Early Risers. This is due to the fact that they tonic the liver instead of purging it. They never gripe nor sicken, not even the most delicate lady, and yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. They cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, headache, malaria and ward off pneumonia and fevers.

BARS TO MATRIMONY

FEAR KEEPS MANY MEN FROM THE BLISS OF WEDDED LIFE.

Some Instances of a Lack of Sufficient Pluck to Take the Fateful Trip to the Altar—Various Reasons That All Spell "Afraid."

"There is a great deal of speculation," said a well known lawyer, "as to why men are so reluctant to marry, but one reason never seems to occur to the speculators, and that is that many of them are afraid to. No, I am not joking. It is a sober and well considered statement of fact, for which I can adduce as many proofs as you want, that many men would almost as soon think of patting a fierce bull on the head or facing the midnight burglar as taking a trip to the altar.

"I remember as a boy an amusing specimen of this kind of man in Iowa. He was a farmer and was as notorious for his amorous entanglements as for his ingenuity in getting out of them when marriage began to loom near. It was said he had been engaged a dozen times, and though he left all his fiancees in the lurch he never found any difficulty in getting a successor. One day my father, who was his lawyer, asked him: 'Why don't you get married, John? It isn't for want of opportunities, you know, and it's quite time you thought of settling down.'

"'Well, sir,' John answered, 'it's this way: You see, I like coorting well enough, but I can nivver summon up pluck to go any further. To tell you the truth, I'm afeard of getting tied for life to one of 'em.'

"If you have heard many breach of promise suits you will have observed that this wholesome dread of matrimony is the cause of a good proportion of them, though all the defendants have not the courage to say so.

"One client of mine had allowed matters to proceed right to the eve of the wedding day, when he disappeared mysteriously and was not discovered for some months. The young lady promptly sued him for damages for breach, and at the hearing the reason for his conduct came out. He admitted that he was fond of the girl, but sundry exhibitions of her temper and jealousy which he had witnessed had so scared him that he simply hadn't the courage to marry her. 'I meant to marry her right enough,' he said, 'but when it came to the point my courage failed me, and I thought it safer to bolt.'

"In another case in which a widow sued a widower for playing her false the defendant put in a singular plea. 'It seems that the widow's family strongly objected to the match, and as passive opposition was useless to prevent it one of the sons, a stalwart young fellow, called on the middle aged wooer and told him that if he persisted in his suit he (the son) would give him such a thrashing as would effectually cure him of any further sentiment. 'So what could I do?' the defendant pathetically asked.

"The more one sees behind the scenes the more one realizes that there is often a great deal to be said for the man who loves and runs away. One of my clients a few years ago found himself in an awkward quandary. He had engaged himself to three girls at different times and, having canceled his engagements with two, was on the eve of marrying No. 3. No sooner was his intention known than the two jilted ladies threatened him with legal proceedings if he persisted in his proposed marriage, and the favored lady in turn threatened a similar fate if he didn't.

"Here was a dilemma, for whatever he did would end unpleasantly. However, like a prudent man, he decided to run the smaller risk. He pacified his two former fiancees by canceling his engagement and prepared to face the music of the third lady.

"The mother-in-law is often a fatal disturber of love's young dream. One breach of promise defendant declared that he would willingly have married the plaintiff only he couldn't stand her mother at any price, and the prospect of having his married happiness disturbed by her interference so scared him that he decided it was more prudent to break off the engagement, while another frail lover actually stated in court that he was afraid to marry the plaintiff lest she should 'grow up like her mother,' whose 'tongue and temper' had shown him some of the less desirable possibilities of married life.

"One man whom I defended last year seems to have had a constitutional dread of matrimony. He had been engaged to the plaintiff no less than nine years. Four times the wedding day had been fixed, and as many times it was adjourned by his wish. Finally he cried off altogether, and in court he declared that, although he loved the girl, he felt he could never screw up the courage to marry her. When he was asked the reason for his diffidence he said that he had seen so much of the unhappy side of married life and the difference between wooing and wedding that he didn't feel equal to running the risk.

"These are but a few from scores of similar cases which have come within my own knowledge. One man feared to face matrimony on account of his fiancee's extravagance, another quaintly confessed a horror of his wife's cooking and domestic gifts generally, a third defendant was afraid to wed because a distant relative of his ladylove had died in an asylum, and so on. But, whatever the cause, you may take my word for it that the men who are downright afraid to take wives are legion."—Chicago Tribune.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S WHIM.

The Practical Joke a Celebrated Man Played on Posterity.

One of the most famous of postmortem jokes was that perpetrated by the donor of the celebrated Soane museum of pictures and other valuable objets d'art to England, the late Sir John Soane, who died in 1837. In his will Sir John made provision for the opening of three sealed cupboards on certain specified dates in the presence of the trustees. In 1866, that is to say almost thirty years after the death of the testator, the first of the mysterious receptacles was with much ceremony and breaking of seals opened in the presence of a committee of men, with the then president of the Royal academy, Sir F. Grant, at their head. Instead of a priceless treasure or some evidence that would throw an entirely new light upon some doubtful incident in political history the contents of the cupboard proved to be worthless accounts, letters and stationery.

Twenty years pased by, and the interest that had smoldered after the disappointment of 1866 was again fanned into flame at the prospect of breaking the seals of the second cupboard, at which rite there were present among others Dr. Alfred Waterhouse, R. A., and Sir (then Dr.) B. W. Richardson. Like the cupboard mentioned in the well known nursery rhyme, Sir John's second cabinet proved "bare" of any sensation, the contents being chiefly composed of letters relating to certain long forgotten family quarrels that had not even the merit of being interesting. If some of those authorized to be present at the opening of the third and last receptacle of mystery were dubious about the profit that would accrue by letting the light of day fall upon the contents thereof after sixty years' darkness one at least, Sir B. W. Richardson, looked forward with unabated interest to that day in 1896 when the last seal would be broken and the mystery solved, but he, alas, died just two days before the ceremony was performed, and the fact that Sir John had played a practical joke upon posterity was duly confirmed by the presence of a collection of perfectly worthless letters and papers.

MERRY MEALTIMES.

The Table No Place For Fault Finding, Nagging and Strife.

Has it ever been your lot to sit at a table with a group of young folks who ate the meal in silence or, with a few constrained remarks, looked askance at the head of the family before venturing on any remark? I have seen such a sight on more than one occasion. Doctors have told us over and over again of the beneficial results arising from a meal eaten with a contented frame of mind and with cheerful surroundings; but, sad to say, there are many households where each meal is a constant scene of bickering, nagging and fault finding.

This is not only the case where there are young children, who require a reprimand occasionally for carelessness, but I am speaking of those homes where the girls and boys are well into their teens. Wrong is that parent, either father or mother, who chooses the hour when all are assembled round the table to mention some half forgotten grievance or to find some fault.

If any trivial thing has been done wrong or any duty omitted wait until dinner or tea is over before you scold, blame or reprimand. Let the food which God gives us for the purpose of nourishing and sustaining our bodies have the opportunity of accomplishing that end, which cannot be the case if every mouthful is swallowed with either a sarcastic word or an uncomplimentary remark. More indigestion, nervousness and other derangements are caused by the too common fault of uncomfortable mealtimes than many people would suppose, and it is our positive duty, which we should all try to remember, to make those hours of the day cheerful and agreeable to the children and to set them an example which you would be the first to notice and approve in others.—Scotsman.

So Nice and Sympathetic.

A gentleman whose one glass eye has served him for years had the misfortune to drop it. It smashed to atoms. This happened when he was far away in the country. He inquired of a friend where was the nearest place for him to go and get refitted.

"Why don't you call upon the girl you were flirting with all last night?" his friend inquired. "She has a first class reputation for making eyes."—Punch.

Prayer of the Convert.

A south sea islander at the close of a religious meeting offered the following prayer: "O God, we are about to go to our respective homes. Let not the words we have heard be like the fine clothes we wear—soon to be taken off and folded up in a box till another Sabbath comes around. Rather, let thy truth be like the tattoo on our bodies—ineffaceable till death."—Carleton's Magazine.

The Temperature.

"Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely?" queried the invalid.

"Because," replied the untrained nurse, "the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine."

Bewildered.

"John Henry, I'll thrash you soundly if I ever catch you telling another story that isn't true."

"And yet, ma, I heard you say to the minister that I had great imagination."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A show of daring oft conceals great cowardice—Lucan.

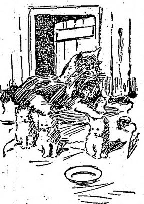
CAT'S STRANGE FAMILY.

Michigan Pussy Nourishes Tiny Rats Along with Her Own Bountiful Lot of Kittens.

The following story from the Philadelphia Press points its own moral. It is unique of its kind.

Four weeks ago a cat, the property of Hans Hansen, a grocer, of Muskegon, Mich., gave birth to a litter of kittens. Mr. Hansen was making some alterations in his store, and three days after the kittens were born the laborers who were excavating for a cellar foundation discovered a nest of young rats, whose mother had evidently been frightened away from them by the onslaught of the shovelers.

The men decided that the young rats would make a nutritious feed for the mother cat and, collecting them, they carried the vermin to the empty bin in the store where the cat and her little family were housed. The rats were thrown in—and the feelings of the onlookers can be better imagined than described when they saw the cat lick and pet the little animals instead of making an onslaught on them.



A HAPPY FAMILY.

Up to the present writing the cat has faithfully and jealously guarded and nursed the young rats, and it is a noticeable and peculiar fact that the whole nature of the rats appears to differ from that of their progenitors. They play and frisk with the kittens and jump all over the back of the old mother, who plays with them. It is truly a happy family.

When the news of the peculiar case became bruited abroad crowds flocked to Mr. Hansen's store to see the animals. Those who saw told other doubting Thomases and they also inspected, going away wondering. The great interest now is to find out whether the family will continue to live in harmony.

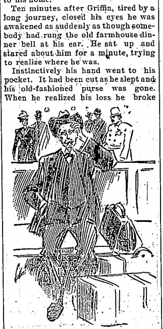
SHORT NAP IN DEPOT.

Traveler, Tired with Long Journey, Goes to Sleep and Awakes to Find Himself a Pauper.

Seven hundred dollars was the price Peter Griffin, of Cleveland, O., paid for a nap in Chicago, and he didn't sleep on an upholstered couch behind velvet curtains, as he dreamed he did, either. His bed was a bench in Grand Central passenger station, where he was waiting for a train which would take him to his home.

Ten minutes after Griffin, tired by a long journey, closed his eyes he was awakened as suddenly as though somebody had rung the old farmhouse dinner bell at his ear. He sat up and stared about him for a minute, trying to realize where he was.

Instinctively his hand went to his pocket. It had been cut as he slept and his old-fashioned purse was gone. When he realized his loss he broke down completely. A detective took him to Harrison street police station.



SAT UP AND STARED ABOUT.

"We had a lot of trouble down at home," he said to Inspector Lavin, with a quaver in his voice, "and as soon as the hay was in last summer I told father I was going out to earn enough money to pay what we owed."

"And you did?" suggested the inspector.

"Yes, I met a fellow and we worked hard out west up to a month ago, washing gold. Then we divided up. I had about $800 for my share. Yes, I had enough left to clear the homestead."

"What then?" as the fellow wandered off again.

"I was tired, coming all this way, and I sat down on that bench and fell asleep. When I awoke up all I had in my purse, $700, was gone. I don't care for myself, but I let the folks know that I was coming, and had enough money, and—"

But he could go no further. The thought of the disappointment of his father and mother was too much for him. He was given a bed at the station and the next morning was sent to Cleveland.

PHIL MAY'S BARGAIN.

An Experience the Artist Had With a Roving Conjurer.

An amusing story is told of the artist Phil May and an English conjurer at a fair at Stratford-on-Avon. Phil was in the crowd which had gathered to watch a very clever gentleman who was wrapping up sovereigns and half crowns in pieces of paper and selling them for 2 shillings. The "sharp" had a beautiful face—such a face as Phil May loved to draw. So he sketched him furtively. But the gentleman saw him and made a speech forthwith.

"If that there celebrited portrit painter with the tight breeches on will 'and up the picter, the equally celebrited benefactor to 'comanity wot is givin' away quids for coppers will reward 'im accordingly," he shouted.

Phil, with a twinkle in his eye, handed up the drawing. The conjurer was delighted with the sketch and pinned it to the tailboard of his cart. With another preliminary speech, he threw three sovereigns, three half sovereigns and several half crowns into a piece of paper, screwed it up and handed it to the artist. "You'll be president of the bloomin' R'yal academy some dye, young man," said he. "Here, catch!"

"A bargain's a bargain," said Phil, walking off with the packet of gold and silver.

He confessed afterward when he opened the packet and found two pennies and a halfpenny in it that it was the most entertaining commission he had ever been paid for.

Men Who "Were Literature."

Balzac and Hugo were the last of the great men whose inspiration was unceasing and who did not make literature, but who were literature. Balzac wrote a great story at a sitting—a sitting that lasted for eighteen hours. All that while he wrote, for no secretary could keep pace with him, and all that while he lived on black coffee. Then he slept for thirty hours. Hugo wrote "Hernani" in a month, and we can think of Balzac and Hugo as we think of the great Venetian living in the glory and exultation of constant creation. Veronese must have improvised "The Marriage Feast at Cana" with extraordinary ease, and I like to think he painted the immortal fiddler in a morning and went out in his gondola in the afternoon thinking he had done a fair day's work. That was how men wrote and painted in the great times before science beckoned them away from the beautiful.—George Moore in Lippincott's.

Brignoli and His Age.

On one occasion Bianchi, the noted teacher, went on the stage to see Brignoli, the famous singer, whom he found pacing up and down like a madman, humming over his part.

"Why, Brig, what is the matter with you? Are you nervous?" he asked.

"Yes, I am nervous," was the reply as he walked harder and faster than ever.

"But, Brig, you ought not to be nervous. I've heard you sing the part 200 times. I heard you sing it thirty years ago."

"Thirty years ago! Who are you that should know so much?"

"Who am I? You know who I am, and I know who you are."

"Very well; you know what I am, but I am sure you do not know what you are, and if you wish I will tell you. You are a fool!"

A Bogus Bear's Ham.

Sir Richard Owen, the eminent anatomist, often had his skill in identifying bones tested. On one occasion his friend and neighbor, Lord John Russell, sent him a specimen for this purpose, and the professor quickly pronounced it the thigh bone of a pig. This explanation of the query was subsequently offered by Lord John: "President Buchanan had sent from America to the English statesman the present of 'a choice bear's ham,' and the family had breakfasted off it several times with much enjoyment. Somehow or other, however, suspicion was aroused, and the bone was sent to their scientific neighbor, with the result stated."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Peebles.

In the "Memoir" of Robert Chambers by his brother William is a delightful allusion to Peebles, their birthplace and a spot ever warm in the loving memory of Scotch residents.

One of these, a man who had lived there all his life, was enabled by some uplift of fortune to visit Paris. When he came back his townsmen gravely gathered about him.

"Noo," said one, while the others listened, "tell us aboot it."

"Paris," he began, "a' things considered, is a wonderfu' place; but, still, Peebles for pleasure."

Got Along Without It.

"Did you ever have mal de mer on your way over to Europe?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle.

"No. Josiah took a bottle or two of it along, but when I'm seasick none of them kind of things ever does me a bit of good."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Useless Telling.

"You can always tell an Englishman," said the Briton proudly.

"Of course you can," replied the Yankee, "but it doesn't do any good, because he thinks he knows it all."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE SHIP'S PURSER.

Some of the Things That Make His Life at Times a Burden.

The lot of the purser is anything but a happy one. From his title one would think that he had only to look after the finance of the vessel, but in reality his office, so conveniently and picturesquely situated at the top of the grand staircase, is really as busy a bureau as any in Capel court or Wall street. It is no doubt legitimate enough to expect the purser to be quite au fait with the monetary matters, to explain to the Britisher the difference between a dollar and a crown or to the American that the greenback is treated with scorn and contumely in Europe, but our American friends are par excellence the interrogators of the world, and to them the purser is simply a walking encyclopedia.

He is expected to tell them all about the ship—that's right enough—but they want to know all about the passengers as well, who they are, where they have come from and where they are going, how much they are worth and any little titbit of news about their social life. He is also asked about every hotel, beginning at Liverpool and ending at Rome, the best shops whereat to purchase different articles, who will give the best discount for cash, where the questioner's wife can best be rigged up in European fashion and the most likely resort at which his daughter might run across some impecunious scion of British nobility.—Harry Furness in Strand.

Position of Wood and Its Durability.

The problem has troubled many why two pieces of wood sawed from the same section of a tree should possess very varied characteristics when used in different positions. For example, a gate post will be found to decay much faster if the butt end of the tree is uppermost than would be the case if the top were placed in this position. The reason is that the moisture of the atmosphere will permeate the pores of the wood much more rapidly the way the tree grew than it would if in the opposite direction.

Microscopical examination proves that the pores invite the ascent of moisture, while they repel its descent. Take the familiar case of a wooden bucket. Many may have noticed that some of the staves appear to be entirely saturated, while others are apparently quite dry. This arises from the same cause—the dry staves are in the position in which the tree grew, while the saturated ones are reversed.

A Reminiscence of Fanny Kemble.

Fanny Kemble is remembered by old residents of Germantown and Philadelphia as a superb horsewoman. She had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the law books. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once when an impertinent street lounger stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked, "Are you?"

An Aggravating Speech.

One of the wits of the parliament house is said to have observed on the occasion of Judge Deas' promotion to the honor of knighthood, "The queen may make George Deas a knight, but no one will ever make him a gentleman." Deas was quite able, however, to hold his own, and he punished the wits when they came to make their maiden speeches before him. "Prisoner at the bar," he once said to an unfortunate wretch on whose behalf an infant advocate had been feebly urging "extenuating circumstances," "everything that your counsel has said in mitigation I consider to be an aggravation of your offense."

Two Ways of Doing Business.

The industrious man—the plain, everyday kind, we mean—gets to his work early. Three hours later the man of marked executive ability drops in to see that the industrious man keeps steadily at work. If everything is going well the man of marked executive ability leaves for the day, for there is no need for a display of his peculiar qualities. If everything is going ill the man of marked executive ability quits at once in order that his reputation may not be compromised by his presence.—Boston Transcript.

A Slave to Method.

A medical specialist was very much in the habit of using a notebook to assist his memory and insure precision. In course of time it happened that his aged father died. The worthy doctor attended the obsequies as chief mourner with due solemnity. At the close he was observed to take out his notebook and carefully to erase the words "Mem. Bury father."—Scottish American.

Translated.

"I heard her boasting that her dinner party was a success from the beginning and ended with the greatest 'eclaw.' What's 'eclaw,' anyway?"

"Why—er—that was the dessert, of course. Didn't you ever eat a 'chocolate eclaw'?"—Exchange.

Accidents Will Happen.

Landlady—Yes, sir, two chickens went into that soup.

Boarder—Never mind, madam, never mind. No harm done. No one would ever suspect it, I assure you.—Town and Country.

A Will and Three Weddings.

In Warsaw a banker died and left his entire fortune to whichever of his three nieces—daughters of three different brothers and sisters—married first. The parties interested in this provision were present when the will was read, and all of them took immediate steps to secure the prize. By procuring special licenses and taking other unusual measures it was found that the earliest possible time for a wedding to take place was at 8 o'clock on the morning of the tenth day after the will had been read. Before noon on that day all three nieces appeared at the notary's office with certificates showing that they had all become wives between 8 and 8:15 o'clock that morning, though not one of them had even been engaged when the will was read. All three claimed the fortune, and the courts solved the difficulty by dividing it into equal parts.

The Genius of Labor.

Two hundred persons, waiting for a train, intently watched an old man driving six inch spikes with an iron maul. Now, there is nothing unusual or extraordinary about driving spikes with a maul, even though the head of a spike is only three-eighths of an inch square and that of the maul only three-quarters. But there was a fascination in this old man's work. His genius for driving spikes was manifest. He never missed a blow. He never needed more than three blows to send a spike home with its head buried in the planking. He always gave three. There was a rhythmic harmony in his task that appealed to all. In his particular line he excelled. That is the genius of labor.—New York Press.

Rhinoceros and Tapir.

The rhinoceros and the tapir, both found frequently in the tertiary deposits, are still represented by almost identical forms. One species at least of the rhinoceros survived unchanged long after the appearance of man. Their range extended as far north as Siberia, and their bones have been found in caverns in England, France and Germany, on the banks of the Irrawady and at the foot of the Himalayas.

Careful Man.

"Mr. Jonesmith isn't in," said the maid at the door. "Will you leave your name?"

"Oh, no," replied Professor Absentmind. "You see, I may need it myself before I see him again."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

THINGS NOT TO DO.

To contradict your friends when they are speaking.

To say smart things which may hurt one's feelings.

It is bad to make remarks about the food at dinner.

To talk about things which only interest yourself.

To grumble about your home and relatives to outsiders.

To speak disrespectfully to any one older than yourself.

To be rude to those who serve you either in shop or at home.

To dress shabbily in the morning because no one will see you.

To think first of your own pleasure when you are giving a party.

To refuse ungraciously when somebody wishes to do you a favor.

To behave in a street car or train as if no one else had a right to be there.—Gem.

Boston the Literary Center.

The assertion that Boston was the literary center—without quotation marks—during the period in which American literature acquired a shelf of its own in the library of the race is hardly open to dispute. The production of books possessing something like permanence is perhaps the most characteristic mark of a center to which the term "literary" in its true meaning of "related to literature" may be applied. Name the American writers whose work has stood the test of half a century, and, with a few notable exceptions, they belong to Boston and its neighborhood. All this is thrice familiar. The record of it in outline or detail is a story which has been told by many tongues and many pens.—M. A. De Wolfe Howe in Atlantic.

Willful Woman.

After the old gentleman had invited the young one to be seated the latter coughed once or twice to clear his throat and then bluntly suggested that he wished to marry the old gentleman's daughter.

The old gentleman didn't wish to be too ready to give his consent, but he admitted after a few minutes he thought he had no objections.

"That's just the trouble," protested the young man disconsolately. "If you'd only oppose it and order me out of the house once or twice and buy a bulldog I'd have some show of getting her."—New York Press.

What It Really Lacked.

"I put in the French phrases here and there," said the would be author, "to give the book an atmosphere of culture."

TWO STOCK EXCHANGES.

Differences Between the New York and Berlin Institutions.

If any member of the New York Stock Exchange who is entirely unacquainted with German speculation should visit the Berlin bourse he would find at every point the most striking divergencies from his home experience. He would be surprised to see the bourse attended by quite 2,000 persons including clerks of banks, newspaper men and even visitors like himself. Also, he would be interested in the immense size of the hall—300 feet long, divided by colonnades into three sections, one of which is assigned to the Produce Exchange. On one side of the hall several doors open into a grassy court, shaded by trees and surrounded by a pillared lobby, where brokers sit in dull summer days and float their latest stock of anecdotes.

That shaded court is suggestive of deeper differences between the New York Stock Exchange and the Berlin institution. In New York the number of members is fixed and is small in proportion to the immense volume of business done. In Berlin there is a great horde of small dealers, and the amount of trading is much less than in New York. Owing to the easy terms of admission, the bourse becomes a mere place where traders meet to effect their transactions. There is no sale of seats. In fact, no membership fee exists, but only a small yearly tax is collected, which varies from time to time as the expenses of the organization require. Contrary to New York practice, membership is largely held by companies and firms. Nearly all the banks of the city, for example, are members, and the more important ones keep above a score of their employees on the floor. Thus the individual New York broker, as a rule, counts for vastly more than a member of the bourse. New York is concentrated, is intense. Berlin disperses its energy, and is comparatively dull. It knows nothing of those great days of triumph or disaster that render the annals of Wall street picturesque. And it lacks our large daring operators who startle the country with their bold schemes.—William C. Dreher in Century.

FRUITS AND FLOWERS.

Rolling ground is the best for an orchard.

Blighted leaves and branches on fruit trees should be cut off and burned.

That a tree does not bear well every year is not an indication of disease.

Most effective pruning is done in the early stages of the orchard's growth.

One advantage in pruning during the summer is that the wounds heal very quickly.

Dead branches are often the means of conveying decay to an otherwise healthy trunk.

In pruning roses cutting back closely produces, as a rule, fewer blossoms, but of a finer quality.

Never prune a tree unless there is good reason why a limb or branch should be taken off.

A moderately heavy soil that has been underdrained and subsoiled and then carefully worked is capable of producing the heaviest crops of fruit.

Deceptions of Wild Birds.

Falcons, hawks—the largest species—can compress their feathers and look very slim if they think it necessary to do so. As to the owls, they can hump up into any position they think most suitable. It is useless to look for these self preserving traits in any of the family kept in zoological collections, for the birds are so accustomed to see large numbers of people passing and repassing or standing in front of them that they treat the whole matter with perfect indifference. They know that at a certain time their food will be brought them and that they are otherwise perfectly safe. Then the raptores in a wild state have a bloom on their plumage like the bloom on a bunch of grapes, which is not often seen when in captivity.—Cornhill Magazine.

Disenchanted.

"Until I met you, Matilda," he murmured in a voice husky with emotion, "I believed that all women were deceitful, but when I look into your clear, beautiful eyes I behold there the very soul of candor and loyalty."

"George," she exclaimed with enthusiasm, "this is the happiest moment I have known since papa took me to the London oculist!"

"London oculist!"

"Yes, dear; you never would have known that my left eye is a glass one."

Then the moon went under a cloud, and George sat down and buried his face in the sofa cushion.—London Answers.

Didn't Dare.

"Why don't you try to demonstrate to your constituents that you are capable of an unselfish action?"

"My dear sir," answered Senator Sorghum, "if these people who have known me for years were to find me doing something in which I had no apparent interest they'd get suspicious and decide that I was engaged in a deep and diabolical plot."—Washington Star.

Brought On Sciatic Rheumatism.

Nervous Prostration Followed.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Back Health.

"I was laid up during the winter of 94-95 with sciatic rheumatism and nervous prostration brought on by a severe attack of La Grippe. The rheumatic pains were so severe at times that it was impossible for me to turn in bed. I was unable to sleep. I had two of our best physicians in attendance, took all the advertised remedies for troubles of this kind but got no help whatever until I took Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Six bottles restored me to health; I am better than for years; in fact am entirely relieved. I can say with a clear conscience that it was Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine that restored me to health. When the pains of sciatica and rheumatism were most severe I secured almost immediate relief by the use of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. I have recommended Dr. Miles' Remedies to many people."—Fred Myers, Redfield, S. D.

"I was taken with pain in my heart and under the left shoulder; with such heavy oppressed feeling in my chest that I could hardly breathe. I had palpitation so bad and my heart would throb so that it would shake my whole bed. I also had a weak, all-gone feeling in the region of my heart. My doctor treated me for liver and stomach trouble but I failed to receive any benefit until a friend recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine. I used both and one box of the Anti-Pain Pills. I believe I am completely and permanently cured."—Mrs. J. W. Golding, Noblesville, Ind.

THE COLLINS CANDIDACY.

The gubernatorial situation has been changed materially by the announcement that Loren W. Collins, of St. Cloud, associate justice of the supreme court, is a self-confessed aspirant for the distinguished honor.

For some years it has been evident that Judge Collins has looked longingly and lingeringly upon the executive chair, and in day-dream fancy has pictured himself to be a logical solution of the task cut out for the Republican state convention. However, it requires a vivid imagination to picture fulfillment of the Judge's hopes. The northern part of the state is largely committed to Robert C. Dunn. If the convention was held today Dunn would be the unanimous choice of five-sixths of the counties north of St. Paul, and there is little likelihood of a change of sentiment as the ides of June approach. The few counties that are not for Dunn will be divided between Collins and Eddy, and in all of them Dunn is the second choice. In the southern portion of the state Dunn has a very large following, while the support of either of the other candidates is an unknown and probably a minus quantity. Unless an exceptionally strong candidate from that section of the state is announced, Dunn will win in more than two-thirds of the counties.

This is a practical view of the situation, and it is difficult to figure out a ray of hope for Judge Collins unless a deadlock in the convention is brought about, and with Dunn's conceded strength in all parts of the state this is altogether unlikely.

The mantle of Van Sant will not help Collins. There has been no disposition on the part of the people of the state, save among the little coterie of jobholders, to give Van Sant a third term, and the governor's support can carry with it but little weight, if indeed it is not a handicap. If the Judge is wise he will not resign his seat on the supreme bench.

PRAISE FOR McCLELLAN.

The day before the recent election United States Senator A. J. Hopkins (Rep.) of Illinois expressed himself as follows:

"If George B. McClellan be elected mayor of New York I predict he will be the next Democratic candidate for president.

"Mr. McClellan will be in a position to attract the attention of the Democrats of the country. He will have proved his strength by overcoming a strong and popular candidate. His record is clean. He is honest, able and intelligent. I have served with him in congress, where he has been a member of the House for the last four terms. He is a man of strong, forcible character and would prove acceptable undoubtedly to a majority of his party, because he has not been embroiled in the factional strife between the Cleveland and Bryan wings.

"Another thing that would make him strong is that he is the son of a former favorite and nominee of the Democratic party. General McClellan has many friends yet who would rally to the support of his son, and they are not all Democrats. I believe that before tomorrow's election ends Democracy will have found its standard-bearer for 1904."

INADEQUATE POSTAL SERVICE.

In the November World's Work begins a series of articles the purpose of which is to tell the facts about our postoffice, with the hope of arousing interest in the department of the government's business which most nearly touches every citizen; to lead to a realization of its shortcomings, and to help to secure improvements which will put the United States post-office service on a par with the service of other civilized lands, especially as regards the parcels-post. As the department is now conducted, the following propositions are held to be true:

1 That the service is inadequate, and has made no material advance in a decade, with the single exception of the rural free-delivery system.

2 That the business of the post-office department has been and is administered with great inefficiency, lack of economy, and with no broad-gauged appreciation of the increased needs of the country. That the postmaster-general is a political appointee, and his chief assistants secure and hold their positions, not because of their knowledge of the business or of their experience or familiarity with it, but for other reasons.

3 That the payment for the transportation of the mails is at practically the same rate as it was a score of years ago, while the cost of transporting other classes of matter has been reduced from one-third to one-half.

4 That the service given the public is in some way even less liberal than it was ten years ago; that the transactions with the department are fraught with increasing petty annoyances, especially as regards second-class matter.

5 That the so-called frauds and scandals which have agitated the press of late are trifles compared with the greater loss and waste which are a daily burden upon federal revenues.

WHILE the ship subsidy bill is likely to be revived at the coming session of congress, the Washington correspondent for the Philadelphia Public Ledger says that no final action is expected. This correspondent explains: "It is understood that it has been tacitly agreed by the Republican leaders in congress not to enact any legislation this winter which will react upon the party in the presidential campaign of 1904. The ship subsidy measure is one of those, it is understood, which is regarded as a dangerous law upon which to go before the country. While the bill is likely to be renewed this winter and pushed to a certain stage, final action is not probable until the session of 1904. No measure will be allowed to progress to the voting stage at the first session of the Fifty-eighth congress which might require explanation and defense before the people in the campaign. Measures of this character will be carefully nursed, however, with the approaching session and be ready for action at the session which will begin December, 1904, following the election of the next president and of the lower branch of the Fifty-ninth congress."

THE Congress which convened at Washington this week in response to the president's call for a special session to act on the Cuban reciprocity treaty, does not seem to have changed its mind since it first refused to grant the trade favors so eloquently pleaded for by Mr. Roosevelt. "Invective is exhausted, reason is fatigued, experience has given judgment, but obstinacy is not yet conquered"—Burke might have been talking about Cuban reciprocity instead of the taxation of the colonies when he uttered these words. But there is yet good prospect that the house insurgents against reciprocity, abetted by senatorial opponents of the president's plan, will be brought into line, and that the treaty will become a law, partly by Democratic assistance, partly as a result of public sentiment in its favor, and partly by the president's direct influence.

RUSSIA and Japan are now said to have compromised practically all their differences in the far east and the prospect of war has completely disappeared for the present. A new phase of the far eastern question is the reported understanding between Russia and Germany regarding the latter's position toward Russia's ambitions in Manchuria and Korea. This alleged understanding is scouted in some quarters, largely because it is not understood what Russia could offer Germany or what Germany could give Russia in exchange for co-operation in a field in which the allies of both powers would be in sharp antagonism if a clash should occur between Russia and Japan or Russia and some other country

THE whole world will sympathize with Commander Booth-Tucker in the death of his wife in a railroad accident. Mrs. Booth-Tucker was the second daughter of General William Booth, and was consul of the Salvation Army in ths United States. We may sometimes smile at the quaint ways of the Salvation Army, but the fact still remains that they have done more good with a certain class of people than the churches, and Mrs. Booth-Tucker was one of the most conscientious workers in the army in this country.

THE Grand Trunk railroad company has announced that all the women employees in its office are to be discharged for the following reasons: "First, because they have the chocolate cream and caramel habit. Secondly, because when not addressing themselves to delicatessen, they are nibbling solid food. Third, they talk too much, and talk in such a way as to hurt the corporation. Fourthly, the average woman is thoughtless of the future except to kill time until she finds a husband."

ELECTION portents are, notoriously, just what any one chooses to make them. This year the gains and losses are so evenly divided between the two parties that it is particularly easy for both Democrats and Republicans to say that the advantage is unmistakably theirs. Ohio Massachusetts, Nebraska and Colorado and Republican gains in other states can be evenly balanced against the Democratic successes in New York, Maryland and Kentucky.

Mrs. Charles Sampson and children left Monday for Fall River, Mass., where they will make their future home.

For a nice bromide enlarged portrait go to W. A, Riechel. It makes the most natural likeness. Stop in and see them. d10

Ed. L. Healy got home Sunday from a two weeks' business trip to St. Paul and other points in the southern part of the state.

Pure buckwheat flour and pure Northern woods maple syrup make a good combination. Buy them of Bangs & Co., next to postoffice.

William Cheshier, of Walnut Grove, Minn., has been engaged as cashier of the Bank of Wylie, and entered upon the work this week.

Go to W. A. Riechel for your picture framing. He has just received a new shipment of moulding, and now has on hand about one hundred varieties. d10

Carl Kolstadt, one of the efficient clerks at the Big Store, left Tuesday for his claim north of Thief River Falls, expecting to be gone for several weeks.

Ildage Beausoliel left the fore part of the week for Idaho. He expects to move his family to that country in the near future if he finds a desirable location.

For a strong and warm knitting yarn try our pure Minnesota wool at 70c per pound. Nothing better spun at the price.—Bangs & Co., next to postoffice.

THE NEW MILL COMPANY.....

The Northern Minnesota Milling Co. have leased the warehouse and offices where the Thief River Falls Lumber Co. were located, and have opened a feed store, both wholesale and retail. They carry all kinds of flour and feed in stock at the very lowest prices. Mr. M. A. Hatten will have charge of this business.

The Best is the Cheapest: "Gold Seal" is tee best flour. It makes more bread, whiter bread than any other flour, and it is guaranteed to give satisfaction or we will refund the money and pay you for your trouble, and charge you nothing flour that you have used,

If you intend to give a party call at THE COURIER office and see the new line of invitation cards, program pencils, tally cards, or in fact anything you need in the line of fancy stationery.

John Conner sr., who has been looking after his son's farm in Terrebonne for several months past, expects to leave the latter part of the week for eastern Tennessee to spend the winter.

Now is the time to plant your Christmas advertising. Nearly every store has useful articles appropriate for presents, and a liberal use of COURIER advertising space would be sure to produce results.

Dr. J. Gendron expects to leave the latter part of the week for Chicago, where he will take a post-graduate course in surgery at one of the leading hospitals. He will be absent several months.

Remie Lefaive will hold a public auction at his farm on section 35, Gervais township, on Monday, November 23. A large list of live stock and machinery is advertised. See bills for further particulars.

Northome Record: Miss Mary Schusser, of Red Lake Falls, and her sister, Mrs. Wm. Lennon, of Kelliher, were here Monday night. Miss Schusser was returning home from a visit with her sister at Kelliher.

Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, Rev. Andrew Walker, S. A. Swanson and A. L. Reichert left Tuesday morning for the eastern part of the county on a deer-hunting trip. We hope they will be successful in securing a good bag.

Meadore Demarias and Miss Alma Robillard were married Tuesday at St. Joseph's church. The contracting parties are both popular and well-known young people and will receive the hearty congratulations of their friends,

A new line of tablets for fine correspondence, with envelopes to match, just received at THE COURIER stationery store. Remember we carry a complete stock of high-grade writing materials, as well as all of the cheaper goods.

There are very few things more appreciated than a photograph of youself or family as a holiday gift. Now is the time to have them taken and avoid the Christmas rush. We have just received a nice line of new mounts.—W. A. Riechel. d10

A new line of linen cloth papetries —25 sheets letter paper and 25 envelopes—just received at THE COURIER stationery store. The best of these goods sell for only 35 cents per box. A large line of the fancy hemstitched papers are now on hand.

Joseph Leicht, publisher of the Westlicher Herold at Winona, was a business visitor to Red Lake Falls Thursday and made this office a pleasant call. Mr. Leicht has a large number of subscribers in this locality and makes annual pilgrimages to this part of the state.

The Racket store is advertising holiday goods in this week's issue. Mr. Cunningham is carrying a large stock of goods appropriate for presents and invites the patronage of all who want good goods at low prices. Watch his space during the next few months for further particulars.

This sudden transition from summer to winter is undoubtedly appreciated by the clothing and fuel merchants, as goods in their lines have been in strong demand this weed. The rest of us are expected to regard the situation with as much equanimity as possible and bob up smiling.

The St. Hilaire dump ground affair is finally settled, we trust, by the action of Judge Watts in granting an injunction restraining the village from using the grounds in the future for rubbish and garbage. This case has been a hard-fought one and as both sides obtain a measure of glory it is time "to love one another."

J. B. Conner came up from Wahpeton, N. D., to attend the auction on his place at Terrebonne last Saturday. Everything was sold at a fair price, and Mr. Conner returned Monday to Wahpeton, accomponied by his children. He is buying grain at that place this season, and says he is doing a good business.

Cashier Duffy this week received the lithographed ditch bonds, and they now await the signature of the proper officials at the meeting of the county board next Monday. Owing to the present bearish condition of the money market it has been difficult to find a buyer for such a large issue and Mr. Duffy is to be congratulated upon his success.

Last week THE COURIER mentioned the fact that pansies were blooming in Red Lake Falls gardens, and the item seems to have reminded Old Boreas that he had been neglecting his business, for the elements swept down on us in all their fury Sunday morning, and at this writing there is no immediate prospect of cessation. Guess "the good old summer time" is gone.

The state and county tax for 1904 will be 12.50 mills divided as follows: State revenue, 1.5; state school, 1.23; county revenue 5.; county poor, .64; road and bridge, .9; bond and interest, 1.5; court house, .5; special bond and interest, .23; county school, 1. The total rate of taxation for Red Lake Falls will be 58.9, of which 27.9 is for local school purposes. The rate for Thief River Falls will be 56.5, and for St. Hilaire 30.9.

THE COURIER is sending out a large number of bills to delinquent subscribers this week, and we hope that as many as can will respond promptly. A newspaper can easily accumulate a thousand dollars—but as long as the money is in the pockets of the other fellows it isn't doing us much good. It is not often THE COURIER bothers its subscribers with calls for pecuniary aid, so we hope the present offense will be pardoned—and the bill paid.

W. G. Brown's residence on the north side of town was totally destroyed by fire Monday night. The blaze oringinated from some unknown cause in the kitchen, and before the fire company could get action the building was enveloped in flames. All of the household goods downstrirs were saved, but the beds and beding, clothing and other effects upstairs were burned. The house had been just recently finished and was valued at $1,400. Only $600 insurance was carried, leaving the net loss about $1,000.

The first issue of the Thief River Falls Review, published by McDonald Bros., reached this office Tuesday. The initial number does not fulfill the reasonable expectations of an up-to-date country newspaper, but after the boys get their plant in good running order and become acquainted with the people doubtless they will make a better showing. Thief River Falls is rather a small city to support three newspapers, however, and all of them are not going to have shortcake and pudding three times a day.

Attorney H. W. Lee was down from Thief River Falls Friday to file a notice contesting the election of Frank H. Kratka as mayor. Mr. Lee alleges a large amount of illegal voting and believes that Ira C. Richardson is clearly entitled to the position.

Attorneys Boughton, Grady and Germo have been at St. Hilaire several days of this week to attend the hearing in the Rocksbury ditch case. The case will be taken under advisement by Judge Watts, and a decision may not be rendered for several weeks.

Crookston Times: The officials of the local United States land office have had a busy week. Since Tuesday morning 342 homestead entries have been made, 338 in the Red Lake reservation series and four in the general series. It is probable that not far short of 1,000 sets of papers have been presented for filing, but the many conflicts have made the actual number of entries much smaller. Papers continue to arrive daily and will for weeks to come. Receiver George has taken in more than $4,000 in fees and commissions.

A fire in the Fred Borchers building was averted Tuesday morning by prompt action on the part of Mr. Borchers. The previous day Mrs. Borchers had been oiling the floors of the upstairs, and had wrapped the cloth used for the purpose in a newspaper and laid it away in the pantry, expecting to use it again the following day. Early Tuesday morning smoke was seen to issue from the pantry, and Mr. Borchers was able to put out the flames without assistance. It is thought the cloth was ignited by spontaneous combustion.

Many citizens are not aware of the important fact, but it is a fact nevertheless, established by the courts in every state, that every inch of the streets of a city, from the outside lines down into the earth as well as upward to the skies, is owned by the people and they are entitled to the free and unobstructed use thereof. Thus a lot owner has no right to use the space under his sidewalk, nor space for basement stairway or railing, nor extend a sign, in the least into or over the street, nor to occupy the street for peanut and pop corn roasters, or for stands to display goods—if he does so any such obstruction is a nuisance and may be summarily removed.

Several of the Crookston young men who created bad blood at the football game last week have recently stood still long enough to be interviewed by the Times, and indulge in unseemly criticism of the Red Lake Falls people. It is not necessary to defend the city from the uncharitable remarks made by these young men, but in closing the incident THE COURIER desires to say that Red Lake Falls never fails to treat its visitors with courtesy and respect, and we have yet to hear that our people were lacking on the occasion referred to. If there was excuse for invidious comment perhaps the boys will find when they grow older that etiquette demands some consideration on the part of the guest as well as the host.

According to the new schedule which takes effect Sunday the Great Northern passenger will arrive at Red Lake Falls from Crookston at 12:10, the present time, but will leave almost an hour earlier, the new time being 2:35. Mail will close at 2:15. This change is far from satisfactory to the people of this city because of the short time allowed for getting out mail. Since the Northern Pacific train is running somewhere near on time nowadays, why couldn't the mail come in on that road? There is at least no reason why outgoing pouch mail could not be sent on the Northern Pacific via Fertile. The postal officials are usually willing to give the best mail service possible, and no doubt the local office will petition the department for relief of some sort.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen. made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

PETROLEUM IN BURMAH.

In Use There Long Before the First Well Was Driven in Pennsylvania.

The use of petroleum seems new, but it had been used in Asia for a long time before the first well was driven in Pennsylvania. The following description, published in 1829, is from the account of Crawford's embassy to Ava.

Petroleum wells supply the whole Burmah empire with oil for lamps, and also for smearing timber, to protect it against insects, and particularly the white ants. Its consumption for burning is stated to be universal, until its price reaches that of sesamum oil, the only other kind used for lamps.

The wells, which occupy a space of about 16 square miles, vary in depth from 200 to 250 feet; the shaft is square, not more than four feet each side, and is formed by sinking a frame of wood.

The oil, on coming up, is about the temperature of 90 degrees Fahrenheit. It is thrown into a large cistern, in the bottom of which are small apertures for the aqueous part to drain off, when the oil is left for some time to thicken. It is then put into large earthen jars, placed in rude carts drawn by oxen, and carried to the banks of the river, from whence it is sent by water-carriage to every part of the empire.

By the number and burden of the boats employed in this trade, and the number of voyages they are supposed to make in the course of a year, the exportation from the wells is estimated to amount to 17,568,000 vis, of 26½ pounds each.

TESTS OF THE HUMAN VOICE.

Over the Telephone Wire One Cannot Always Be Certain of the Person at Other End.

Many persons imagine that the human voice is as easily recognizable as the human countenance; they think that they could never be mistaken in the voice of their friends, but in the branch telephone exchange of a big business house the other day an experiment proved that this was not eltogether true, says the Philadelphia Record. One of the employes of the house took his place at the exchange, and, as various persons called for various members he guessed who was speaking. Out of ten guesses six were wrong. He erred in the case of his own brother's voice, mistaking it for that of the proprietor. He was sure that he had detected a fellow clerk on account of the pronunciation of coffee—"cawfee"—that he believed to be peculiar to this person, but the event proved that there were others in the building who also pronounced coffee in that odd way. The girl at the exchange said that she never attempted to tell people by their voices, especially over the 'phone. "When you make a mistake it is so embarrassing," she murmured. "A roguish voice says: 'Do you know it is?' You answer: 'Yes, it's Harry.' Whereupon the disappointed reply comes: 'No, it is Jack.' That makes you feel small."

INGENIOUS BEGGARS.

Even the Child Mendicants of Italy Are Up to All Sorts of Sly Schemes.

It is hard to beat the beggar game in Italy. A fleet-footed urchin grabbed a girl, and bounded like a chamois over an intervening short cut, heading us off at the next turn. He and his maiden fell into a fox-trot by the side of the carriage, relates a writer in the Argonaut.

"Look, noble gentleman!" he began, "look, beautiful lady! See the little ragazza—the poor girl—have pity on her! See, noble signor—you cannot refuse to give her something—your heart is too good, you are too generous, too noble, too handsome, to refuse. Have pity on her dreadful state, for look—she has one gray eye and one black one!"

We stopped the carriage. It was true. The maiden had indeed particolored eyes, in addition to which she rejoiced in a most appalling squint. I gave her one copper.

Hereupon her escort set up a howl at being ignored.

"But why should you have anything?" I asked.

"You ought to give me two coppers," he replied, with a twinkle, "for I have two black eyes, and she has only one."

I was vanquished. I gave him his two coppers. I don't believe in beggars; but I think he earned them.

ODD BOOK-SMUGGLING.

Forbidden Work Sent from Paris Into Belgium Without Any Trouble.

Recently a book containing some very uncomplimentary allusions to King Leopold of Belgium was published in Paris, and as a result the publishers were promptly notified that no copies would be allowed to enter Belgium. There were, however, several persons in Brussels and other parts of Belgium who desired to read the book, and in spite of the official notice they managed to get copies of it. The method which they used was very simple.

The books were removed from the original covers in Paris and placed in other covers, bearing such titles as "How to Grow Beet Root," "Popular Text-Book on Horticulture" and "The Farmer's Every Day Book." In this disguise they were shipped to the frontier, and the officials, misled by the innocent titles, never dreamed of confiscating them.

How to Do It.

The American rifle team appears to know a thing or two about the proper way to lift a cup, remarks the Baltimore Herald.

BAD THERMOMETERS

Harm Done in Hands of Persons Without Medical Knowledge.

Common Instruments Valueless in Determining the Temperature of Patients—Matter of Vital Concern.

Probably no instrument claiming to register with precision is so inaccurate as the average thermometer. This being so, it is somewhat amusing to notice the blind faith with which the average citizen depends on these devices for indicating temperature. As a "scientific instrument" each is apparently entitled to a respect approaching reverence, and its dicta are not to be questioned, says the Medical News. The fact is that the variations among a dozen ordinary thermometers will often amount to five or six degrees—as any one can see who will glance at a druggist's window. With thermometers used for scientific work there is, of course, less variation, but their inaccuracy is often considerable, and in clinical instruments it may easily be so great as to affect a physician's diagnosis.

A prominent hospital in this city has scarcely recovered from the shock of a recent discovery made by the members of its house staff—namely, that the thermometers in regular use in its wards vary so much as to render valueless the temperature charts which well-trained nurses have been taught to regard as one of their chief responsibilities. It is a rude awakening, indeed, for a physician suddenly to be made to realize that he has been treating for fever patients who have no fever, and that patients have been discharged as cured whose temperatures were far from normal. Think of the wasted energy of sponge baths and of tubbings, of antipyretics used without due warrant, of fluid diets forced upon half-starved convalescents who longed for solid food, and would have been all the better for it; of patients kept in bed and in the hospital when they might have benefited by freedom of out of doors. These are no imaginary evils; they are errors actually committed, and errors which we have no doubt are being repeated today in many of our best hospitals, where every possible care is supposed to be lavished on patients. Is this the hospital management of which Americans are so proud?

In the hospital, whose experience has been made known to us, actual tests of groups of thermometers used in the same wards and on the same patients revealed differences too striking and too serious to be lightly passed over. In some cases these differences were as great as 2.5 degrees Fahrenheit—variations wide enough to prove embarrassing in diagnosis and misleading in treatment. This intolerable state of affairs has existed apparently for a long time—the inevitable fruit of a policy which seeks to divorce economy and efficiency. Good thermometers are costly; cheap ones flood the market, and the tide rises even unto the sacred precincts of hospital wards, where it drowns all decent regard for the patient's welfare.

It is not in hospitals alone that the vice of cheap thermometers has taken root. In the stock of the average drug store in this city will be found a small number of clinical thermometers, reliably certificated, and a much larger number bearing certificates of doubtful authenticity or having no certificates at all. The latter represent the practice of private physicians and the public in taking of temperature at home. Most of these thermometers are cheap; many of them are old, and all of them are unreliable, because even when they happen to be accurate we cannot feel sure of them, and we are bound to question and perhaps to discount the privilege of testing selections from retail stocks, but we have found that variations of two degrees are not uncommon.

Here is a matter of vital concern to the profession and the public. The voluntary testing and certification of thermometers by recognized experts is a safeguard within the reach of those who are willing to pay for it. Inasmuch as this protection is so commonly neglected, however, the question may well be raised whether compulsory certification is not desirable.

ELECTRICITY A PANACEA.

According to a French Medical Authority Will Be Medicine of the Future.

Electricity will be the sole medicine of the future, according to M. D'Arsonval, a well-known savant of the Psychological institute of Paris, says a report from that city.

At a recent metting of the institute M. D'Arsonval made an exhaustive address on "The Action of Electricity Upon Human Beings." He spoke of the effect of sudden shocks of electricity, as well as of the slow method by which it pervades the system without the patient's consciousness. He showed that electric treatment is excellent for certain maladies of the skin and that it has a powerful effect on microbes and accelerated circulation and respiration, without fatigue to the person operated on. Moreover, what is most important, he said that it acts strangely on cellular vitality. Electricity, added the speaker, will bring about a therapeutic revolution.

The Psychological institute, which has been in existence about three years, counts among its members some of the most conscientious and brilliant men of letters and science in France, among them Ribot, Sully-Prudhomme, Seailles, Trades, Duchaux and Brouardel.

Switzerland's Liberal School System.

The public schools in Switzerland are operated by the government, and civil service rules are strictly applied. The teachers, who are mostly women, are very well paid and never discharged except for cause. When they get so old they can't teach they are pensioned liberally. The result is that the country has an excellent corps of educators.

Children like Cole's Cough Cure and wise mothers know it is the best thing for colds. A word to the wise is sufficient. Get Cole's. 25 and 50c by all druggists.

As to Faults.

Make sure that, however good you may be, you have faults; that however dull you may be, you can find out what they are; and that, however slight they may be, you would better make some patient effort to get quit of them.—Ruskin.

Heredity in Office.

Lord Dudley is not the first of his name to be lord lieutenant of Ireland. As far back as 1428 Sir John Sutton, the fifth Lord Dudley, was Irish viceroy. He summoned an Irish parliament and held the office for three years.

It adds spice to dreary life, encourages the human heart, lifts one out of despair, breathes new life and confidence. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

CHRONIC SORES
Signs of Polluted Blood.
There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.
A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.
Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter censes and the place heals over.
SSS
S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health.
If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

THROW BOOMERANGS.

Popular Sport Now On in the Capital City.

Amateurs Hurl the Dangerous Toys, But Have Yet to Learn to Make Them Return to Them.

Throwing boomerangs—not the political kind, but the real ones—is coming to be a popular sport in Washington, or rather in the suburbs of Washington, for boomerang throwing in large cities is nearly as dangerous as rifle practice, says a report from that city.

The Washington Boomerang club, with a membership of respectable proportions, has been organized, and grounds for practice have been secured and the new sport is in full blast.

The men who have gone into the fun say a person may become just as much of a boomerang crank as a baseball crank, or a fishing crank or a golf crank.

Awhile ago, Prof. Walker, of Cambridge, England, who has been in for nearly every kind of out-of-door sports, went to Washington and told some scientific men there that he knew no better fun than boomerang-throwing, and that in addition to the physical exertion necessary, the training given the eye and nerves was a little better than anything he knew of.

More than that, Prof. Walker had some boomerangs with him, and he took the gentlemen to a field in the suburbs of Washington and showed them how the trick is done.

The sport took instantly, and the scientific men went prowling around lumber yards looking for white ash to make boomerangs of.

It seems that a rude Australian will go into a store and buy boomerangs by the dozen, but that is not the etiquette of the game as imported from Cambridge to Washington.

More than half the skill in the sport is in making the boomerangs. It is made of white ash, steamed and bent into the desired shape.

Of course, the Washington players are not expert boomerang makers yet, but they have got along so far in the art that any one of them can make a boomerang so wonderfully constructed that no mortal can tell where it will go when thrown with great force.

After awhile, through the exercise of much patience, they hope to get the business down to so fine a point that the boomerang will do what is expected of it—describe certain movements in the air and return to the feet of the thrower.

Until skill has been acquired on the part of the players, boomerang-throwing is pretty dangerous for everybody within a radius of some hundreds of yards.

In the hands of an inexperienced thrower a boomerang may go anywhere except where it is expected to go, but wherever it does go it goes with tremendous speed.

When the boomerangs thrown by the Washington throwers come to earth they go into the ground so fast that it is often a task to pull them out.

Were one of the things to hit a man or even a horse a painful wound would be the possible result, and should the blow be upon the head death might follow.

NEWS A CENTURY AGO.

How the London Times Treated Such a Sensation as Expected Invasion of London.

An interesting instance of the manner in which newspapers have developed in the last 100 years is now being furnished by the London Times, which, since its centennial anniversary, has each day printed a quotation from its issue of the same day 100 years ago.

At this period in the last century Napoleon Bonaparte was busily preparing to invade England with an immense army. One can imagine how a modern newspaper would have treated such a "story" as this. Here is how the Times referred to it in 1803:

"We yesterday received the Paris Papers to the 3d instant inclusive.

"They continue to be filled with Addresses to the First Consul, and offers of gun-boats for the invasion of this country. They also contain directions for the ceremonial to be observed by the Clergy of the different towns, which is to sanctify the reception of the First Consul. Among other forms the Bishop of the place is to present the Cross to him to be kissed, on his arrival at the gates; that Cross which he so grossly degraded and insulted in Egypt, by displaying it as subject to the spiritual predominance of the Crescent.

"Accounts from Dunkirk state, that the preparations making for the expedition against this country are on a very extensive scale. It is said, that a Camp of 100,000 men is to be formed near St. Omer; one of 60,000 at Cherbourg, and another of 40,000 in Holland."

Effect of Sunspots.

It is only in tropical stations, according to Charles Nordmann, that any effect of the sunspot period upon mean annual temperature can be detected. From the records of 12 such stations it appears that the annual temperature varies with the sunspots, and that the coldest years are those of maximum sunspots.—Science.

Art Treasures of Limgat.

Algiers has its Pompeii—the ruined city of Timgat, in which a number of art treasures have recently been found. They will be added to the Louvre collections in Paris.—London News.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

The four greatest needs of Greece—grain, coal, iron and lumber—are the ones which the United States would best be able to supply.

The yearly gross earnings of the United States Steel corporation are approximately equal to the gross revenue received by the United States government.

Seventy French firms manufacture motor cars and their combined output last year was 12,000 cars. The industry employed 180,000 workmen, earning on an average $360 a year each.

Large deposits of stone suitable for lithographic purposes have been discovered and opened in Thessaly. Greek experts report that this stone is far superior in quality to the best lithographic stone heretofore known in Europe.

Under the heading, "A New German Industry," German papers state that the manufacture of quartz glass is rapidly developing in that country. Quartz glass consists essentially of melted quartz and is perfectly translucent.

The membership of the United Mine Workers of America, as shown from the number who paid the per capita tax during the month of March, is larger than it has ever been in the history of the organization. Last year it reached 232,000, while this year it is 264,439.

Peat fuel in freight locomotives in Sweden has hauled the maximum load, the cost being about the same as with English coal. To avoid the expense of an extra fireman, however, the peat is now mixed with an equal weight of coal, and the mixture has proven so satisfactory that it is to be tried on passenger trains.

The shape of the rudder of a vessel seems to be of more importance than has been generally supposed. Experiments in Scotland by J. Foster King indicate that the rectangular form has decided advantages, as it presents a larger surface at the loda line under all conditions and requires a smaller stock and working gear than curved shapes. With sufficient area the narrow blade is as effective as the broad one, while it can be set more rapidly.

WOMAN PRISON CHAPLAIN.

Ministers Regularly to the Hardened Characters Confined in Laramie (Wyo.) Jail.

The only woman in the world engaged as chaplain in a prison is Mrs. May Preston Slosson, of Wyoming, and she performs her duties with a zeal that is worthy of all praise. She is a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel and might be settled over a prosperous church, but she sees her duty lies among the convicts at Laramie and has chosen that as her field of effort, reports the Chicago Chronicle.

Mrs. Slosson received the first degree granted to a woman at Cornell university, where she worked for two years after she had received the master's degree at Hillsdale college, Michigan.

After graduating she accepted the professorship of Greek at Hastings college, Nebraska, and was married in 1891 to Prof. Edwin E. Slosson, professor of chemistry at the University of Wyoming in Laramie.

In Wyoming the prisoners of the state penitentiary were at one time kept without work on account of the opposition of the trades unions to their employment. Men deprived of the saving grace of work, no matter to what part of the community they belong, soon become thrown out of their balance. That happened to the prisoners, who got into a peculiarly morbid and unruly condition.

It was in that frame of mind that Mrs. Slosson conceived the idea which the authorities permitted her to put into practice. She arranged for a series of Sunday afternoon talks and experimental lectures by the professors of the university.

She herself gave two lectures before the convicts, and when the minister who was acting as the chaplain left the town the prisoners petitioned the governor to appoint her chaplain. He acceded to the request, and since July, 1899, she has filled the office not only to the satisfaction of the authorities, but, what is more important, to the satisfaction of those who are the enforced members of her congregation.

The prisoners number some 220 and consist for the most part of young men who have gone west from a spirit of adventure and have got into trouble either through drink or from "getting the brand on the wrong cattle," as cattle stealing is euphoniously referred to by the men themselves.

Blood Corpuscles at War.

The war between the white corpuscles of the blood and the microbes of disease was first described by the Russian pathologist, Metchnikoff. While devoting himself to the study of inflammations he in each case noted the presence of white cells in the blood currents in abnormal numbers. Inside these two cells he invariably found the specific microbe of the disease under consideration—it seemed that the big corpuscles were devouring the poisonous microbes. Sometimes the number taken up by a corpuscle was too great and it died as a result. If this overcoming of the white corpuscles by the microbes was general the patient died.—Medical Journal.

Strangers Now.

"I never wear the same dress twice," said the spinster who had more money than beauty.

"And is it true," queried the girl whose face was her fortune, "that you really have a different set of teeth for each day in the week?"—Chicago Daily News.

WEALTH THROWN AWAY.

Much of Value Is Cast Into the Waste Baskets of a Large City Every Day.

"In the waste baskets in St. Louis," said a business man the other day, reports the Republic, "there is wealth enough to make any one man independently rich for life." "Come again," said the doubting friend. "Rich for life," went on the other. "You don't see how? Of course, you don't. I do.

"Did you ever consider the thousands and thousands of waste baskets that are emptied by the janitors in offices every night? Well, suppose you could get all that paper. Your income every day would be up in the hundreds of dollars. That is, if you simply sold the paper to pulp mills.

"But supppose you could add to that tidy income by possessing yourself of the stamps that are dropped into the waste baskets by mistake. There would be another fine item in your income.

"Suppose, then, if your conventional mind will permit you to stray so far afield, that a man could buy all the business secrets that he could find lying in waste baskets. He would have, I assure you, such a lever that he could pry solid gold into his bank account.

"Why, man, there is more money going to waste in the waste baskets in this town every day than many men make in a long life of hard work. I wish I could buy the privilege of taking all the stuff. That's all."

PHILADELPHIA'S FLY-KILLER.

Gathers Thousands Into a Room and Exterminates Them with Persian Powder.

Philadelphia has employed a man to kill flies. He is an expert in the slaughter of these pests and has no compunctions concerning their extermination. In common with the head of the Philadelphia health department, he believes that flies have no value as scavengers, but that, like rats and mosquitoes, they are active enemies of the human race, spreading a variety of dirt diseases and making epidemics possible, says the New York Evening World.

He regards the hole-in-a-piece-of-bread-over-a-goblet-of-molasses trap as a weak and ineffective device; fly papers are to his mind expensive and valueless, dishes of fly poison worse than useless, screens merely a defensive appliance. His method is to make a chamber attractive to flies, gather thousands there, burn a handful of Persian powder in the chamber and exterminate his guests.

The undertaking seems a task for Hercules, but its profit promises to be great.

GRAND MARSHAL DONE FOR.

"When power-driven vehicles shall have superseded horse-drawn vehicles entirely, as no doubt, in the not far distant future, they will have done," said Mr. Gozzleton, according to the New York Sun, "what will become of the grand marshal? Will anything be devised that will enable him to shine with anything like his present glory?

"Now, with a broad, bright-colored sash worn diagonally across his manly bosom, and with a dahlia-like rosette pinned upon his breast, he rides grandly at the head of the procession mounted on a horse. What would a procession be without a grand marshal, and what would a marshal be without a horse? And what will he do when there are no horses?

"His prospect now is dim, indeed; but let us hope that, when the horseless age shall actually have come, some means will be found to preserve the glamour and the glory of the grand marshal."

NATURE SCULPTURE.

Ragged Outline of California Bowlder Bears Striking Likeness to George Washington.

One of the most remarkable pieces of nature sculpture in California is the George Washington rock, about 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles, in the Santa Susana mountains, says the Sunset Magazine. Near this rock a two-mile tunnel is being bored through the Santa Susana mountains just outside Chatsworth Park. A chiseled monument could hardly bear truer likeness to George Washington than this chance picture in the ragged contour of a huge bowlder. Viewed from one point and only one, it stands out sharp and distinct against the sky. From all other points the rock is a shapeless mass. The image measures full 25 feet from chin to brow and is close to the top of the hill. In the vicinity have been found Indian relics; ovens, stones containing Indian writings, arrow heads, mortars and many traces of a settlement of aborigines.

Are Cruel to Cats.

We could name certain seashore resorts along the Atlantic coast, the abode through the long summer days of healthful recreation, of care free housewives and the lightheartedness of paradise itself, which are the scenes of many a humble tragedy in the autumn, writes a contributor to Good Housekeeping. Here is the plain, unadorned fact: Many of the cottagers leave their pet cats to starve. Persons residing in the vicinity the year round are witnesses. Sometimes the poor animals are left locked within the cottages, when the doors are barred and windows boarded. More often they wander the beach, wan ghosts of their old selves, picking up a scant living from fish, until cold weather puts an end to their misery.

ANCIENT CITIES.

Jerusalem in the days of Solomon probably did not contain 20,000 people.

Constantinople at the time of its greatest splendor as capital of the eastern empire had a population of about 1,500,000.

Babylon, whose name has come to be synonymous with dense population, never had over 1,200,000 inhabitants in its palmiest days, so the archæologists declare.

Athens, when she led the Greek states in repelling the invasion of Xerxes, had only 30,000 inhabitants, but Herodotus speaks of this number as if it was something to boast of.

Rome, the mistress of the world, the great city to which all roads led, "Rome the Eternal," did not exceed 2,000,000 in population. Gibbon, indeed, believes that it had only 1,200,000, and in this estimate he and Milman agree.

A Unique Command.

At Boulogne, during a royal reception, a number of English ladies in their anxiety to see everything pressed with such force against the soldiers who were keeping the line that the latter were forced to give way and generally were—to use the expression of policemen—"hindered in the execution of their duty." The officer in command, observing the state of affairs, called out:

"One roll of the drum—if they don't stand back kiss them all."

After the first sound of the drum the ladies took to flight.

"If they had been French," said a Parisian journal, "they would have remained to a woman."—Illustrated Bits.

Policeman's Caution Wasted.

Just now the companions of a recent recruit to the police force are poking fun at him because of a remark he made a few nights ago when he found it necessary to arrest a very old offender. Arrived at the police station, he ushered the culprit in with the injunction to "mind the steps."

"G'lang with you!" said the prisoner scornfully. "I knowed these steps afore you was born!"—New York Press.

Harmony Was In Danger.

"I have here," began the chairman of the political caucus, "some charges against this organization which"—

His voice was overwhelmed by the rumble of rising indignation. When the noise subsided he continued:

—"which I will refer to the treasurer. They're for hall rent and light."

And harmony continued to reign.—Baltimore American.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

BASTIN EXPECTS TO SOAR.

An Englishman Invents an Airship Which He Thinks Will Perform Wonders.

T. T. Hugh Bastin, of Brixton, England, has invented a mechanical balloon which will be at the St. Louis exposition for the airship prize. The wings can be controlled separately, and one man, by working one lever, it is asserted, can regulate every requisite movement of soaring, steering, flying, hovering and descending. The motive power is supplied by a petroleum engine, and propulsion is achieved by air resistance to the beating of the wings.

The "bird" is cylindrical, and has a pointed nose and tail. All the weight is below the wings, thus maintaining its equlibrium. When the wings are set beating, the model needs two men to hold it back. Mr. Bastin expects to attain a speed of 150 miles an hour with a full-sized bird.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, ss:

In Probate Court,
Special Term, Nov. 18, 1903.

On receiving and filing the petition of Theresa Bischoff, of the County of Red Lake, representing among other things, that Herman Bischoff, late of the County of Red Lake in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1993, at the County of Red Lake, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Theresa Bischoff granted;

It is Ordered, That said petition be heard before said Court on Saturday, the 12th day of December, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office, in the Court House in Red Lake Falls, in said County.

Ordered Further, That notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 18th day of November A. D. 1903.

By the court,

HAVING FUN WITH A WHALE.

Party of Fishermen Off California Coast Finds It Is Not as Pleasant as Anticipated.

L. G. Murphy, a wealthy tourist of Carmen, Ind., had a thrilling experience in the Pacific four miles off the coast of Santa Catalina islands. He came near meeting the fate of Jonah. Murphy was fishing with E. E. Chapman, of Los Angeles, Cal., owner of the launch Rival, and Skipper F. D. Clark. They found no tuna, but starting homeward came upon a horde of huge cetaceans. One was so near that they concluded to have fun with it. The launch was steered into it broadside. The whale went down, but reappeared, going straight for the boat.

Consternation drove the men aboard to seize life-preservers and air cushions. The leviathan dived within a few feet of the craft, and the fishermen changed their course sharply. This proved their salvation, for the next instant the whale was on the surface again.

The whale charged again and again, and the launch was turned quickly to escape the rushes, which lasted for two miles. During the chase the whale never went completely out of sight, but plowed along on the surface or only a few feet beneath and never spouted.

The fishermen estimate the whale's length at 60 feet. It was of a variety known as the "fin-back." Its head was between four and five feet across and eight feet long.

ENGLISH LIKE COFFEE JELLY.

This Substitute for Liquid Stimulant Is Said to Have Many Advantages.

Though coffee is little used for breakfast, as compared to tea in England, it is very commonly drunk after dinner, a custom which, the London Lancet says, "is justified, especially when wine drinking accompanies the meal, for coffee is an antidote to alcohol.

"On the other hand," the paper continues, "a cup of coffee disagrees with many, and the dyspeptic must eschew hot strong coffee as well as tea. But it is often forgotten that coffee can be taken in other ways, and in none better than in the form of jelly.

"Clear coffee jelly after dinner is every bit as good as the hot infusion, while free from some of the drawbacks of the latter. Coffee, unlike alcohol, diminishes organic waste and rouses muscular energy without the collapse which follows alcoholic imbibation and the gelatin in the form of jelly is cooling, assuages the thirst and has a tendency to absorb any excessive acidity of the stomach. It is an excellent substitute for coffee in liquid form; but it is necessary in making the infusion that the quantity of coffee in the jelly should not be stinted."

MONEY IN SHEEP RAISING.

Remarkable Record of a South Dakota Ranchman Partly Due to His Foresight.

James Hayward, who conducts a sheep ranch in the interior of the ceded Sioux lands between the Missouri river and the Black Hills, in South Dakota, has made a remarkable record in sheep raising. Last year he purchased 600 yearling ewes. He gave the flock close attention during the unusually severe weather of last winter, with the result that he lost only three head. From the 600 sheep he this summer had a lamb crop of 511 and the receipts from the wool which he has just sold amounted to over $600.

Martin Johnson, one of the big sheep raisers of the ceded lands, has just marketed his wool crop, which brought him $5,500. Last year he put up about 400 tons of hay. This year he expects to put up 1,000 tons, so he will be prepared for emergencies should next winter be a severe one. During the winter Johnson fed 6,500 sheep. Last year he was laughed at by adjoining ranchmen for putting up so much hay, but had it not been for his foresight he probably would have lost his entire flock, as the winter was the worst he experienced in ten years.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

Statement Made at Washington That Nearly 1,000,000 Immigrants Arrived Here Last Year.

More immigrants arrived in the United States during the fiscal year that ended June 30 last than in any other year in the history of the country. The total arrivals for the 12 months numbered 857,046, being 68,054 above the previous record year of 1882, when restrictive legislation was pending in congress, and a total of 788,992 immigrants, many of them alien contract laborers, were rushed into the United States.

The Italians held the record for the entire year, as last year, with a total of 230,622 immigrants, an increase over the previous year of 52,247. Austria-Hungary is second in the year's record, with a total of 206,011, an increase of 34,022. The Russian empire and Finland is third, with a total of 136,093, an increase of 28,748.

Bock beer at weddings is the latest proposal for society folk looking for innovations at Milwaukee, Wis. A young couple's marriage is back of the suggestion of a new fad. Resolutions of Respect.

To the Noble Grand, Officers and Brothers of Clearwater Lodge No. 133, I. O. O. F.:

Whereas, Brother August Riechel jr. has been a faithful and untiring worker for the advancement and uplifting of Oddfellowship, not only in the lodge room but also in our vicinity, and has by his example endeared himself not only to the members of this lodge, but also to the people at large in the city of Red Lake Falls, as a faithful Oddfellow, a true citizen and a good neighbor, and

Whereas, Brother Riechel is about to remove himself and his esteemed family from the city of Red Lake Falls and out of the jurisdiction of this lodge, and to become a resident of the state of Oregon, and

Whereas, We, the officers and brothers of said lodge, realize that we are losing a brother who was ever willing to sacrifice his own personal interests the tenets of our beloved Order;

Be it Resolved, That we, the officers and brothers of Clearwater Lodge No. 133, I. O. O. F., of the city of Red Lake Falls, in the jurisdiction of Minnesota, in session duly assembled, do hereby express our sincere regret in the departure of Brother Riechel from our midst and out of this jurisdiction, and fully realize that we are losing a true and upright brother.

This lodge has the consolation, however, that it matters not where Brother Riechel may go, he will ever be found cherishing the principles of Friendship, Love and Truth, which are calculated to make man social and humane.

Be it Further Resolved, That the recording secretary of this lodge be instructed to spread these resolutions upon the records of this lodge and to send a copy thereof to Brother Riechel.

Adopted and approved this 14th day of November, 1903.

RED LAKE COURIER.

CONTINUING THE RED LAKE COUNTY COURIER.

VOLUME VI.—NUMBER 8. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 26, 1903. WHOLE NUMBER 268.

A CHILLY RECEPTION.

Secretary Hitchcock in No Hurry to Open Red Lake Lands.

Representative Steenerson has had an experience with Secretary Hitchcock almost equaling that of the Minnesota member who was told by the secretary that he performed the duties of his office without regard to criticism of the people or of the senators or representatives.

Mr. Steenerson called on Secretary Hitchcock to ascertain how soon the department would be able to detail a special agent to negotiate with the Red Lake Indians. The representative and Senator Clapp have prepared a bill providing for the cession of the Indian lands to the government, but before pressing it for passage desired to have the assent of the Indians in order to obviate the possibility of the failure of the legislation.

Mr. Steenerson says he got a very frigid reception at the department, and on requesting that a special agent be sent to Red Lake he was informed that it would be impossible to do so at the present time. Mr. Steenerson urged that the matter was important in view of the fact that it would open up a large tract of fertile land and aid in the development of the state.

Secretary Hitchcock replied with some irritation that the department would send a man in good time, but would not indicate, even approximately, when he would be ready to act. If Mr. Steenerson finds it impossible to secure action at the department, he will take the matter up with the president.

Odds Favor Dunn.

Perham Enterprise: It now looks as though Bob Dunn and Judge Collins would be the principal candidates in the final race for the Republican nomination for governor, with the odds in favor of the Princeton man. THE COST OF LIVING.

For Workmen Was Higher in 1902 Than Ever Before.

The bureau of labor has issued a bulletin on the cost of living of workingmen's families, showing that of 2,617 families in 33 states from whom data was obtained the average income per family was $827.19, average expenditure for all purposes $768.54, average expenditure per family 5.31 persons.

The last figure is seven-tenths above the average of private families in the whole country as shown by the census of 1900. The food expense is more than 42½ per cent. of the expenditure for all purposes. An extended investigation covering the years 1890 and 1902 shows that the cost of food reached its highest in 1902, the average then being 10.9 per cent. above the average for the decade 1890-1900, and an increase of 16.1 per cent. compared with 1896, the year of lowest prices.

It is announced as a conservative conclusion that the increase in the cost of living as a whole in 1902 when compared with the year of lowest prices was not over 16.1 per cent. the figure given as the increased cost of food as shown by this investigation.

This assumes of course, always the purchase of the same articles and the same quantities in years of low prices, low wages, and more or less irregular employment and in years of higher prices, higher wages and steady employment.

TEST WATERS OF MINNESOTA.

Comprehensive Survey Will Be Started at Once.

A chemical bacteriological analysis of the streams and lakes of Minnesota is about to be made by the United States geological survey, the state board of health and the University of Minnesota. Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has received word that R. B. Cole of the geological survey has already left Washington for northern Minnesota, and the examination will be begun immediately.

The federal government, the state government and the University will co-operate in the work, thus enabling it to be done with considerable less expense. Mr. Cole will pay particular attention to a chemical analysis of the streams in the northern part of the state to determine the hardness of the water and whether it can be used for medicinal or manufacturing purposes. His test will determine the magnitude and rapidity of the current as well as what organic matter the water contains. He will make bi-weekly trips through the northern part of the state from Duluth. Samples of water taken by Mr. Cole will be sent to the state board of health and the state university for bacteriological examination.

The examination by the state board of health will be under the direction of Dr. F. F. Westbrook. The state board will examine the streams for the special purpose of determining whether the water is safe to be used by cities or whether it is polluted by sewage.

Good Demand for State Lands.

In the sales of state lands thus far held by State Auditor Iverson it has been found that there is good demand for such property as is offered. Bidding at all of the sales has been very active, and at Fergus Falls Monday some of the land brought as high as $40 per acre.

THE SURPRISE

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Grand Forks Herald: A careful reading of the Thanksgiving proclamation of Gov. Van Sant, fails to reveal any reference to the merger.

Janesville Democrat: After the next inauguration, Col. Roosevelt might go to France and lecture on race suicide. The death rate exceeds the birth rate in France and suggestions on the subject would be pertinent.

Renville Star-Farmer: Lumber magnates are beginning to feel the strong arm of the law in their stumpage on state lands. If they have been taking that which is unlawful they should be punished the same as any every day citizen who transgresses the law.

Commoner: People who cannot understand why railroads take a hand in politics should take a look at the money paid by the government to railroads for carrying the mails. Political influence goes a long ways toward keeping up the outrageous cost of mail carrying.

Perham Enterprise: The socialist vote in Massachusetts last week showed a falling off of over 8,000 from the figures of the previous year. It seems that the working men of Massachusetts do not believe that socialism would accomplish the great good which its advocates claim.

Princeton Union: President Roosevelt very senibly has refused to have the ushers at the White House dressed in hansome livery after the style of European courts. He is right and the people are with him. We want no apings of European aristocracy in this country, at least not in a public way.

Waterville Advance: Gov. Van Sant's statement relative to the merger in the gubernatorial contest has called out an emphatic expression from Dunn's friends, in effect that the state is strong enough to pick its own candidate and wise enough to build its own platform and that the candidate will be expected and required to stand on every plank. That's correct, we don't like bossism.

Northwestern Chronicle: In the cities of the north, most of the colored people are outside of the churches. In the south their religion, we fear is intermixed with much fratility—a condition with which the Lord will deal mercifully, considering the bondage out of which they have emerged and the iniquities which encompass them. But the colored man is naturally religious. He has the emotional element strongly developed.

A Mild Winter.

A French Canadian of St. Paul who has lived in Minnesota a good many years, says the winter will be a warm one. The first year he wintered in Minnesota was 1837, which was a very mild winter. He asked an old Indian chief the reason and the chief said: "High water in the fall in the rivers." The chief then told the Frenchman that records of his people show that whenever there was high water in the fall, such as we have had this year, the Indian summer extended until nearly Christmas and the winter was always light. "Since that time," says the Frenchmen "I have watched the weather each year and the tradition seems to prove true. Every year that I have been here, when the river has reached such a height as it did this year, we have had a fine autumn with mild weather continuing well into December. I think the tradition will prove true again this year, for all signs point in that direction."

We have several very good things in warm footwear: A ladies' wool-lined shoe at $1.65, and a felt sole with high and warm upper at $1.75; defy the coldest floors: neat and warm slippers in several styles—a very neat fur-trimmed one at $1.00. Children's and men's warm footwear of many kinds.—Bangs & Co., next to postoffice.

STATE SUPT. WARNS THEM.

School Officers Warn Them to Keep Shy of Agents.

The state superintendent of public instruction has received complaints from school districts of the state that agents purporting to represent the state department, are selling special charts and school aids to rural schools. The charts are said by this superintendent to be practically worthless. The agents have covered the south western part of the state and are said to be working north.

Supt. J. W. Olson, having examined the blank contracts used by the agents, say they are especially prepared to deceive the purchasers.

He says the non-essentials of the contracts are printed in bold type and the essential feature, making the school officers personally responsible for the purchased price of the goods, in print so fine as to be scarcely readable by the naked eye.

The state department has sent circulars to school districts in which is the following:

"It is hardly necessary to say that the statements made by the agents are willful falsehoods, and that neither this office nor any other one having state authority has indorsed either them or their wares, Agents selling special charts or other school aids have waxed fat and prospered by guilefully resorting to the grossest but most plausible misrepresentation, through which they have been able to take advantage of the ordinary school officer's lack of that experience which would enable him to distinguish standard apparatus, reasonable in cost from the high priced specialty, useless except to sell. These irresponsibles usually give out that state superintendents, county superintendents and other educators have in the way of conversation highly approved their goods; or they may basely but warily, insinuate that the only reason such officials had failed to approve them was that they had been usually influenced by rival concerns.

All such representations may be regarded as deliberately false. Only the signed written statement of the county superintendent or other authority should be given any consideration. It is significant that these specialties and helps are not handled by schoolmen of recognized standing nor by reliable local dealers, but are nearly always offered by strangers of no known financial standing."

Prepare for the Worst.

Northfield News: While the writer has no desire to look on the dark side of things, no reasonable man can doubt that the past few months have witnessed and emphasized a tendency toward retrenchment of enterprise, limitation to the outreaching tendencies of business and more or less serious disposition on the part of manufacturers to curtail the output until things in the labor world are a little more settled. These things are having some effect on general business in its curtailment. It is unfortunate that this condition is coming just before winter, because in the centers of population a great many people are always idle in the winter, and this number will be increased by the disposition to limit production. The charity bill of all larger cities promises to be much larger than it was last year even with the scarcity of coal at that time. It behooves every man who is receiving wages to lay aside a little of his income each week to meet the possibilities of the future, even if these possibilities are not forthcoming to the extent of the loss of employment, as the money will come good at another time and the enjoyment of it will be augmented by the fact that it comes in a lump.

If you are thinking of going to school this winter, you should write to J. C. Sathre for a new catalog of the Crookston College. Tuition is $6 per month. and good board and room in private family for $3 per week. Have several places on hand where girls can do a little work for board and room.

Burn Your Ashes.

A Fairmont woman has demonstrated the practicability of burning ashes, and the Daily Sentinel says of her: "Last Tuesday morning Mrs. J. A. Everett tried the new process of burning hard coal ashes. The result was that there was a good fire all day and the ashes were entirely consumed. She saved all the ashes until Friday morning, when, after about three quarts of coal was burning nicely, nearly a foot of wet ashes was placed over it. At noon Mrs. Everett invited the writer to see the ashes burn, and we can testify that they do burn and make a rousing hot fire at that, and the lady of the house was compelled to open all the doors, though the checks were out and the dampers turned so as to shut off the draft. The stove used is a surface burner, and Mrs. Everett says there is no dirt connected with the burning of ashes. They should be well soaked with water, but not placed over the coals until the fire is well started."

A Philadelphia Libel.

They tell a story in Philadelphia now of a man there who died and went to heaven, where, missing the eternal round of lively happenings he was used to at home, he became dull and discontented, all the more so because he found no familiar faces about him. One day, seeking variety, he asked permission to bo outside, and it was granted with the injunction to take a return ticket to prevent accidents; and this he did. Wandering in the beyond he came near hell and, attracted by the apparent liveliness of the institution, went in, and found there every sort of Philadelphian, among whom were numerous old-time acquaintances apparently enjoying themselves about as when in the flesh on earth. In a a cosy corner two were playing poker, and our friend feeling inclined to take a hand, was asked before sitting in if he had any money; and admitting his destitute condition, was informed that without cash he conld not do business. So he wandered on, but before long returned, exhibiting money and quite a good deal of it. His friends asked where and how he had obtained the opportune supply and he explained that he had sold his return ticket—to John Wanamaker.

Easy Pill

Easy to take and easy to act is that famous little pill DeWitt's Little Early Risers. This is due to the fact that they tonic the liver instead of purging it. They never gripe nor sicken, not even the most delicate lady, and yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. They cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, headache, malaria and ward off pneumonia and fevers.

There Is Room for Instructions for Him on How to Look Properly Happy.

A thoughtful young man of Washington was heard to decry the fact the other day that while there is a deluge of don'ts and do's for the bride to follow—how to enter the church, how to behave during the ceremony, what to wear, and so on—the bridegroom must shift for himself, says the Post of that city.

"There is absolutely nothing to guide a man but his own awkward self, and it isn't fair," he said. "From the time a girl is old enough to hear, she understands the importance of having things done properly at a wedding, while the prospective groom is something necessary to complete the picture, but a secondary consideration, and nothing short of inspiration can get a man through a marriage ceremony gracefully.

"In order to impress the bride and spectators that he is enthusiastic about it, he appears with a sort of frozen grin on his face that you expect to melt at any moment and run down his collar. If he is too frightened to respond in a loud voice some of the bride's girl friends will whisper that he 'was unwilling from the first'—again, if he replies in a loud, stern voice, another bunch in another direction of the church will huddle together and express how glad they are that they are not marrying him, while the attitude of many is that they are signing away their life and all worth living for. So I think it about time," continued the thoughtful young man, "that somebody is writing a few hints on how to behave that we may appear enthusiastic about being married without being ridiculous and a target for the people to knock at."

MADE DEAL ON DEATH BED.

Strange Transaction Between William Rockefeller and the Late Marcus Daly.

A peculiar business transaction in which William Rockefeller and the late Marcus Daly were concerned has just come to light. It seems that when the Montana copper king was lying at the point of death he had on deposit in the National City bank one account amounting to $197,995, and a special account of $1,300,518.

A singular thing in connection with the special deposit of $1,300,518 in the National City bank is that it was opened only a few days before Mr. Daly's death in the form of a check of William Rockefeller for money which he owed to Mr. Daly as a result of transactions in which both men were interested, but the nature of which is not disclosed, says a New York report.

It is understood that it was Mr. Daly's intention to use this money in the purchase of the Amalgamated Copper company, of which he owned at the time he died 67,800 shares.

Claims amounting to $1,600,000 are pending against Mr. Daly's estate, the chief of which is in an action brought by the United States against the estate to recover $1,365,000 for trespass on government lands and the conversion of timber removed from it. P. J. Shields also has a claim against the estate for $258,000. He claimed to have been a partner with Mr. Daly in a coal mine and some other enterprises. John H. Maloney and others have an action pending in the Montana courts to recover $50,000.

THE AMATEUR GARDENER.

An Illustrative Example of What He Does Not Know About Gardening.

One of the recently married couples rented a house in the suburbs and started to housekeeping on their own account, relates the Memphis Scimitar.

They planted a garden.

Recently the husband was looking over the new vegetables as they were bursting through the ground, and with his wife was discussing the appearance of the different plants as they appeared above the ground, most of which were new to them.

They came to the row of beans which were just shooting their heads into the air and marveled that the seed should be thus thrust up. It appeared to the husband that the order of their appearance was reversed.

He pondered the matter over and, after giving it due consideration, decided that it would be a pity to have the beans ruined through their ignorance of the proper manner of coming through the ground.

To save them this catastrophe, he pulled them all up, and reset them with the seed underneath, where he thought a good seed should be.

A Sealskin Church.

The Eskimos possessed the most remarkable place of worship in the world. It was a sealskin church. Forty sealskins were stretched over a light framework and in this tent, 18 feet by 12 feet, services were held every Sunday. But the church came to an untimely end. One hard winter the Eskimos' dogs, being half famished, dined on the sealskins, and only the frame was left. The Eskimos have now erected a dog proof tabernacle.

The Composite Filipino.

Ethnologists of the Smithsonian institution have investigated the Filipinos, with results that are of rare interest to science, says the Scientific American. They have called attention to the fact that in the veins of the tribes of the archipelago flows the blood of all the races and varieties of mankind.

A FORTUNATE RESCUE.

French Engineer Falls Into Well in Abandoned Mine and Just Saved in Nick of Time.

Few men have looked death in the face more closely than M. Lavier, an engineer of Paris, who arrived a few days ago at Varese, in Italy, with the intention of exploring an abandoned mine, which he had previously partially examined, but which had never been completely explored within the memory of man.

M. Lavier went without guides, and after penetrating a considerable distance into the mine he suddenly fell into a well, plunging head foremost into the water, which extinguished his lamp and spoiled his matches. Fortunately his revolver had remained usable, and he fired two shots, without, however, attracting attention.

He determined to hold out for three days, and then, failing rescue, to kill himself with the remaining cartridges in his revolver. Two days passed and, when almost mad with despair, M. Lavier, to his astonishment, heard the sound of human voices.

It happened that another French engineer, also from Paris, who three years ago attempted the exploration of the mine, had determined upon another effort, and, accompanied by two guides, he, by a most fortunate circumstance, chose that particular day to visit the mine.

The second explorer, hearing a cry for help, advanced revolver in hand to the edge of the well, and discovered M. Lavier terribly exhausted and almost on the point of collapse. The rescued man fainted when he saw help in sight, and was ultimately carried to Varese, completely prostrated after his thrilling adventure.

TO BUILD COSTLY TOMB.

The Sages Will Erect Mausoleum at Troy, N. Y., Which Will Cost Approximately $30,000.

Mrs. Russell Sage has arranged for a mausoleum of Westerly granite in Oakwood cemetery, Troy, N. Y., in the form of a Greek temple, the cost of which will approximate $30,000.

The temple will be oblong in shape, like the Jay Gould mausoleum, but whether the pillars are to be fluted or smooth has not been decided. Work will shortly be begun, the temple to occupy the center of the Sage lot, the granite shaft which marks the burial place of Mr. Sage's first wife to remain undisturbed.

"The idea of the mausoleum is no new one," said Mrs. Sage. "It has been in our minds for three years. Oakwood has always appealed to me as one of the most beautiful spots I have ever seen, and it will satisfy me to know that the mausoleum is there."

The cemetery contains a crematory, but Mrs. Sage has no favor for that method of disposing of the dead.

"It seems to me against all Biblical teaching to destroy the bodies of our dead," she said. "And, at least, it is against nature. A mausoleum is, of course, a reminder of death, but it is good that we should think of it sometimes and prepare for it."

FOUGHT SHARK THREE HOURS

Seabreeze (Fla.) Gains Prestige by Capturing 500 Pound Monster With Rod and Reel.

Dr. John A. Van Valvah, of Seabreeze, Fla., has just distinguished himself by catching a shark with an ordinary rod and reel.

He was fishing on a pier when something caught the bait and darted off at a speed that set the reel to whizzing while the doctor's thumb was almost cut in trying to check the fish. The shark finally made for top water and then the doctor saw he had a fight before him.

Eight times he brought the big fish in on the beach, only to have it dash off again. At last the shark was tired out and brought to the beach and gaffed. Nearly three hours were consumed in the fight.

The shark was eight and one-half feet long and weighed between 450 and 500 pounds. Many larger fish have been caught here, but this is the largest shark ever taken here with a rod and reel.

MOST EXPERT HORSE THIEF.

Rufus Young, Aged Sixty, Who Has Served Forty-Five Years, Again Arrested.

Rufus Young, 60 years of age, who has served an aggregate of 45 years in prison for various offenses, and who is called the most expert horse thief in New England, surrendered to Sheriff Wilson at Arlington, Vt., the other day after having been wounded by a volley from the sheriff's posse.

Young escaped from jail and for some weeks had been hunted by the officers. The other night he was cornered near a covered bridge here. Young put up a fight, and was wounded in the abdomen by a bullet. He also was hurt by jumping from the vehicle in which he was riding.

Young took considerable time to consider his position, and then surrendered. Young is said to have stolen 75 horses, and few of them were ever recovered by their owners.

Our Latest Doctrine.

In answer to Spain's claim that the $250,000 found in the captured Spanish vessels at Santiago belongs to her, the Washington Post says that Secretary Root has advanced the American doctrine of "finders keepers."

WOMEN WORKERS IN JAPAN.

Have Been Accustomed to Severe Manual Labor at Very Small Pay.

In Japan there is no bar erected against the employment of women in any industry whatever, provided they show their capacity for the work required. The usual wages the girl of that country receives is three pence a day—about six cents. For that miserable stipend girls not only labor hard during working hours, but permit themselves to be wholly isolated from the outer world, just as if they were in prison, a hospital or a nunnery. Thus they are entirely in the power of their employers, the least scrupulous of whom take an unfair advantage of their helplessness. Thanks to the initiative of the press and to the high spirit of a few wealthy firms, a strong and lurid light has been thrown upon those dark places of Japan, and redress is already in sight. The Manchester of the mikado's realm is Osaka, and it was the terrible state of things in vogue in the mills and works of that city that first attracted attention. The slaves of the southern states of North America had a better time than some of the wretched girls of Osaka, the product of whose labor was thrown upon European markets at nominal prices. Happily, the guild of weavers have now set to work to better the lot of these helots, and its efforts are being reenforced by government employes.

Curiously enough, in the higher callings and professions that require skill or scientific training instead of mere manual labor, there was hardly any field for woman's activity. Thus, in none of the ministries of government offices was a woman to be found as a civil servant. The respectable firms of merchants likewise rapidly excluded members of the fair sex, refusing to employ them as saleswomen; only in a few cheap bazars where the work was very fatiguing and the pay utterly inadequate were women to be seen behind the counter. But here, too, a beneficent change is now being made. The firm of Mitsui, the weavers, for example—one of the wealthiest in Japan—has just decided to take on girls.

For a considerable time past women have been engaged at railway stations, especially in dealing with passenger traffic, and now the Sanui line, which had hitherto eliminated the female element, has completely broken with its traditions, and in future the passengers by that company's line will be looked after by women conductors, and, perhaps, women controllers as well. The crown prince of Japan takes a keen interest in this movement, which aims at making life miserable to the future female subjects, and he has begun by setting an excellent example. He has married but one wife and has allowed it to be generally understood that he is and intends to remain a monogamist to the end of his days.

ELASTIC SKINNED FISH.

Remarkable Creature Puffs Itself Up Until Too Big to Be Swallowed.

A few days ago a number of specimens of the puffer were taken to the aquarium. The puffers are caught in the neighborhood of this city, says the New York Tribune. They are so named because of the elasticity of their skin and the facility with which they can inflate themselves by doubling their size. When in this condition they resemble in some respects a ball. The nose and brilliant light green eyes protrude from one part and on the other side a tail projects. Apparently a sense of danger close at hand is the signal for puffing up and the success of the effort does not appear to be governed by confinement to the water. Air seems to serve equally well, as was demonstrated by Mr. Spencer, the superintendent of the aquarium, the other day. He lifted one from the tank and instantly its pumping apparatus began to work. A very short space of time—a second or thereabouts—was required to give the fish rotundity.

Its skin is beautifully mottled and when lying on the gravel bottom it might easily be mistaken by another fish swimming above for part of the bed itself. Although it is not known positively why the puffer has this power to enlarge itself it is thought by some that this is a means of protection. The fish is not large, being only six or eight inches long. Everyone knows how hard it would be to swallow a ball six or eight inches in diameter, and that the number of species of fish which could do this successfully is not large. The puffer has the power, apparently, to make itself as uncomfortable as a fishbone—while in the process of being swallowed. A story is told about two New York fishermen who pulled in a netful of puffers, a species of fish they had never seen or heard of before. They dumped the fish into the bottom of the boat and were surprised to find in the space of a second that by some miracle the boat was full to overflowing with fish.

Suicides on "Blue Monday."

A scientist who has made a study of suicides has discovered that more women commit suicide on Monday than on any other day of the week.

Monday, "Blue Monday," as it has long been called, is one of the most trying days of the week for women who are housewives, principally because it is "washday." Breakfast is usually served earlier than on other days and more hastily prepared. The children are early hurried off to school and dinner is often "picked up." "Blue Monday" is the one day in the week when a housewife's troubles, hard work, and annoyances seem to come all at once. Hence the significant name for the first working day of the week.—N. Y. For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

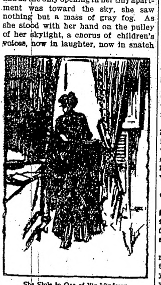
THE MASKERS

A NEW YORK THANKSGIVING DAY STORY

IT WAS not a typical Thanksgiving day, being so warm that no flake of snow was possible. Over all New York, from the Battery to Bronx, and beyond, the luminous pearl-gray mist hung, a ragged canopy, which in spots reached down to the moist street level.

When Carolyn Martin looked out, she of necessity looked up, and as the only opening in her tiny apartment was toward the sky, she saw nothing but a mass of gray fog. As she stood with her hand on the pulley of her skylight, a chorus of children's voices, now in laughter, now in snatch of song, came faintly from the street below.



She Stole to One of His Windows.

As Carolyn knew that the lodger who occupied the top floor front had gone out, she stole to one of his windows. It was 11 o'clock, and the mounted police, as is their wont, had cleared West Seventy-second street of all traffic vehicles, to make ready for the carriages that later on throng this boulevard. Carolyn had risen late. The demands of the stomach are not as peremptory when one is quiet, and she had faced the fact, the night before, that she stood possessed of exactly 18 cents.

It was still early for pleasure driving, so that the boulevard, for the moment, was given over to companies of gayly garbed maskers, who were going to dance-balls, and, in merry impudence, accosting passers by. Through the silvery, silken mist they went careening, a broken tangle of bright color, as far as Carolyn could see, and she wondered, as many another newcomer to New York has done, as to this odd Thanksgiving day custom, which has a history that it is not the purpose of this narrative to relate.

The savor of the Thanksgiving dinner, in course of preparation below stairs, which was exclusive to the keeper of the house and her family, floated upward. As Carolyn stood looking out, the appetizing odors beat at the door of her demanding young stomach with tantalizing insistence.

The carriages were now beginning to pass, and, from one of them, she saw a shower of coin flung to a group of singing maskers. With quick resolve, she turned, went to her room, took the paints with which she eked out the little allowance her old uncle was able to send her, and in a few minutes had finished a dainty masque. She was a fragile little thing, and when she had donned a costume which she had worn at a fancy dress affair one never-to-be-forgotten evening when Dick had told her of his love, and tied about the loosened curls of her dark hair a fillet of gold-colored ribbon, she looked no more than a child.

She slipped softly down the stairs, and reached the outer door of the ground floor unobserved. A company of maskers went scurrying down the street like bright, wind-swept autumn leaves. Quickly she stepped in among them, and, seized with the abandon of the moment, she began to sing that rollicking little bird song, "The Robin." A passer halted and thrust a coin into her hand, remarking to his companion:

"That child has a wonderful voice." The half dollar insured a warm dinner, but what the man said of her voice was far more to her than a dinner, much as she wanted one. Her voice was now her hope, a hope which was leading her to struggle alone in a big city that has no time to succor those who fall, and where only the fittest survive.

An automobile drew up to the curb, and a young man sprang to the walk. Carolyn quickly raised her hand to adjust her masque, bringing into view an antique moonstone ring, on which was cut, in intaglio, a quaint and singularly beautiful head. As the man saw it he exclaimed:

"Carrol, it is you. What does this mean?"

"What right have you to ask?" Her words were brave, but her voice trembled.

"No right now, Carrol, save that of an old friend who has been looking for you everywhere, and is so glad to find you that he does not care what anything means," he said gently. They walked on, leaving the wandering maskers behind, to the entrance of the park.

"Let us sit here for a few minutes, Carrol, I have something I must say to you." She glanced at her costume.

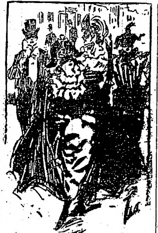
"Never mind," he said, interpreting her look. "The first time I saw you in that dress we were very happy, and why did you leave me, Carrol, with only the little message that I was free?" She raised her eyes, limpid with unshed tears, and she answered:

"I did not want you to find me. Why did you look for me?"

"Because I love you, Carrol, and life is not worth living without you, but tell me, why did you go away as you did?" She hesitated a little, and then said, steadily:

"When the bank failed, and I had nothing, your aunt came and told me that if you married me it would ruin your career, as she would disinherit you. She said what you should do was to marry Alice Gurry, and that she was sure you would, but for a notion that you were bound in honor to me."

"Just as I thought. But how could you go away, Carrol, without seeing me; without hearing what I had to say?"



She Began to Sing.

"Dick, do you think I could spoil your life? What sort of love would that be? And I knew I might grow selfish and weak, if I saw you."

"You darling," he said, and pressed the slender fingers of the hand on which was the old moonstone ring until she winced. "Did you know," he continued, "that Mrs. Dempsey is not my aunt?"

"Not your aunt? Why, Dick, what do you mean?"

"Just this: she was adopted, but not legally, by my grandparents. When my mother died, shortly after I was born, she and her husband managed, by a series of clever frauds, to get hold of the property. No one knew about it but old Candes. Mrs. Dempsey paid her to keep mum, but when she knew she was going to die, money did not count, and she sent for me and told me the whole story.

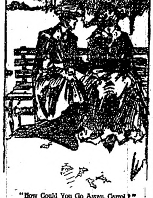
"When the truth came out about Aunt Dell I made up my mind she had something to do with your going, and I set out to find you. I knew you were somewhere in New York, from Mabel—your uncle told her that, but said you told him not to give your address to anyone, so I made up my mind to just hunt till I found you. But, tell me, little girl, why you were pranking with the maskers? Was it just a lark?"

"No, Dick, it wasn't; I wanted some money. I was hungry for a warm dinner."

"Great Scott, Carrol, you don't mean to say you are in want? To think of your being hungry."

"It isn't so bad, Dick. It's only this, Mr. Ferguson, the cashier where I sell the menu cards and other things I do, was away yesterday, and what Uncle Charles sends me did not get here as usual. I had a few cents for rolls, but it is Thanksgiving day, and I did want something else."

"Poor little song bird! Come, get off those togs, quick, and as soon as the auto can get us to the Holland we'll have a bang-up Thanksgiving dinner." And such a dinner as they had. Carolyn declared she had never tasted anything as good, and that never before had she been so truly thankful for a Thanksgiving dinner. Dick started out by saying they would be married in a month, which Carolyn thought was too soon, but when the dessert was brought in he had shortened the time to ten days.



"How Could You Go Away, Carrol?"

When their dinner was over, they went out on Fifth avenue, vivid with light and life, and, crossing over to Twenty-ninth street, walked on past the quaint little church of the Transfiguration, where, as a college friend of Dick's was one of the assisting clergymen, they decided to be married.

It was a quiet, pretty high-noon wedding, and Dick's friend who officiated, and who performs a large proportion of the many marriages solemnized at this far-famed "Little Church Around the Corner," had he not belonged to the order of "White Friars," would have envied his old college chum his pretty, winsome little bride.

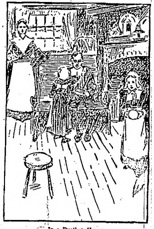
Just for Boys and Girls

NOW, boys and girls, don't you think that a good many of you would think it a great lark to exchange places with the Plymouth children of more than 270 years ago, because on that very first Thanksgiving holiday that ever was observed on American soil, there came to town 90 Indian braves and their Chief Massasoit. They stayed for a week as the guests of the white men, and they all hunted and fished and smoked together and had a general jollification, because the crops had turned out so well.

The first public Thanksgiving came in 1630, and on the 22d of February, the day we now celebrate as Washington's birthday. In November of the next year there was another Thanksgiving, and one year there were two, but in the next 53 years there was but one Thanksgiving in about every two years. It did not always come in November, as it does now on a regular day in the month, but skipped around, sometimes being observed in January, and sometimes in August, and sometimes in other months, according to the times when the colonists thought they had most cause to be thankful for something. Sometimes it was for the full harvest, and sometimes it was for rain after a long, dry time that they feared would ruin all the crops.



In a Puritan Home.

In these early Thanksgiving days the children were not thought of first and foremost as they are in a good many homes to-day. They were expected to keep in the background, and the little girls had to help their mothers to keep house, and after that was kept they had to keep right on being prim and proper to such an extent that they didn't always have as much fun as their brothers. The boys used to play wicket on the commons, and football all over the place, so that in 1657 an ordinance was passed forbidding the playing of football in the streets on account of the annoyance to foot passengers.

At first there were no dolls for the girls to play with, all the funny little dolls that we see now in museums dating back to the times when our remote great-grandparents were little people, having been brought over from Europe for the benefit of the mothers, not the little girls. The mothers didn't wish the dolls to play with, but for models for their best dresses, for the dolls, you ought to know, were dressed by dressmakers and milliners in London and Paris and sent over here for fashion plates, and for many years all the dolls our great-great-grandmothers had to play with were made of rags. And pretty nice doll babies they made, too, you will admit.

"Battledoors and shuttles," which the children used to play so much, came over in 1761, and marbles got here ten years later, in October, so they must have been played in the house or else with frost-nipped fingers till spring came again.

There were no blocks of houses and big cities then, but only separate and often widely-scattered homes. If a big storm came the farmers had to get out their lumbering ox wagons just as they do in the far western country to-day and "break" the roads. Sometimes the storms were so heavy that the expected visitors couldn't get through the snow drifts, and the Thanksgiving dinner had to be eaten by the family all alone. But the family was generally a big one, and if the boys and girls didn't have their looked-for company to play with they had each other.

In one family, for instance, of which we have a record, there were eight little girls, who had been named Experience, Waitstill, Preserved, Hopestill, Wait, Thanks, Unite and Supply. Wonder how their brother nicknamed them?

In those early days there were no steam radiators or furnaces or stoves, and all the fun-making on Thanksgiving day that was done indoors had to be done in the big living-room, where the huge fireplace blazed and crackled with its great logs and piles of underbrush; and the turkey roasted sizzling on a spit before the fire that burned while you looked at it and froze your back at the same time.

Everything considered, it's a good deal easier and jollier to be a little boy or girl on Thanksgiving of this year of grace, 1903, than it was in 1630 or for a good many years after that. Don't you think so too?

Thanksgiving.

Though half-backs, quarter-backs and guards
To-day may gather thick,
The turkey really is the one
Who makes the biggest kick.

Hurt So Badly Was Nearly Crazy.

Had no Sleep—Could Hardly Lie Down.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Permanently Cured Me.

"A year ago I suffered from extreme nervous stomach trouble. I was afraid of everything, could not bear to hear singing or music and reading or hearing of a death nearly brought on my own. I could not sleep or hardly lie down, the back of my head hurt me so badly I nearly went crazy. My shoulders hurt and the least thing I did would bring on an attack of extreme nervousness. There were times when I would have a lump in my throat and my mouth would be so dry I could hardly speak. I was in despair until I began to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I have taken in all twelve bottles and consider myself permanently cured. My home doctor has since remarked on my healthy appearance and said he wished he could say his medicine helped me. He knows it was Dr. Miles' Nervine. We are never without the Anti-Pain Pills and consider your medicines household remedies. I cannot say enough for the Nervine, because in addition to my own case my daughter, who was out of school for a long time because of St. Vitus' dance, was completely cured by eight bottles. She is now feeling fine and going to school every day. We thank you for your kindness and will never stop singing the praises of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine."—Mrs. C. E. Ring, Lima, O.

When you want a first-class daily newspaper—
One that excels in Northwest news;
One that spares no paints to get the news of the world, and prints it first;
One whose commercial and financial news and market reports are admitted to be the best;
One that is fearless and fair in its editorial discussion of live topics—republican but independent;
One that contains Bart's cartoons, the Journal Junior—a weekly paper for children without extra cost—Jermane's daily Washington correspondence, a notable daily series of articles and notes on current themes by the most eminent men and women and other features peculiar to that paper,
There is only one thing for you to do and that is to subscribe for

JUDGE COLLINS believes in the old adage that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

FROM the number of bank failures over the country during the past few months it would be easy to imagine that we were having a Democratic administration at Washington.

THE postal scandals are becoming more complicated. They are now getting United States senators involved, but so long as Mark Hanna escapes the country is safe and God will reign.

THE St. James Journal thinks that Governor Van Sant ought to turn his attention to the merger which exists between the railroads of the state and the state board of railroad commissioners.

FOR the season up to October 1 there passed through the Sault Ste. Marie canals 25,890,000 tons of which 6,075,000 tons were westbound. The total tonnage for that period exceeded that of last year by 580,000 tons.

SECRETARY SHAW has given notice that on February 2, 1904, interest will cease on such of the 5 per cent bonds of 1904 as may be outstanding on that date. The redemption of these bonds will continue with interest until maturity.

THE person who has nothing to be thankful for is no good to himself or anyone else. Why wouldn't a hospital for misanthropists rid the public of a lot of undesirable characters, and at the same time teach them that there is happiness in the world if one seeks it?

A GIGANTIC syndicate composed of Pittsburg and New York capitalists has been formed in New York city to purchase 10,000,000 tons of coal in the Pittsburg district. It is said that if this new concern acquires the fuel it will be in a position to control the entire output of Penn sylvania.

AN exchange says: "It is said that a Rusian fights for empire, a Turk for faith, a Dutchman for pay, a Spaniard for jealousy, an Italian for revenge, a German for home, a Swiss for liberty, a Frenchman for glory, a Scotchman for kin, an Englishman for trade, an Irishman for fun, a Yankee for peace, and a fool for nothing."

THE medical superintendent of the Oxygen hospital calls attention to some remarkable results of the use of oxygen in treating advanced cases of tuberculosis. The effects are most manifest in causing the reduction of temperature and the disappearance of the tubercle bacilli. During the past year eighty-eight cases were treated in the hospital. Of these fifty were discharged cured and thirteen were greatly relieved; of the latter nine were cases of consumption, and in all of them the disease was arrested. Only one person treated during the year was unrelieved. Among those discharged cured was a patient who had suffered with an ulcer of the leg for thirty-four years, who had been confined to bed for several years, and had been treated in vain by other methods.

Coughs

"My wife had a deep-seated cough for three years. I purchased two bottles of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, large size, and it cured her completely."
J. H. Burge, Macon, Col.

Probably you know of cough medicines that relieve little coughs, all coughs, except deep ones! The medicine that has been curing the worst of deep coughs for sixty years is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

KICKING ON RAY JONES.

St. Cloud Times: The Wadena Pioneer Journal thinks it is about time for the Republican papers of the State to join hands and advocate the nomination of some good man, other than Ray Jones, for lieutenant governor. We think so, too. Bro. Eastman, what do you say? By the way, Ray ought to send out the pasteboards for another Belshazzar feast. The Pioneer-Journal fires this one. What does the Journal-Press think of it:

"Ray Jones is a member of a lumber firm which has been accused of conniving with an Indian agent and stealing $115,000 worth of pine timber from the White Earth Indian reservation. Papers have been filed in a suit in which startling charges have been made, and every newspaper man who keeps posted upon public matters is familiar with the facts in the case."

"The dignity of the Senate is assailed!" Senators, vindicate your presiding officer!

Is Collins Ineligible?

Bemidji Pioneer: A correspondent of the Minneapolis Tribune has raised the startling question of Judge Collins' eligibity to be made governor of Minnesota.

It is pointed out that the constitution of the state prohibits any judicial officer in the state from accepting any other office within the state, except it be a judicial office, during "the continuance of his term of office." The supreme court has ruled directly upon the case and has construed the words "during the continuance of his term of office" to mean the term for which he was elected. The decision was rendered by the court while Judge Collins was a member and to the decision he gave his assent. It is therefore claimed that Judge Collins is ineligible as a candidate for governor.

The Pioneer is convinced that the people of the state desire to make Robert C. Dunn of Princeton the next governor of the state and that they do well to so desire. But we would not for one moment take a mean disadvantage of Judge Collins or any other candidate. He may be eligible despite the facts stated above, although the case appears to be a very plain one. We await with interest the explanation which Judge Collins must now make.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When you catch a woman in a fib she explains that she never could understand business.

A man who could love a woman ten years older than he would think it was fun to swear off smoking.

It is very impertinent of a man to keep looking at a woman so much that she has to keep looking at him to see if he is doing it.

When a girl asks a man to tie her shoestring you'd think to look at her face that she had asked him to cut the leaves of a book for her.

Wood for sale; delivered if desired; all kinds. See O. Mikkelson.

Why the Change?

Sherburne County Star-News: Just why Governor Van Sant should be so pronounced in his opposition to the Dunn candidacy is one of those things that puzzle a good [illegible] people. Last year in the [illegible] inary campaign for the gubernatorial nomination, and after[illegible] in the campaign for election [illegible] the merger question the only issue, he and his official family were assuring Mr. Dunn of their sup- for governor in 1904. The governor patted Dunn on the back with the assurence that he was the "logical candidate" and that they "would all be for him next time." If Dunn's record on the merger question was good enough then, what has occurred since to make it so offensive?

Brain Leaks.

Some people come with thanksgiving, and others come with thanks, giving.

The truest thanksgiving results in giving others good reasons for thankful.

Stuffing one's self like a turkey is not the best way to observe Thanksgiving day.

If you are thankful for all your blessings you will have no time to grieve over your misfortunes.

The joy of giving thanks for what we receive is small compared with the joy of being thankful for an opportunity to give.

We are prone to complain so much and so long about some really trivial sorrow that we have no time to give thanks for the countless blessings that are ours.—Commoner.

Difficulties.

Once upon a time a certain nation resolved to arm itself by the seemingly cheap and simple expedient of having its quarrel always one-third just.

But difficulties almost at once presented.

In order to such armament, it was necessary to set up tribunals to discover precisely what was just, after argument by learned counsel.

Naturally the expense of all this was something fierce, exceeding by many millions the cost of gunpowder and coal for search problems, etc.

Moreover it proved awkward not to have anybody wearing uniforms on great occasions except governors' staffs, who are almost always frumps.

According, the good old nation presently found itself going back to "—the good old way, the simple plan

Of let him take who has the power
And let him keep who can."—
Puck.

Men are too much inclined to accept a pretty woman at her face value.—Chicago Daily News.

Estate Agent (to laborers's son)—"Here, my boy, where can I find your father?" Boy—"In the pig stye, sir. You'll know 'im by 'is brown 'at!"—Punch.

Tommy—"Was that your mother I saw with you yesterday?" Willie—"I guess so; 't any rate, she's the one who carries the key to the jam closet at our house."—Boston Transcript.

He Didn't Count.—"So your house is being built at last?" "Yes." "I thought the plans didn't suit you." "Oh, they don't, but they suit my wife and the architect, now."—Philadelphia Press.

"I see that a New York woman shot her husband because she mistook him for a burglar." "Say, ain't it wonderful how all those New Yorkers get to look alike?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sam—"Aren't you jealous. Your best girl is throwing kisses to me." Harry—"Nonsense! She intends them for me!" Sam—"Well, they say a woman never hits anything she aims at."—Town Topics.

His Experience. — Publisher — "Did the people of Stingtown receive you warmly?" Book Agent—"Well, I guess yes. They made it so hot for me that I took the first train out of the place."—Chicago Daily News.

A Criticism.—"What do you think of my poems?" asked the young author. "Well," answered Miss Cayenne, "they are betwixt and between. They're too sensible for nonsense verses and too nonsensical for sensible verses."—Washington Star.

"He chased the car for a block and a half, whistling as loud as he could all the time." "And did he catch it?" "No. You see his whistling attracted the motorman, who looked around and discovered what he was trying to do."—Philadelphia Ledger.

BRIDAL PHOTOGRAPHS.

Not Nearly So Many Taken Nowadays as There Were a Few Years Ago.

Brides are probably just as beautiful now as ever they were, but they are not nearly so anxious to record their post-nuptial loveliness by means of photographs. Most photographers say they are glad of it, says the Chicago Tribune.

"I never did enjoy taking the pictures of brides," said a photographer. "Like all the rest of the world I love the dear creatures; but when it comes down to four dollars a dozen commercialism they do not satisfy my artistic instincts. Few brides take a good picture. Somehow their togs are not becoming. A bride is supposed to look superlatively lovely on her wedding day, but if anybody dared to tell the truth on the subject that superstition soon would be exploded, and the sweet things would realize that instead of looking their best on that occasion most of them are apt to look their worst. It is the same way when they come to be photographed in their wedding finery. They are either too pale or too red, and they have a nervous, anxious expression that robs the face of all good lines for photographic purposes.

"The time was when no bride considered herself really married until she had arrayed herself in spotless white and had her picture taken. Generally 'he' came with her, and 'he' looked just about as foolish as she did. Goodness, the trouble I have had posing brides and grooms before the camera. Instead of telling them to look pleasant, I always felt like saying: 'Don't look idiotic if you can possibly help it,' and then I would have to think up some device to keep her from scrooging down too close against his shoulder and to keep him from responding with an equally inappropriate embrace. But with all my precautions I never fully succeeded in preventing their acting like lunatics. The other day, when looking over a lot of old negatives, I came across several hundred of those sentimental combinations, and I thanked my lucky stars that nowadays few newly mated couples have the camera craze."

UNITED STATES NAVY LEAGUE.

Recently Organized Body Will Strive to Provide the Nation with Adequate Navy.

There has recently been organized in the United States a Navy league, whose object is to secure a navy commensurate with the country's requirements. To this end it proposes to draw public attention to our naval standing relatively to the navies of the world, and to create a public opinion on the question of naval increase that will react favorably upon congress when it comes to legislate on naval affairs. Leagues of this kind already exist in England, France, Germany and Italy, and in every case they are non-partisan and possess no political significance whatever. As an instance of the work done by similar organizations in other countries, we may take the case of Germany, where the impetus given during the past few years to naval affairs is attributed largely to the influence of the naval league, in which the German emperor himself is an indefatigable worker. The German league has gone into the matter with the thoroughness that characterizes the German people in dealing with matters of national importance. The aims of the new league are highly commendable, says the Scientific American, and we trust that it will be successful in assisting forward the good work of providing this country with a navy adequate for the protection of its worldwide and rapidly extending interests.

Farm Notes Worth Noting

Bank up the house and save fuel besides being much more comfortable.

Grafting pure-bred stock on scrubs is a very poor graft to follow, if the grafter understands his business.

Iron clad rules cannot be followed for growing poultry nor anything else. Read intelligently and use your judgment.

More work and better work can be obtained from oiled machinery. The axle that squeaks runs hard. Keep the wagons greased.

Neighbors are often the safest guides, when going to a new country, as to what to plant, when and how. It is unwise to attempt to teach them.

Fall is the best time of the year to select the brood sow for the coming season. Lean, well framed sows are better than those which are too much disposed to run to fat.

The top notch of quality in the demand for good poultry has never been reached. The demand for the best has never been supplied. There is no danger of getting it too good, but it often suffers from being off in quality.

Charcoal is an excellent thing for fowls, whether in confinement or running at large. It is inexpensive and so easily provided that no flock should be permitted to be without it. Let it be granulated and placed where the birds can have ready access to it.

If it isn't Coles it isn,t Carbolisalve. Be sure you get Cole's. It quickly stops the pain of burns and scalds and heals without a scar. Keep a box handy. 25 and 50c by all druggists.

The Racket Store

S. CUNNINGHAM, Proprietor.

East Side Main Street RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

A new line of linen cloth papetries —25 sheets letter paper and 25 envelopes—just received at THE COURIER stationery store. The best of these goods sell for only 35 cents per box. A large line of the fancy hemstitched papers are now on hand.

It is quite likely that the county commissioners will order the constuction of an iron bridge across the Red Lake river to replace the the wooden structure north of town at Skala's farm. The old bridge is considered unsafe, and a new one is an absolute necessity.

Crookston is objecting because she has no daylight train service to St. Paul. Red Lake Falls is mad because she has. In fact we have daylight, twilight, night and sunrise service to the Twin cities—that is it takes nineteen hours to get there over the Great Northern.

The Racket store is advertising holiday goods in this week's issue. Mr. Cunningham is carrying a large stock of goods appropriate for presents and invites the patronage of all who want good goods at low prices. Watch his space during the next few months for further particulars.

Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, Rev. Andrew Walker, S. A. Swanson and A. L. Reichert returned Tuesday from their deer-hunting expedition with three handsome specimens of the antlered tribe. Two of the deer were on exhibition at Reichert's drug store for a day or two and attracted a large crowd of visitors.

The change of time on the Great Northern went into effect Monday. The outgoing passenger now leaves for Crookston at 2:25 p. m., arriving there at 5:20. Mail closes at 2:10. There is talk of having mail come over the Northern Pacific hereafter, and the local postoffice officials will take up the matter with the railway mail service at once.

Simon Sutter and Miss Martha Gerlach, both well known and popular young people living northwest of town, were married Tuesday morning at St. Mary's church by Rev. Father Ansgar. The young couple left the same day for Duluth on a short honeymoon trip. They expect to live on a farm near town. THE COURIER extends congratulations.

Moses Rose and Miss Sophia Marleau, of Gervais township, were married Tuesday at St. Joseph's church, Rev. Father Fayolle officiating. Breakfast was served at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Frank Jeffers, and a reception and dance followed at the groom's home. The young people have many friends who will wish for them a long and happy married life.

Anent the "kangaroo" girl of whom we all know either by experience or otherwise, the Adrian Democrat has the following to say: "She pulls her belt down in front and pulls it up behind, and bulges out in front above the belt and bulges out behind below the belt, and waddles with a broken-backed effect that makes the onlooker weep to see such deformity in those who should be straight and beautiful."

The time is at hand when the business houses are busy making their preparations for the annual holiday trade. A brisk trade is anticipated and our merchants will stock up with everything appropriate to the holiday season, as is their custom. The farmers will soon have completed threshing and then the rush for winter supplies will begin, with our merchants are already pretty well stocked up.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

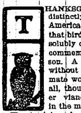
Thanksgiving Day



THANKSGIVING DAY is as distinctly indigenous to America as is the turkey, that bird which is so indissolubly connected with due commemoration of the season. A dinner in that day without the gobbler or its mate would be no feast at all, though a hundred other viands were included in the menu.

Thanksgiving day, known nowhere else than in the United States, as a national institution, is of decided modern invention. President Lincoln, just 40 years ago, was moved by the great victories of Gettysburg, Vicksburg, and other points, these coming thick and fast after so many previous disasters, to designate a day in which the people of the entire nation might meet and render thanks to God. This first national Thanksgiving day was designed to be distinctly religious in its character, and the intent of the president was understood and carried out by the people. The churches of the cities and towns and villages were filled that day with fathers and mothers and sisters who offered grateful prayers to God for the victories won and for the preservation of their loved ones who moved daily amid scenes of imminent danger.

True, the Thanksgiving day idea dates back of this. The handful of Pilgrims in Massachusetts, in the year following their landing at Plymouth, met in their church in obedience to the governor's proclamation to return thanks for a generous harvest. Intermittently thereafter for many years, and then regularly each year, the day was commemorated, spreading throughout the New England states. It did not reach New York state until 1821, and was regarded indifferently by many states until Lincoln gave it national standing.

Washington did make two Thanksgiving proclamations, but only at the suggestion of the congress. Two subsequent presidents flatly declined to issue such proclamations, insisting that the silence of the constitution as to religion forbade any such exercise of power by the chief executive.

Hence, it is within reason and right to say that Thanksgiving day, as a national festival, began in 1863, and was instituted by President Lincoln.

But by a rapid process of evolution the religious feature, that which gave rise to the day, has been diminished. In larger cities but a limited number of churches open their doors for services, while in the smaller ones a single house of worship will conduct what is termed "union service" for all denominations. Usually there are many vacant pews in those churches that are opened.

The day has developed into "home" day, one in which the loved ones meet with glad hearts, and doubtless thankful ones, too, and felicitate one another that it is as well with them as it is. Those who live at a distance, and those who are traveling upon the road, turn their faces towards the home roof in advance of the coming of Thanksgiving day, that they of one blood may be together on that day, and spend the hours in recalling the past, so much of it as is pleasant. Or they engage in joyful songs, or innocent pastimes, all filled and thrilled with the goodness of life.

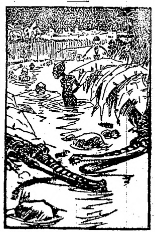
Whether or not the people are less religious than formerly does not enter into this discussion. There are 52 days in the year set apart for Sunday church observance, and the people by a sort of common consent have seen fit to spend this, the one day of the year, under their own vine and figtree, undisturbed by callers, holding communion with those who are bone of their bone and flesh of their flesh.

Surely there can be nothing in contravention of religion in the home sentiment, that is so marked a feature of Thanksgiving day. The home is the safety of the state. It is here that youth receives its influences for good or ill. It is here that men are made or unmade. Can there be higher tribute to the beneficent influences of home life and the happiness of it than the modern universal practice in these states of every man and woman, with their children, making a "home day" of Thanksgiving? May not the happy hearts and glad faces of these home gatherers be a pleasanter sight in God's eyes than the spectacle of long and solemn-faced couples going to church to sing solemn psalms. In any event one may not sacrifice any spirit of gratitude to the good God for His mercies because his heart is glad and warm in the surroundings of a loved and lovable home.

Yet blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord, and it was a happy suggestion that came to the great Lincoln to nationalize one day of the year in which to praise the Lord because He is God, and to give thanks to His holy name for mercies that endure from generation to generation.

WILLIAM ROSSER COBBE.

THANKSGIVING ON THE NILE.



Mr. Crocodile—What will you have, dearie?

THE OLD AND NEW THANKSGIVINGS.

FAIR Autumn has painted the fringe of the wildwood,
The rivers are clear as they sing to the sea,
And back from the vistas of golden-orbed childhood
Come laughter and song that are boundless and free;
The feastings of old every heart doth remember,
For the tides of the years have an echoing flow,
And again the soft skies and the frosts of November
Recall the Thanksgivings we kept long ago.

THEY will not desert us and Memory traces
With love and affection the days of the past,
We hear the sweet songs and we see the fair faces
That charmed the Thanksgivings, too happy to last;
How often we looked at the fields in the morning
And saw on the corn the first flurry of snow,
With the sun in the east all the landscape adorning
To welcome Thanksgivings we loved long ago.

THEY fade not, no matter how swift is Time's endeavor,
We cherish them all for the lives that they held,
And dearer they grow. May they linger forever,
Framed by Affection in Memory's gold.
Again in the gloaming of russet November
The tides of another Thanksgiving doth flow,
Repeating the days we rejoice to remember—
The feasts and the smiles of the dear long ago.

WE kneel as a people, for great is the Nation
Whose banners are waving from sea unto sea;
Our power is boundless and lofty our station,
For this is the land of the brave and the free;
The bells of Thanksgiving are tunefully ringing,
They call to the chancel the high and the low,
And millions to-day are in gratitude singing
The songs that their forefathers sang long ago.

THE chorus is heard from the far-away pinelands
To the aureate shores of the occident sea;
It echoes anew in the depths of the vine lands,
And quivers the bloom of the fair orange tree;
The Nation rejoices, for Peace crowns its banner,
The rivers of plenty through all the land flow,
And hunger 's unknown in the cot and the manor,
And spanned is the sky by the Thanksgiving bow.

PRAISE God for His goodness! He kept us a Nation
When darkness and trials o'ershadowed the land;
His love and His care were the Pilgrims' salvation
Who planted their faith on the wave-beaten strand;
O bells of Thanksgiving! ring out in the morning,
We 've planted in love, and we reap as we sow;
The sun of God's love is the landscape adorning,
And Freedom remembers her birth long ago.

Frederick or Frederic.

Some names are so cosmopolitan that it makes no difference how they are spelled, but just let anybody ring a few unauthorized changes on the name of Frederick, and the man who owns it will have something to say. They will not be pleasant things to listen to either. As Frederick was christened, so does he insist upon being spelled. If at the baptismal font he was invested with the dignity of a "k," he staggers under its weight to the end of the chapter. The only person on earth whose indignation can equal Frederick's when somebody leaves off the "k" is Frederic when somebody else puts it on. Family ties have been severed and irreparable social eruptions have been brought about by the unfortunate omission or addition of that final letter. To untutored ears Frederick with or without the "k" sounds just as musical, but to Frederick himself that alphabetical error is worse than a whole orchestra out of tune, and it behooves the person who would keep on the good side of him to learn his preference in the matter.—New York Times.

Wanted It, Anyway.

Gerald—As it is to be a secret engagement, it would not be wise for me to give you a ring at present. Geraldine—Oh, but I could wear it on the wrong hand.—Judge.

MALARIA
Germ Infected Air.

Malaria is not confined exclusively to the swamps and marshy regions of the country, but wherever there is bad air this insidious foe to health is found. Poisonous vapors and gases from sewers, and the musty air of damp cellars are laden with the germs of this miserable disease, which are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood and transmitted to every part of the body. Then you begin to feel out of sorts without ever suspecting the cause. No energy or appetite, dull headaches, sleepy and tired and completely fagged out from the slightest exertion, are some of the deplorable effects of this enfeebling malady. As the disease progresses and the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, boils and abscesses and dark or yellow spots appear upon the skin. When the poison is left to ferment and the microbes and germs to multiply in the blood, Liver and Kidney troubles and other serious complications often arise. As Malaria begins and develops in the blood, the treatment to be effective must begin there too. S. S. S. destroys the germs and poisons and purifies the polluted blood, and under its tonic effect the debilitated constitution rapidly recuperates and the system is soon clear of all signs of this depressing disease.

BIT OF CHICAGO HISTORY.

Although Only Seventy Years Old, as an Incorporated Town, It Is a Century Old.

Most Americans will have been surprised at the announcement of a Chicago centennial celebration to be held in September of the present year, says the Review of Reviews. Chicago was still a very minute village when, in 1833, it became incorporated, and the Pottawattomie Indians of the vicinity sold out their lands to the government, but Fort Dearborn dates from the year 1804, and it seems that John Kinzie, the original pioneer, had settled on the site of Chicago in the previous year, with several associates, as Indian traders. Thus, the permanent settlement of Chicago dates properly from the year 1803, and a centennial observance in the present year is appropriate. The celebration is to be merely a local affair, with pageants and tournaments, rowing regattas, yacht races, sham battles, and the like. What will be most instructive, however, to the school children of Chicago will be the reproduction on the lake front of old Fort Dearborn, with an Indian village inhabited by several hundred Ojibways, Pottawattomies and Menominees, all of whom it is proposed to bring to Chicago from Canada for the occasion. The Chicago committee would do well to take some hints also from the recent celebrations in New York.

MAN IS NO GOOD.

Club Woman Classes Him Below Cat, Dog or Monkey as a Domestic Pet.

A leading club woman of the east, who has had considerable experience with men—for, not satisfied with one trial, she has had three husbands—has a very poor opinion of the sterner sex. "I weigh man's moral carat on the scale of his personal habits," she says. "A man, when he is perfectly nice and clean, tastefully dressed and not noisy, is bad enough, but a man who wears his hair in his eyes and over his collar, manicures outside his own room, leans around, sits with his feet higher than his head and all that is unbearable. If I married one of the beasts inadvertently, I'd break him to decency or I'd kill him with indigestion. What's the good of a husband, anyway? He has never been more or less than a pet or provider. By his own admission, female competition has destroyed his usefulness as a provider. That is all right; it simply makes him twice a pet. Now, having reduced him to his lowest terms, since it was only a question of a pet, why not be satisfied with a bird, a cat, a dog, a monkey, a parrot—anything? Such pets do not smoke, get drunk, nor bring mud into the house. They never talk back. They come when they are called, and they do not try to run things."

TAUGHT AMERICAN MANNERS.

Male Immigrants Receive a Forcible Lesson as Soon as They Reach Our Gates.

The first lesson in American manners learned by the male immigrants is usually imparted at the gates of Ellis island. Having passed inspection, proved his fitness to become an American citizen and received his discharge from guardianship, he marshals his family and starts for the boat landing, says the New York Post. He leads the group himself, conducting the youngest walking member of the family, and carrying a bag or small parcel in his hand. Behind him trot the children, all laden, then the wife, bending beneath a huge bundle of household goods or even a heavy trunk. Last of all staggers the grandmother, literally bent double under the load she carries.

Suddenly the head of the family is rudely accosted in an unknown tongue by one of the officials of the island. There is nothing unintelligible in the manner in which the said officer relieves the mother and grandmother of their burdens and the immigrant, to his amazement, finds himself finishing his journey to the boat carrying the heaviest of the load on his own unaccustomed shoulders, while the oldest boys shoulder the rest. This is an everyday occurrence at Ellis island.

Radium and Musk.

Radium was the subject matter under discussion, and a lawyer said, according to the Philadelphia Record: "I don't see anything so very wonderful in radium. Admit that it does throw off light and heat in a kind of perpetual motion, without any loss of weight or energy—well, won't a grain of musk do the same thing? One single grain of musk (this has been demonstrated) will scent for several years a room 12 feet square, and in the end the grain will still remain entire. Consider what this means. A room 12 feet square contains 2,985,984 cubic inches, and each one-tenth cubic inch at least must have its little molecule of musk, or otherwise all the air would not be perfumed. One grain of musk, that is to say, will radiate millions and millions of musk fragments for years, and still will remain whole. Can radium beat that?"

Monkeys in South America.

Monkeys are very numerous along the northwest coast of South America, but are not found west of the Andes from northern Peru to the south end of the continent. Their home in South America is chiefly in the forests of Venezuela throughout the great Amazon basin and along the fluvial systems of the upper half of the Paraguay and the Parana rivers.

Production of Kerosene.

Last year 60,000,000 barrels of kerosene were produced in the United States, and it is reckoned that the proceeds from the sale of this and the various byproducts obtained from crude petroleum aggregated nearly $500,000,000.

Must Remain Legally Blind.

A German dancing master, who the other day apeared before the tribunal of Hamburg, Germany, for a trivial offence, was described in the charge-sheet as blind. He protested against this assertion, and politely requested the judge to correct the mistake, as there was nothing wrong with his eyesight. He was, however, informed that no alteration could be made. In consequence the man will remain legally blind as long as he lives.

Mrs. C. E. Roberts, San Francisco, Cal., would not be without Rocky Mountain Tea in our house. It's a great family remedy. Makes and keeps us well. A. L. Reicherd.

Take Off Their Veils.

Turkish women are said to be getting more independent every year. Nowadays, in spite of orders to cover their faces in public, many boldly let their veils fall aside and keep them off altogether when entering a shop.

How many people do you know who have neglected a "slight cough" until it developed into consumption or pneumonia? Get a bottle of Cole's Cough Cure and cure your cough at once. It's dangerous to let it run. 25 and 50c by all druggists.

Short-sighted Policy.

A Jersey City church makes the members of its choir sign a contract not to marry for a year. This strikes us as a very short-sighted piece of business. Just think how their young voices would soar and their very hearts beat time in unison if the ban were removed.

It adds spice to dreary life, encourages the human heart, lifts one out of despair, breathes new life and confidence. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

Baffling Mystery Cleared.

A recent article by the editor of Harper's magazine may help to clear away a cruel mystery that has greatly worried a good many would-be contributors to that popular periodical. Mr. Alden explains that four out of every five manuscripts received are rejected, and that perhaps once in a twelve-month the first offering of a new writer is accepted. Yet why despair?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, ss:

In Probate Court,
Special Term, Nov. 18, 1903.

On receiving and filing the petition of Theresa Bischoff, of the County of Red Lake, representing among other things, that Herman Bischoff, late of the County of Red Lake in the State of Minnesota on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1993, at the County of Red Lake, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Theresa Bischoff granted;

It is Ordered, That said petition be heard before said Court on Saturday, the 12th day of De-December, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office, in the Court House in Red Lake Falls, in said County.

Ordered Further, That notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 18th day of November A. D. 1903.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 83;

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50; which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred Ninety-four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The East Half of the Northeast Quarter (E. ½ N. E. ¼), and the Northwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (N. W. ¼ N. E. ¼), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter (N. E. ¼ N. W. ¼), (or Lot One (1)) of Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred Fifty-One (151), Range Forty-Four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred Ninety-Four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars, Attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 84.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 ($1,052.86) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof. Said Mortgage was given to secure a note dated February 13, 1903, for the sum of One Thousand ($1,000) Dollars.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (S. W. ¼ N. E. ¼) and Lots Two (2) and Three (3) and Four (4) and Five (5) in Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred and Fifty-one (151), Range Forty-four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

Shoe Soap.

This article is a new thing in soaps. It brings old shoes back to life. The new article is made in Philadelphia, and, it is claimed, will restore old leather and enhance the finish of new stock. The soap comes in round cakes, and for use a cake is placed in a metal cup in order to receive the water. A stiff brush is rubbed upon it and the brush is then applied to the shoe. The shoe is rubbed with a brush and then with a cloth, giving it a high degree of polish. As a restorer of health we have golden grain belt beer, an ideal beverage for table table use. Order of your local dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookuton.

Really, that little cough of yours is more than annoying—It is dangerous. Cole's Cough Cure is guaranteed to relieve it. Try a bottle. It's sold at 25 and 50c by all druggists.

A small church was sadly in need of repairs and a meeting was held with a view of raising funds for the purpose. The minister having said that $500 would be needed, a very wealthy and stingy member arose and said he would give $1. Just as he sat down a large piece of plaster fell on his head, whereupon he jumped up hastily and said he had made a mistake—that he would give $50. This was too much for an enthusiastic member present, who forgetful of everything, called out fervently: "Oh Lord, hit him again! Hit him again!"—Ex.

EARLY MEXICAN PYRAMIDS.

They and a City Antedating Columbus Are Described by an Archaeologist.

Great archaeological value is attached to the discovery of an ancient city in a remote portion of the state of Pueblo, and in order to ascertain the exact import of the find the federal government has commissioned the subdirector of the National museum, F. Rodriguez, who is one of the foremost Mexican engineers, to visit the ruins and make investigations, says a special to the Philadelphia Press. Dr. Nicolas Leon, the archaeologist and ethnologist of the institution, accompanies him.

Dr. Leon reports that the ruins have never been known to the world of science and that they are the most primitive that have been discovered in Mexico, and are, in fact, so ancient that it will require a great deal of time and study to learn in what epoch they were built as well as by what people. Dr. Leon has made the following statement in reference to the discoveries:

"In a range of small hills that extends from north to south from the high neighboring mountains we find a very numerous series of pyramidal constructions guarded by elaborate trenches and connected, for the purposes of communication, by wide avenues, which were set off at intervals by sloping acclivities, platforms and staircases. All the pyramids were found to be quadrangular and to have been built with especial reference to the cardinal points. Those important monuments were constructed entirely of rocks and sandstones cut and laid in juxtaposition. The surface dressing of the pyramids is small stones worked into cubical forms of very ornamental appearance and laid close together.

"As a rule, every four of the pyramids surround a court. All of them are so grouped that each and every one of them guards the entrance to the courts. But if in any case the entrances are not protected, great walls with bases much wider than their summits reenforce the pyramids. These walls are of such sizes that their summits are really streets.

"They are well paved with flat stones and have platforms, staircases and sloping acclivities like the avenues. On one of the highest of the platforms and at the bases of all the pyramids we found pieces of pottery which were certainly made before the time of Columbus and which were evidently the remains of a civilization relatively more advanced than that of the builders of the pyramids.

"We found also many sculptured scenes in bas-relief of prehistoric times. Figures of human beings and animals in stone and iron were quite numerous. Domestic utensils of stone painted rose color were scattered over the ground.

"Stone knives and arrow heads of the obsidian epoch were encountered in great abundance. Leagues of the mountainous country are covered with ruins."

Miss Nellie Corran came down from Thief River Falls yesterday to attend the Thanksgiving ball.

THE COUNTY LEGISLATURE

Proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners—September Session.

Red Lake Falls, Minn.,
September 10, 1903.

Pursuant to call dated July 15, 1903, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota, met in special session this day at 1 o'clock p. m.

Present, Commissioners Sutor, Demann, Johnson, Hanson and Falardeau.

Minutes of regular July meeting read and approved.

In the matter of the petition of Johan F. Magnuson and others for a public ditch in the County of Red Lake, Minnesota:

After hearing the arguments for and against the granting of said petition it was moved and seconded that the same be rejected.

Commissioners Demann, Hanson, Falardeau and Sutor voting aye.

Commissioner Johnson voting no.

In the matter of the petition of Simon Siebert and others for a new school district, the same was on motion carried unanimously rejected on account of not being in legal form.

In the matter of the petition of Carl Gerlach and others for a County Road, after hearing the report of the committee thereon, on motion carried unanimously the same was granted and the following order was made:

FINAL ORDER ON COUNTY ROAD.

State of Minnesota, }
County of Red Lake } SS.

Whereas, A petition signed by twenty-four freeholders of said County, praying for the establishment of a certain highway in said County, running into more than one town, and not within the limits of any incorporated city, as hereinafter described, was presented to this Board at its session on the thirteenth day of July 1903 and this Board having determined by the judgment of a majority of its members that said petition is reasonable on its face, and having by its order made at said session, appointed Thursday, the tenth day of September 1903, at two o'clock p. m. at Red Lake Falls in said County, as the time and place for a hearing upon said petition, and having by said order appointed a committee of its members to examine said proposed route of said road and designated Wednesday, the ninth day of September 1903, at two o'clock p. m., at the Southwest corner of Section 7 in Township 151, Range 44 in said County, as the time and place for said committee to meet on the route of said proposed road for the examination of the same, and having caused notices of said hearing and said meetings of said committee embodying a copy of said petition, to be posted in the three most public places of each town through which said proposed route of said road runs, or affected thereby, at least thirty days before the day of said hearing upon said petition, and being satisfied that said notices were so posted and proof of said posting duly made, and the said committee having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices, and examined the same and made its report in writing to this Board, and recommended that said petition be granted, and said Board having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices to-wit: At the office of the County Auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls in said County, on Thursday the tenth day of September, 1903, at two o'clock p. m. and duly heard all that anyone had to say in favor of, or against, the granting of said petition, and considered said petition and the report of said committee thereon, and a majority of said Board having agreed that said petition should be granted.

It is hereby ordered; That the prayer of said petition be and the same is hereby granted, and said highway is hereby laid out and established so as to run according to said committee's report, by courses and distances as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the south-west corner of section 7 in Township 151, Range 44 and running thence north on the range line between ranges 44 and 45 to the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section 30 in Township 152, Range 44 and to be connected with other roads as follows: To connect with the county road running east and west through the center of section 30 in Township 152, Range 44 and terminating at said northwest corner of the southwest quarter of Section 30 in Township 152, Range 44.

It is further ordered, That the County Auditor notify the Town Supervisors of each town through which said road is located, laid out and established of the fact of said laying out and establishing of said road and that they shall cause to be opened for public use and travel so much of said highway as lies in their respective towns.

And said board has determined from said report and the evidence before them, the amounts of the damages sustained by said persons and that said proposed establishing of said road is of sufficient advantage to said County to warrant the paying of the damages assessed by this Board, the said Board proceeded to assess said damages at what is deemed just and right to each land owner, taking into account the advantages and benefits of said establishing of said highway as well as the disadvantages and damages.

It is ordered, That said damages be and they are hereby assessed to be paid to each person by said County, as follows, to-wit:

Hearing was had on the petition of Magnus Olson and others for a new school district and on motion duly carried the same was granted and the following order was made:

ORDER FORMING NEW SCHOOL DISTRICT.

Whereas, a petition signed and duly acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders who are entitled to vote at school meetings in their respective districts, residing within the territory of the proposed new school district, with the approval and recommendation of the county superintendent endorsed thereon, asking for the formation of a new school district which shall embrace the territory hereinafter described, was presented to the board of county commissioners of this county, at a session of said board held on the thirteen day of July A. D. 1903, for the action of said board thereon;

And whereas, it was then ordered by said board that a hearing should be had on said petition, at a session of said board on the eleventh day of September, A. D. 1903, at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county at 9 o'clock a. m. of said day.

And whereas, due notice of the time and place of such hearing has been given by posting a notice setting forth the substance of said order in one public place in each of the school districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the clerk of each of said school districts so affected thereby a notice of such order, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing, and by the publication of said notice one time in the legal newspaper printed and published in said Red Lake County, to-wit:

The St. Hilaire Spectator which said newspaper is printed and published in said county; and was duly designated by said county commissioners for the publishing of the same; and due proofs of the posting and service and publication of said notice of said hearing have been made and filed by the affidavit of Magnus Olson and T. O. Langel, who posted said notice, and by the certificate of the county auditor of said county who caused said notice to be served upon each of the clerks of said districts affected thereby, and by the affidavits of the publishers of said newspaper in which the same was so published;

And whereas, at the session of said board of county commissioners on said eleventh day of September, A.D. 1903, said petition was publicly read and considered, and arguments of all persons interested therein for and against the organization of said proposed new district duly heard and considered,

It is hereby ordered and determined, that said petition be granted, and the following described territory, to-wit:

The west one half and the south-west quarter of the south-east quarter of section seven, all of section 18, the west half and the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 17, all of section 19 and the northwest quarter of Section 20 in the township of Johnson, Polk county, Minnesota, and the south one half of section 12, all of section 13 and the northeast quarter of of section 24 in the township of Equality in Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Be and the same is hereby organized and constituted a school district, and shall be hereafter designated and known as common school district No. twenty one of the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

By order of the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota.

James Sutor,
Chairman of said board.

Attest:
James E. Ford,
County Auditor of said Red Lake county Minnesota.

Dated this eleventh day of September, 1903.

In the matter of the petition of H. A. Johnson for permission to change the location of his saloon building at Wylie.

The following resolution offered by Commissioner Demann and seconded by Commissioner Johnson was carried unanimously:

Whereas, H. A. Johnson was duly granted license to sell intoxicating liquors in the building known as the Eckstein building in the Village of Wylie in Red Lake County, Minn., and

Whereas, the said Johnson has petitioned this Board to change said place of selling intoxicating liquors from said Eckstein building to a building formerly known as the Jake Thill building which is about 50 feet east of said Eckstein building,

Be it resolved that said petition be granted.

Commissioner Hanson, voting No:

Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Gentlemen:

I offer to take your $82,000 worth of public ditch bonds or any portson thereof at five and one-half (5½) per cent payable annually, and a premium of one per cent, and will furnish the blanks ready for your signatures. Said bonds to be legal and valid obligations of your county, and all papers necessary to establish the legality of the same to the satisfaction of our attorney to be furnished by you. Said bonds to be payable at some banking center to be designated later. Should you award the bonds to us, your draft for One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) on account will be duly honored, said deal to be closed within 40 days.

Respectfully,
MERCHANTS STATE BANK.

BAND CONCERT NEXT WEEK

Program to Be Rendered of Unusual Merit—No Dance Will Be Given.

The regular monthly concert of the Red Lake Falls band will be given at the Metropolitan opera house next Thursday evening, December 10. No dance will be given on this occasion. The program is as follows:

PART I.
March	Selected
"Auvna"	Vivian Gray
Overture, "The Burgomaster"	Luders
Bass Solo, "Barbarosa"	Barnhouse
Sam S. Haislet
"Soin du Bal	Gillet
PART II.
Trombone Blizzard	Severn
Flute Solo, "Long, Long Ago"	Round
L. P. Berthon
Male Quartet	Selected
Clarinet Duet, "Two Thoughts"	Strong
Prof. Onstad and Theo. LaBissoriere
Overture, "Norma"	Bellini

Manager Berthon gives the following notice to ticket holders: "From the fact that each monthly concert by the band has incurred a financial loss, we have deemed it necessary to insist that tickets issued to signers of the list will be accepted for admittance only by members of the family to whom they are issued. We would request that holders of tickets bear this in mind, as we will be obliged to refuse admittance on these tickets when presented by others than to whom entitled."

This Strenuous Life.

An exchange hits the nail on the head when it says: "Man's business requires haste." The average business and professional man eats in a hurry and gets dyspepsia. He walks in a hurry and gets apoplexy. He talks in a hurry and gets the lie. He does business in a hurry and becomes a bankrupt. He reads in a hurry and is superficial. He votes in a hurry and produces corruption. He marries in a hurry and gets a divorce. He trains his children in a hurry and develops spendthrifts and criminals. He gets religion in a hurry and forgets it in a hurry. He makes his will in a hurry and goes to the devil—and his tribe increases.

HEALY MILL AND DAM SOLD

C. F. Case, of Marshall, Minn., is the Purchaser of This Valuable Property.

A real estate deal of considerable magnitude was consummated last week in the transfer of the Healy dam and mill property from Ed. L. Healy to C. F. Case, of Marshall, Minn. The consideration is understood to be considerably above $20-000. This is one of the best water powers and dam sites in the state and there is little room for doubt that within a few years it will be worth a lot of money.

Mr. Case, the purchaser, is the editor of the Lyon County Reporter at Marshall, and a prominent capitalist of that city. He is already interested in Red Lake county, reality having purchased several good farms near town last summer. We hope that Mr. Case and his estimable family will conclude to move to Red Lake Falls.

Grateful Russians.

About two years ago a party of Russians emigrated to this country and founded a settlement in the Red River valley. The following winter found them destitute, but the millers of Minneapolis came to their relief and provided all their wants. Unused to such treatment the Russians could hardly understand it, but to say they were grateful is putting it mildly. Last year they made good money from their flax crop and now they can afford even the luxuries of life, first among which comes golden grain belt beer, for it stands just between necessities and the luxuries. It is a tonic and table delicacy in one. Order a case of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

DEATH OF HON. C. G. RAPP

Prominent Citizen of Red Lake County Passes Away at His Home in St. Hilaire.

Hon. Charles G. Rapp, formerly member of the legislature for the district embracing Red Lake and Beltrami counties, died at his home in St. Hilaire last Saturday morning, November 28, at 4 o'clock. Mr. Rapp was taken ill three years ago at St. Paul, while serving as a member of the legislature, and has not been a well man since that time. Last winter he went to California, and the milder climate of the sunset state improved his condition a great deal, and the hope of permanent recovery was held out. During the last month or two, however, he has failed rapidly, and while the news of his death came to his friends as a shock, the unwelcome tidings was not unexpected. The funeral was held Monday at 1 o'clock at the church in St. Hilaire, and was one of the largest funerals ever held in the county. Mr. Rapp was known to almost everybody in Red Lake county, and had had social and business relations with a large share of the people in the northern portion.

Charles G. Rapp was born in Sweden on July 18, 1856, and at the time of his death was past 47 years of age. At an early age he emigrated to Red Wing, Minn., in company with his mother and half brother, Oscar F. Post. They came to St. Hilaire in 1882, shortly after the town was started. For a short time he worked in the store of Crocker, Cundy & Nelson, and in 1883 started in business for himself, being appointed postmaster soon afterward. Mr. Rapp has been prominent in political and business life for more than twenty years, and has held many positions of trust and honor. For several years he was president of the village council, and has been a faithful and devoted champion of St. Hilaire. Mr. Rapp was married in 1884, and one son blessed the union, the little fellow dying July 4, 1891, at the age of eighteen months. Mrs. Rapp died December 27, 1893, and the entire family now sleep in the village kirkyard.

Charlie Rapp was a good friend and neighbor and a public spirited citizen. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of admiring friends—

CROOKSTON JOURNAL FAILS.

Mortgagees Take Possesion of the Plant Monday.

The Crookston Times says that on Monday noon the Daily Journal and the Red River Valley Farm Journal, together with the plant, stock and office furniture, passed from the ownership of N. S. Gordon into the hands of the Scandia American Bank by virtue of a mortgage which the bank holds against the property. Attorney Loring is now in charge of the business as trustee for the bank and will conduct its affairs until the plant can be disposed of. The present force of the Journal will continue and both the daily and weekly editions will be issued as heretofore.

Mr. Gordon has put forth every effort to build up the Journal and put it on a paying basis but the field was never large enough to support two dailies.

Mr. Gordon's plans for the future are not definitely decided upon but it is probable that as soon as his affairs are settled up he will go west and engage in the newspaper business in a new field.

Under the present arrangement Mr. F. L. Durand will remain in editorail control of the paper and Miss Ada Packard will have charge of the business office.

UNIQUE BALLOONING

Views of the Antarctic Regions from Overhead.

Important Results of Expedition to Southern Polar Seas Unique in the Annals of Aeronautics.

Balloon ascents for military reconnoissance are common enough. Some day they will be extensively employed for geographical exploration, perhaps. There is talk of using captive airships for enabling tourists to view Alpine scenery easily. But for polar research they have thus far been practically neglected. Poor Andree hoped that in a free balloon he might drift steadily northward from Spitzbergen several hundred miles, but he paid for that error with his life. The trial which was made in the Antarctic seas from the British ship Discovery is practically unique in the annals of aeronautics. Never before was a successful ascent made under similar conditions, says the New York Tribune.

Leaving Lyttleton, New Zealand, just before the close of 1901, the British expedition pushed steadily southward, heading for Cape Adair. The ice barrier which skirts the Antarctic continent extends almost continuously along the sixty-fifth or sixty-sixth parallel of south latitude. By far the most remarkable break in the coast line occurs to the southeastward of Australia. There is an enormous recess, 500 or 600 miles deep, and fully as wide, called McMurdo bay. Along its western shore lies Victoria Land. Its eastern boundary is poorly defined, and is represented only vaguely by ice. The southern side is almost straight and extends eastward and westward fairly close to the seventy-eighth parallel of latitude.

Touching first at Cape Adair, of the northwestern corner of the bay, Capt. Scott skirted Victoria Land and reached the southwestern corner, near the volcanoes Erebus and Terror. Turning eastward on January 22, 1902, he worked his way slowly along the ice barrier, which for more than 500 miles has a height of from 50 to 280 feet. Apparently the ice had receded somewhat from the limits noted by Sir James Ross, who explored the region in 1845. During the next few days Capt. Scott saw land off to the eastward of him which has never before been chartered, and also observed that the ice barrier itself practically disappeared, and was replaced by sloping ice, which doubtless covered land. The barrier proper is a frozen pack, is generally level in spite of its roughness, and is thought to overlie sea.

It was just after turning back after these observations toward Mount Erebus that the balloon ascent was made. The ship was still under control, the season corresponding to midsummer. An inlet through the ice, which reached further southward than any other to which the Discovery could penetrate, was now utilized to study the land. Hydrogen, compressed in cylinders and brought from home, was used to inflate the gas bag. Owing to the low temperature of this region, a much greater quantity was required than would have been needed in temperate climates. The cable which held this floating observatory captive was 750 feet long. No satisfactory landing place was discovered, but an admirable view of the region was had. This occurred February 4, 1902. Then the Discovery pushed on westward, found a satisfactory anchorage in McMurdo strait, close to Mount Erebus, and on March 24 (just after the autumnal equinox) she was frozen in. Subsequently Capt. Scott organized sledge parties which explored the vicinity.

The most important results of the expedition up to the time the relief ship, Morning, left it last winter, were as follows:

First—Discovery of new land east of McMurdo bay.

Second—Discovery that Mounts Erebus and Terror are on a small island and not the mainland.

Third—Finding good winter quarters for a ship in south latitude 77:50, east longitude 166:42, with land close by for a magnetic observatory.

Fourth—A record of 92 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Fifth—A sledge journey to 82:17 south latitude, and observations of land as far off as 83:30, including peaks and mountain ranges 14,000 feet high.

Sixth—Evidence that the vast ice covered plateau which reaches westward from McMurdo bay is in some places 9,000 feet high.

Seventh—A large amount of magnetic and biological and deep sea sounding.

Sunlight for Tuberculosis.

In several places in this country, especially in the west, experiments are being made with the hope of curing tuberculosis by concentrating the sun's rays upon the chests of the sufferers. The reflector is generally a concave mirror about three feet in diameter, sometimes overlaid with blue glass. All the light reflected from it is concentrated upon an area six inches in diameter. Thus an intense blue light is obtained, which, it is asserted, is sufficiently strong to pass entirely through the body, and even to reproduce a picture placed upon the back. The patient's chest is bared and he is seated in front of the reflector. The intense light is thrown upon his chest for two hours or more each day. It is asserted that the light penetrates the lungs and destroys the bacilli.—N. Y. Tribune.

INTELLIGENCE OF PLANTS.

They Are Endowed with Sort of Sense by Which Their Movements Are Guided.

Prof. Shaler, of Harvard university, is of the opinion that plants are possessed of intelligence that serves the purpose of self-protection and self-gratification to a very considerable degree. Recently after discussing the automata observed in growing things he said:

"We may accept the statement that our higher intelligence is but the illuminated summit of man's nature as true, and extend it by the observation that intelligence is normally unconscious, and appears as conscious only after infancy, in our waking hours, and not always then." In summing up the professor uses the following sentences: "Looking toward the organic world in the manner above suggested, seeing that an unprejudiced view of life affords no warrant for the notion that automata anywhere exist, tracing as we may down to the lowest grade of the animal series what is fair evidence of actions which we have to believe to be guided by some form of intelligence, seeing that there is reason to conclude that plants are derived from the same primitive stock as animals, we are in no condition to say that intelligence cannot exist amng them. In fact, all that we can discern supports the view that throughout the organic realm the intelligence that finds its fullest expression in man is everywhere at work."

EYES ACT INDEPENDENTLY.

The Optics of Some Animals Are Remarkable for This Singular Power.

The eyes of an animal can only work together when they can be brought to bear upon an object at the same time; so that, as a rule, the eyes of a fish must work more or less independently, says Nature. This is sometimes also the case when the eyes can cooperate, as anyone who watches a plaice or other flat-fish in an aquarium will soon discover.

This is true, too, of the curious bulging optics of a chameleon, which roll round, swivelwise, in a somewhat aimless manner. When they do converge it is bad for the insect upon which they fix themselves.

Many animals possess more than three eyes, which do not all act together. A leech, for example, has ten eyes on the top of its head, which do not work in concert, and a kind of marine worm has two eyes on the head and a row down each side of the body. Some lizards have an extra eye on the top of the head, which does not act with the other two. A bee or wasp has two large compound eyes, which possibly help each other, and are used for near vision, and also three little simple eyes on the top of the head, which are employed for seeing things a long way off.

THE BOX CATCHER.

Like the Ball Player Wears Gloves, But of a Different Design and Finish.

Ball players are not the only men who wear gloves for the protection of their hands in catching. The men who receive from the box factory the empty packing boxes are very likely to wear gloves, too, in catching the boxes as they are thrown to them, says the New York Sun.

A truckload of such boxes is backed up to the curve and unloaded by throwing the boxes from the truck to the building, across the sidewalk.

In catching a load of small wooden boxes the catcher may have hundreds to catch, one after another, right along in a stretch—the mere catching of so many is quite a feat—and gloves are a good thing to wear in the work. But as the boxes are tossed at him, easily, not violently thrown, the box catcher does not, like the ball player, wear padded gloves to protect himslf from impact and shock, but just good, stout buckskin gloves to protect his hands from being cut by box corners or torn by nail heads and by slivers.

Cellar Dairies in New York.

"There are a large number of cellar dairies in New York," said an inspector in the health department, reports the Times, "and it is our duty to see that they are kept clean and wholesome. Much of the butter marked 'Finestock Farm,' or something of that sort, never was off Manhattan island. It is churned in the cellars right under the shops where, in glass refrigerators, it is temptingly displayed in pats, looking as though they had been wrapped up by a plump and pretty dairymaid. A large proportion of the buttermilk sold in dairy restaurants is made right on the premises, and as much of it from milk that has been allowed to become a little too acid as from milk that has been churned."

Perpetual Electric Light.

A Chicago inventor has discovered a process of manufacturing a 36-candle power light that will never go out. While experimenting with photographic chemicals four years ago, his attention was attracted by a glow in a small globe. The glow was caused by a chemical which the inventor keeps secret. He enlarged the glow and perfected the light by placing it in an air-tight glass. He says there is no reason why the light will not remain brilliant forever, if it is not broken. A company has been formed to manufacture the lights in numerous sizes. A patent hood fits over the globe, and covers it completely when the light is not needed.

Garments of Coreans.

The Corean government has ordered that all Coreans, without regard to rank or class, should not wear clothes except of a blue or dark color.

THE BARBER'S MISTAKE.

He Ran Into a Cyclone When Expecting to Meet Only a Gentle Zephyr.

There is a barber in the north central part of the city who used to be full of gossip about prize fighters. He could tell you who anyone fought in 1878, their weights, the number of rounds, and how the knock-out blow was landed. In fact, he was something of a handy man with the mitts himself, he admitted under pressure, says the Detroit Free Press. He had a back room that was kept clear, so that he could retire with a few friends once in awhile to give an exhibition of the manly art. His chief stock in trade, when it came to an encounter, was his reputation and his ability to imitate a windmill in motion. How he got his fame, unless, like many other fighters, by his ability as a talker, was a hard thing for the boys to understand, after it was all over, because, like all fighters, Mr. Barber one day met more than his match.

A minister was in the habit of calling at the shop for a shave, and, although the boys usually let up on the fight talk when the clergyman was present, they were sometimes so interested and the barber so talkative that the conversation went along and the minister got in on the grand wind-up of some of the gossip. He even dipped in occasionally, while the barber was putting on the talcum powder, and he expressed an interest in the art, from the point of view of self-defense, that made the crowd think a little more of him.

One day, during the dull afternoon, just after the clergyman had been given his scrape and was reaching for his hat, the barber winked to the other men and casually asked the minister if he would like to put on the gloves for a few minutes and get some idea of how the thing went.

He hesitated a little, saying that he feared he would not be able to make it even interesting for them, but the crowd, scenting fun, joined in the persuasion, and the barber was soon joyfully putting on the mitts and the crowd took good seats, where they would not miss any details.

The barber was evidently as fit as a 'cello. He danced around the ring to warm up a bit, and when the man with the watch called: "Ready—go," the barber was ready with a swing that would almost take the roof off a church. But the church was not there, and the minister was untouched, for he had ducked. This was a surprise for Mr. Barber. He felt that to sustain his reputation he would have to put the minister out with one blow, so he got ready again for a stinger.

It was a stinger, all right, and it landed right on the tip of the barber's nose. The minister saw what he was up against, and he determined to get there first. The clergyman took advantage of the moment, and while the barber was yet wondering whether it was an accident, there came another blow that closed the shop for nearly a week. His strong right landed on the barber's jaw, and for once the talking machine refused to work. The barber lay in a heap in one corner. The minister took off his gloves calmly, with the remark that it was warm work, and that the manly art of self-defense is one that pays well for all the little trouble it occasions.

In an hour or two they got the barber on his feet and he looked anxiously about him. The minister had gone.

"Did you see me hit him?" he asked.

"You meant well," was the reply, "but he got there first."

Since then the barber has cut off his supply of weekly sporting papers, and now he talks about ping-pong and croquet. The minister, he learned later, was one of the best amateurs in the city, and could make a good living in the ring, if he ever left the pulpit.

FIVE DOLLARS FOR A CENT.

The Singular Circumstance Which Gave to a Professional Beggar That Profit.

A prominent Philadelphia business man, relates the Philadelphia Press, tells this story:

In 1894, he says, he found a cent piece, dated 1893, in the restaurant of the Lafayette hotel. He pocketed it for luck, and as a memento of a jolly little dinner scratched his initials on it just over the feathered head, while on the cheek he added those of the hotel. Until 1896 he treasured the coin, then drew it out of his pocket with a handful of other change and before he realized it the cent piece had gone the mysterious way of all money. A year ago he chanced, being of a curious turn of mind, to fall into conversation one evening with a professional beggar at Broad and Chestnut streets. He upbraided the man for getting so much money for nothing.

"Oh," said the beggar, "I don't get so much. That's all I've got in the last hour." And he held up a cent piece.

At that moment the electric light fell upon the coin and the business man, to his amazement, caught sight of the letters "H. L." on the cheek of the face. He took the coin and examined it more closely. Sure enough, there were his own initials just above the feathers where he had placed them a half dozen years before. At once his prejudice against begging vanished.

"I'll give you a dollar for that coin," he cried.

The beggar grew wary at this eagerness and demanded $5. Needless to say, he got it, and also, of course, the cent piece has never since left the business man's watch chain, which it now adorns.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

VALUABLE ACCURACY

Bureau of Standards at Washington Saves Money.

Can Fix the Size of a Milk Bottle or Weigh a Mark on Paper—Interesting Particulars of Work.

At the bureau of standards they think nothing of measuring the weight of the grime from your thumb which you may place on a clean sheet of paper. They weigh the sheet before the grimy thumb is applied and then after. Likewise they will measure the width of a human hair, of if you want them to they will tell you how much the heat of your body expands the delicate mechanism of the watch in your pocket, says the New York Sun.

Their work is intensely practical, though. Hundreds of surveyors' chains come to the bureau to be tested. Many have been used for years under the impression that they are absolutely accurate. At the bureau they are found to vary from the standard from an inch to half a foot.

How important the accuracy of the surveyor's chain is was demonstrated recently in Philadelphia, where an entire subdivision was thrown into court on the very point of accuracy of surveying. The variations of the chain used by the different surveyors was not more than three inches, but this was sufficient in the large subdivision to bring hundreds of square feet of valuable property into question.

In Brooklyn there was a long standing dispute growing out of the same condition. For years owners of adjoining pieces of property battled in the courts over the possession of 11 inches of ground which an inadequate survey had left outside the boundaries.

The bureau credits itself with a recent saving of $20,000 to Uncle Sam. The gunmakers had heated one of the great steel gun castings to the degree which was believed to be just right for shrinking on the jacket. The bureau of standards' instrument was used and it was found that the temperature was off several degrees—sufficient to have spoiled the gun when the jacket cooled. The damage to the gun would have cost the government just $20,000.

Recently, in Baltimore, a milk dealer was charged with not giving full measure to his customers. He contended that his measures were correct and resisted payment of a fine. The chief of the bureau of standards discovered that the milk dealer and not the city had the correct standard.

In the capital, not many months ago. there was a controversy between the venders of milk and the authorities as to the size of milk bottles. One dealer was even ready to make a hero of himself by going to jail. An appeal to the bureau of standards settled the whole controversy.

Recent tests of the electric light furnished to one of the eastern cities showed that the candle power was short about one-fourth of that called for by contract. The annual expenditure of the city is $2,000,000 and the tests of the bureau thus showed that the power furnished is short in valuation $500,000 a year.

The uses of the bureau just given are really the minor ones from the standpoint of the bureau officials. It is especially for the more complicated work that new laboratories are about to be provided for the bureau at a cost of a quarter of a million of dollars.

To make exact measurements the buildings of the bureau must be of special design, and perhaps the most elaborate system of heating, ventilating and refrigeration ever known will be installed. There is a balance in the possession of the bureau so delicate in its poise that the heat of the body alone affects it, although it is tightly encased in plate glass. No one is permitted to come within 15 feet of it.

When something is to be weighed, it is placed on one of the pans of the balance. The case is closed and 24 hours are allowed to pass in which the weights, balance and object, reach the normal temperature inside the case and the air which was disturbed resumes its equilibrium.

The manipulation of the balance is done by means of long bars, which extend 15 feet from the balance. Even after these precautions are taken a dozen different calculations are made to correct known variations in the apparatus.

The international bureau of standards, which has headquarters at Paris, has furnished to this government a standard meter and standard kilogram. The standard meter has never been touched by human hands since it reached its present degree of perfection. It rests in a glass case in a vault. The comparisons with it are made through the use of microscopes. The standard kilogram is of platinum-iridium. The metal in it cost about $3,000.

Unmarried Men Capture Bears.

For the first time in the history of hunting in the province bears were taken alive, without the use of firearms and in a manner which was remarkable, says the Vancouver (B. C.) correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. Japanese engaged in cutting shingle bolts discovered a large bear in a hollow tree, and in the attempt to oust it the animal chased one of them. As the bear came up to him the Japanese jumped on its back and held his position until seven of his countrymen followed, all piling on bruin and securely holding it down until it was tied. The she bear appeared upon the scene a few moments after and, elated with their success, they sprang upon her. She showed fight, but they captured her also. The bears will be presented to the city zoo by Rev. Goro Kaburagi on behalf of his fellow countrymen. The animals weigh [illegible] 210 pounds, respectively.

VACATION AMUSEMENT.

Haymaker's Picnic a New Form of Festivity for the Country Outing.

For the girls and boys spending their summer vacation in the "real counrty," there is no form of amusement more enjoyable than a haymakers' picnic. The big hay wagon is pressed into service, the girls making it very attractive with festoons of wild flowers and green leaves. Nothing but the seating portion of the vehicle is left undecorated. If the horses or oxen are sufficiently gentle they, too, can be decked out in floral finery. In this festive looking cart the girls and boys, arrayed in genuine country fashion, are conveyed to the hayfield. The girls go in for sunbonnets and gingham aprons, the boys wearing broad-brimmed straw headgear, similar to that adopted by the real farmers, and with overalls tucked into high boots, as the haymaker is always pictured.

Once in the field the frolic begins, with which is combined some real help to the farmer, as the heaped up hay wagon soon shows. The luncheon, which has come later in a less fantastic wagon than the haymakers' chariot, is eaten in some shady spot, the seats being fragrant mounds of hay. No table is spread, the sandwiches and fruit being eaten from the hands. A big can of cool milk or buttermilk is the only beverage, and this is served in a tin dipper by an obliging farm hand. When it comes time for home going all ride on top of the load, which is not as easy a feat as it looks, for the hay has a curious way of slipping from under, suggesting a trip on a camel's back more than the ease of a cushioned seat.

If at night a dance in the barn can follow the picnic, the day will be complete. For this lanterns furnish the lights, those which the farmers carry when they go to do the chores being preferred to the pretty Japanese ones, when the inflammable nature of the surroundings is considered. The stalls of the horses should be decorated with flowers. The orchestra for the occasion, to be quite in keeping, need be only an accordion, a fiddle or a mouth organ, played by some young countryman who has done so before at dances of the real haymakers.

REGRETTED HIS JEALOUSY.

Husband's Hastiness Caused Him Something of a Loss in a Financial Way.

A rather short and, on the whole, somewhat insignificant-looking gentleman lately married a tall, handsome lady. He is, unfortunately for his peace of mind, of a jealous and hasty disposition, says London Tit-Bits.

The other evening he had left his wife outside a tobacconist's shop while he went in to purchase some cigars. Just as he was coming out he saw a young fellow step up to her and raise his hat. As he drew near he heard the young gallant commence in an affectionate tone of voice:

"Excuse me, madam—"

Before he could get any farther our latter-day Othello burst on him:

"Excuse me, sir, what is your business with this lady?"

"Eh?" returned the other, in a surprised and cool manner; "my business is with the lady, and no one else."

"Well, sir," said the husband, irritated by what he considered the effrontery of the reply, "this lady, I'd have you to know, is my wife."

"Dear me!" rejoined the young man, sarcastically, as he calmly inspected his assailant from top to toe; "really, now, do you know, I'm astonished to hear it!"

Enraged beyond measure the husband cried, fiercely:

"If you address another word to my wife I'll—"

"I don't intend to now," broke in the young fellow, quietly; "and you will probably regret it before the day is out. Good-day to you," and off he went.

Less than half an hour afterwards the lady missed a valuable bracelet which her husband had given her on her last birthday. And that gentleman reluctantly agrees with his wife that the young man must have picked it up, and that he was about to return it to its owner when he was so rudely treated.

The lady now possesses another bracelet, so that the incident is not referred to so frequently as it might otherwise have been.

Early Rising.

Although it may be of great benefit to debilitated people to go to bed early, there are few things more hurtful than remaining in it too long. Getting up early imparts a vigor which nothing else can give. Those who are not very weak, indeed, and sleep well, should rise soon after waking in the morning. At first this will seem too early for the debilitated person, who does not feed entirely rested, but rising early will gradually have the effect of prolonging sleep on the succeeding night. Lying in bed late is hurtful, not only because of too much relaxation, but also by thus occupying that part of the day at which exercise is most beneficial.—American Queen.

Reformed.

"I'm glad to hear that you have turned over a new leaf," said the man with a bunch of tracts. "I have your solemn promise that you will never commit another burglary?"

"You have," answered the occupant of the cell.

"No doubt you have been brought to this change of heart by the tracts I gave you:"

"It wasn't the tracts so much as the newspapers. There's no use in breaking open a man's house to get his money. The thing to do is to work out a neat little get-rich-quick game; open an office and let him bring his wages to you."—Washington Star.

AUSTRIAN TRAMP'S SCHEME.

Overfed by Sympathetic Farmers He Resorts to Trickery to Obtain Transportation.

Bohemia possesses a specimen of the genus tramp which it is doubtful if even America, its native habitat, can duplicate. He is a young man quite well known in the neighborhood of Kolin, and who had a record for pedestrianism that gained him much admiration and a fairly full stomach most of the time, reports the New York Journal.

Through being overfed by sympathetic farmers and village people the man recently became too fat and indolent to put one foot before the other. Patience having ceased to become a virtue with the people of Kolin, the youth found it necessary to move on.

Being too tired to walk, he conceived the audacious idea of getting a free railroad ride—audacious because it is only in America that railway employes wink at the schemes of tramps.

Having decided to go to Vienna the young man calmly went to the police station in Kolin and gave himself up as the murderer of a young woman in the Austrian capital. He was promptly seized and transported in comfort to his destination, where it was soon discovered that no such murder had occurred.

A short term in prison for the technical offense of contempt of court was all that the tramp had to pay for his ride. He showed his appreciation by smiling broadly when sentenced.

WORSE THAN THE PAIN.

Thought of Having Her Beauty Marred Caused Woman of Spartan Endurance to Faint.

A well-known society woman, living in Central Park West, has always prided herself on her Spartan indifference to pain. Never does she murmur when headache or rheumatism or a bruise of any sort happens to be her portion. But she had a new experience a day or two ago, and now admits the truth of the saying that a woman's tenderest point is her vanity, relates the New York Mail and Express.

She had been visiting at a friend's house in Rye, and while watching two young men of the family practicing with a baseball, was struck squarely in the eye by a ball, which was missed by the man to whom it was thrown. "It hurt me awfully for a few moments," said she in telling the story, "but I bore it without flinching. Everyone rushed around with cold water and various medicaments, and then suddenly some one said: 'I do hope, Mrs. Blank, that your nose isn't injured.'

"I gave one scream," said the lady, "and then fainted. The thought of my personal appearance suffering was too much. I didn't mind the pain, although it was intense, but the mere suggestion that my nose might be made permanently crooked was too much. And I believe any other woman would have felt the same way about it."

JAPANESE ARE WILY.

Said to Be Adepts at Perpetrating Frauds on Insurance Companies.

We have been spouting these ten years about the cleverness of the Japanese. Our smart Alecks went into hysterics over them, says the New York Press. Our merchants have gone to extremes in soliciting Japanese trade, and our great insurance companies have sent agents broadcast over the islands of the land of the rising sun to write policies. In no other country on the globe is the work of the insurance solicitor so easy. In one month $10,000,000 of life insurance has been placed by one New York company. Every measly little dwarf of a Jap wants to insure. An agent has just discovered that in medical examinations he has been badly duped, one healthy Jap standing the test for many hundreds of his fellow countrymen. As all Japs look alike, the doctors did not detect the fraud until about $5,000,000 in policies had been written. Local insurance men are exercised about it.

Black Stone of Mecca.

Set into a corner of the Kaaba (the temple or shrine) of Mecca is what is known as the "black stone." It is an irregular, oval bowlder, about seven inches in diameter, three inches broad, and deep reddish brown in color. It is encircled by a silver band studded with silver nails. It has been split by heat, carried away by Karmathians and broken by a blow, but the band and nails hold it together. Some have declared it a fragment of lava, others a piece of volcanic basalt. Millions of kisses have worn its rough surface somewhat smooth. The Mohammedans believe it was a hyacinth brought from heaven by Gabriel to Abraham, and that contact with the human race has changed its properties.

Contempt for the Lion.

Men who have shot nearly all of the dark continent's animals have, as a rule, nothing but contempt for the so-called "king of beasts," the lion. To the hunter he is a cowardly, skulking brute, far more dangerous to the horses and oxen at night than to the human part of the expedition, always ready to slink off and escape a fight if given a chance. There is nothing kingly about him, and a single man can usually put half a dozen lions to flight.

We all know people whose chief charm lies in their exquisite cleanliness, and about whom there lingers a faint, sweet odor as of wild flowers. If you would acquire this charm use Cole's Carbolisoap. This is not carbolic soap. It is purely vegetable. Get Cole's, try it once—and you will use no other. By all druggists.

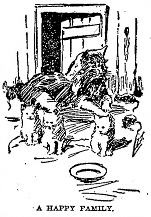
CAT'S STRANGE FAMILY.

Michigan Pussy Nourishes Tiny Rats Along with Her Own Bountiful Lot of Kittens.

The following story from the Philadelphia Press points its own moral. It is unique of its kind.

Four weeks ago a cat, the property of Hans Hansen, a grocer, of Muskegon, Mich., gave birth to a litter of kittens. Mr. Hansen was making some alterations in his store, and three days after the kittens were born the laborers who were excavating for a cellar foundation discovered a nest of young rats, whose mother had evidently been frightened away from them by the onslaught of the shovelers.

The men decided that the young rats would make a nutritious feed for the mother cat and, collecting them, they carried the vermin to the empty bin in the store where the cat and her little family were housed. The rats were thrown in—and the feelings of the onlookers can be better imagined than described when they saw the cat lick and pet the little animals instead of making an onslaught on them.



A HAPPY FAMILY.

Up to the present writing the cat has faithfully and jealously guarded and nursed the young rats, and it is a noticeable and peculiar fact that the whole nature of the rats appears to differ from that of their progenitors. They play and frisk with the kittens and jump all over the back of the old mother, who plays with them. It is truly a happy family.

When the news of the peculiar case became bruited abroad crowds flocked to Mr. Hansen's store to see the animals. Those who saw told other doubting Thomases and they also inspected, going away wondering. The great interest now is to find out whether the family will continue to live in harmony.

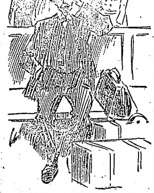
SHORT NAP IN DEPOT.

Traveler, Tired with Long Journey, Goes to Sleep and Awakes to Find Himself a Pauper.

Seven hundred dollars was the price Peter Griffin, of Cleveland, O., paid for a nap in Chicago, and he didn't sleep on an upholstered couch behind velvet curtains, as he dreamed he did, either. His bed was a bench in Grand Central passenger station, where he was waiting for a train which would take him to his home.

Ten minutes after Griffin, tired by a long journey, closed his eyes he was awakened as suddenly as though somebody had rung the old farmhouse dinner bell at his ear. He sat up and stared about him for a minute, trying to realize where he was.

Instinctively his hand went to his pocket. It had been cut as he slept and his old-fashioned purse was gone. When he realized his loss he broke down completely. A detective took him to Harrison street police station.



SAT UP AND STARED ABOUT.

"We had a lot of trouble down at home," he said to Inspector Lavin, with a quaver in his voice, "and as soon as the hay was in last summer I told father I was going out to earn enough money to pay what we owed."

"And you did?" suggested the inspector.

"Yes, I met a fellow and we worked hard out west up to a month ago, washing gold. Then we divided up. I had about $800 for my share. Yes, I had enough left to clear the homestead."

"What then?" as the fellow wandered off again.

"I was tired, coming all this way, and I sat down on that bench and fell asleep. When I awoke up all I had in my purse, $700, was gone. I don't care for myself, but I let the folks know that I was coming and had enough money, and—"

But he could go no further. The thought of the disappointment of his father and mother was too much for him. He was given a bed at the station and the next morning was sent to Fits.

Baby Had Two to Six Every Day.

Suffered Terribly—Doctors Failed.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Him.

Weak, nervous, fretful, puny children require a treatment such as only Dr. Miles' Nervine affords. When neglected these symptoms lead to epileptic fits or spasms. Every mother should strengthen her own and babies' nerves with Dr. Miles' Nervine, a true specific in all nervous disorders. Read the following:

"When my little boy was 18 months old he had cramps in his feet and hands. They would be drawn out of shape for two or three days. At first liniment seemed to help but in about two weeks nothing did any good the doctor gave him. We called another doctor but his medicine did no good so we changed to another who called it spinal disease. By this time the child's body was drawn out of shape; his backbone was curved to one side and his hands and feet out of shape. His sufferings were terrible, and he was having from two to six fits a day. I was taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for nervous trouble and saw it was recommended for fits, so I thought I would see if it would help him. All three doctors had given him up. One-half bottle stopped the fits and his limbs straightened, and another bottle cured him. He is now a strong, healthy boy going to school. I have waited to see if the old trouble returned, before writing you, but it never has. I cannot praise Dr. Miles' Nervine enough, as I know it saved my boy's life."—MRS. OF course all of the honesty and veracity is with Mayor Kratka's side of the question. It is difficult to conceive that a really good man would array himself on the other side.

THE rumor that Mark Hanna will become a presidential candidate is persistent. And Mark didn't quiet the gossip by wiring his thanks to the Virginia convention that endorsed him.

PERSONAL—A liberal reward will be given for the prompt return of my gubernatorial boom, which was lost somewhere between Grand Marais and Luverne several weeks ago. —Frank M. Eddy.

Now that Perry Heath has been openly charged by the post-office officials with being implicated in the "graft" that has been going on in the department for several years, it is time the rank and file demanded his resignation as secretary of the national committee.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press opines the Republican party will escape censure for the post-office scandals because poor Machen was once a Democrat. It is not creditable to the administration that such a grafter as Machen was kept in office, and the color of his politics cuts no figure.

THE Willmar Tribune has discontinued its Saturday issue and hereafter will appear as a weekly. As a general rule the semi-weekly has not been popular with Minnesota newspapers, and confirms the old saying that there is no half-way place between the daily and the weekly.

THE story is being quite generally circulated that a coterie of Crookston politicians are hatching a plan for the defeat of Congressman Steenerson, and that Andy Stephens is to be the congressional candidate of this faction. Halvor is a live wire, just now, thank you, and the prospects of choking off his political career thus early is not a promising task.

ALTHOUGH nowadays people naturally expect newspaper enterprise and cease to wonder at journalistic achievements, the silver anniversary number of the Minneapolis Journal issued last Thursday must certainly be regarded with pride by Minnesotans. This issue comprised 124 pages, and was devoted to the exploitation of the growth of Minnesota, Minneapolis and the Journal. It was the largest and handsomest newspaper ever issued in the state, and the Journal is entitled to great credit.

Asthma

"One of my daughters had a terrible case of asthma. We tried almost everything, but without relief. We then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and three and one-half bottles cured her."—Emma Jane Entsminger, Langsville, O.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral certainly cures many cases of asthma.

And it cures bronchitis, hoarseness, weak lungs, whooping-cough, croup, winter coughs, night coughs, and hard colds.

THE newspaper fraternity of northwestern Minnesota will regret the failure of N. S. Gordon to make a success of the Crookston Journal. Mr. Gordon is a capable newspaper man of long experience. Crookston is hardly large enough to support two first-class evening papers, and as the Times seems to be firmly intrenched with prestige and capital, there is no occasion for surprise at the present condition of newspaper affairs at that city. We trust Bro. Gordon will find a more congenial and promising field.

THE young man who contributes Washington letters to the Warren Sheaf was the manager of Grindeland's ill-fated campaign, and as a natural sequence does not love the Ninth district congressman, but this fact furnishes no excuse for the impertinent and insulting criticisms recently appearing in the columns of the Sheaf. And then both the Sheaf editor and the whippersnapper correspondent are federal office-holders, and from the standpoint of self interest and ordinary decency it would seem that the appointing power should be treated with proper respect.

GENERAL WOOD is placed in a very disagreeable light by the sworn statements made before the senate military committee in an effort to defeat the confirmation of his appointment as major-general. Major Rathbone's testimony may be disregarded for obvious reasons. Aside from his charges enough has been told before the committee to raise very serious doubt as to the honesty of some of Wood's actions while he was governor of Cuba. Leaving out the Rathbone charge that Wood dictated to the courts and the charge that he was instrumental in stirring up the public criticism of General Brooke, there still remains the charge that he excepted a $5,000 present from the Jai Alai gambling concern, and this charge, in the opinion of the press, will take a lot of explaining.

About Cigar Boxes.

Deputy revenue collectors are looking up violations of the law relative to empty cigar boxes. Under the former rule it was sufficient for the dealer to merely destroy the government stamp on the box and he could then throw the box away. Under a new rule of the revenue service it is not enough for a dealer to destroy the stamps. He must break up the box and render it unfit for future use. The dealer is not allowed to give away the box and is liable to prosecution if he does.

ADVERTISING LESSON.

Austin Merchant Finds No Substitute For Newspaper Advertising.

"Two years ago one of our dry goods merchants who had been using the local newspapers for his advertising decided to reach the public by use of hand bills and he accordingly made the change," says the Austin Herald. "Every few weeks following he issued bills. The last ones were full sheets with box car lettering, printed in red. This is what he told us today. "I have got to go back to newspaper advertising if I expect to get the best trade of the city. I have learned that you can't draw the better trade by hand bills and you can't keep the best class of goods for you can't sell them. I have studied this out."

"The hand bills go to the back door, the newspaper goes in at the front door. The bill goes to the servants and kitchen help, the newspaper is read by the family. My bills brought me additional trade but gradually I began to miss some of my best trade and noticed that the best goods were remaining on the shelf while I turned over the cheaper grades faster than ever. To get back the trade I have lost I must use newspaper advertising. It would have been better if I had stuck to the newspapers from the first for I am satisfied that the lady of the house reads the ads of the newspaper but does not read the bills; only the servants who don't see the papers are attracted by the bills."

Peculiar Happenstances.

Twenty years ago a Steans county business man found it necessary to bring action against a party to whom he had sold a grist mill to enforce the payments of the contract. When about half of them had been made the purchaser discovered that there was a cloud on the title and accordingly bucked in the harness. It appears that there was a gap in the title, the deed to the Stearns county man never having been recorded. A suit appeared to be the only alternative, but before engaging an attorney it was suggested that a visit to the Wright county register of deeds might result in the finding of the document wanted. This was done, and in the old musty files an envelope was found containing the deed, the letter of filing instruments and $1.25—in "shin plasters"—two fifties and one twenty-five. The deed was at once recorded, the gap filled and the shadow on the title was removed.

Another instance quite similar in character was unearthed by the expert accountants while examining the books of a southern Minnesota defunct bank a few days ago. It was found necessary to check back nearly fourteen years, and in an ill-smelling, musty record an envelope containing a goodly bunch of Uncle Samuel's legal tender discovered. The cash had been closed in the book accidentally and remained there all these years. The money will help pay the creditors a few more cents on the dollar.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

(Dan Johnson, Iza Tibbetts and Leo Spillane Spartan Reporters.)

Work was resumed Monday in all of the departments. The majority of the pupils have recovered from the affect of "turkey day."

Miss Carley, one of our former teachers, spent her Thanksgiving vacation in the city.

The banners ordered by the board of education hvae arrived. They are all very pretty, and will doubtless stimulate interest in school work

The tri-yearly "exams" were held last week. All the pupils came through with fair markings.

"Better late than never" is believed in by the Spartans. After waiting about two years the banner won in the Gazette story contest has been placed in the assembly room.

The Spartan program will be rendered Friday afternoon. The numbers have been exhaustively worked up and a large attendance of visitors is expected.

The Seniors have elected the following officers: President, Maude Findeisen; secretary, Dan Johnson.

The class of '05 intend to give a sociable and entertainment in the near future for the purpose of creating a fund to defray the expenses connected with commencement.

With this issue the present reporting committee "gives up the ghost." We trust the few notes which appeared have been acceptable, and that the next committee will give better service.

The Lastest Graft.

There are all sorts of grafts being worked nowadays, but one of the most silly and senseless schemes is that of the so-called Globe Association of St. Louis and Chicago. A friend hands us their circulars and it seems strange that any one in America could be found to bite at such a proposition as they offer.

To begin with the "Association" publishes an ad. in many papers, even so reliable a publication as Farm Stock and Home, offering to sell shoes that usually bring $3.50 to $5.00, at 98c a pair, and the ad. says in black type, "send no money; write for information." The one who writes for information gets a long circular in the most luring language, the gist of which is that a pair of shoes may be had for 98c if the applicant will send $2.50 in addition to the 98c as his membership fee, and all that is guaranteed by the "association" to its members is that they will receive a 1,000 page catalogue and for five years a member may buy anything advertised in the catalogue at the prices quoted.

Was there ever a thinner proposition? They ask customers to pay them $2.50 for the privilege of patronizing their catalogue house. Montgomery Ward & Co., Sears, Roebuck & Co., or Roberts Supply House are way behind the times when compared with the Globe Association in working a get-rich-quick seheme. This again illustrates the difficulty of getting something for nothing. Home dealers are always the best and safest men to do business with.

The preliminary hearing in the case of the state vs. Mrs. John Doyea was held yesterday before Justice Swanson. She was bound over to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of adultery, and the bond fixed at $100, which it is expected will be furnished.

Warren had a fire scare last Thursday afternoon when a blaze was discovered in the upper rooms over the Sheaf office. A loss of $400 was sustained by the family living in the rooms, but the damage to the Sheaf office was nominal, being mostly caused by the water.

J. M. Logan, of Pittsbnrg, was the guest of his brother-in-law, J. B. Armstrong, Monday and Tuesday of this week. Mr. Logan represents the American Newspaper association, and business calling him this way took the opportunity to visit his Red Lake Falls friends, whom he had never seen.

Scott C. Hall and Master Archor Wurden came over from Bygland Wednesday to spend the Thanksgiving vacation with the former's relatives. Scott will, on leaving the city, go to Kalispell, Mont., where he has accepted a position as freight brakeman on the Cascade division of the Great Northern.

During the month of December the Northern Pacific will sell excursion tickets to all points in Canada at $40.00 for the round trip. Tickets good to return any time within three months from date of sale. An extension of time given by paying a small amount extra. Call at Northern Pacific agent for further particulars.

Two mercantile failures of considerable importance in the Valley this week—the Thompson Mercantile company of East Grand Forks and C. G. Winchester, one of the leading general merchants at Warren. Money is close and collections slow, and doubtless many business men will have difficulty in weathering the financial storm.

Fred Morin has resigned as principal of the northside school, and will be employed hereafter by the Robertson Lumber company. He expects to be assigned the agency of a yard in North Dakota in the near future. Mr. Morin is an excellent young man and his many Red Lake Falls friends wish him success in his new work.

W. D. Sands, an old Nobles county friend of THE COURIER editor, was in from Lambert township Monday, on business matters. Mr. Sands reports the arrival of a girl baby at his house last week, and that the mother and child are doing well. Mr. Sands moved to Red Lake county about three years ago, and is well pleased with the change.

At the regular meeting Saturday evening the Odd Fellows elected officers as follows: Noble grand, F. A. Mizen; vice grand, William Schwalen; recording secretary, Frank A. [illegible]; financial secretary, James E. [illegible] treasurer, P. E. Pirath; trustee, Fred Borchers. Installation will take place on the first meeting night in January.

L. C. Conner, the Lake Pleasant auctioneer, was arrested Friday at the instigation of Anthony Quesnelle, charged with disturbing the peace. The trial was held before Justice Swanson and the defendant put under bond in the sum of $100 to keep the peace. The parties to the suit are neighbors, and the resort to law is the outcome of a disagreement.

John Kotschevar, while assisting in killing a beef at Matt Skala's farm last Thursday had one of his eyes badly injured by one of the supports falling. He went to Crookston Saturday and is being cared for at St. Vincent's hospital by Dr. Morley, the eye specialist. Grave doubts are entertained with regard to saving the sight of the eye, as the ball was severely injured.

The troubles of the Doyea and Beausoliel families are to be aired in court again. This time Mrs. Dolphis Beausoliel has had Mrs. Doyea arrested on the charge of adultery. It will be remembered that Mr. Beausoliel was convicted of this offense at the last term of court. The general public will hope that the difficulties of these families will soon be settled.

The big safe in the county treasurer's office failed to respond to the combination yesterday morning, and it was necessary to telephone to St. Paul for an expert, who arrived today. After a little persuasion the safe was opened. A queer coincidence was the fact that Cashier Duffy, of the Merchants State Bank, wanted to exchange $78,000 in cash for the issue of ditch bonds the same morning, and owing to the delay occasioned by the belligerent safe settlement for the bonds was not made until this afternoon. The bonds had previously been kept in the auditor's office, and had been placed in custody of Treasurer

Edward Torgerson and Miss Berthine Olson, Both of Wyandotte township, were married Tuesday at high noon by Judge N. W. Tarrant at the probate office. The Judge, as well as the blushing bride, acquitted himself very creditably, and THE COURIER hopes they will "live happily forever after." The newly-married couple will make their future home on a farm in Wyandotte.

S. C. Nauman returned home yesterday from a business trip to Onawa, Iowa, where he was called as a plaintiff in a real estate suit. Sam owns a farm near Onawa, and a land agent sold the place without anthority or permission from Mr. Naoman. Of course Sam won the suite but it occasioned him quite a little expense and trouble. While away Mr. Nauman visited for a few days at his old home in Mendota, Ill.

As will be observed by a notice of dissolution published elsewhere in this issue, John L. Watson has retired from the Healy-Watson Land company, and the business will hereafter be conducted by Ed. L. Healy under the old name of Ed. L. Healy Land company. THE COURIER wishes both parties to the transaction success, and hopes the dissolution does not mean the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Watson from our city. They are good people, and we cannot afford to lose them.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink-joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

In order not to delay the new Winnipeg flyer, an effort will be made to secure a government official to run on the trains between Emerson and Winnipeg, inspecting the baggage without the delay of having to hold the trains at Emerson while this work is being done. If this is done a custom official will probably board all trains at some point in Minnesota and make the trip into Emerson. Every effort is being made to run the trains on the schedule provided, which is considered very fast.

Frank Grady and several of his friends enjoyed quite an elaborate turkey supper on Thanksgiving day. Frank had won a hansome specimen of the turkey tribe at a raffle the evening previous, and some of his friends got next to the fact and confiscated the bird. The next day Mr. Grady found that the turkey was being cooked at a restaurant and that the jokers contemplated a glorious feast. In order to help the fun along Frank waited until the turkey was cooked to a brown turn and then had replevin papers issued. The constable gently removed the steaming bird from the pot and took enough gravy along to give it the proper seasoning. It is now an open question as to who has the laugh, but probably the old adage will hold good: "He who laughs last laughs best."

It warms the heart like sunshine, cheers the soul like ancient wine, gives hope for the future, blots out the past. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea does, 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

The Ellsworth News gives this bit of information:

> A newspaper has a legal right to publish whatever an individual has a legal right to circulate orally. In other words, an individual has no more right to make criticisms and accusations on the street than a newspaper has in its columns. This is something the average man doesn't know; if he did he would keep his mouth shut more than he does.

◆

Growler Allen tells this story about Judge Collins:

> Speaking of the Judge reminds us of a story they tell in Stearns county where the Judge lived in an early day. Soon after he was elected judge of the 7th district, he was holding court one day and being very diminutive did not appear very dignified in the chair behind the desk, and a lawyer from St. Paul was trying a case and in arising to address the court very little of the court was in sight, so to the sheriff he said: "Mr. Sheriff, will you kindly remove the inkstand so I can see the Judge."

The inequalities of the present system of taxation are shown in the following item from the Lakefield Standard:

> As an illustration of the beauty of our tax laws it might be appropriate to point out that the wealthy county of Martin this year returned only $78 worth of gold and silver plate and plated ware. Our own county was not much better with $302, while Itasca county, at the jumping off place of the universe and on the outskirts of civilization, showed up with $1,500. The tax ferret may not be exactly a lovable animal but if he can in any manner do away with any of the perjury now practiced and right the wrongs the state is suffering from by making people pay a just tax, we could almost forget the less beautiful parts of his character.

It is well to remember that Minnesota is not the smallest pebble on the beach, says the Wadena Tribune. She ranks first in wheat production, first in flour production, third in lumbering manufacture, fourth in the value of cereal products, fourth in oats, second in barley, fifth in rye, ninth in potatoes, fifth in dairying, third in linseed oil manufactures, first in health and second in education. In this connection it must also be remembered that the University of Minnesota, in point of attendance, ranks second in the United States.

> Thankful fur the bitter
>   That makes us prize the sweet;
> Ain't no use o' hangin' back

Eb. Huntington, of the Windom Reporter, pays his compliments to the board of control as follows:

> Language almost fails to convey the expression of contempt the people ought to have for the board of control for refusing Frank Hamilton parole last Saturday, after the board of pardons had commuted his sentence so that he might be paroled. Here this poor fellow, convicted after a fair trial of murder of which there is extreme doubt of his ever having committed, dying in the prisou with consumption, denied liberty by office holders after the governor, attorney general and chief justice have examined the case and commuted the sentence for the very purpose of giving the poor fellow fresh air and a chance for his life. That our laws should permit a board of udderstrappers like this to overrule the board of pardons is a disgrace to the civilization of Minnesota, and especially so when it is believed by thousands that the real murderer is wearing good clothes around Minneapolis.

Apropos of Thanksgiving the "Wise and Otherwise" column of the Albert Lea Standard contains these pertinent suggestions:

> Take Minnesota weather as it comes—you have to—be thankful and ask for more.

>
> Saints on Sundays and sinners week days have only one chance in seven of becoming players on harps up there.
>
> Tell a man what people think of him and his opinion of the people will at once be discounted about 50 per cent.
>
> Bye and by—over Jordan—you will be just as rich and maybe live as fine as your rich neighbor—and be a heap happier than most of them.
>
> The best thankfulness is for which you have done something unselfishly, generously and modestly for others—it comes to you—thankfulness, and you are glad.

Frederick or Frederic.

Some names are so cosmopolitan that it makes no difference how they are spelled, but just let anybody ring a few unauthorized changes on the name of Frederick, and the man who owns it will have something to say. They will not be pleasant things to listen to either. As Frederick was christened, so does he insist upon being spelled. If at the baptismal font he was invested with the dignity of a "k," he staggers under its weight to the end of the chapter. The only person on earth whose indignation can equal Frederick's when somebody leaves off the "k" is Frederic when somebody else puts it on. Family ties have been severed and irreparable social eruptions have been brought about by the unfortunate omission or addition of that final letter. To untutored ears Frederick with or without the "k" sounds just as musical, but to Frederick himself that alphabetical error is worse than a whole orchestra out of tune, and it behooves the person who would keep on the good side of him to learn his preference in the matter.—New York Times.

SSS FOR THE BLOOD

The best known and most popular blood purifier and tonic on the market to-day is S. S. S. There is hardly a man, woman or child in America who has not heard of "S. S. S. for the blood." It is a standard remedy, a specific for all blood troubles and unequalled as a general tonic and appetizer. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable, the herbs and roots of which it is composed are selected for their alterative and tonic properties, making it the ideal remedy for all blood and skin diseases, as it not only purifies, enriches and invigorates the blood, but at the same time tones up the tired nerves and gives strength and vigor to the entire system.

For Chronic Sores and Ulcers, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Blood Poison, Malaria, Anæmia, Scrofula, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Acne and such other diseases as are due to a polluted or impoverished condition of the blood, nothing acts so promptly and effectually as S. S. S. It counteracts and eradicates the germs and poisons; cleanses the system of all unhealthy accumulations and soon restores the patient to health. Write us and our physicians will give your case prompt attention without charge.

FROM CONGRESSMAN LIVINGSTON, OF GEORGIA.
I know of the successful use of S. S. S. in many cases. It is the best blood remedy on the market.

FROM EX-GOV. ALLEN D. CANDLER.
S. S. S. is unquestionably a good blood purifier, and the best tonic I ever used.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE, ss:

In Probate Court,
Special Term, Nov. 18, 1903.

On receiving and filing the petition of Theresa Bischoff, of the County of Red Lake, representing among other things, that Herman Bischoff, late of the County of Red Lake in the State of Minnesota on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1903, at the County of Red Lake, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Theresa Bischoff granted;

It is Ordered, That said petition be heard before said Court on Saturday, the 12th day of December, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office, in the Court House in Red Lake Falls, in said County.

Ordered Further, That notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 18th day of November A. D. 1903.

By the court,

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 83;

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50; which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred Ninety-four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage, will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The East Half of the Northeast Quarter (E. ½ N. E. ¼), and the Northwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (N. W. ¼ N. E. ¼), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter (N. E. ¼ N. W. ¼), (or Lot One (1)) of Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred Fifty-One (151), Range Forty-Four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred Ninety-Four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars, Attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, November 14th, A. D. 1903.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S WHIM.

The Practical Joke a Celebrated Man Played on Posterity.

One of the most famous of postmortem jokes was that perpetrated by the donor of the celebrated Soane museum of pictures and other valuable objets d'art to England, the late Sir John Soane, who died in 1837. In his will Sir John made provision for the opening of three sealed cupboards on certain specified dates in the presence of the trustees. In 1866, that is to say almost thirty years after the death of the testator, the first of the mysterious receptacles was with much ceremony and breaking of seals opened in the presence of a committee of men, with the then president of the Royal academy, Sir F. Grant, at their head. Instead of a priceless treasure or some evidence that would throw an entirely new light upon some doubtful incident in political history the contents of the cupboard proved to be worthless accounts, letters and stationery.

Twenty years pased by, and the interest that had smoldered after the disappointment of 1866 was again fanned into flame at the prospect of breaking the seals of the second cupboard, at which rite there were present among others Dr. Alfred Waterhouse, R. A., and Sir (then Dr.) B. W. Richardson. Like the cupboard mentioned in the well known nursery rhyme, Sir John's second cabinet proved "bare" of any sensation, the contents being chiefly composed of letters relating to certain long forgotten family quarrels that had not even the merit of being interesting. If some of those authorized to be present at the opening of the third and last receptacle of mystery were dubious about the profit that would accrue by letting the light of day fall upon the contents thereof after sixty years' darkness one at least, Sir B. W. Richardson, looked forward with unabated interest to that day in 1896 when the last seal would be broken and the mystery solved, but he, alas, died just two days before the ceremony was performed, and the fact that Sir John had played a practical joke upon posterity was duly confirmed by the presence of a collection of perfectly worthless letters and papers.

MERRY MEALTIMES.

The Table No Place For Fault Finding, Nagging and Strife.

Has it ever been your lot to sit at a table with a group of young folks who ate the meal in silence or, with a few constrained remarks, looked askance at the head of the family before venturing on any remark? I have seen such a sight on more than one occasion. Doctors have told us over and over again of the beneficial results arising from a meal eaten with a contented frame of mind and with cheerful surroundings; but, sad to say, there are many households where each meal is a constant scene of bickering, nagging and fault finding.

This is not only the case where there are young children, who require a reprimand occasionally for carelessness, but I am speaking of those homes where the girls and boys are well into their teens. Wrong is that parent, either father or mother, who chooses the hour when all are assembled round the table to mention some half forgotten grievance or to find some fault.

If any trivial thing has been done wrong or any duty omitted wait until dinner or tea is over before you scold, blame or reprimand. Let the food which God gives us for the purpose of nourishing and sustaining our bodies have the opportunity of accomplishing that end, which cannot be the case if every mouthful is swallowed with either a sarcastic word or an uncomplimentary remark. More indigestion, nervousness and other derangements are caused by the too common fault of uncomfortable mealtimes than many people would suppose, and it is our positive duty, which we should all try to remember, to make those hours of the day cheerful and agreeable to the children and to set them an example which you would be the first to notice and approve in others.—Scotsman.

So Nice and Sympathetic.

A gentleman whose one glass eye has served him for years had the misfortune to drop it. It smashed to atoms. This happened when he was far away in the country. He inquired of a friend where was the nearest place for him to go and get refitted.

"Why don't you call upon the girl you were flirting with all last night?" his friend inquired. "She has a first class reputation for making eyes."—Punch.

Prayer of the Convert.

A south sea islander at the close of a religious meeting offered the following prayer: "O God, we are about to go to our respective homes. Let not the words we have heard be like the fine clothes we wear—soon to be taken off and folded up in a box till another Sabbath comes around. Rather, let thy truth be like the tattoo on our bodies—ineffaceable till death."—Carleton's Magazine.

The Temperature.

"Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely?" queried the invalid.

"Because," replied the untrained nurse, "the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine."

Bewildered.

"John Henry, I'll thrash you soundly if I ever catch you telling another story that isn't true."

"And yet, ma, I heard you say to the minister that I had great imagination."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A show of daring oft conceals great cowardice.—Lucan.

Short-sighted Policy.

A Jersey City church makes the members of its choir sign a contract not to marry for a year. This strikes us as a very short-sighted piece of business. Just think how their young voices would soar and their very hearts beat time in unison if the ban were removed.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

Death of J. L. Johnson.

St. Hilaire Spector: Justus L. Johnson died at his home here at 9:20 yesterday morning of consumption. He was 38 years of age, and leaves a widow and three children, two boys and one girl, to morn his loss.

Deceased was born in Freeborn county, Minn, on Sept. 27, 1865. At the age of 20 years (1885) he came to St. Hilaire, and subsequently engaged in the business of druggist here. On August 29, 1889, he was married to Miss Olene Wiste. About five years ago he retired from the drug business and started a barber shop. This he also relinquished after a time and took a position in the general store of Rapp & Post, where he worked for about two years. In January last he was chosen to fill the position of deputy county auditor, and removed with his family to Red Lake Falls. His continually failing health forced him to resign this position a few weeks ago and he returned to his home here. Since his return he has been failing steadily until the end came yesterday morning.

The funeral will occur at 2 o'clock today (Thursday) from the Synod church, the services being conducted by Rev. Aastad, of Thief River Falls, Speaker Cannon as a Veteran.

It is not easy to realize that the new Speaker,—young-looking, active, agile, light on his feet as a dancing-master, quick as President Roosevelt with the trigger of his speech, alert and happy with his humor and his satire,—came to congress in the days of the senatorship of Hannibal Hamlin, Charles Sumner, Simon Cameron, Zachariah Chandler, O. P. Morton, and that when he took his seat James G. Blaine was Speaker, and for colleagues in the house he had George F. Hoar, Samuel J. Randall, William D. Kelly, and James A. Garfield. How much of a veteran of congressional life Mr. Cannon is may be judged by the fact that there are now in the two houses only nine men who were on the rolls when he made his debut in December, 1875,—Allison, Cockrell, and Stewart, then in the senate, and Burrows, Frye, Hale, Hoar, Hawley and T. C. Platt, then in the house and now in the senate. Of all the members of the house of representatives at the time when Cannon appeared upon the scene, he alone remains.—From "Speaker Cannon: A Character Sketch," by "Mentor," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for December.

MUST ATTEND ENTIRE TERM.

Ruled That Twelve Weeks Attendance Law is Repealed.

Pupils between eight and sixteen years in the public schools of Minnesota must attend school during the entire time that the schools in the district in which they live are in session, unless they are excused as required by law, according to an opinion filed with the state superintendent of public instruction by W. J. Donahower, first assistant attorney general.

Under an old law on compulsory education pupils were required to attend twelve weeks, of which six had to be in succession. In 1899 and 1901 laws were passed requiring pupils to attend during the entire time of the session. In neither of these laws, however, were there any provisions repealing any part of the old law, and the question arose, is the old law still in force?

Mr. Donahower holds that those provisions in the old law which are in conflict with provisions in the new laws are repealed, even though there is no direct repealing clause.

Pupils will be excused only when the following is shown to the school board in the district in which the parent or guardian resides:

That such parent, guardian or other person having control is not able by reason of poverty to clothe the child properly.

That the child's bodily or mental condition is such as to prevent his attendance at school or application to study for the required period.

That the child is taught at home in the branches of study which are usually taught at the public schools, subject to the same examination as other pupils of the district are.

That the child has already acquired the ordinary branches required by law.

That the child is actually engaged in some useful occupation, employment or service permitted by law.

His Marriage a Failure.

He regarded children as a nuisance.

He did all his courting before marriage.

He never talked over his affairs with his wife.

He never had time to go anywhere with his wife.

He doled out his money to give his wife as if to a beggar.

He looked down upon his wife as an inferior being.

He never took time to get acquainted with his family.

He thought of his wife only for what she could bring him.

He never dreamed that there were two sides to marriage.

He never dreamed that a wife needs praise or compliments.

He had one set of manners for home and another for society.

He paid no attention to his personal appearance after marriage.

He married an ideal, and was disappointed to find it had flaws.

He thought his wife should spend all her time doing housework.

He treated his wife as he would not have dared to treat another man.

He never dreamed that his wife needed a vacation, recreation or change.

He never made concessions to his wife's judgment, even in unimportant matters.

He thought the marriage vow had made him his wife's master, instead of her partner.

He took all the little attentions lavished on him by his wife as his by "divine right," and not as favors.

Present, Commissioners Sutor, Johnson, Hanson and Falardeau.

Absent, Commissioner Demann.

On motion carried unanimously, the lease with Ernest Buse for the building now used for court house purposes, was renewed for one year from Jan. 1, 1904, at $40.00 per month, certain modifications as to payment of rent and making repairs being agreed upon.

The following resolution was offered by by Commissioner Johnson, who moved its adoption:

Whereas, in pursuance of and in full compliance with the provisions of chapter 258 of the general laws of Minnesota for the year 1901, and all acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, this board of county commissioners has heretofore located, fully established and ordered the construction of certain public ditches situated wholly within the limits of Red Lake county, known and designated as follows to-wit:

Thief River Falls Ditch No. 1, Wyandotte ditch No. 1, Lake Pleasant & Red Lake Falls ditch No. 1; Black River & River Falls ditch No. 1; Wyandotte & River Falls ditch No. 1; Wyandotte & River Falls ditch No. 2; Terrebonne ditch No. 1; Poplar River ditch No. 1; Garnes & Emardville ditch No. 1; Rocksbury & North ditch No. 1; Rocksbury & Sanders ditch No 1; Sanders & Norden ditch No. 1; Gervais ditch No. 1; Rocksbury ditch No. 1, and Red Lake Falls ditch No. 1, and

Whereas, it has been definitly ascertained and determined that the aggregate expense of locating, constructing and establishing such public ditches will be at least the sum of $78,298.25, and that it is necessary to issue and sell the negotiable cupon bonds of Red Lake county to provide $78,000 in amount of such expenses;

Now, therefore, be it resolved, by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, that the negotiable coupon bonds of said county be, and the same are hereby authorized and directed to be issued to the aggregate amount of $78,000 for the purpose of providing a portion of the funds necessary to defray the expenses incurred and to be incurred, in locating constructing and establishing the public ditches situate wholly within the limits of said county, mentioned in the preamble hereof.

Said bonds shall be 78 in number, numbered from 1 to 78 inclusive, and of the denomination of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each; shall bear date the 12th day of September, A.D. 1903; shall become due and payable on the 12th day of September, A. D. 1913; shall bear interest at the rate of five and one half per centum per annum, payable semi annually on the 12th day of March and September of each year, which interest payments shall be evidenced by proper interest coupons to be attached to each bond, and both principal and interest shall be payable at the banking house of Farson, Leach & Company in the city of New York and State of New York.

Be it further resolved that each of said bonds and each of the interest coupons attached thereto, shall be in substantially the following forms, respectively, to-wit:

No...... $1,000

United States of America
State of Minnesota
County of Red Lake
Public Ditch Bond

Know all Men by These Presents:

That the county of Red Lake in the State of Minnesota, acknowledges itself to owe, and, for value received, hereby promises to pay to bearer, the sum of One Thousand Dollars, on September 12th, 1913, together with interest thereon from the date hereof until paid, at the rate of five and one-half per centum per anum, payable semi-annually on March 12th and September 12th in each year, upon presentation and surrender of the interest coupons hereto attached, as they respectively mature; both principal and interest payable in lawful money of the United States of America, at the banking house of Farson, Leach & Company, in the city of New York, State of New York, and for the prompt payment of this bond, both principal and interest at maturity, the full faith credit and resources of said county are hereby irrevocably pledged.

This bond is issued by said county for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to defray the expense incurred and to be incurred in locating, constructing and establishing a public ditch situate wholly within the limits of said county, and is issued by authority of and in strict accordance with the provisions of an act of the legislature of the State of Minnesota, entitled: "An act providing for the drainage of lands in certain cases, prescribing the powers and duties of county commissioners and other officers in the premises, and appropriating funds for the payment of assessments against state lands affected thereby, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof, and repealing certain acts therein mentioned and referred to," approved April 11th, 1901, and all acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

And it is hereby certified and recited, that all acts, conditions and things, required by the laws and the constitution of the state of Minnesota to be done, precedent to and in the issue of this bond, have been properly done, happened and been performed in regular and due form and time as required by law; that the ditch on account of which this bond is issued is a public ditch, duly established for the promotion of the health, convenience and general welfare of the public; and that the total indebtedness of said county, including this bond, does not exceed any statutory or constitutional limitation.

In testimony whereof the said county of Red Lake, Minnesota, by its board of county commissioners has caused this bond to be signed by the chairman of said board and countersigned, sealed and recorded by its County Auditor, this twelfth day of September, A. D. 1903.

Chairman,
Board of County Commissioners.

Be it further resolved, that each of said bonds and each of the interest coupons thereto attached shall be signed by the chairman of this board and countersigned by the county auditor, and each of said bonds shall be sealed by the county auditor, who shall keep a record of the same, and when so executed and recorded said bonds shall be delivered to the purchasers thereof, and the proceeds derived therefrom shall be placed in the general ditch fund of the county for the purpose of paying a portion of the costs of locating, constructing and establishing the public ditches mentioned in the preamble hereof.

Be it further resolved, that the full faith, credit and resources of Red Lake County and of its board of county Commissioners be and the same are hereby pledged to provide moneys for the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds, when and as the same become due.

Which motion was seconded by Commissioner Hanson and on call of Commissioners Districts was carried by the following vote:

First district, Commissioner Sutor, yes.
Second district, Commissioner Demann, absent.
Third district, Commissioner Johnson, yes.
Fourth district, Commissioner Hanson, yes.
Fifth district, Commissioner Falardeau, yes.

Commissioner Johnson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Be it resolved by the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minn., that all resolutions and orders of this board heretofore made and adopted during the present year of 1903, directing or authorizing the issuance of bonds of said county for ditch purposes, and in particular the resolution authorizing the issue of $81,000 drainage bonds, adopted May 28, 1903, and the resolution authorizing the issue of $78,000 drainage bonds adopted September 12, 1903, be, and the same are, hereby repealed.

Motion seconded by Commissioner Hanson and Commissioners Hanson, Johnson, Falardeau and Sutor voting in the affirmative the same was declared adopted.

Commissioner Hanson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, the board of county commissioners have adopted a resolution selling $78,000 worth of drainage bonds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, and

Whereas, the said bonds have been presented by the said bank to be executed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners and the county auditor of said county,

Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the chairman of the board of county commissioners and the county auditor of said county immediatly execute said bonds and and the coupons thereto attached and deliver the same to the county treasurer of said county whose duty it shall be to deliver said bonds and coupons to the Merchants State bank of Red Lake Falls on receipt of $78,780.00.

DEADBEAT IN HARD LINES

Retail Merchants of Red Lake Falls Organize Association for Mutual Protection.

Red Lake Falls merchants have for the past several months been trying the plan of co-operation along lines that will result in mutual benfiet and have found it so successful that steps are at present being taken to have the Retail Merchant's association of this city to become affiliated with the state and national associations, with greatly increased possibilities so far as the individual good is concerned.

The Retail Merchant's association was organized first in Red Lake Falls last September and it has proven an entire success as it has in practically every town in the country where there is an association. It has resulted in a better feeling among the business men, puts them in a position as a whole to discuss and dispose of contingencies which may arise that effect the individual merchant, and last but not least has resulted in greatly improved credit. Promiscuous credit is a bad thing for any town and there is always a class of people anxious to secure it who make but slight pretense to ever settle their accounts. When a merchant in the Retail Merchants association has a customer who refuses absolutely to pay a bill after all honorable means have been exhausted to have him settle, he lists his name with the secretary of the association, who in turn notifies every member of the association that the man's credit is bad and he is refused credit by all the merchants who are members of the association. During the time that the local association has been extant it has had several cases of this kind and it is known in one instance at least the system resulted in the payment of a bill to a local business man, which might never have been collected otherwise.

The association does not aim to arbitrarily fix prices on produce, nor to do away with competition in any way, while it does not encourage indiscreet price cutting where it is prompted by personal spite.

At present thirteen of the grocery, hardware, clothing and general stores are members of the association, and it is probable that other lines of business will be represented in the near future. Theo. LaBissoniere is president and J. R. Fortier secretary, and the other members are Garceau & Zaiser, Bangs & Co., Delorme & St. Marie, H. M. Kaus, M. Skala, J. N. Nimesgern, Berthon & Armstrong, O'Brien Bros., Frank E. Hunt, Groshong & Blake and F. X. Caillier.

RED LAKE BILL.

New Plan For Opening the Eleven Towns to Be Devised.

A Washington dispatch says that Senator Clapp and Congressman Steenerson have had a long conference relative to the new Red Lake bill. Last winter a bill was passed providing for opening thirteen townships on the Red Lake reservation, opposite Thief River Falls. By the terms of this bill, the lands are to be sold at public auction. The Indians refused to ratify the provisions of the act passed at the last session because sections 16 and 36 in each township were to be reserved for school purposes. Under the new bill, these sections are included, and thus removes all opposition. Inasmuch as the courts have decided in the Kiowa case and in other suits brought by the Indians to set aside the acts of congress which had not been approved by the tribes of Indians affected, that the government is supreme and has the power to do pretty much as it pleases with its wards, it would seem that the old Red Lake bill now on the books might have been carried into effect, but it is the desire of the Minnesota senators and representatives to avoid all possible friction with the reds.

Better values than ever offered before can be had in dress goods this week at Gareeau & Zaiser's.

TOO MANY DEER KILLED.

Warden Discovers Scheme by Which Law is Evaded.

State Game Warden Fullerton has learned of a new method by which commission houses and pot-hunters are defying the game laws and securing deer for sale. The law requires a hunter to hold a license before shooting deer, and then he is limited to three, and hold, with the license, a tag or coupon for every deer.

Commission houses buy up a number of licenses through outside parties and send them to pot-hunters in Northern Minnesota. These men then kill all the deer they can and ship them with the coupons attached. As the license cost but $1 each it is practically no expense to the commission house.

The state game and fish commission, with the aid of the railroads, has found an effective means of stopping this work. Every license bears a description of the man who obtained it, and the railroad agent will hereafter see to it that the man who ships the game shall agree exactly with the description of the license.

In this way it is almost impossible for the commission firms to get licenses which will serve the purpose of the pot-hunters.

Venison is being served at some of the clubs and high-priced restaurants, and seems to be readily obtainable for market uses.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

THE MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

President Roosevelt's Annual Communication to the National Legislators

The Isthmian Canal and the Panama Revolution Are Given Lengthy Consideration

Says the Department of Commerce and Labor Will Go Far Towards Solving the Trust Problem.

Calls Attention to Undesirable Immigration—Asks for More Stringent Naturalization Laws and Enforcement

Wants Commission to Investigate Needs of Merchant Marine—Post Office and Public Land Frauds—Our Foreign Relations.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The country is to be congratulated on the amount of substantial achievement which has marked the past year both as regards our foreign and as regards our domestic policy.

With a nation as with a man the most important things are those of the household, and therefore the country is especially to be congratulated on what has been accomplished in the direction of providing for the exercise of supervision over the great corporations and combinations of corporations engaged in interstate commerce. The congress has created the department of commerce and labor, including the bureau of corporations, with for the first time authority to secure proper publicity of such proceedings of these great corporations as the public has the right to know. It has provided for the expediting of suits for the enforcement of the federal anti-trust law; and by another law it has secured equal treatment to all producers in the transportation of their goods, thus taking a long stride forward in making effective the work of the interstate commerce commission.

Bureau of Corporations.

The preliminary work of the bureau of corporations in the department has shown the wisdom of its creation. Publicity in corporate affairs will tend to do away with ignorance, and will afford facts upon which intelligent action may be taken. Systematic, intelligent investigation is already developing facts the knowledge of which is essential to a right understanding of the needs and duties of the business world. The corporation which is honestly and fairly organized, whose managers in the conduct of its business recognize their obligation to deal squarely with their stockholders, their competitors, and the public, has nothing to fear from such supervision. The purpose of this bureau is not to embarrass or assail legitimate business, but to aid in bringing about a better industrial condition—a condition under which there shall be obedience to law and recognition of public obligation by all corporations, great or small. The department of commerce and labor will be not only the clearing house for information regarding the business transactions of the nation, but the executive arm of the government to aid in strengthening our domestic and foreign markets, in perfecting our transportation facilities, in building up our merchant marine, in preventing the entrance of undesirable immigrants, in improving commercial and industrial conditions, and in bringing together on common ground those necessary partners in industrial progress—capital and labor. Commerce between the nations is steadily growing in volume, and the tendency of the times is toward closer trade relations. Constant watchfulness is needed to secure to Americans the chance to participate to the best advantage in foreign trade; and we may confidently expect that the new department will justify the expectation of its creators by the exercise of this watchfulness, as well as by the businesslike administration of such laws relating to our internal affairs as are intrusted to its care.

Capital and Labor.

The consistent policy of the national government, so far as it has the power, is to hold in check the unscrupulous man, whether employer or employe; but to refuse to weaken individual initiative or to hamper or cramp the industrial development of the country. We recognize that this is an era of federation and combination, in which great capitalistic corporations and labor unions have become factors of tremendous importance in all industrial centers. Hearty recognition is given the far-reaching, beneficent work which has been accomplished through both corporations and unions, and the line as between different corporations, as between different unions, is drawn as it is between different individuals; that is, it is drawn on conduct, the effort being to treat both organized capital and organized labor alike; asking nothing save that the interests of each shall be brought into harmony with the interests of the general public, and that the conduct of each shall conform to the fundamental rules of obedience to law, of individual freedom, and of justice and fair dealing towards all. Whenever either corporation, labor union or individual disregards the law or acts in a spirit of arbitrary and tyrannous interference with the rights of others, whether corporations or individuals, then where the federal government has jurisdiction, it will see to it that the misconduct is stopped, paying not the slightest heed to the position or power of the corporation, the union or the individual, but only to one vital fact—that is, the question whether or not the conduct of the individual or aggregate of individuals is in accordance with the law of the land. Every man must be guaranteed his liberty and his right to do as he likes with his property or his labor, so long as he does not infringe the rights of others. No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it. Obedience to the law is demanded as a right; not asked as a favor.

Receipts and Expenditures.

From all sources, exclusive of the postal service, the receipts of the government for the last fiscal year aggregated $560,396,674. The expenditures for the same period were $506,099,007, the surplus for the fiscal year being $54,297,667. The indications are that the surplus for the present fiscal year will be very small, if, indeed, there be any surplus. From July to November the receipts from customs were, approximately, $9,000,000 less than the receipts from the same source for a corresponding portion of last year. Should this decrease continue at the same ratio throughout the fiscal year, the surplus would be reduced by, approximately, $30,000,000. Should the revenue from customs suffer much further decrease during the fiscal year, the surplus would vanish.

Financial Legislation Not Needed.

The integrity of our currency is beyond question, and under present conditions it would be unwise and unnecessary to attempt a reconstruction of our entire monetary system. The same liberty should be granted the secretary of the treasury to deposit customs receipts as is granted him in the deposit of receipts from other sources. In my message of December 2, 1902, I called attention to certain needs of the financial situation, and I again ask the consideration of the congress for these questions.

The Merchant Marine.

A majority of our people desire that steps be taken in the interests of American shipping, so that we may once more resume our former position in the ocean carrying trade. But hitherto the differences of opinion as to the proper method of reaching this end have been so wide that it has proved impossible to secure the adoption of any particular scheme. Having in view these facts, I recommend that the congress direct the secretary of the navy, the postmaster general and the secretary of commerce and labor, associated with such a representation from the senate and house of representatives as the congress in its wisdom may designate, to serve as a commission for the purpose of investigating and reporting to the congress at its next session what legislation is desirable or necessary for the development of the American merchant marine and American commerce, and incidentally of a national ocean mail service of adequate auxiliary naval cruisers and naval reserves. While such a measure is desirable in any event, it is especially desirable at this time, in view of the fact that our present governmental contract for ocean mail with the American line will expire in 1905. Our ocean mail act was passed in 1891. In 1895 our 20-knot transatlantic mail line was equal to any foreign line. Since then the Germans have put on 23-knot steamers, and the British have contracted for 24-knot steamers. Our service should equal the best. If it does not, the commercial public will abandon it. If we are to stay in the business it ought to be with a full understanding of the advantages to the country on one hand, and on the other with exact knowledge of the cost and proper methods of carrying it on. Moreover, lines of cargo ships are of even more importance than fast mail lines; save so far as the latter can be depended upon to furnish swift auxiliary cruisers in time of war. The establishment of new lines of cargo ships to South America, to Asia, and elsewhere would be much in the interest of our commercial expansion.

Immigration.

We cannot have too much immigration of the right kind, and we should have none at all of the wrong kind. The need is to devise some system by which undesirable immigrants shall be kept out entirely, while desirable immigrants are properly distributed throughout the country. At present some districts which need immigrants have none; and in others, where the population is already congested, immigrants come in such numbers as to depress the conditions of life for those already there. During the last two years the immigration service at New York has been greatly improved, and the corruption and inefficiency which formerly obtained there have been eradicated. This service has just been investigated by a committee of New York citizens of high standing, Messrs. Arthur V. Briesen, Lee K. Frankel, Eugene A. Philbin, Thomas W. Hynes and Ralph Trautman. Their report deals with the whole situation at length, and concludes with certain recommendations for administrative and legislative action. It is now receiving the attention of the secretary of commerce and labor.

Naturalization Frauds.

The special investigation of the subject of naturalization under the direction of the attorney general, and the consequent prosecutions, reveal a condition of affairs calling for the immediate attention of congress. Forgeries and perjuries of shameless and flagrant character have been perpetrated, not only in the dense centers of population, but throughout the country; and it is established beyond doubt that very many so-called citizens of the United States have no title whatever to that right, and are asserting and enjoying the benefits of the same through the grossest frauds. It is never to be forgotten that citizenship is, to quote the words recently used by the supreme court of the United States, an "inestimable heritage," whether it proceeds from birth within the country, or is obtained by naturalization; and we poison the sources of our national character and strength at the fountain, if the privilege is claimed and exercised without right, and by means of fraud and corruption. The body politic cannot be sound and healthy if many of its constituent members claim their standing through the prostitution of the high right and calling of citizenship. It should mean something to become a citizen of the United States; and in the process no loophole whatever should be left open to fraud.

The federal grand jury lately in session in New York city dealt with this subject and made a presentment which states the situation briefly and forcibly and contains important suggestions for the consideration of the congress. This presentment is included as an appendix to the report of the attorney general.

Government Department Frauds.

In my last annual message, in connection with the subject of the due regulation of combinations of capital which are or may become injurious to the public, I recommended a special appropriation for the better enforcement of the anti-trust law as it now stands, to be expended under the direction of the attorney general. Accordingly (by the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation act of February 25, 1903, 32 Stat., 854, 904), the congress appropriated, for the purpose of enforcing the various federal trust and interstate commerce laws, the sum of $500,000, to be expended under the direction of the attorney general in the employment of special counsel and agents in the department of justice to conduct proceedings and prosecutions under said laws in the courts of the United States. I now recommend, as a matter of the utmost importance and urgency, the extension of the purposes of this appropriation, so that it may be available, under the direction of the attorney general, and until used, for the due enforcement of the laws of the United States in general and especially of the civil and criminal laws relating to public lands and the laws relating to postal crimes and offenses and the subject of naturalization. Recent investigations have shown a deplorable state of affairs in these three matters of vital concern. By various frauds and by forgeries and perjuries, thousands of acres of the public domain, embracing lands of different character and extending through various sections of the country, have been dishonestly acquired. It is hardly necessary to urge the importance of recovering these dishonest acquisitions, stolen from the people, and of promptly and duly punishing the offenders. I speak in another part of this message of the widespread crimes by which the sacred right of citizenship is falsely asserted and that "inestimable heritage" perverted to base ends. By similar means—that is, through frauds, forgeries and perjuries, and by shameless briberies—the laws relating to the proper conduct of the public service in general and to the due administration of the post office department have been notoriously violated, and many indictments have been found, and the consequent prosecutions are in course of hearing or on the eve thereof. For the reasons thus indicated, and so that the government may be prepared to enforce promptly and with the greatest effect the due penalties for such violations of law, and to this end may be furnished with sufficient instrumentalities and competent legal assistance for the investigations and trials which will be necessary at many different points of the country, I urge upon the congress the necessity of making the said appropriation available for immediate use for all such purposes, to be expended under the direction of the attorney general.

New Extradition Treaties Needed.

Steps have been taken by the state department looking to the making of bribery an extraditable offense with foreign powers. The need of more effective treaties covering this crime is manifest. The exposures and prosecutions of official corruption in St. Louis, Mo., and other cities and states have resulted in a number of givers and takers of bribes becoming fugitives in foreign lands. Bribery has not been included in extradition treaties heretofore, as the necessity for it has not arisen. While there may have been as much official corruption in former years, there has been more developed and brought to light in the immediate past than in the preceding century of our country's history. It should be the policy of the United States to leave no place on earth where a corrupt man fleeing from this country can rest in peace. There is no reason why bribery should not be included in all treaties as extraditable. The recent amended treaty with Mexico, whereby this crime was put in the list of extraditable offenses, has established a salutary precedent in this regard. Under this treaty the state department has asked, and Mexico has granted, the extradition of one of the St. Louis bribe givers.

The Alaskan Boundary.

For several years past the rapid development of Alaska and the growing American interests in regions theretofore unsurveyed and imperfectly known brought into prominence the urgent necessity of a practical demarcation of the boundaries between the jurisdictions of the United States and Great Britain. Although the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, the provisions of which were copied in the treaty of 1867, whereby Russia conveyed Alaska to the United States, was positive as to the control, first by Russia and later by the United States, of a strip of territory along the continental mainland from the western shore of Portland canal to Mount St. Elias, following and surrounding the indentations of the coast and including the islands to the westward, its description of the landward margin of the strip was indefinite, resting on the supposed existence of a continuous ridge or range of mountains skirting the coast, as figured in the charts of the early navigators. It had at no time been possible for either party in interest to lay down, under the authority of the treaty, a line so obviously exact according to its provisions as to command the assent of the other.

After unavailing attempts to reach an understanding through a joint high commission, followed by prolonged negotiations, conducted in an amicable spirit, a convention between the United States and Great Britain was signed, January 24, 1903, providing for an examination of the subject by a mixed tribunal of six members, three on a side, with a view to its final disposition. Ratifications were exchanged on March 3 last, whereupon the two governments appointed their respective members. Those on behalf of the United States were Elihu Root, secretary of War; Henry Cabot Lodge, a senator of the United States, and George Turner, an ex-Senator of the United States, while Great Britain named the Right Honorable Lord Alverstone, lord chief justice of England; Sir Louis Amable Jette, K. C. M. G., retired judge of the supreme court of Quebec, and A. B. Aylesworth, K. C., of Toronto. This tribunal met in London on September 3, under the presidency of Lord Alverstone. The proceedings were expeditious, and marked by a friendly and conscientious spirit. The respective cases, counter cases and arguments presented the issues clearly and fully. On the 20th of October a majority of the tribunal reached and signed an agreement on all the questions submitted by the terms of the convention. By this award the right of the United States to the control of a continuous strip or border of the mainland shore, skirting all the tide-water inlets and sinuosities of the coast, is confirmed; the entrance to Portland canal (concerning which legitimate doubt appeared) is defined as passing by Tongass inlet and to the northwestward of Wales and Pearse islands; a line is drawn from the head of Portland canal to the fifty-sixth degree of north latitude; and the interior border line of the strip is fixed by lines connecting certain mountain summits lying between Portland canal and Mount St. Elias, and running along the crest of the divide separating the coast slope from the inland watershed at the only part of the frontier where the drainage ridge approaches the coast within the distance of ten marine leagues stipulated by the treaty as the extreme width of the strip around the heads of Lynn canal and its branches.

The award is self-executing on the vital points. To make it effective as regards the others it only remains for the two governments to appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts, who shall, with all convenient speed, proceed together to lay down the boundary line in accordance with the decision of the majority of the tribunal. I recommend that the congress make adequate provision for the appointment, compensation and expenses of the members to serve on this joint boundary commission on the part of the United States.

Claims Against Venezuela.

It will be remembered that during the second session of the last congress Great Britain, Germany and Italy formed an alliance for the purpose of blockading the ports of Venezuela and using such other means of pressure as would secure a settlement of claims due, as they alleged, to certain of their subjects. Their employment of force for the collection of these claims was terminated by an agreement brought about through the offices of the diplomatic representatives of the United States at Caracas and the government at Washington, thereby ending a situation which was bound to cause increasing friction, and which jeoparded the peace of the continent. Under this agreement Venezuela agreed to set apart a certain percentage of the customs receipts of two of her ports to be applied to the payment of whatever obligations might be ascertained by mixed commissions appointed for that purpose to be due from her, not only to the three powers already mentioned, whose proceedings against her had resulted in a state of war, but also to the United States, France, Spain, Belgium, the Netherlands, Sweden and Norway, and Mexico, who had not employed force for the collection of the claims alleged to be due to certain of their citizens.

A demand was then made by the so-called blockading powers that the sums ascertained to be due to their citizens by such mixed commission should be accorded payment in full before anything was paid upon the claims of any of the so-called peace powers. Venezuela, on the other hand, insisted that all her creditors should be paid upon a basis of exact equality. During the efforts to adjust this dispute it was suggested by the powers in interest that it should be referred to me for decision, but I was clearly of the opinion that a far wiser course would be to submit the question to the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague. It seemed to me to offer an admirable opportunity to advance the practice of the peaceful settlement of disputes between nations and to secure for The Hague tribunal a memorable increase of its practical importance. The nations interested in the controversy were so numerous, and in many instances so powerful as to make it evident that beneficent results would follow from their appearance at the same time before the bar of that august tribunal of peace.

Our hopes in that regard have been realized. Russia and Austria are represented in the persons of the learned and distinguished jurists who compose the tribunal, while Great Britain, Germany, France, Spain, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Sweden and Norway, Mexico, the United States and Venezuela are represented by their respective agents and counsel. Such an imposing concourse of nations presenting their arguments to and invoking the decision of that high court of international justice and international peace can hardly fail to secure a like submission of many future controversies. The nations now appearing there will find it far easier to appear there a second time, while no nation can imagine its just pride will be lessened by following the example now presented. This triumph of the principle of international arbitration is a subject of warm congratulation and offers a happy augury for the peace of the world.

Relations with Turkey.

Early in July, having received intelligence, which happily turned out to be erroneous, of the assassination of our vice consul at Beirut, I dispatched a small squadron to that port for such service as might be found necessary on arrival. Although the attempt on the life of our vice consul had not been successful, yet the outrage was symptomatic of a state of excitement and disorder which demanded immediate attention. The arrival of the vessels had the happiest result. A feeling of security at once took the place of the former alarm and disquiet; our officers were cordially welcomed by the consular body and the leading merchants, and ordinary business resumed its activity. The government of the sultan gave a considerate hearing to the representations of our minister; the official who was regarded as responsible for the disturbed condition of affairs was removed. Our relations with the Turkish government remain friendly; our claims founded on inequitable treatment of some of our schools and missions appear to be in process of amicable adjustment.

Relations with China.

The signing of a new commercial treaty with China, which took place at Shanghai on the 8th of October, is a cause for satisfaction. This act, the result of long discussion and negotiation, places our commercial relations with the great oriental empire on a more satisfactory footing than they have ever heretofore enjoyed. It provides not only for the ordinary rights and privileges of diplomatic and consular officers, but also for an important extension of our commerce by increased facility of access to Chinese ports, and for the relief of trade by the removal of some of the obstacles which have embarrassed it in the past. The Chinese government engages, on fair and equitable conditions, which will probably be accepted by the principal commercial nations, to abandon

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Rural Free Delivery.

The rural free-delivery service has been steadily extended. The attention of the congress is asked to the question of the compensation of the letter carriers and clerks engaged in the postal service, especially on the new rural free-delivery routes. More routes have been installed since the first of July last than in any like period in the department's history. While a due regard to economy must be kept in mind in the establishment of new routes, yet the extension of the rural free-delivery system must be continued, for reasons of sound public policy. No governmental movement of recent years has resulted in greater immediate benefit to the people of the country districts. Rural free delivery, taken in connection with the telephone, the bicycle, and the trolley, accomplishes much toward lessening the isolation of farm life and making it brighter and more attractive.

International Expositions.

I trust that the congress will continue to favor in all proper ways the Louisiana Purchase exposition. This exposition commemorates the Louisiana purchase, which was the first great step in the expansion which made us a continental nation. The expedition of Lewis and Clark across the continent followed thereon, and marked the beginning of the process of exploration and colonization which thrust our national boundaries to the Pacific. The acquisition of the Oregon country, including the present states of Oregon and Washington, was a fact of immense importance in our history; first giving us our place on the Pacific seaboard, and making ready the way for our ascendency in the commerce of the greatest of the oceans. The centennial of our establishment upon the western coast by the expedition of Lewis and Clark is to be celebrated at Portland, Ore., by an exposition in the summer of 1905, and this event should receive recognition and support from the national government.

Our Insular Possessions.

I recommend that an appropriation be made for building lighthouses in Hawaii, and taking possession of those already built. The territory should be reimbursed for whatever amounts it has already expended for lighthouses. The governor should be empowered to suspend or remove any official appointed by him, without submitting the matter to the legislature.

Of our insular possessions the Philippines and Porto Rico it is gratifying to say that their steady progress has been such as to make it unnecessary to spend much time in discussing them. Yet the congress should ever keep in mind that a peculiar obligation rests upon us to further in every way the welfare of these communities. The Philippines should be knit closer to us by tariff arrangements. It would, of course, be impossible suddenly to raise the people of the islands to the high pitch of industrial prosperity and of governmental efficiency to which they will in the end by degrees attain; and the caution and moderation shown in developing them have been among the main reasons why this development has hitherto gone on so smoothly. Scrupulous care has been taken in the choice of governmental agents, and the entire elimination of partisan politics from the public service. The condition of the islanders is in material things far better than ever before, while their governmental, intellectual and moral advance has kept pace with their material advance. No one people ever benefited another people more than we have benefited the Filipinos by taking possession of the islands.

The Public Lands.

A gratifying disposition has been evinced by those having unlawful inclosures of public land to remove their fences. Nearly 2,000,000 acres so inclosed have been thrown open on demand. In but comparatively few cases has it been necessary to go into court to accomplish this purpose. This work will be vigorously prosecuted until all unlawful inclosures have been removed.

Experience has shown that in the western states themselves, as well as in the rest of the country, there is widespread conviction that certain of the public land laws and the resulting administrative practice no longer meet the present needs. The character and uses of the remaining public lands differ widely from those of the public lands which congress had especially in view when these laws were passed. The rapidly increasing rate of disposal of the public lands is not followed by a corresponding increase in home building. There is a tendency to mass in large holdings public lands, especially timber and grazing lands, and thereby to retard settlement. I renew and emphasize my recommendation of last year that so far as they are available for agriculture in its broadest sense, and to whatever extent they may be reclaimed under the national irrigation law the remaining public lands should be held rigidly for the home builder. The attention of the congress is especially directed to the timber and stone law, the desert-land law, and the commutation clause of the homestead law, which in their operation have in many respects conflicted with wise public-land policy. The discussions in the congress and elsewhere have made it evident that there is a wide divergence of opinions between those holding opposite views on these subjects; and that the opposing sides have strong and convinced representatives of weight both within and without the congress; the differences being not only as to matters of opinion but as to matters of fact. In order that definite information may be available for the use of the congress, I have appointed a commission composed of W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office; Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry of the department of agriculture, and F. H. Newell, chief hydrographer of the geological survey, to report at the earliest practicable moment upon the condition, operation and effect of the present land laws and on the use, condition, disposal and settlement of the public lands. The commission will report especially what changes in organization, laws, regulations and practice affecting the public lands are needed to effect the largest practicable disposition of the public lands to actual settlers who will build permanent homes upon them, and to secure in permanence the fullest and most effective use of the resources of the public lands; and it will make such other reports and recommendations as its study of these questions may suggest. The commission is to report immediately upon those points concerning which its judgment is clear; on any point upon which it has doubt it will take the time necessary to make investigation and reach a final judgment.

The Army and Navy.

The effect of the laws providing a general staff for the army and for the more effective use of the national guard has been excellent. Great improvement has been made in the efficiency of our army in recent years. Such schools as those erected at Fort Leavenworth and Fort Riley and the institution of fall maneuver work accomplish satisfactory results. The good effect of these maneuvers upon the national guard is marked, and ample appropriation should be made to enable the guardsmen of the several states to share in the benefit. The government should as soon as possible secure suitable permanent camp sites for military maneuvers in the various sections of the country. The service thereby rendered not only to the regular army, but to the national guard of the several states, will be so great as to repay many times over the relatively small expense. We should not rest satisfied with what has been done, however. The only people who are contented with a system of promotion by mere seniority are those who are contented with the triumph of mediocrity over excellence. On the other hand a system which encouraged the exercise of social or political favoritism in promotions would be even worse. But it would surely be easy to devise a method of promotion from grade to grade in which the opinion of the higher officers of the service upon the candidates should be decisive upon the standing and promotion of the latter.

The Navy.

I heartily congratulate the congress upon the steady progress in building up the American navy. We cannot afford a let-up in this great work. To stand still means to go back. There should be no cessation in adding to the effective units of the fighting strength of the fleet. Meanwhile the navy department and the officers of the navy are doing well their part by providing constant service at sea under conditions akin to those of actual warfare. Our officers and enlisted men are learning to handle the battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats with high efficiency in fleet and squadron formations, and the standard of marksmanship is being steadily raised. The best work ashore is indispensable, but the highest duty of a naval officer is to exercise command at sea.

It is eminently desirable, however, that there should be provided a naval general staff on lines similar to those of the general staff lately created for the army. Within the navy department itself the needs of the service have brought about a system under which the duties of a general staff are partially performed; for the bureau of navigation has under its direction the war college, the office of naval intelligence and the board of inspection, and has been in close touch with the general board of the navy. But though under the excellent officers at their head, these boards and bureaus do good work, they have not the authority of a general staff, and have not sufficient scope to insure a proper readiness for emergencies. We need the establishment by law of a body of trained officers, who shall exercise a systematic control of the military affairs of the navy, and be authorized advisers of the secretary concerning it.

The Isthmian Canal.

By the act of June 28, 1902, the congress authorized the president to enter into treaty with Colombia for the building of the canal across the Isthmus of Panama; it being provided that in the event of failure to secure such treaty after the lapse of a reasonable time, recourse should be had to building a canal through Nicaragua. It has not been necessary to consider this alternative, as I am enabled to lay before the senate a treaty providing for the building of the canal across the Isthmus of Panama. This was the route which commended itself to the deliberate judgment of the congress, and we can now acquire by treaty the right to construct the canal over this route. The question now, therefore, is not by which route the isthmian canal shall be built, for that question has been definitely and irrevocably decided. The question is simply whether or not we shall have an isthmian canal.

When the congress directed that we should take the Panama route under treaty with Colombia, the essence of the condition, of course, referred not to the government which controlled that route, but to the route itself; to the territory across which the route lay, not to the name which for the moment the territory bore on the map. The purpose of the law was to authorize the president to make a treaty with the power in actual control of the Isthmus of Panama. This purpose has been fulfilled.

Isthmian Treaty Obligations.

In the year 1846 this government entered into a treaty with New Granada, the predecessor upon the Isthmus of the Republic of Colombia and of the present Republic of Panama, by which treaty it was provided that the government and citizens of the United States should always have free and open right of way or transit across the Isthmus of Panama by any modes of communication that might be constructed, while in return our government guaranteed the perfect neutrality of the above-named isthmus with the view that the free transit from the one to the other sea might not be interrupted or embarrassed. The treaty vested in the United States a substantial property right carved out of the rights of sovereignty and property which New Granada then had and possessed over the said territory. The name of New Granada has passed away and its territory has been divided. Its successor, the government of Colombia, has ceased to own any property in the isthmus. A new republic, that of Panama, which was at one time a sovereign state, and at another time a mere department of the successive confederations known as New Granada and Colombia, has now succeeded to the rights which first one and then the other formerly exercised over the isthmus. But as long as the isthmus endures, the mere geographical fact of its existence, and the peculiar interest therein which is required by our position, perpetuate the solemn contract which binds the holders of the territory to respect our right to freedom of transit across it, and binds us in return to safeguard for the isthmus and the world the exercise of that inestimable privilege. The true interpretation of the obligations upon which the United States entered in this treaty of 1846 has been given repeatedly in the utterances of presidents and secretaries of state.

For 400 years, ever since shortly after the discovery of this hemisphere, the canal across the isthmus has been planned. For twoscore years it has been worked at. When made it is to last for the ages. It is to alter the geography of a continent and the trade routes of the world. We have shown by every treaty we have negotiated or attempted to negotiate with the peoples in control of the isthmus and with foreign nations in reference thereto our consistent good faith in observing our obligations; on the one hand to the peoples of the isthmus, and on the other hand to the civilized world whose commercial rights we are safeguarding and guaranteeing by our action. We have done our duty to others in letter and spirit, and we have shown the utmost forbearance in exacting our own rights.

Colombia's Repudiation of Treaty.

Last spring, under the act above referred to, a treaty concluded between the representatives of the Republic of Colombia and of our government was ratified by the senate. This treaty was entered into at the urgent solicitation of the people of Colombia and after a body of experts appointed by our government especially to go into the matter of the routes across the isthmus had pronounced unanimously in favor of Panama route. In drawing up this treaty every concession was made to the people and to the government of Colombia. We were more than just in dealing with them. Our generosity was such as to make it a serious question whether we had not gone too far in their interest at the expense of our own; for in our scrupulous desire to pay all possible heed, not merely to the real but even to the fancied rights of our weaker neighbor, who already owed so much to our protection and forbearance, we yielded in all possible ways to her desires in drawing up the treaty. Nevertheless the government of Colombia not merely repudiated the treaty, but repudiated it in such manner as to make it evident by the time the Colombian congress adjourned that not the scantiest hope remained of ever getting a satisfactory treaty from them. The government of Colombia made the treaty, and yet when the Colombian congress was called to ratify it the vote against ratification was unanimous. It does not appear that the government made any real effort to secure ratification.

Revolution in Panama.

Immediately after the adjournment of the congress a revolution broke out in Panama. The people of Panama had long been discontented with the Republic of Colombia, and they had been kept quiet only by the prospect of the conclusion of the treaty, which was to them a matter of vital concern. When it became evident that the treaty was hopelessly lost, the people of Panama rose literally as one man. Not a shot was fired by a single man on the isthmus in the interest of the Colombian government. Not a life was lost in the accomplishment of the revolution. The Colombian troops stationed on the isthmus, who had long been unpaid, made common cause with the people of Panama, and with astonishing unanimity the new republic was started. The duty of the United States in the premises was clear. In strict accordance with the principles laid down by Secretaries Cass and Seward in the official documents above quoted, the United States gave notice that it would permit the landing of no expeditionary force, the arrival of which would mean chaos and destruction along the line of the railroad and of the proposed canal, and an interruption of transit as an inevitable consequence.

Previous Isthmian Disturbances.

When these events happened, 57 years had elapsed since the United States had entered into its treaty with New Granada. During that time the governments of New Granada and of its successor, Colombia, have been in a turmoil. The experience of over half a century has shown Colombia to be utterly incapable of keeping order on the isthmus. Only the active interference of the United States has enabled her to preserve so much as a semblance of sovereignty. Had it not been for the exercise by the United States of the police power in her interest, her connection with the isthmus would have been sundered long ago. In 1856, in 1860, in 1873, in 1885, in 1901, and again in 1902, sailors and marines from United States warships were forced to land in order to patrol the isthmus, to protect life and property and to see that the transit across the isthmus was kept open. In 1861, in 1862, in 1885, and in 1900 the Colombian government asked that the United States government would land troops to protect its interests and maintain order on the isthmus. Perhaps the most extraordinary request is that which has just been received and which runs as follows:

Colombia's Latest Proposition.

"Knowing that revolution has already commenced in Panama [an eminent Colombian] says that if the government of the United States will land troops to preserve Colombian sovereignty, and the transit, if requested by Colombian charge d'affaires, this government will declare martial law; and, by virtue of vested constitutional authority, when public order is disturbed, will approve by decree the ratification of the canal treaty as signed; or, if the government of the United States prefers, will call extra session of the congress—with new and friendly members—next May to approve the treaty. [An eminent Colombian] has the perfect confidence of vice president, he says, and if it became necessary will go to the isthmus or send representative there to adjust matters along above lines to the satisfaction of the people there."

This dispatch is noteworthy from two standpoints. Its offer of immediately guaranteeing the treaty to us is in sharp contrast with the positive and contemptuous refusal of the congress which has just closed its sessions to consider favorably such a treaty; it shows that the government which made the treaty really had absolute control over the situation, but did not choose to exercise this control. The dispatch further calls on us to restore order and secure Colombian supremacy in the isthmus from which the Colombian government has just by its action decided to bar us by preventing the construction of the canal.

Important to Us.

The control, in the interest of the commerce and traffic of the whole civilized world, of the means of undisturbed transit across the isthmus of Panama has become of transcendent importance to the United States. We have repeatedly exercised this control by intervening in the course of domestic dissension, and by protecting the territory from foreign invasion. In 1853 Mr. Everett assured the Peruvian minister that we should not hesitate to maintain the neutrality of the isthmus in the case of war between Peru and Colombia. In 1864 Colombia, which has always been vigilant to avail itself of its privileges conferred by the treaty, expressed its expectation that in the event of war between Peru and Spain the United States would carry into effect the guaranty of neutrality. There have been few administrations of the state department in which this treaty has not, either by the one side or the other, been used as a basis of more or less important demands. It was said by Mr. Fish in 1871 that the department of state had reason to believe that an attack upon Colombian sovereignty on the isthmus had, on several occasions, been averted by warning from this government. In 1886, when Colombia was under the menace of hostilities from Italy in the Cerruti case, Mr. Bayard expressed the serious concern that the United States could not but feel, that a European power should resort to force against a sister republic of this hemisphere, as to the sovereign and uninterrupted use of a part of whose territory we are guarantors under the solemn faith of a treaty.

The above recital of facts establishes beyond question: First, that the United States has for over half a century patiently and in good faith carried out its obligations under the treaty of 1846; second, that when for the first time it became possible for Colombia to do anything in requital of the services thus repeatedly rendered to it for 57 years by the United States, the Colombian government peremptorily and offensively refused thus to do its part, even though to do so would have been to its advantage and immeasurably to the advantage of the state of Panama, at that time under its jurisdiction; third, that throughout this period revolutions, riots, and factional disturbances of every kind have occurred one after the other in almost uninterrupted succession, some of them lasting for months and even for years, while the central government was unable to put them down or to make peace with the rebels; fourth, that these disturbances instead of showing any sign of abating have tended to grow more numerous and more serious in the immediate past; fifth, that the control of Colombia over the Isthmus of Panama could not be maintained without the armed intervention and assistance of the United States. In other words, the government of Colombia, though wholly unable to maintain order on the isthmus, has nevertheless declined to ratify a treaty the conclusion of which opened the only chance to secure its own stability and to guarantee permanent peace on, and the construction of a canal across, the isthmus.

Under such circumstances the government of the United States would have been guilty of folly and weakness, amounting in their sum to a crime against the nation, had it acted otherwise than it did when the revolution of November 3 last took place in Panama. This great enterprise of building the interoceanic canal cannot be held up to gratify the whims, or out of respect to the governmental impotence, or to the even more sinister and evil political peculiarities, of people who, though they dwell afar off, yet, against the wish of the actual dwellers on the isthmus, assert an unreal supremacy over the territory. The possession of a territory fraught with such peculiar capacities as the isthmus in question carries with it obligations to mankind. The course of events has shown that this canal cannot be built by private enterprise, or by any other nation than our own; therefore it must be built by the United States.

Provisions of Panama Treaty.

Every effort has been made by the government of the United States to persuade Colombia to follow a course which was essentially not only to our interests and to the interests of the world, but to the interests of Colombia itself. These efforts have failed; and Colombia, by her persistence in repulsing the advances that have been made, has forced us, for the sake of our own honor, and of the interest and well being, not merely of our own people, but of the people of the isthmus of Panama and the people of the civilized countries of the world, to take decisive steps to bring to an end a condition of affairs which had become intolerable. The new republic of Panama immediately offered to negotiate a treaty with us. This treaty I herewith submit. By it our interests are better safeguarded than in the treaty with Colombia which was ratified by the senate at its last session. It is better in its terms than the treaties offered to us by the republics of Nicaragua and Costa Rica. At last the right to begin this great undertaking is made available. Panama has done her part. All that remains is for the American congress to do its part and forthwith this republic will enter upon the execution of a project colossal in its size and of well-nigh incalculable possibilities for the good of this country and the nations of mankind.

By the provisions of the treaty the United States guarantees and will maintain the independence of the republic of Panama. There is granted to the United States in perpetuity the use, occupation and control of a strip ten miles wide and extending three nautical miles into the sea at either terminal, with all lands lying outside of the zone necessary for the construction of the canal or for its auxiliary works, and with the islands in the bay of Panama. The cities of Panama and Colon are not embraced in the canal zone, but the United States assumes their sanitation and, in case of need, the maintenance of order therein; the United States enjoys within the granted limits all the rights, power and authority which it would possess were it the sovereign of the territory to the exclusion of the exercise of sovereign rights by the republic. All railway and canal property rights belonging to Panama and needed for the canal pass to the United States, including any property of the respective companies in the cities of Panama and Colon; the works, property and personnel of the canal and railways are exempted from taxation as well in the cities of Panama and Colon as in the canal zone and its dependencies. Free immigration of the personnel and importation of supplies for the construction and operation of the canal are granted. Provision is made for the use of military force and the building of fortifications by the United States for the protection of the transit. In other details, particularly as to the acquisition of the interests of the New Panama Canal company and the Panama railway by the United States and the condemnation of private property for the uses of the canal, the stipulations of the Hay-Herran treaty are closely followed, while the compensation to be given for these enlarged grants remains the same, being $10,000,000 payable on exchange of ratifications; and, beginning nine years from that date, an annual payment of $250,000 during the life of the convention.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salvse and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has the senate on his hands and would be obliged if somebody would help him let go.

MR. HANNA has said that he is not a candidate for president, but fails to add that declination is "unalterable and conclusive.

THE senate has proved a stumbling block in the path of many a president's ambition, and it has never been taught to submit to rough rider methods.

THE man who recently sold his ear to a Western millionaire for $5,000, offers $1,000 for a new one. This thing may keep on ad infinitum and still somebody will be shy on ears.

THE Journal thinks that Minneapolis ought to find a great Republican to represent the city in congress. Well, let's see; there's Ray Jones, Tom Shevlin and Tom Lowry. Take your choice—the candidate will probably be willing to pay the money.

TOMORROW the Republican national committee will meet in Washington to select the place and date of the next national convention. The retention or expulsion of Perry Heath as secretary will also prove conclusively whether Senator Hanna or President Roosevelt is boss of the committee.

"WHEN it comes to pointing to 'official records,'' remarks the Elk River Star News, "it would seemas though ex-Auditor Dunn would be able to hold his own against all comers. Dunn's advantage lies in the fact that he has accomplished some things for the people; the other fellows merely promise to accomplish some things."

GOVERNOR VAN SANT states emphatically that he is not a candidate for a third term. It is assumed that the influence of the administration will be exerted in behalf of Collins. However, many of the jobholders even are wary about getting on the band-wagon, which would seem to indicate that the Judge's boom is not gathering strength as rapidly as might be wished.

THE Columbia State notes that "it is an exceedingly fortunate coincidence for President Roosevelt's friend General Wood, that the stories of his military prowess in Jolo should reach this country just at the time when his record in Cuba is being so severely attacked. The coincidence is almost as timely as the unexpected Panama revolt on the eve of the special session of congress. Verily, the fates are kind to President Roosevelt, his friends, and his schemes."

THE naval budgets of eight of the leading powers of the world for 1903-4 comes out as follows: Great Britain, £36,123,520; France, £12,517,270; Germany, £11,141,760; Russia, £11,067,880; Italy, £4,704,040; Austria, £1,820,600; United States, £16,355,440, and Japan, £3,237,280. The corresponding budgets for 1902-03 were: Great Britain, £32,635,720; France, £12,533,860; Germany, £10,686,840; Russia, £10,618,440; Italy, £5,086,640· Austria, £1,736,880; United States, £15,571,280, and Japan, £2,933,520.

GENERAL WOOD'S case is going from bad to worse in the opinion of the press, for in addition to the charges of what amounts to bribe-taking while he was governor-general of Cuba, Major Runcie now comes foward with the statement that Wood abetted the published criticisms of General Brooke with the understood purpose of succeeding him in office. If these charges are established (in fairness to Wood it should be remembered that they have not been proved as yet), then the general will have to do something more than kill 300 Moros in order to justify his appointment to be a major-general over the heads of officers who are, in the popular estimation, better entitled to this high honor.

LAST week the supreme court decided that State Auditor Dunn was right in refusing to pay a $20,000 bonus to the Minnesota Beet Sugar company. It will be remembered that five years ago the legislature passed a fool law authorizing the payment of a bonus of one cent per pound on all the beet sugar manufactured in the state. Governor Lind vetoed the measure, and the legislature promptly passed the law over his veto. Bob Dunn then refused to carry out the provisions of act, claiming the law was illegal and in direct conflict with the constitution. Dunn's contention is now upheld by the supreme court. It is well that the state of Minnesota takes a pronounced stand against bonuses and subsidies in aid of private enterprises.

THE financial skies show dark clouds hovering overhead, and conditions are almost as threatening as in the winter of '92-3. The storm may pass without serious injury—we hope so; but whether or no the people ought to be convinced that the political party in power is not always responsible for adverse business conditions. This time there is no Democratic president; no Wilson tariff law; no threatened restoration of silver to a parity with gold. It would be easy for the Democrats to claim, as probably they will in case of a more serious stringency of the money market, that Republican legislation is responsible. But it will not be true, any more than the Republican claims in 1893 were true. Panics are invariably the result of the day of reckoning after a season of reckless living and wild speculation. It is a loss of confidence in the ability of debtors to meet their obligations, and a sudden transition from an era of easy credit to one of ultra conservatism. It follows as a natural sequence that if we had less of boom times there would be fewer panics.

We all know people whose chief charm lies in their exquisite cleanliness, and about whom there lingers a faint, sweet odor as of wild flowers. LETTER FROM AUGUST RIECHEL

Red Lake County People Out West Are Prosperous.

Oregon City, Oregon, November 29—Dear Brother: We arrived at Oregon City Thanksgiving night after a very pleasant trip. We struck snow in Montana and east of the Cascades in Washington. We stopped for a week at North Yakima, where we found ten inches of snow. The weather was very disagreeable; lots of slush and mud. Found all the Red Lake Falls people in good health and doing well. Peter Beautrow was very kind and drove us about the country for three days in succession to look at places that were for sale. Peter has done well. He has made $1.500, besides working at home half of the time. We saw one place at North Yakima that we liked. North Yakima is certainly a fine country, but land is way up. We looked at a place of ten acres which was well improved that was worth $4,000. The owner received $1,200 for his crop this year. We left North Yakima Saturday, November 21, and found about four feet of snow in the Cascades. When we got over them everything was green and the sun was shining like a May day in Minnesota. Our train was four hours late, so we reached Puyallup at 4 o'clock. We left Grandpa in charge of a brother Oddfellow we met on the train, who saw him through to Portland, where he was met by his son-in-law, A. C. Tower. Grandpa stood the trip fine and is feeling well. We walked out to Tom Dargan's place, about a mile from the depot (sidewalk all the way), and surprised them just as they were getting supper. The following day being Sunday Messrs. and Mesdames Boyle, Garceau and McNerthney and Mrs. Lawrence were invited to dinner. Mr. Dargan has an elegant home and the weather during our stay was beautiful. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Dargan took us over the town. At 4 o'clock we took the electric cars for So. Tacoma and remained over night at Ed. Garceau's. After dinner Tuesday Mrs. Garceau accompanied us over to Tacoma. We were met by Graudpa Boyle and Miss Sue Boyle, who showed us over the city. We took supper with Mr. and Mrs. Phil Kaufer, and remained their guests till Wednesday afternoon. Wednesday morning we saw some of the residence portion of the city, and there are many beautiful homes, with lawns and flowers in bloom. We then went to the docks, where we saw them loading ships. One big ship was being loaded with 18,000 tons of flour for Hong Kong, China. We went down and saw the engines and boilers, and it was a wonderful sight. They were loading other ships with lumber and feed. Mr. Kaufer is living in one of John M. Boyle's houses, and they are nearly settled and have a lovely home. In Tacoma as elsewhere we found the Red Lake Falls people prosperous and contented. Wednesday afternoon we returned to Mr. Garceau's at South Tacoma. Thursday morning we saw our first rain, but it was warm as a June day. At 10 a. m. we left for Oregon City and arrived here at 7 p. m.. Thanksgiving day. The grain looks fine and some of the farmers are seeding. They can seed any time through the winter when the ground is dry enough to work, so they are never in a rush, and in harvest if a farmer feels like taking an outing he will leave his binder and go away for a week, as it does not hurt the grain to stand after it is ripe. Our kindest regards to all friends.

There is a volume of sermons in the following from an exchange whose identity has been lost somewhere down the line by a careless clipper.

> If we knew. How often these words fall from the human lips. How many conclusions reached would have been different had we known. We stop at many four corners of life's road and look with earnest eyes up the path at the left and up the path at the right we are uncertain which way to turn. How many mistakes it would have saved us the making. How many days we could add to life—if we knew. "If we knew." How it would change the words we speak to friends. How it would change our home here and our home there. To-day we know the past, how many words we could recall. How many things we could have done we would undo. How many thorns we placed on life's road we would exchange for blooming flowers—if we knew.

Francis Bellamy, in a magazine article, declines to indorse the view that "while brains may be more important than money, the best way to convince the world that you have brains is to make money." This idea was enunciated some months ago by a distinguished lawyer, but Mr. Bellamy points out that there has always been a select few who put brains ahead of money. For instance there was Agaziz, who refused to lecture at $500 a night because he was too busy to make money. Charles Sumner declined to lecture at any price because, he said, as senator, all his time belonged to Massachusetts. Spurgeon refused to come to America to deliver fifty lectures at $1,000 a night, saying he could do better—he could stay in London and try to save fifty souls. Emerson steadfastly declined to increase his income beyond $1,200 because he wanted his time to think.

Ralph Wheelock vouches for this being one of the best stories of the season:

> A certain officeholder decided to buy a dog. In reply to an "ad" a man called at his office with an intelligent looking animal that he immediately took a fancy to, though he deemed it advsiable to first inquire into somethirg of its characteristics.
>
> "What can he do?" he asked.
>
> "Oh, sir, he can do anything. If you've lost anything he'll go direct to the place where you lost it. He'll—"
>
> "By the way," interrupted our friend. "I just missed my glove. Do you s'pose he could find it?"
>
> "Certainly, sir. Just let him sniff at your hand."
>
> The officer held his hand to the dog's nose, and the animal trotted serenely off. Presently he returned and with a joyous wagging of the tail deposited his offering at the officeholder's feet.
>
> At the same moment the click of the typewriter in the next room ceased. A girlish form appeared in the doorway.
>
> "My sash ribbon," cried a high, sweet voice; "My sash ribbon! The dog has my sash ribbon!"
>
> The officeholder's face turned a dull red. He cast a furtive glance at the man, dived into his pocket and hauled out a bill.
>
> "I guess the dog'll do," he said quietly.

Ruling Made on Libel.

The supreme court filed an importand libel decision last week in the case of E. J. Herringer against Peter O. Ingberg. Last year during the campaign Ingberg published a communication in the Ada Herald criticizing Herringer, who was county auditor and a candidate for re-election, because of his action in regard to a county ditch. Herringer sued for libel and got a verdict for $250. The supreme court decided that the article was not libelous and that the plaintiff had no cause for action. "All persons holding public positions are subjects for public discussion." says Judge Brown in his opinion.

"There has always been a distinction between publications relating to public and private persons as to whether they are libelous. A criticism might reasonably be applied to a public officer, which would be libelous if applied to a private citizen."

In the syllabus Judge Brown holds that a citizens has the legal right to comment fairly and with an honest purpose upon the conduct of public officers; and the publication of such comments, fair and temperate in tone, will not subject the author to an action for damages.

NOTES IN MINOR CHORD.

Go to the Merchants State Bank for farm loans.

County Attorney Grady is the happy father of boy No. 3 this week, the little fellow putting in his appearance at the Grady home Tuesday morning. Both mother and child are reported as doing nicely.

May Joseph was fined $25 by Judge Toupin Monday for failing to obey the mayor's orders to close her house of ill fame. The joint is now closed, and Red Lake Fall is at present without a diseputable resort.

William O. Braggans, formerly a stenographer in the office of the clerk of the supreme court at St. Paul, has been appointed court reporter by Judge Grindeland, and entered upon his new work this week.

Hardware stores contain many goods suitable for Christmas presents. If you are skeptical on this point read Frank E. Hunt's new advertisement, and call at the store and verify the statements made therein.

If you want the finest of coffees and teas try our Famous King freshly-roasted bulk coffee and Primrose package teas; they are the best obtainable and always the same. —Bangs & Co., sole agents, next to postoffice.

A new line of tablets for fine correspondence, with envelopes to match, just received at THE COURIER stationery store. Remember we carry a complete stock of high-grade writing materials, as well as all of the cheaper goods.

The New England supper and handkerchief sale held by the ladies of the Presbyterian church in the church parlors Thursday evening was liberally patronized. We are pleased to learn that the ladies netted about $100.

Reichert's drug store seems to be a mecca for Christmas shoppers these days. Mr. Reichert has a complete stock of fancy goods, toys, books and novelties for holiday presents. Read his advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

The hearing in the Thief River election contest will be held before Judge Grindeland at a special session of the district court at Thief River Falls tomorrow. F. A. Grady is attorney for Kratka and R. J. Montague for Richardson.

A special term of the district court will be held at Thief River Falls tomorrow for the purpose of granting naturalization papers. Judge Grindeland will be on the bench. County Attorney Grady and Clerk Perrault will be in attendance.

Schreiter's pharmacy is displaying a splendid assortment of holiday goods, and Christmas shoppers will find it to their advantage to call and look over this line before making purchases. Read Mr. Schreiter's big advertisement in the issue.

The creditors of E. K. Gjernes, the Garnes merchant who lost his store building and entire stock by fire a few weeks ago, have effected a settlement of their claims. The book accounts have been sold for $1,000, which will pay about 35 per cent of the liabilities. F. A. Grady is the trustee.

J. R. & R. Fortier are making special discounts on underwear for a few days. Ladies' camel hair underwear, made by Fosston woolen mill, worth $1.50, going at $1.00; men's plush wool underwear, worth $1.00, going at 85c. Be sure to get our prices on other underwear. We can save you money.

J. H. Paradis made a visit to St. Hilaire Monday night to see his brother P. G., who has just returned from a trip to North Yakima, Wash. While out west Peter invested in a farm near North Yakima, and if he can dispose of his business at St. Hilaire will probably move out there in the spring.

Attorney C. E. Boughton goes to St. Paul tonight to make oral argument before the supreme court in the case of the city of Red Lake Falls vs. the holders of the Northern Pacific bonds. It is expected that a decision will be handed down by the court sometime in January.

Geo. B. Winship, editor and publisher of the Grand Forks Herald, has resigned the position of receiver of the United States land office at Grand Forks. Mr. Winship has acted as receiver for nearly two years and it is supposed that he resigned that he might be at liberty to fight the so-called Republican machine in North Dakota.

Miss Anna Finsand, who has been teaching at Edinburg, N. D., during the fall, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. A. G. Bjorneby. Another sister, Miss Gina Finsand, is expected about Christmas for an indefinite visit. Miss Gina is a vocal teacher of long experience and acknowledged ability, and while in Red Lake Falls will be glad to give private lessons.

At the meeting of the school board Monday evening Leland Healy was elected principal of the Washington school to succeed Fred Morin, whose resignation takes effect January 1. Leland is a graduate of the high school, and has been a student at the university for two years. He is well equipped for the work and we predict that he will give general satisfaction.

A telegram from Washington tells of the struggle being made by Frank Kratka and Ira Richardson for appointment to the postmastership at Thief River Falls. Mr. Steenerson has not yet taken any action concerning the appointment. Mr. Kratka, the most active worker in the field, is burdening the mails with endorsements. Postmaster Richardson is also fowarding endorsements in favor of his reappointment.

John Dahl, a resident of Wyandotte, was tried before Justice Toupin Tuesday on the charge of petit larceny, preferred by Dahl's sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Mostrom. It seems that Mrs. Mostrom owed Dahl a small account and tendered a $10 bill in payment. Dahl could not make change and kept the bill, refusing to return the portion to which he was not entitled. He was found guilty and fined $1 and costs.

John L. Watson expects to leave the latter part of the week for St. Paul, where he will engage in the real estate business. Mrs. Watson and son, Wilbur, will follow in about ten days. It is with much regret that the people of Red Lake Falls will learn of the removal of this estimable family. Though having lived here only a few months they have made a host of friends, all of whom will wish for them success in their new home.

THE COURIER'S subscribers have been quite numerous in making payments on subscription during the past week, and we are duly grateful for these evidences of appreciation. Those who have made the printer's heart glad during the period named are as follows: F. C. Burgdorf, Evangelist Quesnelle, C. O. Kankel, George Orr, Robert Raney, F. Grenier, T. Richard, Anatole Bachand, X. Sauve, Philip Lee, Frank Cernosek, Gil Lizee, Sam Luxenberger, A. J. Hempstead, Ed. Enright and J. J. Donahue.

Rev. Andrew Walker returned Tuesday morning from Brainerd, at which place he occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church the past two Sundays. It is not unlikely that Rev. Walker will accept a call from this church, and THE COURIER can assure the good people of Brainerd that they will be securing an excellent gentleman and an able preacher. All he requires is a better half, and with the approach of leap year we may expect the young ladies of Brainerd to see that he is taken care of.

The money for the ditch bonds, $78,000, arrived at the Merchants State Bank yesterday, and has been paid to the county treasurer. This amount will take up all of the ditch warrants outstanding and leave a balance of about $12,000 to pay for work not yet completed. The satisfactory outcome of the ditch bond problem is a matter of general congratulation. All of the ditch warrants were held by Red Lake county banks, and while all of them have had plenty of cash to meet all demands the money will no doubt be welcomed.

The Surprise Store announces that its first annual remnant sale will commence Friday, December 11 and continue until January 1. All of the odds and ends accumulated during the past year and a half are placed on special counters, and the prices simply paralyzed. These goods are all new, and are offered at a great reduction in order to clean up the stock and make room for a large stock of the various lines handled in this store. If you need a suit or overcoat, or gents' furnishing of any kind this is the opportunity of the year to get a bargain.

This week the school library has received about 300 volumes of new books, for which an appropriation of $150 was made recently. The library now contains about 750 volumes, of which about one-half is fiction, the remainder being biography, history, travels and reference books. While the library is primarily for the use of the school, the patrons are cordially invited to make use of it as much as desirable. On the week before Christmas and thereafter the library will be open every Friday from 3 to 5 p. m., at which times books can be drawn and returned.

The Bourdon Land company has purchased the good-will and office fixtures of the Ed L. Healy Land company, and took possesssion Monday morning. The people of Red Lake Falls will regret the retirement of Mr. Healy from active business. He has been a hard worker for Red Lake Falls, first, last and all the time, and the extensive advertising the city has secured throughout Minnesota and adjoining states is due in large measure to Mr. Healy. THE COURIER hopes Ed will stay here, and that he will yet reap a goodly harvest as a result of his indefatigable efforts.

The Modern Woodmen elected officers for the coming year at their regular meeting last Wednesday evening. The new officials are as follows: Venerable consul, Henry Hennemuth; worthy adviser, William Schwalen; manager, H. C. Hansen; excellent banker, Joseph Tschirhart; clerk, Dan J. Doran; escort, Samuel E. Hunt; watchman, Adam Schmitz; sentry, Rufus Poirier; camp physicians, Drs. Watson and Lemieux. Two new members were initiated the same evening and the lodge expects to have degree work right along during the winter. Installation of officers will take place at the first meeting night in January.

At the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias held Monday evening the following officers were elected for the coming year: Chancellor commander, W. A. McIntyre; vice chancellor, Samuel E. Hunt; prelate, Frank A. Whiteley; master of work, Thomas Germo; master of finance, Henry W. Anderson; master of exchequer, Dr. J. E. Argue; keeper of records and seal, S. L. Lewis; master at arms, Ernest G. Buse; inner guard, Dr. F. F. Fletcher; outer guard, P. B. Gaass; trustees, P. B. Gaass, John E. King and Dr. F. F. Fletcher. An auditing committee composed of Messrs. Whiteley, Fletcher and McIntyre was appointed. The new officers will be installed at the first regular meeting in January.

The Los Angeles Herald of recent date contains a photo-engraving of Miss Mary Howard, of Pasadena, Cal., and an extended account of her remarkable musical ability. Miss Howard's mother is a sister of C. F. Johnson, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Milling company. Miss Mary was discovered by Prof. Franklin P. Patterson, and is a young girl of more than ordinary musical talent, whose promise of a brilliant future is so evident to his trained observation that he has persuaded her parents to allow him to supervise her entire education, both musical and general, and has declared his intention of being financially responsible for it if for any reason the family is unable to meet the nominal terms upon which the arrangements have been made.

A new plan for the stimulation of pupils to special effort in their school work has recently been put into effect by Prof. Whiteley, and thus far has worked admirably. The board purchased elegant silk banners for the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades, and every three months a contest is held by the various grades in the two buildings for possession of the banners. At the examination last week the second and sixth grade banners were won by the Washington school, and the third, fourth and fifth grade banners by the Lafayette school. The winners retain the banners in their respective rooms until the next examination, the result of which will decide which room will have possession for the next period. The examinations have created considerable enthusiasm, and no doubt will accomplish a great deal of good.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

Yon don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Farmer M'Farland's Hard Luck With Hogs.

William McFarland, a wealthy Wabash county (Ill.) farmer lost a drove of fifty fine blooded hogs a few days ago in a most peculiar manner. Though the story may sound somewhat "fishy" it is nevertheless true, and vouched for by any number of his neighbors.

Some time ago Mr. McFarland lost his voice, and he was unable to call his great drove of hogs, in which he took great pride, but he bridged over the difficulty by training them to respond at feeding time to his pounding on a board.

In time they became thorouly accustomed to this call, and whenever they heard the sound would race toward it as if their life depended upon getting there first. Running short of corn a few days ago, Mr. McFarland thought to economize by putting his hogs in a woods pasture where they could shift for themselves. Unfortunately the pasture was full of dead trees, and in consequence woodpeckers were correspondingiy thick. He had scarcely turned his back on the hogs, after turning them into the pasture, till an old red-head on the far side began drumming on a tree.

Being hungry for corn and recognizing the old familiar call, the hogs with one accord racek for that locality. They had no more than arrived at the place indicated and discovered there was no corn in sight till they heard the call again. but far away in another direction. Away the hogs raced again, only to be once more disappointed, and once more to hear the call from afar off. The day was rather warm, and those hogs chased the woodpeckers back and forth across the field till the last ene dropped dead from heat and exhaustion.

Mr. McFarland prized the stock highly and the hogs will be hard to replace.—St. Louis Glebe-Democrat.

What Constitutes a Legal Jag.

The question of what canstitutes intoxication within the meaning of the iaw has just been passed upon by a court in Vermont. The point rose in connection with an insurance case, in which the company refused to pay the policy on the ground that the person injured, who had stated in his application that he was never intoxicated, had frequently been seen in that condition. In an elaborate opinion the court defined three degrees of intoxication:

"In the first degree the ideas are uncommonly vivacious, but the individual retains perfectly the consciousness of his external condition, and in fact may be said to be in complete possession of his senses."

"In the second degree the man has still the use of his senses, thorgh they are remarkably enfeebled, but he is entirely beside himself, memory and jndgment having abandoned him."

"In the last stage, a man not only loses his reason, but his senses are so enfeebled that he is no longer conscious of his external condition."

On the basis of this classification the jndge ruled that the man had never taken the "third degree" and could not have been fully intoxicated.

Bill Nye's Advertising.

According to a story that is going the rounds of the newspapers the late Bill Nye wrote this advertisement:

"Owing to my ill-health, I will sell at my residence in township nineteen, range eighteen, according to the government survey, one plush raspberry cow, aged 8 years. She is a good milker, and is not afraid of cars or anything else. She is of undaunted conrage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home by means of a stay chain, but she will be sold to any one who will agree to treat her right. She is one-fourth shorthorn and three-fourths hyena I will also throw in a double-barrel shot gun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall red calf with wabbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell her to a non-resident."

Gave Up Preaching For Two Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Put Me On Active List.

Are you well? Do you sleep well? Do you get up rested, fresh and vigorous? Is your mind clear and active? If not read the following. See what another has suffered and how he recovered.

"Some years ago I was afflicted with sun stroke which left me with a shattered nervous system and exceedingly poor health. I suffered terribly with pain in my head, the top of my head would feel hot. I could not study, and after striving for two years to wear the trouble off, I was compelled to give up my pastoral labor and retire to my farm where I spent nearly two years trying to recuperate. It was all of no avail. Physicians' treatment and patent medicines failed to relieve me. I was exceedingly nervous and irritable and sometimes would shake terribly. I could not bear any noise. At the least excitement the blood would rush to my face and head. Two years ago I was induced to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. After using one bottle I could see improvement in my condition so I continued taking it for nearly a year. I am happy to say I no longer have those pains in my head or nervous spells. My appetite is good and I am able to preach three times on Sunday without fatigue. I consider Dr. Miles' Nervine the most wonderful medicine ever discovered."—Rev. D. Alex. Holman, Pastor U. B. BIT OF MINNESOTA FOREST.

Game Exhibit Will Be Shown in its Natural Surroundings.

A natural scene in the big woods of Minnesota will be the state's exhibit in the game and fish building at the St. Louis exposition. A large corner of the building will be given ver to it, and behind a railing will be a patch of forest trees and ground covered with moss, and among the trees will be fine stuffed specimens of moose, deer, wolves, bears, and other game in realistic poses.

The general nature of this exhibit was determined on at a meeting in the offices of the state game and fish commission, at which the commission was represented by Sam Fullerton, its executive agent, and Capt. William Bird of Fairmont. The Minnesota managers were represented by Theodore L. Hayes, their secretary, and C. S. Mitchell, manager of the exhibits. Minnesota has been allowed liberal space for a game and fish display, and the managers for this state will try to get it arranged so as to give a natural forest setting to this game display. At one side of the scene will be a lake border, and in this pool the exhibitors will keep the surplus fish for their exhibit. The different Minnesota species of game will be shown in glass tanks in the acquarium section.

Ruling Made on Libel.

The supreme court filed an important libel decision last week in the case of E. J. Herringer against Peter O. Ingberg. Last year during the campaign Ingberg published a communication in the Ada Herald criticizing Herringer, who was county auditor and a candidate for re-election, because of his action in regard to a county ditch. Herringer sued for libel and got a verdict for $250. The supreme court decided that the article was not libelous and that the plaintiff had no cause for action. "All persons holding public positions are subjects for public discussion." says Judge Brown in his opinion.

"There has always been a distinction between publications relating to public and private persons as to whether they are libelous. A criticism might reasonably be applied to a public officer, which would be libelous if applied to a private citizen."

In the syllabus Judge Brown holds that a citizens has the legal right to comment fairly and with an honest purpose upon the conduct of public officers; and the publication of such comments, fair and temperate in tone, will not subject the author to an action for damages.

Perfection of Workmanship.

Wherever you look in France you see the result of patient labor of intelligent hands. The greatest asset of France is the passion of her workers for perfection of detail. America's greatest asset is her workmen's longing for personal advancement. Each job is regarded not as a life's work, but as a stepping stone. There are exceptions to this rule, and golden grain belt beer presents one of these exceptions. It is made with the greatest possible care and with the object of producing the finest and most benefical beverage that money can accomplish. The success that has been made with this beer is measured by the good it has done. It is worth trying. Order a case of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 83;

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50; which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred Ninety-four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The East Half of the Northeast Quarter (E. ½ N. E. ¼), and the Northwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (N. W. ¼ N. E. ¼), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter (N. E. ¼ N. W. ¼), (or Lot One (1)) of Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred Fifty-One (151), Range Forty-Four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred Ninety-Four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars, Attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, November 14th, A. D. 1903.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buvers.

FORTY HOURS DEVOTION.

Exercises at St. Mary's Church on December 25, 26 and 27.

Solemn services will be held in St. Mary's church on Christmas and the two days succeeding. Fathers Bernard and Eloi from St. John's university will be here to assist Farther Ansgar in the solemnities. Several sermons will be delivered on each of the three days. All the faithful receiving the sacraments and spending an hour before the Blessed Sacrament can gain a plenary indulgence under the usual conditions. The first solemn high mass on Christmas will be at 5 a. m., then follows low mass at 8, during which communion will be distributed. The second solemn high mass will be at 10 a. m., after which the Blessed Sacrament will be carried in procession through the church. After the procession the litany of All Saints will be chanted. At 7:30 p. m. will be a sermon, benediction and reposition. The order of exercises on the following days will be announced on Christmas.

All are most cordially invited to attend. The church should be crowded morning and evening. It is a rare occurence to witness such solemnities in a small church. Confessions will begin Thursday afternoon.

WOODMEN TO CELEBRATE.

Twenty-first Anniversary of Order's Birth to Be Commemorated.

The local camp of Modern Woodman will celebrate the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the order at their hall in this city on Tuesday evening, January 5. Twenty-one years ago on that date a society was organized in Illinois called the Modern Woodmen of America. That the Modern Woodmen furnish the best life insurance is shown (1) by the fact that last year the actual cost of insurance per $1,000 to the members was only $4.95; (2) that the cost of insurance has increased only one assessment in the last thirteen years.

It is surprising to note that while the total membership has increased at the rate of 50,000 annually for the last three years, still the average age of the members is 1.51 years less than twenty years ago. The total membership of the Modern Woodman today is 750,000, and the Head Consul has announced the war cry for next year: "A million members for Milwaukee." This means that he expects every member to use his best efforts to get a membership of one million by the time the head camp meets at Milwaukee in June, 1905.

The local camp is trying to do its share in the work and have a good time in the bargain. They have reason to feel proud of the good work they have done in the past, having been organized only eight years and now having a membership of 125, all good, sound, respectable young men. They own their own hall and have it almost paid for. This fact is a direct advantage to new members, as they will become stockholders in the enterprise without having to pay a dollar.

Every man should carry some protection for those dependent upon him, and the Modern Woodmen offers superior inducements, and is as strong as a stone wall.

Health and Happiness.

Don't anticipate trouble.

Don't gossip; have faith in God, in humanity and in yourself.

Don't imagine every dark cloud you see is going to bring up a cyclone.

Fill every day brimful of sunshine for some one else, and much of it will be reflected on you.

Make the best of what you possess; enjoy it; be happy today; don't put it off until next year.

Take a little rest now and then; enjoy your friends; don't scold; keep your thoughts pure.

Take a sponge bath every morning in cold water, and rub briskly with a crash towel for ten minutes; take moderate exercise and plenty of fresh air.

Cleanliness, purity, fresh air, faith and calm consideration are the best of life-preservers.—Selected.

STILL MISSING.

Mysterious Disappearance of Crookston Girl Never Solved.

Bemidji Pioneer: With the arrival of December the disappearance of Miss Strassburger is brought to mind. A year ago last week she disappeared while skating with a crowd of young people near the Carman bridge and from that time to this no trace or clue as to her whereabouts or the manner of her leaving have ever been discovered. It was thought at the time that she had fallen into a hole in the ice and had been drowned, and her parents are still of the opinion that she is not in the land of the living. The case attracted national attention and was discussed from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Large rewards were offered by a committee of citizens and by the city for information leading either to her recovery or the arrest and conviction of the party or parties implicated in her disappearance. Detectives worked on the case for weeks without result and a hypnotist and mind reader spent a week or more examining the dark recesses and cavities of the frozen river only to confess that the nether world was not assisting him in finding the body. Reports came in from police officials all over the northwest claiming to have news of her whereabouts and seeking the rewards. Every rumor and clue found was run to the earth without discovering the slightest sign of the missing Gertie. During the past year no word has been received by her parents or the police department and the disappearance is as great a mystery as ever if not greater.

Tired Out

"I was very poorly and could hardly get about the house. I was tired out all the time. Then I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it only took two bottles to make me feel perfectly well."—Mrs. N. S. Swinney, Princeton, Mo.

Tired when you go to bed, tired when you get up, tired all the time. Why? Your blood is impure, that's the reason. You are living on the border line of nerve exhaustion. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and be quickly cured.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows all about this grand old family medicine. Follow his advice and we will be satisfied.

Here's a Suggestion

When you want a first-class daily newspaper——

One that excels in Northwest news;

One that spares no paints to get the news of the world, and prints it first;

One whose commercial and financial news and market reports are admitted to be the best;

One that is fearless and fair in its editorial discussion of live topics—republican but independent;

One that contains Bart's cartoons, the Journal Junior—a weekly paper for children without extra cost—Jermane's daily Washington correspondence, a notable daily series of articles and notes on current themes by the most eminent men and women and other features peculiar to that paper,

There is only one thing for you to do and that is to subscribe for

CASUAL OBSERVATIONS.

The time is ripe to prepare your good resolutions for the new year.

Mary McFadden: "One's social equal or superior never snubs one—one's inferior cannot."

Dr. S. G. Smith declares the modern charity ball to be a social evil. It is more than that. It is a humbug.

The young man might as well be told to go at 12 o'clock on Saturday night. A judge has decided that a promise to marry made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

The St. Peter Herald thinks that "the reason men don't insist on their wives wearing more dress at a ball is because they can hardly pay for the scant one she does wear."

"Love's young dream," according to Deacon Ruane, "never pictures to itself the lover getting up at two o'clock at night to administer paregoric to a pair of twins."

The Albert Lea Standard professes to believe that "if coal and kerosene keep on the way they have been going people will soon become so hot they will not want either."

The Fairmont Sentinel gives the Eddy boom this parting shot:

> Speaking of Mr. Eddy—but there doesn't seem to be anyone speaking of him any more. His little 2-fer boom has gone up in smoke.

The many friends of Miss Mary D. McFadden, who writes "News and Comment" for the Duluth News-Tribune, will be grieved to learn that she is seriously ill with typhoid fever at a hospital in Superior, Wis.

Northern Minnesota is a country of magnificent distances. The Bemidji Sentinel contains the following local: "Editor Geo. Davis of Beaudette, the most northerly town in Beltrami county, some four hundred miles from Bemidji, was a caller at this office on Monday.

Geo. F. Wright, the talented editor of the Princeton Union, sends us a song entitled "Love's Forgiveness," which he has written. He asked us to have our wife, daughter or sweetheart play it for us, and we have had all of them at it. It sounds good enough to be ranked with the best musical productions. The song will be sent on receipt of seventeen cents in stamps by the Flanner music house, Milwaukee.

"Old" Pease of the Anoka Union is a friend of the dumb animal, and truly says:

> It's a shame, a cruel shame; the way some men leave their teams standing in the business streets. Saw a team the other night, where the horses, uncovered, were shivering with the cold, while the owner was toasting his shins by a warm fire. I wish the police would take it upon themselves these cold nights, to place every team found standing on the streets, right in a livery stable, and if the owners refuse to pay for their keep, arrest them then and there for cruelty to animals. They need the lesson and I'm sure every good citizen will uphold the officer in his good work.

Perhaps there is a moral in this from the Northfield News which other newspaper editors and professional men generally can apply with profit:

> The seizure of the Crookston Daily Journal by the owners of a chattel mortgage is but another instance of where politics is disasterous to business. Mr. Gordon is a first-class man in every respect, but he had a hankering or thirst for official position. He was a member of the State board of equalization and was also conspicious in the management of the State fair. Attending to official duties left too little time to devote to the interests of the paper. The usual conclusion can be drawn.

The Heron Lake Times discovered a mare's nest in the fact that Senator McNamee of St. Paul, a Democrat, was a strong supporter of Bob Dunn. The Times adds that "all of this was easily understood after he proclaimed himself a warm personal friend of J. J. Hill." However, Bob Dunn throws light on the matter by the following explanation:

> When boys in the early seventies Dick McNamee and Bob Dunn were members of St. Louis Typographical Union No. 8, and many a night, side by side, "slung" type in the old St. Louis Times office, years before either of them ever heard of such a man as J. J. Hill. McNamee and Dunn were friends in the long ago, they are friends to-day and friends they will remain until death severs their friendship. Private Secretary Jamison's hired men will now understard "that two and two make four."

Man is a peculiar animal, and is the victim of peculiar customs and conditions. This little item from an unknown exchange explains some of them:

> Give a man a ten cent cigar and he will beam all over aud love you for six hours; offer him ten cents to buy it for himself and he will throw it in your face. Give a man a pass and he will call you a good fellow in all the languages at his disposal; offer him the money to buy a ticket and he will call you a fool. Ask a man to your home to take "pot luck" and he will jump at the chance; give him $2 and tell him to get a good meal at a cafe with your compliments and he will knock you down. The dollar is mighty, but it isn't warm. Nothing chills hospitality, and good fellowship like the touch of cold metal. You may spend money on a friend but you must not ask him to touch it. Silver isn't a good conductor and you can't transmitl half as much hospitality and cordiality to a friend as by means of a bad cigar. Money substitutes for good looks and good sense with great success, but it can't take the place of good fellowship with a tooth pick.

A Faithful Guardian.

Mapleton Enterprise: The decision of the supreme court in the Minnesota Sugar company case, coming just at this time, gives an impetus to the candidacy of R. C. Dunn for governor, showing as it does that that gentlemen was a faithful guardian of the state's best interests. While state auditor Mr. Dunn refuses to pay the Minnesota Sugar company $19,952.56 which they demanded as bounty money, thus turning down a species of class legislation which if carried to its logical conclusions would have drained the state treasury. The supreme court upholds Mr. Dunn's position and declares the bounty law unconstitutional.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is

SSS safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

If you have Rheumatism, write us, and our physicians will furnish without charge any information desired, and we will mail free our book on Rheumatism.

COST OF STAMP STORES.

Uncle Sam Spends a Mint of Money Supplying Mail.

Many interesting facts regarding postal service in Minnesota are contained in the annual report of fourth assistant postmaster general Bristow, which has just been made public.

There are 1586 postoffices in Minnesota, slightly more than in both North and south Dakota. We have 697 rural routes established with petitions for 421 more awaiting the action of the department. 98 petitions were disallowed. The rural routes have caused a net decrease of 62 postoffices in the state during the year. The offices discontinued were all small offices that were maintained in remote rural localities, like Monroe in this county, and supplied by star route carriers.

It already cost more to pay the rural carriers of the state than the salaries of all the postmasters: The 1586 postmasters receive and average annual salary of $253 which makes the total for postmasters' salaries $403,258. The rural carriers get $600 per year each, which brings the total wage for these public servants in this state to the handsome sum of $418,200. This sum will be much greater next year as many more routes will be established and if Mr. Bristow's recommendation is sanctioned by congressional action the maximum pay of the r. f. d. carries will be increased to $750.

The citizen of Minnesota is credited with having payed the United States for his postal privileges during the year, the sum of $1.75. This is cheap enough and yet considerably more than the per capita expenditure in many other and older states, which goes to show that the people of Minnesota read more papers and periodicals and write more letters than many of their fellow citizens in adjoining commonwealths.

Minnesota rural carriers cancelled but $32,844 worth of stamps during the last six months of the service which gives an idea of the proportionate excess of disbursements for r. f. d. service over the revenue derived from the same. The service is scheduled to be greatly extended during the coming year and many more of the smaller offices will be discontinued. Mr. Bristow says the localities that are working for complete county service will have to wait until the general public receive more benifit of the rural service. But two counties in the state have been allowed complete service.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before.....

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

THE Republican national convention has been called to meet at Chicago on June 21, 1904.

BOB DUNN promises that in the event of his election the "governor's staff" foolishness will be cut out.

WHY continue to mention William Henry Eustis for office? Hasn't he suffered martysdom enough already?

LETTERS urging Mark Hanna to run for the presidency do get into public print in spite of every effort to prevent it.

COL. KRATKA can get exceedingly busy for a man who avowed he would do nothing to protect his interests in the Thief River mayoralty contest.

IF Collins should resign to make his campaign for governor the administration will have troubles of its own in filling the vacancy. The appointee would have an obvious advantage in the convention, and the other aspirants would not be inclined to play in the Collins back-yard.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S broncho-busting spirit has been tamed by the necessities of the approaching campaign. His recent message is admitted to be weak and straddling, and he seems so fearful of offending somebody that everyone is disgusted with the vacillating manner with which he treats great public questions.

WAGE reductions in the east are very ordinary events nowadays. During the fall 75,000 cotton textile operatives have had their wages lowered from 10 to 20 per cent., and now the coal miners give notice of a reduction on January 1. In the meantime the cost of living advances. This is prosperity with a vengeance.

THOMAS E. WATSON, in his "Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson," says that Mr. Jefferson was "just the kind of man the stranger would apply to, a beggar hunt up, a cynic shun, a bigot hate, a sharper pursue, a scholar delight in, a patriot trust, a neighbor love and impose on, a shyster outwit, fellow statesmen respect, and enemies ridicule as often as they hate."

THE World's Work says that one-twelfth of the estimated wealth of the United States is represented at a meeting of the board of directors of the United States steel corporation when all the directors are present. They also represent two hundred other companies operating one-half of the railroad mileage in the country, and control corporations, whose aggregate capitalization is $9,000,000,000.

IT appears that there have been 4,152 cases of embezzlement this year and 3,212 of these are charged to the mania for gambling, which, of course, includes the speculators of all varieties. Some of these gamblers had extravagant wives to urge them on, 1,875 cases being ascribed to this cause. And presumably if the statistician had gone a little further he would have discovered that not one of these unhappy lawbreakers actually enjoyed his ill gotten loot.

THE Hallock News—and it might be explained that its editor holds a job under the Van Sant administration—compares Bob Dunn to D. M. Clough. The News ought to be explicit. It is impossible to conceive a resemblance in any particular. It is true Bob is not of the silk-stocking or codfish aristocracy variety. He may be blunt and outspoken, but he is honest and fearless in the performance of duty as he sees it—and he has a remarkable faculty for being on the right if not always on the popular side of state questions. We are afraid that Dave Clough could not come up to this standard of excellence.

DISQUIETING news regarding the illness of Emperor William has come over the cable in various forms this week. His throat has not healed so rapidly as was reasonably expected from the official description of the operation recently performed upon it. And rather more significant than this fact is the circumstance that preparations are being made for a long period of rest and relief for the kaiser from the incessant activity that has marked the fifteen years of his reign. The talk of a regency probably has no substantial foundation, although it is considered noteworthy that the chancellor should have dignified this report by a none too definite denial.

THE seventh annual report of the secretary of agriculture was recently submitted to the president. According to a Washington dispatch by the Associated press on November 30, Secretary Wilson reviews the production and exports of American agricultural products. The increase in the exports of farm products for the half century ended 1901 was from $147,000,000 to $952,000,000—550 per cent. The exports of farm products for the closing decade of the last century was over $700,000,000, and for 1903 over $878,000,000, an amount second only to that of 1901. Of grain and grain products the export exceeded in value $221,000,000, and in supply of animals, meats and meat products, the value of exportation was $211,000,000.

THE beauty of the trust theory is illustrated by the Standard Oil company, says the St. Cloud Journal-Press. For years while it was crushing out competition it lowered the price of oil, and turned out a better quality than before. Now it is reaping its reward and the public is paying the price. The last quarterly dividend was increased from $10 to $12—making the total paid to each share for the year $44. Of the $100,000,000 of stock John D. Rockefeller owns 65 per cent and he receives the nice little nest egg of $28,000,000 as his share of the earnings of the Standard Oil company for the year. The public, which is now paying a higher price for oil than for many years, will understand the necessity for the recent advance in the price of kerosene. It was simply to increase the dividends of the stockholders. Forty per cent was not enough. The last advance did not even have the excuse of a contribution from Rockefeller to church or college. It was to add more money to John's bank account and he is not yet satisfied.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The night school began its first(?) session last week.

The physics class is performing some interesting experiments this week.

The Seniors will give their class play, "The Deacon," in the near future.

Iza Tibbets was on the sick list last week but resumed her studies Monday.

The next program will be given by the Athenians on the first Friday after the holidays.

The Freshmen have shown up well in the debates and programs. We congratulate them.

The physical laboratory is stocked with new apparatus for the physics and physiology classes.

Jokes are falling thick and fast on the Freshmen and they think that high school life is a great burden on them.

Alice Erickson is the new president of the H. S. O. Elsie Mead is secretary and Clare Allison sargent-at-arms.

The new pencil sharpener used by the lower grades, sounds like a coffee mill in a country store, when in operation.

The next two weeks is the Christmas vacation. This will give some of the students a chance to get their "second wind."

Some of the pupils in the primary room believe in Santa Claus. The other day they were shouting their order up through the ventilator.

Miss Steele, our principal, was sick Tuesday and Wednesday and was not able to be at school. We hope that she will be able to be back soon.

The debate last Friday was a victory for the Spartans, the points being 11.65 to 12.17. We wish to thank the judges, John E. King and P. B. Gaass, for their services.

The Freshmen have began their study of Tennyson's Enoch Arden in their English work. The Freshies are interested and think that it beats the modern love story and dime novels "all holler."

Will Hunt, who has been sick for ths past three months, was seen at the high school last Thursday and will probably begin his studies this week. Will is unfortunate in regard to his studies, but there is no doubt but that he will soon be up with his class.

So many children have croup that it is well to know a good household remedy Cole's Cough Cure is guaradteed and the children like it. Try it. Sold at 25 and 50c by all druggists.

The election of officers for both societies took place last week. Mike Connerty was elected president of the Athenians; Verne Healy was elected president of the Spartans and Doretta Matties secretary. Program and reporting committees were also elected by each society.

A stray canine wandered into the assembly room the other day. He was in search of knowledge and when an attempt was made to put him out of the institution of learning he stoutly resisted. If some of the wandering younger generation of the town would follow the example ot this dog it would be a blessing to the whole community.

Without pure blood there can be no bright eves and pink cheeks. The blood is the life and upon it health depends. Cole's Bludbuilder makes pure new blood. It is a nerve tonic. Try it. $1.00 a bottle by all druggists.

Low Rates for Teachers.

The Great Northern will favor the teachers and pupils in the schools of the upper country this winter by giving them a rate of one and a third fare for the round trip from their present places of employment to their homes during the holidays. The rate becoming effective December 18, and is good returning until January 11. Those availing themselves of the privilege in Red Lake Falls will secure a certificate from Superintendent Whiteley, or if teaching in the country schools from County Superintendent Jeffers.

A complete line of justice and conveyancing blanks at THE COURIER office.

NOTES IN MINOR CHORD.

Go to the Merchants State Bank for farm loans.

The ladies of the Evangelical Methodist church will serve supper at the K. of P. hall next Tuesday evening, December 22. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The hearing in the Kratka-Richardson election contest at Thief River Falls has been postponed until next Monday on motion of Mr. Richardson's attorney. It is understood that several witnesses could not be produced until that time.

The Evangelical Methodist Sunday school will give a program at the K. of P. hall on next Thursday evening, December 24—Christmas eve. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. Good music and other interesting features are assured.

Grant Van Sant came up from St. Paul Tuesday morning to look after his real estate interests in this part of the country. Mr. Van Sant is one of the heaviest owners of Red Lake county realty, and is not disposing of any of his holdings unless he can secure a fancy price.

A. Horovitz, who was at one time engaged in the clothing business in Red Lake Falls, made a short call here between trains last Thursday. Mr. Horovitz has been living at Moorhead for some time past, but expects to leave shortly for the Pacific coast to engage in business.

Small pox is epidemic in parts of Minnesota and is becoming more prevalent throughout the state generally, according to the report of the state board of health. There were fifty-five new cases reported to the board during the week, the largest number for one week since last spring.

Levi Miller, a prominent farmer living east of town who had such serious trouble with his eyes a few week ago that he was obliged to go to a hospital at Fargo, returned last week, but this week he has had a relapse of the disease, and grave fears are entertained of serious consequences.

Banker Chas. L. Conger, of McIntosh, was married last week to Miss Lucy A. Heiser, of Albert Lea. Miss Heiser is a professional nurse, and the marriage is a result of a repetition of the old romance—Miss Heiser having nursed Mr. Conger's little son through a long and dangerous illness.

The Bourdon Land company has moved its offices to the building formerly occupied by the Red Lake Falls Lumber company. They expect to make a big bid for business during the coming year, and have perhaps as large a list of desirable farm land for sale as any agency in this part of the state.

The report of the Merchants State Bank is printed in this issue, showing aggregate resources of over $169,000. During the past two years the business of this popular institution has more than doubled, and is now justly considered one of the solid and substantial banking institutions of the Red River valley.

While the new issue of two cent postage stamp has not yet been placed on sale in Red Lake Falls, a few of them have been seen here, as some of the offices in the larger cities of the country are using them. The stamps are the same color as the last issue, but the portrait of Washington appears in a shield which covers the stamp.

Crookston Times: J. K. Johnson has returned to Red Lake Falls, having suspended work for a month or two. Mr. Johnson has been engaged in putting in a heating plant in the new Crookston mill, but the weather got too strenuous for futher operations this winter. He has put in the entire summer in the employ of the Red Lake Falls Milling company.

A petition was circulated and very generally signed last week praying the postoffice department to put a mail service on the Northern Pacific. If this is done we will have eastern mail at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the outgoing mail will not close until 5:30 in the evening. The present mail service is very unsatisfactory to the business men.

W. K. Knight and wife rejoice over the arrival of twins at their home Tuesday morning, and the mother and little ones are reported to be doing nicely. It is said that Billy had his heart set on a boy, while Mrs. Knight was anxious that the new arrival should be a girl. It happens that the wishes of each are gratified, as the new arrivals are a boy and a girl.

There is little left to be done to complete the securing the Soo railroad right-of-way through Thief River Falls. The options given some weeks ago have been taken up and deeds of the property in question have been given in nearly every instanee. Those with whom an agreement has not yet been reached are Jas. Meehan, John Fuller and Messrs. Miller, Hawkes and Eve.

H. J. Jager, agent of the Minnesota State public school at Owatonna, was a visitor to Red Lake Falls yesterday on business pertaining to his office. The state school is doing a great work. During the psst few years 2,700 homeless, neglected or abused children have been received, and 2,300 have been placed in good homes. There are now nearly 300 children in the school awaiting homes.

All of the Soo surveyors have pitched their tents in Thief River Falls, preparatory to a stay of some length. The re-survey changes the former route somewhat going now to Pelan instead of six miles west as heretofore. The route through Marshall county is changed slightly also and it may be that a slight deviation will be made just north of Thief River. On the whole, however, the alterations are of small importance.

Wiley Tindolph, the Thief River boomer, stopped in town a few hours Tuesday while on his way to the East, where he will visit during the winter. Mr. Tindolph has recently disposed of all of his town property at Thief River, but says he will probably come back to this country in the spring and make other investments. Wiley has been a good man for the county, and THE COURIER hopes he will not leave us for good.

In speaking of Rev. R. N. Adams, Peesbyterian synodical missionary, who has many friends and acquaintances in Red Lake Falls, the Princeton Union has this to say: "Rev. Adams was a general in the Union army and after the war he was offered many promising public positions, and could have been United States senator from the state of Ohio, had he allowed his friends to use his name, but he chose the ministry for his life work."

The Catholic Order of Foresters held their annual election of officers at the regular meeting held last Friday evening. The result was as follows. Chief ranger, Lewis A. Kaufer; vice chief, Frank St. Martin; recording secretary, J. R. Fortier; financial secretary, J. P. Harren; treasurer, Oliver Caron; trustees, Matt Waldorf, Adam Schmitz and Joseph Lachance. Installation will take place on the first meeting night in January.

Any subscriber to a local paper who will watch the advertisements and take advantage of inducements offered will save many times the subscription price in the course of a year, says the Fairmont Sentinel. Instead of the poor man saying he cannot take his home paper, he would come nearer the truth declaing he cannot afford to do without it. Some will discontinue taking the paper because they "do not have time to read it." But they would find the time spent reading advertisments of local merchants the most profitable, from the financial standpoint, of any reading they could select.

The audience at the band concert Thursday evening was treated to one of the best hoaxes ever invented. Director Onstad and Manager Berthon, as prearranged, got into a heated argument on the stage, and in carrying out the joke the professor left the stage apparently in a rage, and the band members joined him one by one until only a few of the players were left. The audience was surprised and awe-stricken, and everybody supposed the band had gone to the demnition bowwows for sure. However, the curtain soon went up again and no explanation was needed to inform the audience that a practical joke had been played. The concert on a whole was excellent, and shows that the band is still making progress.

PROFIT

The matter of feed is of tremendous importance to the farmer. Wrong feeding is loss. Right feeding is profit.

The up-to-date farmer knows what to feed his cows to get the most milk, his pigs to get the most pork, his hens to get the most eggs. Science.

But how about the children? Are they fed according to science, a bone food if bones are soft and undeveloped, a flesh and muscle food if they are thin and weak and a blood food if there is anemia?

Scott's Emulsion is a mixed food; the Cod Liver Oil in it makes flesh, blood and muscle, the Lime and Soda make bone and brain. It is the standard scientific food for delicate children.

Send for free sample.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

MARINES LANDED ON THE ISTHMUS

Company of United States Troops Disembarked at Colon and Sent to Panama.

GO TO PREVENT MARCH OF COLOMBIANS ON NEW REPUBLIC

Confirmation of News Means Beginning of Guerrilla Warfare on the Isthmus—Belief Is That Gen. Reyes Will Accept Presidency of Colombia.

Colon, Dec. 15.—A company of marines from the United States steamship Prairie was landed here Monday, under the command of Capt Smedley D. Butler, and entrained for Panama, whence the marines will be sent to a point on the coast south of Panama. This step was in consequence of the receipt of information that Colombian troops had landed in that direction with the object of marching on Panama. If this is confirmed it will mean the beginning of a long campaign of guerrilla warfare on the isthmus. The destination of the marines is said to be Yaviza, up the San Miguel gulf and Tueira river.

Says Reyes Will Accept.

Washington, Dec. 15.—If elected to the presidency of Colombia by the overwhelming majority which Bogota dispatches indicate, Gen. Rafael Reyes, Colombian minister to the United States, it is learned, would regard the call of his country as a command which it would be difficult to refuse to obey. Gen. Reyes has consistently declined to discuss the question of his election, but to an intimate friend he is quoted as saying that he could hardly refuse to serve his country in the hour of her need, although he is not a politician and has never sought the presidency. Several friends of Gen. Reyes confidently predict that he will certainly accept.

It is further learned that Gen. Reyes is still undecided as to the nature of his note to the state department formally setting forth Colombia's views on the Panama situation. A brief memorandum has been submitted to his counsel Wayne MacVeagh, but this itself is only tentative. It can be stated that Colombia will first express her protest against the events on the isthmus, but further than this Gen. Reyes has not decided what form his statement shall take.

Hopes for Peace.

Gen. Reyes called at the state department Monday and was closeted with Assistant Secretary Loomis for nearly an hour. In reply to a question, the general said he had given assurance to this government that pending his diplomatic mission to Washington there should be no hostilities on the part of the Colombian troops. As to what would be done after that the general would make no statement, but significantly shrugged his shoulders. He would not disclose the nature of the paper which he is preparing for presentation to the state department, but wanted it said that as a Colombian, in that statement, he did not make any demand for a part of the $10,000,000 to be paid to Panama in consideration of a canal treaty. Gen. Reyes expressed the hope that there would be no war between the United States and Colombia. "The United States wants civilization," he said. "She wants to be on friendly terms with the countries of the south."

News from Colon.

The naval department Monday received two cablegrams from Admiral Coghlan, both dated Colon, the 13th, as follows:

"Mayflower to-day reports Cartagena and Pinzon were at Turbo with four to eight hundred men. Took in some supplies. Sailed 8th and supposed to have landed the troops at Gandi. Atlanta, however, was at Gandi 9th and got opposite information and United States consul Cartagena reports Cartagena returned there 9th. No doubt the vessels and troops were at Turbo the 8th; that information reliable. Atlanta returns to-day to gulf for further search."

The second dispatch reads:

"Atlanta arrived yesterday. Started San Blas Point to Port Gandi, not having seen or heard anything of troops or vessels. Communication with shore at the principal points. Indians suspicious of strangers. Found trails San Blas Point to Porto Bello passable for small parties, but none leading inland. Atlanta leaves to-day to cruise to Cape Tiburon and Gulf of Darien."

More Wages Reduced.

Boston, Dec. 15.—A reduction in wages averaging ten per cent., and involving 6,000 operatives, was made Wednesday in the cotton mills at Adams, North Adams, Mass., and Norwich, Conn. The mills reducing are the last of those in southern New England, western Massachusetts and scattering towns elsewhere, to adopt a lower schedule, following the lead of the Fall River mills in November, and in all about 88,000 hands have had their pay reduced.

Reopens for Business.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 15.—The Federal national bank, after two months' suspension, resumed business Monday under very auspicious circumstances. Before the doors opened a number of people were waiting to enter, and the first man at the window deposited $30,000.

Fire in Fort Wayne.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Dec. 15.—Fire, which started in the basement of the Shields Clothing company's store, on Calhoun street, at five o'clock Monday morning, caused a loss of $75,000 before the flames were checked.

ARGUMENTS BEGUN IN MERGER CA[illegible]

Suit of Government Against Northern Securities Company Before Supreme Court.

KNOX WILL PRESENT CASE OF THE UNITED STATES

Counsel States That Merger Is to Prevent Injury to Property Instead of to Prevent Competition—Brief of Government, Prepared by Attorney General, Is Filed.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Immediately after disposing of its routine business the supreme court of the United States Monday began hearing arguments in the case of the Northern Securities company, James J. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan, Daniel S. Lamont and others, vs. the United States, coming to this court on appeal from the decision of the circuit court for the district of Minnesota. That decision was to the effect that the purchase of the greater share of the stock of the two railroad companies constituted a merger and was contrary to the Sherman anti-trust law. The case involves the community of interests principle.

There has been much interest in the case and when it was called the courtroom was crowded both inside and outside the bar. Attorney General Knox was present with quite an array of assistants from his office, while the opposition also was represented by a long list of distinguished counsel, including former Attorney General Griggs, John V. Johnson, of Philadelphia; C. W. Bunn and Charles B. Young. Justice Brown was the only member of the court not present.

The hearing began at 12:20 o'clock and John G. Johnson, representing the Northern Securities company, made the first argument. He announced that three railroads and the Securities company would desire to be heard by their counsel, while it was stated in behalf of the government that only the attorney general would speak.

Reason for the Merger.

After stating the case Mr. Johnson said that the purpose of the Securities company in acquiring the stock of the railroad company had been, not to prevent competition, but to prevent the injury of its own property.

Early in the argument Justice Peckham asked whether the Securities company held the major portion of the stock of the two companies and Mr. Johnson admitted that the company held nearly all the stock. He contended that, holding the stock, it had the authority to control it.

He took sharp exception to the decison of the circuit court that the possession of the power which the Securities company had was a violation of the law and contended that such holding was not in acordance with decisions of the supreme court, which were uniformly to the effect that it is the use of power and not the possession of it that constitutes the offense.

Case of Government.

The brief of the government in the case was filed. The document was prepared by Attorney General Knox and Assistant Attorney General Day and covers 180 printed pages.

After stating that the bill in the case was originally brought by the government to restrain the violation of the anti-trust law by the Securities company in the consolidation of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railroads, and that the decision of the court below was favorable to the contention of the United States, the brief enters into the following specifications as to the reasons for the action:

First—The lines of railway operated by the defendants, the Great Northern Railway company and Northern Pacific Railway company, are parallel and competing.

Second—That the combination is in restraint of interstate commerce and a monopoly.

The concluding paragraph of Judge Thayer's opinion in the circuit court is quoted, as summing up the argument bearing upon the facts of the case.

The chief justice announced a recess of that court for two weeks from next Monday.

Disaster to Potato Growers.

London, Dec. 15.—Disaster has befallen the potato growers of the United Kingdom. In November, 1901, the imports were about 200,000 hundredweight, valued at about $165,000. The same month last year, after a small amount of potato disease, the importation doubled.

In November the imports rose to 2,000,000 hundredweight, valued at $1,900,000.

Ottumwa, Ia., Dec. 15.—Frank Bradbury, a machinist in the employ of the Ottumwa iron works, has fallen heir to a fortune estimated at $1,000,000. His uncle, Thomas Bradbury, of New York, a piano manufacturer, named him direct heir.

Fireman Injured.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 15.—The plant of Henke & Pillott's warehouse and sugar factory was destroyed by fire Sunday night, entailing a loss of $50,000. Five firemen were injured by a falling ladder, two of whom will probably die. They are Austin Jourde and Frederick Curtis.

Gasoline Lamp Explodes.

McAllister, Wis., Dec. 15.—By the explosion of a gasoline lamp Charles Donaldson, Gus Swanson and Ole Erickson have been badly burned. The two first named will die.

LaGrippe Caused Heart Trouble,

Nervous Prostration and Dyspepsia.

My Friends Know Heart Cure Cured Me.

Mrs. C. O. Hurd, 118 W. Third St., Muscatine, Ia., is well known throughout her section of Iowa as an ardent worker in the M. E. Church. She says: "LaGrippe left me with a severe case of nervous depression and nervous dyspepsia, which soon affected my heart. I suffered from sleeplessness, headache, extreme nervousness and twitching of the muscles. The slightest exertion would cause shortness of breath, a numbness of my body and hot flashes with pain. I will tell you what I am constantly telling my friends—that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure cured me so that all these disagreeable symptoms left me. I may add that for severe pain I have never found anything to equal Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and think the Nerve and Liver Pills are a wonderful stomach remedy."

"Our son was stricken down with heart trouble in his twentieth year. For two months we got no sleep with him at night, so we commenced to use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine with the Nerve and Liver Pills and today he is sound and well. In fact he passed a physical examination since his sickness and is with the Army in the Philippines. I desire to add that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have certainly been a boon to me. I am frequently troubled with sick and nervous headaches and I have never found anything that would relieve me so quickly and leave me feeling so well thereafter."—Mrs. Alice Moad, Buffalo, Mo.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

House Adopts Concurrent Resolution Providing for Two Weeks' Recess.

PENSION BILL CONSIDERED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Senator Bailey Makes Speech in Opposition to Cuban Reciprocity Bill—Declares It Is Vicious Both as Matter of Law and Policy—Party Caucuses Held.

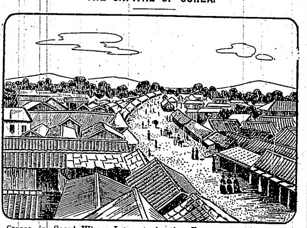
Washington, Dec. 15. — The house upon convening Monday adopted a concurrent resolution providing for a recess adjournment from December 19 to January 4. The speaker, by unanimous consent, appointed Delegate Kalaulanoale, of Hawaii, as member of the committee of territories.

A joint resolution was adopted providing that the naval appropriation bill shall not be so construed as to deprive midshipmen at sea of commutation of rations.

The house then went into committee of the whole with Mr. Lawrence (Mass.) in the chair, for the further consideration of the pensions appropriations bill. Mr. Adams (rep., Pa.), spoke on the Panama situation.

Mr. Adams defended the course pursued by this government in connection with the canal question and the policy of the administration in dealing with the Central American situation. He said Colombia had acted in a shameful manner in the canal negotiations. Troops of the Colombian government, he said, were on the isthmus when Panama declared for freedom and made no opposition to the act.

THE CAPITAL OF COREA.



A Street in Seoul Where Interest in the Eastern Situation Centers.

Mr. Gaines (dem., Tenn.), who was recognized for one hour, spoke on tobacco interests, asserting the need of legislation in behalf of the grower. The farmers of the tobacco states are crying out against the war taxes which, he said, are imposed.

Opposes Cuban Bill.

Washington, Dec. 15.—When the senate convened Monday Senator Bailey (Tex.) spoke on the Cuban bill. He opposed the measure, declaring it to be vicious both as a matter of law and of policy. The question of law, he said, should be considered first, and in that connection he laid down three propositions. The first was that the house of representatives alone has the right to originate revenue bills and neither the president nor the president and senate joined possess the power to enact legislation affecting revenues.

The second declared that the constitution of the republic commits the treaty-making power to the president, and the senate and the house of representatives have no right to approve or disapprove the Cuban treaty.

The third proposition asserted that neither the president and senate alone nor the president and senate acting in conjunction with the house of representatives has the right to originate such revenue measures, and that what is null and void in its beginning must be null and void throughout.

Discuss Party Policy.

The democratic senators Monday were in caucus for two hours and adjourned until Tuesday. The subjects under discussion were partly discipline, the force of caucus action and general policy. Toward the close of the meeting the Panama situation was talked over, the policy of the party regarding the new republic and the treaty being the question at issue. It is expected the isthmian situation will engage the attention of the caucus.

Chaplain Selected.

The republican senators in caucus Monday decided upon Rev. Edward Everett Hale, of Boston, for chaplain of the senate, beginning January 1. He is a Congregationalist and is now 82 years old.

New York, Dec. 15.—William H. Ennis, a former Brooklyn policeman, convicted of having murdered his wife, was put to death Monday morning in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison. Two applications of the current were made.

BIG DROP IN TEMPERATURE

Intense Cold Experienced Throughout the Northwest.

Blizzards Raging in Wisconsin and Northern Michigan—Much Suffering Reported.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 15.—The northwest on Sunday experienced the coldest weather of the season, the thermometer ranging from four to 24 degrees below zero at the various stations of the weather bureau. There is apparently no prospect of immediate relief. Trains on all railroads are delayed because of the intense cold. In this city the minimum was 23 below, reached early in the morning. The maximum for the day was eight degrees below. Towards night the mercury again began to settle in the tube, and at nine o'clock stood at 12 below zero. A high wind which had been a disagreeable feature throughout the day, died down toward night. Reports from central Wisconsin and northern Michigan report a terrific blizzard raging and much delay to traffic.

Burlington, Ia., Dec. 15.—There was a fall of 40 degrees in temperature here within 18 hours. Sunday night the mercury stood at ten below zero.

Milwaukee, Dec. 15.—The maximum temperature reported in Wisconsin Sunday was 28 degrees below zero at Unity, in the northern portion. The cold wave is general in the state. Street thermometers in Milwaukee registered 16 below. Eighteen families applied to the associated charities for assistance, but no fatalities are reported. Telegraph companies report considerable wire trouble as a result of the cold wave. Railroad trains were considerably behind time.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 15.—A terrific wind and snowstorm has been sweeping over the upper peninsula and all trains are delayed. Some have managed to pull through, but others are completely stalled. The car ferry at Mackinaw is held up on account of the storm and roads through the country are impassable. It is one of the worst storms in years.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Death, suffering and widespread interference with transportation marked the record-breaking cold wave that held Chicago in an icy clutch all day Sunday. The minimum temperature recorded was 13 degrees below zero at eight o'clock a. m. Three persons succumbed, another will probably die from exposures to the bitter wind, while the zero temperature and the icy pavements claimed a number of victims during the day.

LAND TROOPS IN COREA.

Japanese Marines Suppress Strike Riot at Mokphe—Trouble Said to Be Local.

Seoul, Dec. 15.—The Japanese landed marines at Mokphe Sunday to suppress rioting during a strike among laborers. It is reported that they fired upon the mob, killing several people.

The strike was among Corean coolies employed in the foreign concessions, which precipitated clashes among the Coreans and Japanese.

The affair, it is thought, may cause local complications, and it is possible Russia may send a warship should the Corean government resent the landing of marines by Japan.

Mokphe is a town on the southwest coast of Corea. It has about 9,000 inhabitants.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The state department has received the following cablegram from United States Minister Allen, dated Seoul, Corea, December 13:

"Japanese forces landed at Mokto (a point on the west coast of Corea 200 miles south of Chemulpo) yesterday to protect Japanese subjects from Corean rioters. This has no significance, as trouble is purely local."

Cashier Kills Himself.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 15.—Harry Maine, cashier of the Farmers' and Merchants' bank, of Linn Grove, Ia., shot himself through the heart Monday. It is understood that Maine lost heavily on the board of trade. The bank is a private institution and claims a deposit of $100,000. It is controlled by the First national bank of Storm Lake, who ordered its doors closed.

Pleads Guilty.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 15.—James M. Edge, the defaulting Paterson bank teller, pleaded guilty in the United States district court Monday and will be sentenced next Monday. Edge was recently arrested after an absence from Paterson nearly a year. His peculation amounted to nearly $100,000.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred Ninety-four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The East Half of the Northeast Quarter (E. ½ N. E. ¼), and the Northwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (N. W. ¼ N. E. ¼), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter (N. E. ¼ N. W. ¼), (or Lot One (1)) of Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred Fifty-One (151), Range Forty-Four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred Ninety-Four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars, Attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 84.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 ($1,052.86) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof. Said Mortgage was given to secure a note dated February 13, 1903, for the sum of One Thousand ($1,000) Dollars.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (S. W ¼ N. E. ¼) and Lots Two (2) and Three (3) and Four (4) and Five (5) in Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred and Fifty-one (151), Range Forty-four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, November 14th, A. D. 1903.

Arrangements for Trials of Men Implicated in Water Scandal to Be Made Soon.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 15.—Twenty cases growing out of the Lake Michigan water deal boodle scandal were on call in the superior court Monday, this being the opening of the December term. The respondents with their attorneys crowded the space inside the railing at court. Prosecutor Brown announced to the court that the informations had not been prepared for all of the cases and that an agreement had been reached with the various respondents' attorneys whereby all cases should go over for a week, when definite arrangements for trial will be made. Judge Newham accordingly made an order continuing the cases until December 21.

Lant K. Salsbury, former city attorney and the man whose confession is responsible for the arrests made for complicity in the water scandal, was then called for sentence for accepting a bribe, of which charge he has already been convicted. The supreme court affirmed Salsbury's conviction on this charge. Assistant Prosecutor Ward asked that sentence be deferred until the first day of the next term of court because of the necessity of keeping Salsbury in the city to act as a witness in the new cases. A formal order was made in accordance with this request.

In police court Alderman Malachi Kinney waived examination and was bound over to the present term of the superior court for trial, the bonds being fixed at $2,000.

The examination of ex-Alderman Ellen was then resumed, the reading of Salsbury's testimony at the first session of the examination being taken up again.

Remains Cremated.

London, Dec. 15.—The remains of Herbert Spencer were cremated at Hampstead Monday, a few invited guests attending the closing rites. Leonard Courtney, M. P., made a brief address on the life and work of the dead philosopher. An Indian gentleman who was present offered to donate $5,000 to endow a Spencer lectureship at Oxford university.

Says Peaceful Issue Will Result.

London, Dec. 15.—The terms of Russia's reply to Japan have been communicated to the Japanese minister here, Baron Hayashi, by the government at Tokio. The minister subsequently said the negotiations were still incomplete, but he significantly added that he saw no reason to change his previously expressed opinion that a peaceful issue would result therefrom.

An Employer's Recommendation.

If employers instead of employees were in the habit of giving recommendations, the owner of the Boston Transcript would be able to present and exceedingly strong one. At a reunion of employes of this paper it was figured out that seventeen men on the paper today had been with them for forty years, or rather that was the average time for the seventeen. An employer could not receive a greater testimonial as to his kindness and fairness than this. Men who drink golden grain belt beer regularly are known for their even tempers and happy dispositions, for it keeps them in perfect health. Order a case of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

Doubt cannot be removed except by action. If you have any doubts as to the value of Cole's Carbolisalve as a cure for piles get a box and try it at once. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

THE START FROM THE POLE.

STATE HAS THE COIN.

Minnesota Wants to Invest in Good Bonds.

The state has $100,000 to invest in good bonds within the next month. About $300,000 more will be available for similar investment in three months from now.

State Treasurer Julius Block has sent out circular letters to a large number of brokers asking for propositions on good state or municipal bonds. The bonds which Minnesota will accept are only those of states in good standing, Minnesota municipalities and stock of good Minnesota corporations.

The money which the state treasurer was authorized to invest by the state board of investment, which met on Dec. 5, is a part of the permanent trust funds. The money now available is of the university permanent fund.

Minnesota is today one of the wealthiest states in the Union. Her trust funds aggregate nearly $20,000,000, and there is still large areas of state land and mining profit from which a great deal of money will be realized each year. In a recent speech Gov. Van Sant prophesied that within the next twenty-five years this fund will have reached $50,000,000.

The funds have been realized from the sale of the state school land, the swamp lands, stumpage and the taxes and rentals on the mineral properties on the iron range. All have contributed largely and every institution is now backed by good substantial sums laid aside for a rainy day by the state.

The $20,000,000 in permanent funds now held by the state is almost entirely invested in the bonds of other states. Large quantities of the bonds of Alabama, Delaware, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Virginia, Utah and Louisiana are numbered among the state's possessions. These bonds pay all the way from 3 1-4 to 5 per cent interest.

ALL BUT TASTE IS BAD.

Officials Find Samples of Syrup That Do Not Contain a Trace of Maple.

The state dairy and food commission has analyzed samples of so-called pure maple syrup sold in Minnesota that is 100 per cent adulteration.

The syrup consists of granulated sugar, caramel, hickory bark and corncobs, and does not contain even an infinitesimal amount of genuine maple syrup. It purports to be manufactured in Green Bay, Vt., but the food commission believes that it was never in that state.

Hundreds of samples have been analyzed by the commission in the last six months, and a very small per cent has been found to be pure. This has induced Commissioner McConnell to make a ruling that after Jan. 1, 1904, all maple syrup manufactured in the state must be labeled with the names of the ingredients, and dealers having on hand adulterated articles are given until July to get rid of the stock.

So many children have croup that it is well to know a good household remedy Cole's Cough Cure is guaranteed and the children like it. Try it. Sold at 25 and 50c by all druggists.

A COW CASE.

If a Cow Eats Neighbor's Grass to Whom Should the Milk Belong?

There are a few people who do not remember the celebrated calf case, which has gone down into legal history until it has become a household word even outside of law books. But Hennepin county has a case now that double-discounts that famous case, and it is a cow case.

Dennis Thereas owns a drove of cows which roamed around during the summer near Columbia Heights. In their roamings they chanced upon the land belonging to John W. Fleetham and ate up the grass thereon.

Fleetham chanced to spy the cows, and, as a result, he demanded of Theres payment for his grass. This was refused, and the result was a law suit in wich Fleetham asked for $106 as the value of the grass eaten.

It certainly looked bad for Theres, who could not deny that his cows might have eaten the grass, and it was difficult to deny its value. But suddenly there dawned upon him a counter claim. He learned that Fleetham had been milking the same cows at intervals, and so he brought the counter claim for $100 for milk taken from the cows while they were on Fleetham's grass.

Judge Pond drew the case, and there was no great dispute over facts. Both men were honest and the defendant admitted his cows had eaten Fleetham's grass while Fleetham admitted taking the milk.

But he was equal to the occasion. The cows were not taken care of, and in the interest of human care it was necessary that the cows should be milked. He really ought to charge the defendant for milking the cows, but he was willing to let the milk offset the labor.

Now Judge Pond will decide the case upon the law point as to whether or not it was really necessary for their health to milk the cows. If it was, Fleetham gets $106. If it was not necessary he gets but $6.—Minneapolis Tribune.

FACE HEAVY LOSSES.

Hail Insurance Companies Are in a Sad Plight.

"I am expecting all kinds of trouble before long with the hail insurance companies," said Insurance Commissioner Dearth last week. "There are perhaps fifteen or twenty companies operating in this state, and as their losses are very heavy this year and they are limited by the new law in making assessments, there are very few of them that are not, in my opinion, in pretty bad condition financially.

"You see they are all mutual companies, and under the old law they could assess and keep on assessing as long as was necessary. Even under those conditions the farmers refused in some cases to pay their assessments, and there was more or less trouble; but the law of last winter prohibits the companies from assessing their members more than 5 per cent of the value of the property at risk, and also says the companies must pay losses in full. Under the old law it was customary to pay losses pro rata.

"Now you see the law limits the resources of the companies and still says they must pay losses in full, so I don't see where they are coming out. With the heavy losses of last year, 5 per cent of the value of the property at risk would not begin to pay the losses.

"I don't know what is to be done, but the situation is a serious one for the companies, as well as for the policy holders who are trying to collect for losses."

Weak?

"I suffered terribly and was extremely weak for 12 years. The doctors said my blood was all turning to water. At last I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and was soon feeling all right again."
Mrs. J. W. Fiala, Hadlyme, Ct.

No matter how long you have been ill, nor how poorly you may be today, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine you can take for purifying and enriching the blood.

Don't doubt it, put your whole trust in it, throw away everything else.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows all about this grand old family medicine. Follow his advice and we will be satisfied.

PERIL TO THE RACE.

England Fears Her Men Are Growing Smaller.

Duke of Wellington Prints an Array of Statistics to Prove His Contention—Much Hostile Criticism Aroused.

Whether or not the British race is deteriorating physically is a subject which is interesting the English public.

The duke of Wellington has brought forward an array of statistics to prove that the classes from which Tommy Atkins is in the main recruited are not what they were in the time of the iron duke, in whose eyes a weakling was an abomination, let his moral character be never so impeccable and his education and attainments of the highest.

The present duke's contention has aroused a lively discussion. One writer denies flatly that Englishmen as a race are decreasing, either in stature or physique, and points triumphantly to the multitude of tall girls one sees in a ballroom. The argument is beside the question, as Amazonian regiments are not projected.

Another writer poohpoohs the ducal Jeremiah by saying that modern Englishmen can't begin to get into the suit of armor worn by his crusading progenitors, while a third takes another tack by exclaiming:

"What if we are more diminutive than we used to be. We dare assert that a regiment of costermongers unarmed would overcome a weaponless regiment of Pomeranian grenadiers."

LONG SEARCH REWARDED.

Father After Twenty-Year Hunt Meets Son in Prisoner's Dock and Mutual Recognition Follows.

"No, it ain't John. Ye ain't John?" came from a 72-year-old prisoner in Justice Callahan's court in Chicago, the other day.

Two men with a vast disparity in age between them were charged with vagrancy. The younger one addressed as John looked into the eyes of the old man and said:

"Yes, I'm John."

"John Rossoe?" tremblingly queried the old prisoner.

"Yes, and you ain't—"

"Yes, I'm your dad, boy. I've been lookin' for you for 20 years."

Justice Callahan wiped a mist from his eyes as the father put his arms about the younger man and pressed him to his heart.

"You're both released," was the only sentence.

For many years Joseph Rossoe, whose home is in Bay City, Mich., has searched for this fair-haired son. His wife died when John was a lad of five, and the youth was sent to a Catholic school at Johnstown, Pa. The son ventured out to see the world when he was 15. He was still "seeing" it when found in the courtroom.

Arm in arm the reunited ones walked away.

MOSQUITOES STOP AN ENGINE.

Big Machine Clogged by Mass of Insects Attracted by Sweet-Smelling Oil.

Mosquitoes stopped a 700 horsepower engine in the plant of the Pittsburg Reduction company at Alta Sita, a suburb of East St. Louis, Ill., the other day. Engineer Robinson had tried for several days to learn just what made his engine run with a jerky motion and a pounding that no well-behaved machine should develop.

On this particular day the engine went so slowly and laboriously that Robinson began to exhort the stokers to work harder. They did. Ton after ton of coal went under the boilers and more slowly went the engine. At last the big wheel stopped, while all the safety valves wheezed and shriekd.

Robinson started to wipe the cross heads of the engine. A pasty, sticky substance came off on the cotton waste. It was the mangled bodies of myriads of mosquitoes, which, attracted probably by the sweet-smelling oils of the engine, got stuck in the lubricant and finally clogged the engine. Screens were put on every window in the plant that night to keep out the pests.

TWICE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

New York Woman Recovers from Both Shocks, But Cannon Shot Paralyzes Her.

There is a strange case in Westernville, N. Y., that has baffled skilled physicians. Mrs. Cox, wife of Dr. T. H. Cox, of that village, was several years ago shocked by lightning, but nothing serious resulted, except to make her very timid every time there was a thunderstorm.

Recently as she was walking upstairs during a storm she was struck by lightning and a hole about a half inch deep was burned in her left leg. Since then she has remained in a bad state, but was convalescing.

The other night a cannon was fired near her home and she was terribly frightened and became unconscious and remained in that condition for several hours. When she partly regained consciousness it was found that her whole left side was paralyzed and her condition is now critical.

GOWNS OF LIGHT TEXTURE.

Though Elaborate in Design, They Might Be Put Through a Finger Ring.

American women stand preeminent in one respect at least over their sisters in other parts of the world. The French demoiselles may surpass them in daring costumes, the English in neatness, but for extravagance the American woman is without a rival. The gown of a seaside girl the present season is almost worth its weight in precious stones, says a fashion authority.

Seven ounces is the least her summer gown can weigh—fourteen and be quite correct is the most, says one authority—but what she may pay for these few ounces is another matter. Her modiste's bills will run along in the eighties and hundreds for even the seven-ounce gown.

You cannot put a gown through a wedding ring, as you could the proverbial white mull of your grandmother's time, but you can hardly feel its weight as you pick up waist and skirt of a chiffony texture, made over chiffon skirts and worn with a chiffony expression.

The object of the ten-ounce gown is, first, comfort. In hot weather the less you wear the more comfortable you are—that is a mere fact. But the texture this gown is made of determines its expense and the underskirts play a great part in the experience as well as in the expense of the gown.

A pretty gown in one of the closets of a Parisian modiste is made of cream lace net as fine as a spider's web and is embroidered in the lightest floss with a dainty thistle pattern. The embroidery adds almost nothing to the weight of the gown and gives just the touch of trimming necessary.

Then there are the pineapple gauzes that look so simple and are really elaborate and expensive and mean a deal of labor. They weigh scarcely more than a feather, but their cost would make the scales dip heavily.

White pineapple gauze and chiffon, a combination of two expensive stuffs, made a beautiful gown. The underskirts are made of the finest of lawn, weighing scarcely more than the gauze, and are ruffled with a single thread lace, effective and light. There are no tucks in the underskirts; they would be too heavy. The plain ruffle without insertion and only the lace edging is much in favor.

The pineapple gauze gown may be trimmed as elaborately with lace as may suit the wearer's fancy, provided she does not buy lace that weighs much. This is prohibited and only the lightest, daintiest, and, of course, the most expensive laces are used.

Chiffon takes the place greatly of lace, and, with pineapple gauze, is made over a drop skirt of white silk. Between the drop skirt and the outer skirt is an interlining of chiffon that falls in billowy fullness at the bottom and makes lace ruffles unnecessary.

A yard of chiffon weighs but a fraction of an ounce. You can utilize a good many yards in making an ounce, and seven ounces is enough for a gown. Accordion-plaited dresses are being made in these thin, light fabrics.

Aside from the gowns of lace net and chiffon there are those made entirely of lace. A Cluny lace gown will cost $200, perhaps, but to the summer girl who aims at light-weight clothes this is no objection, and nothing could be handsomer than a cream Cluny lace gown made over a pale pink chiffon, and surely nothing could weigh less.

The young girl is not alone in wearing these gowns. The woman who prefers dark colors can wear them too. A black lace dress made white point lace trimming is beautiful for a dinner gown, and surely nothing can be lighter in weight than black thread lace over chiffon.

There must not be that tight-fitting appearance that is permissible in heavier gowns. There must be enough fullness in the soft thin material to do away with this sort of thing or else the effect is lost, and the way to accomplish this is to use yokes, tucks and shirrings.

A yoke of lace extending over the hip weighs nearly nothing; it fits well and on to this may be gathered the soft material. Three or four deep shirrs accomplish the same effect and lend variety, and a yoke made of little tucks is pretty. The tucks may be as deep or as shallow as the wearer wishes and accomplish the same end of giving the full fluffy effect.

The underskirts must be made perfectly plain across the top—almost habit backed or else there would be a deal too much fullness and it would become bulky, but at the bottom they may be ruffled and froufroued as much as one pleases.

Baked Peaches.

This is a nice way to serve peaches when they are a little too green and hard for eating uncooked: Cut them in halves, pare and remove the stones, place them in layers with smooth side up in a deep earthen pie dish, with the bottom of the dish just covered with water; sprinkle sugar over the peaches and cover and bake in the oven until tender, but not soft enough to break. These may be served hot or cold with whipped cream or meringue.—People's Home Journal.

Blackberry Sponge.

Soak half a package of gelatine in cold water for half an hour, and then pour over it a pint of boiling water; add five tablespoonfuls of sugar, and then dissolve, pour into a cup and a third of hot, rich blackberry juice; strain and chill on ice; when cold, but not stiff, add the well-beaten whites of three eggs and beat until thick and light, then turn into a mold and set in a cold place.—Washington Star.

Raspberry Nectar.

One cup of raspberry juice, the juice of one lemon, and two tablespoonfuls of pineapple juice. Sweeten to taste, and chill on ice.—Home Magazine.

ROUT OF A GAUDY YOUTH.

Sought to Make an Impression on a Woman Who Tried to Avoid Him.

The young man who occupied a seat on the bench in the corner drug store seemed well satisfied with himself. He had pulled his trouser legs well up to preserve their careful crease and was displaying a generous section of gaudy stockings above his low-cut patent leather shoes. His hat was pushed to the back of his head to give full effect to a parted bang that looped on each side over his forehead. His turnover collar pressed well against his chin and was decorated in the center by a diminutive plaid bow. His cuffs were large and glossy and he seemed conscious of every one of these details and to approve of them perfectly, relates the Chicago Daily News.

He had just lighted a cigar at the swinging gas jet over the counter and its smoke seemed to annoy the woman who was also seated on the bench, waiting for her car. Perhaps it was the smoke and perhaps it was the general effect of the young man.

A puff of smoke floated over to the woman and she coughed—coughed loudly and pointedly—but the serene complacence of the youth was in no wise disturbed. He turned around a little—stiffly, because of the collar—and the indignant look that he received ought to have been enough for him. It was not, however, and the woman rose and walked to the other side of the store.

At that moment the door opened and a stout elderly woman with several bundles and three children entered and made for the bench. The young man did not move at first, but one of the children kicked against him with her swinging feet and he shifted a little, readjusting his trousers. The action drew the child's attention to the stockings and she pointed to them. "See, mamma!" she cried.

"Yes," said the matron in loud, cheerful tones. "They're pretty, ain't they? Look at the little red flowers in 'em. Ain't they sweet? Like sister Maggie's fancy bag, ain't they?"

The other children slid off their seats to obtain a better view of the gorgeous hose. The young man turned a little red, but continued to smoke. The woman who had left the bench seemed pleased and interested.

"And see the pretty, shiny shoes," continued the stout woman.

The children drew a little closer to the shoes and gazed at them in open-mouthed admiration.

It was too much. The young man rose and, evading the eye of the grinning drug clerk, left the store. As for the woman who had left the bench, she bought a half-pound box of chocolates and gave them to the children.

MOSQUITO IN WINTER.

Just Sleeps Awhile and Comes Out Fresh for Business in Warm Weather.

A fresh contribution to mosquito literature is a pamphlet issued by the board of health of Belmont, Mass., for the instruction of the people of that town in dealing with the nuisance. It is written by William Lyman Underwood, lecturer in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The pamphlet advises the use of kerosene on all water where the mosquitoes may breed and of pyrethrum powder in the house to kill or stupefy the adult mosquito. Prof. Underwood says:

"It is very generally believed that mosquitoes bite but once and then die. This is sometimes so; but unless they are killed in the act of biting they usually live to bite again. The female mosquito (for it is only the female that attacks human beings) bites many times. It is owing to this fact that they are able to convey the germs of malarial fever from person to person.

"The vast majority of mosquitoes never get human blood for food. In its absence they live upon the bloods of birds and other animals, and, when they are not to be found, upon the juices of young and tender plants.

"It is not known just how long mosquitoes can live, but their average life is much longer than is ordinarily supposed. Thousands of them live through the winter hibernating or asleep in dark places in barns or house cellars. In sparsely settled localities, where they cannot find such places for shelter, they live through the winter in hollow trees, in caves and holes under upturned trees; and even though the temperature may fall far below freezing they are not winter killed, but on the approach of warm weather become active again. Mosquitoes are frequently seen flying about in the woods before the snow has wholly left the ground."

Brain Working in Delirium.

Medical records in the various hospitals show that though quite forgetful of recent happenings, aged persons recall long-past events in correct order, and even live again amid scenes passed utterly out of recollection before the disease of senility appeared. A woman of 70, delirious from pleuropneumonia, repeated poetry in Hindustani. It developed later on that up to the age of four she knew only that language, but afterward had forgotten even that she ever spoke it. Another peculiar case on record is that of an illiterate maid servant who, while in the delirium of fever, recited Greek and Hebrew for hours, although when in health she knew no word of either language, her ravings being due to the brain impressions left by the readings heard many years before of a learned rabbi whose servant she had been.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 84.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 ($1,052.86) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof. Said Mortgage was given to secure a note dated February 13, 1903, for the sum of One Thousand ($1,000) Dollars.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (S. W. ¼ N. E. ¼) and Lots Two (2) and Three (3) and Four (4) and Five (5) in Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred and Fifty-one (151), Range Forty-four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Five Hundred Seventy and 70-100 Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ed L. Healy, Jennie Healy, his wife, and Grant Van Sant, a single man, Mortgagors, to the Elwood Land Company, Mortgagee, bearing date the 13th day of August, 1902, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of September, 1902, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 22 of Mortgages, on page 141, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter (SW¼) of Section Ten (10) Township One Hundred Fifty (150), N., Range Forty-three (43), W., in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 16th day of January, 1904, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue: to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Five Hundred Seventy and 70-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, Attorney's fees, the statutory fees as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, November 30, 1903.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Dead and Down Timber.

The report of Simon Michelet, Indian agent at White Earth, relative to the dead and down timber at that place has been received at the interior department. Agent Michelet estimates that there are from 20,000,000 to 30,000 feet of dead and down timber on the reservation, of which 75 per cent is white pine and the remainder Norway.

The timber is reported to be in good condition, and if logged this winter Agent Michelet says it will probably bring the same price as standing timber, but if allowed to lay, he reports that it will depreciate in value. The agent asks that he be authorized to dispose of the timber, stating that it will give employment to the Indians.

Boy Thaws Dynamite.

Frank Bailey, seventeen years of age, of Brainerd, was terribly injured in the woods near Alborn station on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, by an explosion of dynamite. He is in a Duluth hospital.

The flesh was literally torn from the bones of the right arm and it is expected that it will have to be amputated near the shoulder.

The dynamite was in a tin can and the boy was thawing the explosive out over a fire. While in the act of stirring the fire the dynamite exploded. Pieces of the tin can were driven into the boy's flesh. The boy's right side is badly torn.

Made Doubly Sure.

The body of an unidentified man was found in the woods near Fridley park. The body was frozen and covered with snow and had the appearance of having laid in the woods nearly a week. Coroner Ewing of Anoka county, who was called to the scene, decided that the man had taken carbolic acid and then made sure of his work by hanging himself, for one end of the rope was around his neck and the other was attached to a small tree. There was nothing about his person to indicate his identity.

Court Names Surveyor.

Judge Brooks of Minneapolis, has filed an order in answer to the petition of M. H. Hegerle in which George H. Budd is appointed as civil engineer to survey the county in connection with a proposed drainage ditch asked for in the petition for the town of Minnetrist, Hennepin county, and the town of Lake, Carver county. When the route for the proposed waterway has been surveyed, the civil engineer is asked to make a report to the court.

Champion Butter Maker.

M. Sondergaard of Hutchinson, national champion butter-maker, made high score in the December butter scoring contest conducted by the state dairy and food department. His sample was graded 97. J. W. Koopsall of Lewiston, Winona county, came in second with a marking of 96½, and Alfred Schroeder of Lafayette, Nicollet county, who took first place in November, came in third this time with a marking of 96.

WOMAN PRISON CHAPLAIN.

Ministers Regularly to the Hardened Characters Confined in Laramie (Wyo.) Jail.

The only woman in the world engaged as chaplain in a prison is Mrs. May Preston Slosson, of Wyoming, and she performs her duties with a zeal that is worthy of all praise. She is a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel and might be settled over a prosperous church, but she sees her duty lies among the convicts at Laramie and has chosen that as her field of effort, reports the Chicago Chronicle.

Mrs. Slosson received the first degree granted to a woman at Cornell university, where she worked for two years after she had received the master's degree at Hillsdale college, Michigan.

After graduating she accepted the professorship of Greek at Hastings college, Nebraska, and was married in 1891 to Prof. Edwin E. Slosson, professor of chemistry at the University of Wyoming in Laramie.

In Wyoming the prisoners of the state penitentiary were at one time kept without work on account of the opposition of the trades unions to their employment. Men deprived of the saving grace of work, no matter to what part of the community they belong, soon become thrown out of their balance. That happened to the prisoners, who got into a peculiarly morbid and unruly condition.

It was in that frame of mind that Mrs. Slosson conceived the idea which the authorities permitted her to put into practice. She arranged for a series of Sunday afternoon talks and experimental lectures by the professors of the university.

She herself gave two lectures before the convicts, and when the minister who was acting as the chaplain left the town the prisoners petitioned the governor to appoint her chaplain. He acceded to the request, and since July, 1899, she has filled the office not only to the satisfaction of the authorities, but, what is more important, to the satisfaction of those who are the enforced members of her congregation.

The prisoners number some 220 and consist for the most part of young men who have gone west from a spirit of adventure and have got into trouble either through drink or from "getting the brand on the wrong cattle," as cattle stealing is euphoniously referred to by the men themselves.

Blood Corpuscles at War.

The war between the white corpuscles of the blood and the microbes of disease was first described by the Russian pathologist, Metchnikoff. While devoting himself to the study of inflammations he in each case noted the presence of white cells in the blood currents in abnormal numbers. Inside these two cells he invariably found the specific microbe of the disease under consideration—it seemed that the big corpuscles were devouring the poisonous microbes. Sometimes the number taken up by a corpuscle was too great and it died as a result. If this overcoming of the white corpuscles by the microbes was general the patient died.—Medical Journal.

Dainty Christmas Boxes

The Courier Stationery Department is meeting our expectations. It is very gratifying every day to hear the ladies remark: "WELL, ISN'T THIS A FINE PLACE TO BUY STATIONERY." Yes, it is, and in the past week our stock has been doubled. We have added a lot of finely decorated boxes of stationery for and we purchased such a large quantity that we saved big money and propose giving our customers the benefit of our deal.

If you are looking for inexpensive, yet useful and pretty gifts for Christmas, come in and we will show you something nice.

In this line you will find just what you want and the prices are right. There are changes of styles in stationery as well as all other goods, and we aim to keep abreast of the times in this regard.

Mr. Busby's Christmas Gift

MRS. BUSBY was finishing a pair of "bootees" for her daughter's newest baby, screwing up her mouth with the intricacy of the pattern. Mrs. Griggs in the opposite rocker watched her.

"I guess I must be going," she announced, finally. "I only ran in to wish you Merry Christmas. I won't see you to-morrow. Call Christmas a holiday! I've two people to cook for usually—Christmas it's twenty!"

"And you'd not be content on other days, if you hadn' s'many then," returned Mrs. Busby. "We'll go to Tom's, as usual. He married a college girl, and I told him: 'These college girls may know a sight more about the structure of the human body than the rest of us, but they don't know half as much about making it comfortable!'"

"And now she has you come over every Christmas and see what a good housekeeper she is!" finished Mrs. Griggs, knowing the story as well as her hostess.

"M'hm. Can't you stay?"

"Thank you, no. I hoped you'd show me Mr. Busby's Christmas gift."

"It's upstairs, and I'm afraid he'll come in. He hasn't seen it, though."

"So you've got ahead of him, finally?"

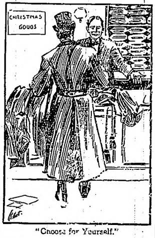
"I have. It beats all the way that man finds things out and then teases. Last year I got him a set of Dickens, and kept it hidden three weeks between the mattresses of the spare room bed. The night before Christmas I was thinking how I'd surprise him when he said, smiling like: 'That's a mighty nice set of books in the spare room bed, Cynthy; it's a pity to keep 'em there, with the bookcase so handy,' he says."

"But he hasn't found out this year?"

"No; I guess he was ashamed of being so mean. I've seen my present, though."

"But I thought you said it was kind of mean to try to find out—"

"Oh, that's different. My present is the handsomest kind of a wrap, Mrs. Griggs. I was over at Parker's one day and that head clerk he called me aside and let out that Mr. Busby was going to buy me one of those nice fur-trimmed coats, and wouldn't I like to choose it, without him knowing it? So I chose—and won't I have a joke on Mr. Busby to-morrow?"



"Choose for Yourself."

"That was real nice of that clerk."

"It was, and seeing how I could trust him, I asked him to advise me which one of those nice warm bathrobes to choose for Mr. Busby—I just couldn't decide between the red one and the green one. He said—"

"Oh, by the way, he told me a real funny story about a bath robe. He says a lady wanted to buy her husband one for Christmas and asked his advice. He told her to wait until tomorrow, as some new ones were coming in then, and—"

"Why, that must have been the very day I was in; though I didn't see any new ones when I went back the—"

"M'hm. And he just called her husband in that night and told him to choose for himself, so he wouldn't have to exchange it the day after Christmas. Her husband thought it the best joke yet to think what a laugh he'd have on her when she gave it to him. So he chose a blue one and—why, what's the matter, Mrs. Busby?"

Without a word, Mrs. Busby fled up the stairs, returning a moment later with a blue bath robe in her trembling grasp.

"Did you ever in your life know anybody as mean as that clerk?" she gasped.

"You may talk of Bill Jones and Bill Walker, Bill Brown;
There's a bill that beats all of them somewhere in town;
A bill that is waiting for all of us still.
And the name of this great one is Christmas Bill!"

Not to Be Caught Again.

"My wife says she doesn't want me to give her a solitary thing for Christmas this year."

"Are you going to take her at her word?"

"Not much! I did that once. I'm an advocate of peace whenever it can be had with honor."—Chicago Record-Herald.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

THE Thief River Press thinks that both Eddy and Collins are in the ten-to-one shot class, with Dunn a hot favorite.

THE Minneapolis Journal gives Loren Fletcher a sly dig in saying that "it sounds queer to have a Minneapolis congressman mentioned in the newspapers."

SPEAKER CANNON may ostracize John Lind in the matter of committee assignments, but he connot convince Minnesota people that the Minneapolis district is not properly represented in congress.

CHARLES A. TOWNE is to go to congress after all from the district now represented by Mayor-elect McClellan. This is a great opportunity for Towne, and the Minnesota people generally will believe that he is equal to it.

EVERY day that Judge Collins withholds his resignation drives another nail in his political coffin. The people are getting very tired of the political huckstering that has been going on at the state-house during the past month.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to induce congress to admit authors' manuscripts to the mails as third-class matter, and the Baltimore American adds that as much of it is really worse than that congress can act with a clear conscience.

THE date has been fixed for the opening of five new townships in Itasca county. Some of the land is swamp but the Bear River flowing through there makes drainage not only possible but easy. The main part of the land is timber covered, and excellent for farming. This portion of the country is government land and is, consequently, exempt from the conditions which governed the sale of the Chippewa lands. The dates for opening these townships are Jan. 12, 13 and 14.

THE report of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission shows that 211 persons were killed and 951 injured in connection with the moving of trains in Minnesota during the year ending June 30, 1903, as compared with 139 killed and 680 injured during the previous year, an increase of 72 killed, and 721 injured. In addition to this, four employers were killed and 428 injured from accidents other than those resulting from the movement of trains, making the grand total for the year 1903, 215 killed and 1,379 injured.

THE Winona Republican-Herald, the only Republican daily published in Gov. Van Sant's home town, denounces the "barter and sale" of a supreme court judgeship, saying: "The offensive flavor of political and judicial traffic prevades the entire Collins movement, and if the Republican voters of Minnesota are alive to their own interests, and conscious of the deterious influence of political bartering with the judiciary, they will at once, and with commensurate emphasis, set their seal of indignation and condemnation upon the present scheme to dictate to them who shall be their next governor."

CIVIL service reform becomes an inspiring subject as we read the reports of the annual meeting of the National civil service reform league in Baltimore last week. The merit system is only twenty years of age, but the number of government employees it now comprises is no less than 140,000, and more important than this is the fact pointed out by several speakers at the convention that the principle of the system has become so firmly imbedded that a return to the spoils system is unthinkable. Of course, the league made an object lesson of the Bristow report, Mr. Schurz dwelling upon the significant fact that "of all the public servants who were indicted for fraud or malfeasance, not one had come into the service by regular competitive examination."

HERBERT SPENCER, it seems to be agreed, will owe his lasting fame to the fact that he made people think in the terms of his philosophical system. To him is largely due the fact that today we explain ourselves and account for everything around us by the theory of evolution. When he came to apply his system he arrived at some conclusions which have been generally rejected, but the basic principles of the evolutionary conception as he set them down exist in all their strength. To realize how great has been the revolution in our habits of thought in the past hundred years, it is only necessary to compare the scientific, philosophical, and theological literature that preceeded Spencer, Darwin, Tyndall, and Huxley with that of our own day. No one of these men did so much as Spencer to give this revolution permanence, although all the others did more to bring it about.

JUST BEFORE CHRISTMAS.

Just before Christmas is a time that has interest for all. It has interest for the child because of the delightful anticipation of the visit of old Santa Claus, and because of the many beautiful things to be seen in the stores and store windows. It has interest for the young men and maidens because of the anticipation of rounds of pleasure during the holiday season. It has interest for the parents because of their pleasure in administering to the happiness of their children. It has interest for the aged, for in the joys of the season their own youth is renewed and for the time they live again in the past.

Just before Christmas has an especial interest for the head of the family because of the many calls on him to loosen the strings of his purse and parcel out the money where it will give the most pleasure. He wants to be liberal, but is restained in his liberality by his knowledge that a long and cold winter is ahead and that the demands for necessities must be met as they come up. It is a season when the average man wishes some good fairy would give him the power to turn whatever he desires into gold that he might make others happy.

Just before Christmas has much of interest but little of hope for the very poor. One can pass along the streets of any city and see half-clad children huddled about the store windows where so many wonderful things are seen, and wondering if heaven itself can be as beautiful, but having no hope of a participation. One of the most pitiful scenes that can be witnessed is to gaze at the pinched faces of these little ones and realize that their childish longings can in nowise be satisfied.

Just before Christmas is a good time for the well-fed and well-clad to stop and consider whether they cannot to some extent at least minister to the pleasure of those who have few pleasures. It is a good time to be liberal and scatter sunshine about the pathway of those whose lives are mostly spent in the darkness of poverty if not even of despair. It is a good time to do good. Many of the readers of this paper would never miss a few dollars expended in adding to the happiness of those who know but little of what real Christmas cheer is. Do not forget the words, "Peace on earth, good will towards man" at this season, "just before Christmas.

Extending the Dead Line.

Dr. Andrew D. White, seventy years yonng, hard at work, just going abroad for material for his "most important book"—there's a pleasing picture, and a practical example, too, of how to live long and be a better man each year of one's life.

There used to be a theory that after fifty-five or so some sort of decay set in to ravage the brain and the nerves, making a man thenceforth less and less intellectually until he finally shriveled into "the lean and slipper'd pantaloon . . . . sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything." But this theory is held now only by those who were born tired and give up the struggle to conceal the fact in early middle life.

Life has expanded and lengthened amazingly. The period of real living is boldly encroaching upon the once sacred period of youthful silliness at the one end upon the once equally sacred period of white-haired senility at the other.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Glimpse of the West.

Andover, Mass., Townsman: Mr. Bergstrom of Minneapolis, who is to be in Andover for several weeks, is an enthusiast over the West, as was amply proven by a recent interesting interview with him. He is at present very much interested in the development of the hemp growing industry in Minnesota, an interest that has a local flavor to it for many Andover citizens, through the Smith & Dove Company's use of such raw material.

Speaking of the subject, Mr. Bergstrom said:

"Experiments were made this year at the State farm in growing hemp. It was so successful that a corporation has been organized for the purpose of cultivating hemp and manufacturing it into fibre. A hemp fibre mill will be erected at Crookston, Minn., next spring."

"The growing of hemp on lands infested with weeds, including wild mustard—the most troublesome to the Red River Valley farmer—destroys them completely and the hemp is not affected thereby.

"The opening of a part of the Red Lake Indian reservation to settlers has brought a great influx of 'landseekers' or 'homeseekers' as they are called out there, into the north western part of the state. Many settle on their 'claims' with the express purpose of selling the timber to lumbermen, who saw it into lumber. Sometimes a settler will realize as much as ten thousand dollars for the timber alone on his land, which has only cost him fourteen dollars and the required residence on the land. Most of these homesteads are also fine agricultural lands.

"Prosperity reigns everywhere throughout the whole state, in every line of industry. The farmers have just finished threshing an abundant harvest of grain of every kind."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Some women save money for men by not marrying them.

A woman wears a veil, like a good many other things, to cover, not to hide, her charms.

The reason a woman never balances her check book is because she knows the cashier will never agree with her because he is never right.

The way for a girl to have a nice, rosy complexion is for her to try to climb a fence and get caught with half of her dress on one side and half on the other.

In Probate Court,

In the matter of the estate of Louisa Burgdorf, Deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of F. C Burgdorf as administrator of said estate of Louisa Burddorf, deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully complied with all the terms and conditions of the final decree in said matter of said estate, and with the terms and conditions of all other decrees and orders of this Court in said matter, and has paid over to the distributees and persons named in said final decree all moneys, funds and property to them awarded in said final decree, and praying that he as such executor of said estate, and the sureties on his bond, be discharged from all liability by reason of said trust and the administration of said estate.

Now, Therefore, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard by this Court at the Probate Court Office at Red Lake Falls on the 15th day of January 1904 in said County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day; and it is further ordered that notice of said hearing be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks immediately prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

(Seal) N. W. TARRANT,
Judge of Probate.
D24-Jan7 Red Lake County, Minn.

Order to Examine Accounts.

State of Minnesota, }
County of Red Lake. } ss

In Probate Court.
Special Term, Dec. 23, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of Jennie R. Francis deceased:

On Reading and Filing the Petition of Charles B. Francis, Executor of the estate of Jennie R. Francis, deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law;

It is Ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this Court, on Saturday the 16th day of January, A. D., 1904, at one o'clock P. M., at the Probate Office, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County.

And it is Ordered Further, That notice thereof be given all persons interested by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 23rd day [illegible]

CASUAL OBSERVATIONS.

Of two evils some people do their best to choose both.

If a cat has nine lives it is funny some agent hasn't attempted to sell them.

It is well enough to make a virtue of necessity if you have no better material.

If some men could save all the time they lose by hurrying they would have plenty of leisure.

Never judge a man by the clothes he wears; form your estimate from the clothes his wife wears.

Right on the heels of Christmas comes the news that the price of coal is to be advanced. Truly the householder is in hard lines these days.

The Adrian Democrat observes that a good elephant costs $5,000, but that lots of people have elephants on their hands they would gladly give away.

The price of household necessities is coming down. Radium, which has been bringing $1,000,000 per pound, can now be secured for $900,000. How much do you want?

A New York young man has been arrested for stealing a kiss. If the fellow had been foresighted enough to put it right back where he found it before the police arrived he might have kept out of trouble.

The Crookston Times man refuses to be classed as a Democrat, and yet insists that "Subsidies are wrong in principle, and should not be countenanced by any government, state or national." Some people always were inconsistent.

Some ancient sage said: "Keep your ears open and your mouth shut." And the Duluth News-Tribune adds that "the wisdom of this is that if you listen and keep quiet, in a short time you will know all you knew yourself and all the other fellow knows."

The New Yorkers are telling a new poker story on John W. Gates:

> A short time ago a rich Chinese merchant, returning to Canton from a European tour, stopped at the Waldorf. His knowledge of English was meager, but he possessed a fondness for games of chance, particularly poker, and he and Mr. Gates sat down to a friendly game when a mutual acquaintance brought them together.
>
> The game progressed until late in the evening. Finally there was a "jack pot" of substantial proportions. The Chinaman opened it and drew one card, Mr. Gates drew one card also.
>
> "Bet you five thousand," said the Chinese merchant, through the interperter.
>
> "Raise you five thousand," said Mr. Gates.
>
> The Chinaman looked at his hand, a bland smile stole over his face, and he said something in Chinese.
>
> "He raises you $15,000," said the interpreter.
>
> "The son of a sea cook," gasped the astonished Gates. The Chinaman turned ashen, his chin dropped on his breast, the cards fell from his hands, and he feebly pushed the pot towards Mr. Gates, who was more than ever astonished.
>
> "The pot's yours," said the interpreter.
>
> "Why, how's that?" asked Mr. Gates.
>
> " 'Sun-ah-see-kuk' means 'I raise you $30,000,000' in Chinese," said the interpreter, and with profound bow-tows he explained that his Celestial friend would now "cash in," having enough of the American game as played at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Here is a story going the rounds, says the Thief River Press. It is very irreverent, quite shocking, and very naughty, but it illustrates well the public ridicule created by the "saving" rich. The story goes that a fabulously rich man, who is quoted for his economics, died. He appeared at the gates of heaven. He was met by St. Peter. Gabriel, as recorder of deeds, sat near by. St. Peter said;

> "What have you done that you think you should come into heaven?"
>
> "Well," said the applicant timidly, "I met a crippled child and gave him 2 cents."
>
> "Um-m," replied St. Peter, "that was something. Is it all right, Gabriel?"
>
> "Yes-s," grudgingly answered Gabriel.
>
> "That is not enough—anything else?" asked St. Peter.
>
> "Yes. I met a newsboy. He was crying because he was stuck with his evening papers. I bought a paper."
>
> "Um-m," said St. Peter, "that was good—is that all right, Gabriel?"
>
> Gapriel referred to his books and answered in the affermitive.
>
> St. Peter thought an instant, then walked over to Gabriel. They consulted in low tones. Finally, Gabriel closed his records with a bang, and said, impatiently:
>
> "Oh, give him back his 3 cents and tell him to go to hell."

NORTHERN MINNESOTA MILLING CO.

NOTES IN MINOR CHORD.

Rev. I. T. Aastad will hold Scandinavian Lutheran services next Sunday morning at 10:30 a. m. at the city hall. A general invitation is extended.

M. T. Whittemore, assistant book keeper at the Red Lake Falls Milling company, left yesterday for Montevideo, to spend the holidays with relatives and friends.

Christoffer Person and Miss Hulda Ackerlund, of Bray township, were married at St. Hilaire yesterday afternoon. They will go to housekeeping on the groom's farm in Bray.

Attorney W. A. McIntyre left last evening for a ten days' visit with friends at Minneapolis and St. Paul. He will also transact legal business in Wisconsin before returning home.

The stores have enjoyed a very fair Christmas trade, and notwithstanding the general complaint of hard times the people are buying about as many goods as usual for the Christmastide.

Dr. M. F. Guinon, the optician and eye specialist, will be at the Grand View hotel until after New Years, and anyone troubled with defective eye sight or sore eyes should call and see him.

H. N. Johnson, the popular traveling apostle of "Mascot" flour, arrived home Saturday evening to spend the holidays with his Red Lake Falls friends. Mr. Johnson has met with splendid success on the road, and says he enjoys the work.

H. A. McClatchie, one of the old-time merchants of Red Lake Falls, has been visiting friends here during the past week. Mr. McClatchie moved from here to Minneapolis in 1892, and is now on the road for the Simmons Hardware company.

Monday was the shortest day of the year—just eight hours and 46 minutes long. The sun rose at 7:36 and set at 4:17. From now on for six months the sun will rise one or two minutes earlier every morning and set three or four minutes later.

The Red Lake Falls grange had a very successful meeting on Wednesdayand a great deal of important business was transceted. A number of the members of the Louisville grange were in attendance. The grange will give a card party on January 6, their next regular meeting day.

John L. Watson and family left Tuesday on the Great Northern for St. Paul, where they expect to make their home for the future. John will go into the land business in that city and his many friends will wish him all kinds of good luck. The Watsons will be greatly missed by the Red Lake Falls people.

A postoffice has been established at Plummer's Dam, with H. H. Finrow as postmaster. Mr. Finrow's commission arrived Tuesday, and it is likely the new office will be in running order in a few days. The office will be supplied from Red Lake Falls, and for the present Mr. Finrow will be his own mail carrier.

Crookston Times: Grace, Robert and Fred Gervais, of Grand Forks, passed through the city this morning under the guidance of Frank Benoit, who will see that they arrive safely at the Sacred Heart convent in Duluth which they will attend. They are the children of the late Peter Gervais of Red Lake Falls.

Special holiday offer: To all who enter Button's Business College the week following New Years a combined commercial and shorthand course will be given for $35. We teach telegraphy, book-keeping, short-hand, type-writing, music, and all the common branches. J. A. Button, principal, 611 N. Broadway, opposite court house.

Judge of Probate Tarrant is putting in his spare time nowadays on the neglected records of his office, and in a couple of months expects to have the official papers all properly recorded. Nick is doing good work, and it is a safe guess that when he retires—which will not be for several years—there will be no "neglected records" left as a heritage to his successor.

The attendants at St. Joseph's church will be treated to an unusually good musical program at the 10:30 high mass on Christmas day. The mass will be sung by the regular church choir, accompanied by the Red Lake Falls orchestra. Prof. Onstad will also favor the audience with a violin obligata. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the service.

The teachers in the public schools—those whose homes are out of town—left Saturday for their respective homes to spend the holidays. Miss Grace Iddings went to Wisconsin; Miss Winnifred Steele to Cherokee, Iowa; Miss Olga Wetzel to Sauk Rapids; Miss Norby to Detroit; Miss Ramsdell to Chaska; Miss Frankoviz to Fergus Falls, and Miss Delia Widing to Moorhead. School will commence again January 4.

County Attorney Grady and Clerk Perrault returned yesterday from Thief River Falls, where they attended the special session of the district court called to hear the evidence in the contested mayoralty election. Judge Grindeland has taken the case under advisement and a decision is expected early in January. The Judge also granted naturalization papers to 44 persons, most of whom live in Marshall county.

Arthur Boyce, a well-known Red Lake Falls young man, is the patentee of a setless saw, which promises to be a pronounced success and yield a handsome profit to the inventor. By an ingenious arrangement Mr. Boyce has been able to overcome the necessity for setting saws, and the carpenters and sawyers who have tried the invention say that it will save a lot of labor and expense. Mr. Boyce has secured his patents through Attorney Grady's office.

The Surprise store has had such splendid success with their annual clearance sale that it is to be continued for a little longer than at first advertised. While a good many of the bargains have been eagerly snapped up, they still have a lot of seasonable goods in the line of clothing and furnishings that will be closed out at less than cost in order to make room for the new goods which will be coming along in a few weeks. Now is the accepted time to get genuine bargains at the Surprise.

The supreme court has decided that while counties are required to maintain state ditches in repair, they cannot be held liable for damages in case of failure to properly care for such ditches. The county officers may be mandamused, but the county is not financially liable. This important point is decided in a case coming up from Clay county, where Peter O. Gaare sued the county for $500 damages to his crops from overflow of the Felton state ditch. Judge Baxter decided in favor of the county, and the supreme court sustains him.

Crookston Journal: J. K. Hannay of St. Hilaire, who manages a banking institution in that village, came to Crookston last night to meet his son, Arthur B. Hannay, who came from Montreal for a fortnight's visit. It was the first time father and son had met in eight years, the young man being engaged in newspaper work on the Montreal Herald, where he is considered one of the rising men in a journalistic way. The Hannay home at St. Hilaire will be brightened at Christmas by the reunion of the entire family, Miss Mabel coming from the Moorhead normal and another son, Norman, from the state university.

J. W. Cook, chief clerk in the office of the superintendent of the railway mail service at St. Paul, was in the city yesterday looking into the advisability of changing the mail at this place from the Great Northern to the Northern Pacific. Mr. Cook will report to his chief, and it is likely that within a week or ten days some definite action will be taken in the matter. While the service over the Northern Pacific would be a great improvement, we understand that a change would involve an additional expense of about $500 annually to the department, as the service on the Great Northern cannot be discontinued, owing to the fact that St. Hilaire and Thief River have no other supply. It is possible that on this account the petition of the Red Lake Falls business men will be denied.

The Prince of Peace

At His Name Every Knee Shall Bow and Every Tongue Confess

EVERY country of earth offers an apotheosis in the person of some great man who distinguished himself in some great crisis in its affairs. Switzerland idolizes William Tell, Russia her Peter the Great, Prussia her Frederick the Great, France her Napoleon, Italy her Garibaldi; England her Alfred the Great and the United States her Washington.

It is food for reflection that in the selections of heroes and in hero worship it is an invariable rule, not a single exception being known in all history, that choice is made of one who has crowned his life with deeds done in battle. By and through the flash of the sword alone has immortality of fame been won by mortals.

The scimiter of Mohammed and not his Koran conquered Arabia, Armenia and the Balkans. Moses was a lawgiver, but he also was a mighty warrior and led his followers on from one victory to another. It is he and Joshua and David and John Hyrcanus, all intrepid soldiers, who have made glorious the history of the Jewish people. The history of Mohammedanism is written in blood and Omar and Saladin stand out prominent in its records. So with other nations. Deeds, deeds only, and these calling for great holocausts of human lives, to make imperishable some individual name.

Christmas day offers an anomaly, however, in the history of men who have lived and wrought wonders. The Christ was a man of peace, deploring war. What is yet more strange, He is glorified through His words and not through His deeds. The Heavenly voice said to the simple shepherd on the plains of Bethlehem: "Behold! I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all the people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." And the accompanying choir with ineffable melody sang the refrain: "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace."

The Christ-birth and the Christ-life stand forth the opposite of all other great lives that have filled pages in earth's history. Born of humble parentage in a stable, amid the lowing of kine and the raucous complaining of discontented cattle, reared in the far-away bleak hills of Galilee, engaged daily in sawing logs into boards, or planing the latter into smoothness, He steps forth suddenly, at the age of 28, as a teacher of righteousness. Not among strangers, but in the midst of His own people, He appeared, and they were astounded at the profundity of His knowledge. As though to persuade themselves that they were not mistaken as to His identity, they asked of one another: "Is not this the carpenter's son?"

His life work was brief, but four short years! Compare this with the years spent by other illuminati of earth in perpetuating their fame. Without use of money, or influence, or numbers, and without courting favor of the rich and powerful, He went about from town to town preaching His gospel of peace and love. Those who gathered to Him were poor men—fishermen, publicans, small farmers or herdsmen, rather.

The waters of the sea of Judea were but little stirred by His presence. So little was His presence felt that no contemporaneous historian of His time, outside of His immediate followers, makes any reference to His life or His works. Josephus, a voluminous and very just historian, ignores Him utterly. No record has been found at Rome of His death, so little impression did it make upon the mind of Pilate.

True it is that He healed sick men, cleansed lepers, raised the dead and cast out devils. But these were subordinate and incidental only to His life-work, which was that of proclaiming a new gospel—that men should love one another. He made no parade of miracle-working. It was only when the suffering were brought into His presence that He made exercise of His divine power in healing.

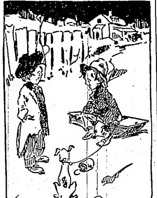
He died the most shameful, disgraceful death known to His generation. In his extremity He was deserted even by His most devoted followers. He trod the wine-press of agony alone.

Yet this Man of Sorrows has conquered the world. Other illustrious men lived out their little day and all that remains of them is the memory of their deeds. They sought to build up material kingdoms; Christ's realm is in the hearts of men. His teachings have survived the overthrow of a thousand kingdoms of earth. His words to-day are as potent to sway men as when they came burning from His lips. All the higher civilization of earth yields Him reverence and homage.

Age but serves to strengthen the might of His power and to confirm the promise of the prophecy: "At the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue confess."

WILLIAM ROSSER COBBE.

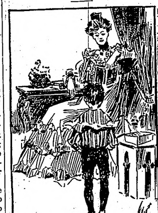
HIS CHRISTMAS HOPE.



"Whatcher goin' to git for Christmas?"

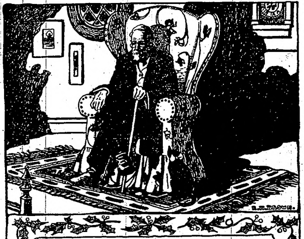
"Par promised me a lickin', but I've prayed Santa Claus ter make him fergit it."

LIKED HIS LONG STOCKINGS.



"Do you want mamma to put you in long trousers, Tommy?"

"Not till after Christmas, sis."



A Dream of Christmas

I WATCH the glowing embers as the moments flit away,
For Christmas will be with us in the morning cold and gray,
The winds sleep in the valleys and the stars shine on the snow
The while I dream of Christmases that vanished long ago;
I see the tiny stockings hanging by the ruddy hearth,
In every room this holy night is hushed the childish mirth,
For the little ones are sleeping 'neath the winter's azure dome,
A-dreaming of the happy hour when Santa Claus shall come.

WHO would not for a moment wander to the Long Ago
To see the little stockings hanging in a cosy row?
Who would not draw the coverlid from each well cherished face
And gaze upon the children in their innocence and grace?
I see them sweetly sleeping and about them all is still,
They do not hear the jingling bells upon the whitened hill;
Cheek to cheek they lie in slumber, angel guarded, as I know,
A vision of some Christmas fair that flitted long ago.

WHO plucks not from the vanished Past some Christmas like to this?
Who feels not still upon his brow some holy Christmas kiss?
The bells that ring to-night beneath the sky's star diadem
Tell more than that sweet story of the Babe of Bethlehem;
They bring to us from out the Past the loves we cherish yet,
Their tones recall the Christmases we never quite forget,
We've but to listen now to hear the bells across the snow
That ring once more deep in our hearts as in the Long Ago.

BUT in the chimes to-night I hear a music not of earth—
The star-born chorus that proclaimed the humble Christ-child's birth,
And a sweet, immortal vision comes from Judah far away
Where dawned in grandeur and in love the world's first Christmas Day.
Methinks I hear a tapping at my window framed in white,
'Tis not the bells which on the hills ring out this winter night;
Nay, surely 'tis a tapping, rising soft above the din,
And, dreaming, I the casement seek to let the Christ-child in.

During Attacks Of Heart Failure.

Would Appear To Be Dead.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Relieved and Cured.

"I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is all that one can wish it to be. I was troubled with heart disease for fifteen years. I have tried many different remedies but until I tried Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I could find no relief. I was subject to headaches and had tried your Pain Pills and they were so effective I thought your Heart Cure might help me. I would have attacks at times so severe that I would be stone blind for the time being. During these spells I would be to all appearances dead. I took the medicine strictly as directed and I can truthfully say that I am completely cured. I advise all that are troubled with heart disease to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at once. I write this, and give my name to my fellow sufferers."—S. E. Purdy, Atkinson, Nebraska.

"I first felt the effects of a weak heart in the fall of 1896. I saw an advertisement in the Sioux City paper in which a man stated his symptoms which seemed to me to indicate a trouble similar to mine. I had a soreness in the chest at times, and in my shoulder, an oppressive choking sensation in my throat and suffered from weak and hungry spells. I was truly frightened at my condition and procured six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. Since taking my first bottle I have never been bothered by any of the old disagreeable symptoms and now am well and consider my cure permanent."—Lewis Anderson, Kuhn, S. D.

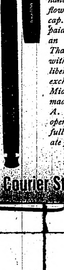
The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen



You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct,, 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

A CHRISTMAS TOBOGGAN

By MANDA L. CROCKER

IN a sheltered cleft on the mountain side where the scraggy pines made polite obeisance to their bare-headed neighbors, the Half-way house had stood, a harbinger of comfort, for a score of years.

And now, though the old stage lay rotting in the valley and the traveler thundered along by rail beneath its very foundations, the friendly gables seemed beckoning to imaginary guests.

To-night, too, the pine branches crackled merrily on the wide hearth, as if the snubs of a progressive public were not worth minding, lighting up the long, low room in the gloaming of the Christmas Eve.

Two women conversed in tender monotone in the cheery illumination, and the elder was saying: "The paper cannot be found and, of course, the property goes to your Uncle Hermon."

The other rose wearily from her place before the fire and stood leaning her head against the black old-fashioned mantel.

"Then uncle really intends taking our home away from us?" she said, interrogatively, looking down into the patient mother face.

"Certainly, my daughter," came the reply in cheerful resignation, "and he expects to take possession soon, too. But your father always made much of the Christmas time and, for his sake, we will keep the day gladly, you know."

"Yes, I know," and the girl turned away toward the next room, tucking up her sleeves with little gingerly thrusts as she went.

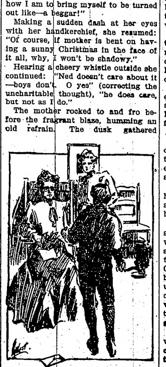
The brace of partridges Brother Ned had snared the day before made a pretty picture as they waited, plump and round, for the last turn of the skewer. After they were ready for the morrow's roasting the tall, queenly girl went over to the open doorway a moment to contemplate the picturesque landscape she had loved all her life.

"Even the scrubby oaks are restful up here," she mused, "and I don't see how I am to bring myself to be turned out like—a beggar!"

Making a sudden dash at her eyes with her handkerchief, she resumed: "Of course, if mother is bent on having a sunny Christmas in the face of it all, why, I won't be shadowy."

Hearing a cheery whistle outside she continued: "Ned doesn't care about it—boys don't. O yes" (correcting the uncharitable thought), "he does care, but not as I do."

The mother rocked to and fro before the fragrant blaze, humming an old refrain. The dusk gathered gloomily in the corners of the room while the dancing light glinted along the smoky rafters as if eager to dispel all thought of loneliness.



"Who Cares for His Charity?"

Mrs. Cameron glanced upward. In the years agone, when the rafters were not so smoky and the dear old rooms not so dingy as now, the Half-way house was the social hub of the mountain side. But now—

A sturdy lad of 12 years came bustling in with his arms full of holly and [illegible]

"The road down to the village is as smooth as glass," he said, brushing the snowflakes from his clothes on to the bright hearth. "Horses will have to be sharp shod to make the slide to-morrow, I know."

Handing some letters to his mother, he began to plan for a "jolly good time" the next day, while he separated the sprays of the glossy evergreen.

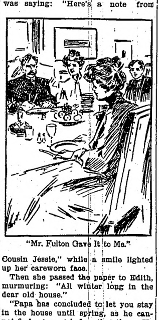
Attracted by his festive manner, his sister volunteered to help, and fell to sorting the crimson clusters for decorating the table and brightening up the rooms on the morrow.

"Of course he can't care much," she whispered, rebelliously, watching the satisfaction shining on the boyish face.

"We'll have popcorn and chesinuts, and browned birds and—everything," cried Ned, as his plans bubbled over.

"Everything," repeated his sister, bitterly, "and then by and by have nothing."

But Ned did not hear, for his mother was saying: "Here's a note from Cousin Jessie," while a smile lighted up her careworn face.



"Mr. Fulton Gave It to Me."

Then she passed the paper to Edith, murmuring: "All winter long in the dear old house."

"Papa has concluded to let you stay in the house until spring, as he cannot find a tenant before that time. He will stop on his way to Fulton's in the morning and talk with you about the matter," was what Edith read. Then she laid the slip of paper on her brother's palm, wondering if by that time anything would happen that they would not have to go at all.

Ned tossed the note into the maternal lap contemptuously and his sunny face darkened. "Who cares for his charity extension, I'd like to know?" he exclaimed. "It's only because he can't do otherwise and make it pay."

His lip curled disdainfully and quivered into silence. He did "care," after all, poor little brother. And Edith's heart smote her as she kissed his flushed cheek in sisterly sympathy. After all, he had been braver than she.

"It's a veritable toboggan," exclaimed Hermon Cameron's wife as the fine team cantered up the treacherous "slide." "Really I am afraid of an accident."

"Fudge, Mrs. Faintheart; what can happen?" laughed her husband, gayly, as he cracked his whip over the sleek bays.

Truly, it did not seem possible for anything to happen out of harmony with the lovely holiday. Nevertheless, a few minutes later the serenity of the day was all broken up for the Camerons. Frightened at something by the roadside, the horses became unmanageable and, in a twinkling, becoming detached from the sleigh, ran wildly around the upper turning, throwing Mr. Cameron heavily to the ground.

The impetus of the accident sent the vehicle spinning down the glassy incline, its occupants perfectly helpless to stay their mad flight.

The Fultons, startled to see a runaway team dash into their grounds, ran out to recognize it as that of their friend, Cameron, and in a short time they were bending solicitously over the unlucky man who, prone on the Christmas snow, was moaning unconsciously.

"We will take him up to the widow's," said Mr. Fulton, glancing in the direction of the friendly gables, "while you go for the doctor," addressing his son, "and then we will look for the rest of them."

[illegible] for her unfortunate brother-in-law, with a queer sensation tugging at her heartstrings. He had meant to stop, but not in this manner. Surely there was a Providence in it.

"Here are some papers we picked up," said Mr. Fulton, laying a roll in the widow's hand. "They must belong to him. Examine them and see. I haven't my glasses with me."

In her own room Mrs. Cameron looked the papers over. "Of course they're his," she mused, unrolling the grimy outer wrapper. Unfolding the inside paper she read: "I hereby give and bequeath the Half-way house to my sister-in-law, Prudence Cameron, and—"

She read no further. Down at the bottom of the instrument was the peculiar chirography of her injured brother-in-law.

"It was never lost!" she exclaimed; "but Hermon never meant that I should see this."

Putting the precious document away carefully, she went downstairs with a queer little smile triumphant on her patient face.

The physician and Hermon's family had arrived and the wife was saying: "We went right on tobogganing down to the uneven road at the lower turning. Then the cutter went to pieces against a tree and we were upset, but not hurt."

She ended with a hysterical laugh, as she looked toward the white-faced husband.

"Stunned a considerable, bruised a bit, but fairly ready for his Christmas dinner," said the doctor as he took his leave.

In the kitchen Edith surveyed the brace of partridges and wondered if there was "enough to go round." But while she cogitated the Fultons came in with a bountiful dinner.

"We planned for company," laughed jolly Mrs. Fulton, "and we're bound to have it, even if we meet them half-way." And soon the Christmas cheer filled the lonely old rooms.

In the midst of the merry Christmas dinner Prudence Cameron looked across the table at her brother-in-law who, pillowed up in an arm-chair, was munching a browned bird, and said, playfully: "Christmas gift, Brother Hermon."

"I meant to have brought something," he stammered, in confusion, "but—"

"Thank you, I know you did," interrupted Prudence, her face glowing with victory, "and it is all right. Mr. Fulton gave it to me—the will, I mean—and I thank you again."

Had the house tumbled down the mountain side Hermon Cameron could not have been more surprised. He sank back among the pillows with a suppressed groan. "My heart!" he said, faintly. "My heart!"

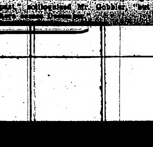
"You are hurt more seriously than we thought for!" cried the Fultons, in alarm.

"Oh, no," murmured Hermon. "I am just a little overcome."

And so it proved. But, although he revived and chatted with his friend, Fulton, over the toothsome plum pudding, he did not look Prudence Cameron's way again that day.

And that night Ned sat before the crackling fire on the broad hearth, while the dancing light touched his ruddy face and glinted up along the smoky rafters, and whispered between his palms: "Dear Lord, we are so thankful for the blessed Christmastide; but just now we are thankfuller for the upset of Uncle Hermon!"

MORE DANGER AHEAD.



"Well, I'm thankful Thanksgiving's past," soliloquized Mr. Gobbler, "but here comes December."

Nerman Schreiter and J. D. Taylor returned Saturday from Minneapolis, where they are attending the state university, and will spend the holidays at home.

Christoffer Person and Miss Hulda Ackerlund, of Bray township, were married at St. Hilaire yesterday afternoon. They will go to housekeeping on the groom's farm in Bray.

John Kortschaver returned home Saturday from Crookston, where he has been confined in St. Vincent's hospital for several weeks because of the injury to his eye last month. The eye is healing nicely and it is the hope of the physicians that the sight can be restored.

The pre-inventory sale at Bangs & Co. is in progress from now until the first of the year. This store has many seasonable goods that it desires to close out before the annual inventory, and at the low prices they are offered there ought to be no trouble in moving them.

The Burroughs adding machine which has been on trial at the court house for several months was shipped away yesterday. While the machine is all that is claimed for it, and would no doubt be a great convenience for the county officials, the commissioners decided they could not afford to indulge in the luxury at present.

The annual financial statement will be ready for the printer as soon as the commissioners pass upon it at the January meeting of the board. The statement shows that the county government has been economically administered during the past year, the cost for county revenue expenses being nearly $4,000 less than the previous year.

Representative Steenerson has as yet come to no conclusion concerning the postmastership at Thief River Falls. Postmaster Ira Richardson and Frank Kratka, the opposing candidates, are in constant communication with Mr. Steenerson, and the latter continues to receive numerous letters and petitions bearing on the situation. Mr. Steenerson will not make his recommendation until late in January.

Peter Lundquist and Miss Beata Hage, well-known and popular Red Lake Falls young people, were married at Thief River Falls last Saturday by Rev. Chas. H. Flesher, the Methodist pastor at that place. Mr. Lundquist is employed by the Red Lake Falls Milling company, and the bride is one of the graduates of the high school this spring. THE COURIER joins the many friends of the couple in wishing them a long life of happiness.

The rumor is current that two new towns will be established in Red Lake county along the line of the new Soo road next summer. One of the towns will be near Plummer's dam, and it is reported that Julius Pleth, the St. Hilaire boomer, will start a bank there and exploit the townsite. It is safe to say that any town that has Julius for a citizen can bank on forging to the front. The other town will likely be in the vicinity of Lost River crossing.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The Hotel Markham which has for years been the leading hostlery of Red Lake county, closed today and its patrons were obliged to find dinner elsewhere. The bar-room is all that is left for public patronage and is being conducted by Ray Wood during the absence of the proprietor, E. J. Druecker. Mr. Druecker left on Saturday last for Crookston and has so far failed to return. There is a lot of unpaid bills, including the hired help, and numerous creditors around town.

Wiley Tindolph, the well-known Thief River boomer, expected to start last week on an extended winter trip to the East and South, but did not get away until Monday of this week. At the last moment a customer for a couple hundred town lots appeared, and Wiley had to forgo the start until the deal was closed. Mr. Tindolph has been an extensive advertiser and persistent boomer for Thief River Falls and Red Lake county, and will be greatly missed from the business circles of that city. He expected to go from here to Charlottsville, Va., where he has a son residing.

The marriage of S. L. Lewis and Miss Alyce L. Buse is announced for January 7 at the Presbyterian church. Both the bride and groom are well-known and popular young people. The groom is senior partner in the Lewis-Higinbotham Land company, and during his residence here of nearly three years has built up a flourishing business. Miss Buse has lived here nearly all her life, and is a talented and charming young lady as well as a social favorite. After a brief honeymoon trip the couple will go to housekeeping in the residence recently vacated by John L. Watson and family. THE COURIER desires to extend hearty congratulations in advance of the nuptials.

Judge Tarrant has performed two marriage ceremonies during the past week. On Tuesday Albert Schilling and Miss Anna Mahoney, both of Thief River, were made man and wife through the Judge's kindly offices, and yesterday Chris Paulsen and Emma Nelson, both of the same town, were united for better or for worse. In the first instance Judge Tarrant came pretty nearly getting Auditor Ford into trouble. It seems that Mr. Ford was one of the witnesses called in for the occasion, and in some unacountable manner the genial auditor was stationed where the groom should have been, and the marriage obligation was addressed to him. As Jim refused to say "yes," the Judge discovered his error, and the ceremony had to be repeated.

Much Prize Money.

Minnesota's exhibits at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago place her agricultural college at the head of all the colleges exhibiting. They won $1,235 in prize money and four championships, ten first prizes, seven second prizes and eight thirds, with a fourth and fifth additional, twenty-seven in all, with the championships as additional honors. The results are very unusual and show the character of the exhibits sent, as compared with those of other states.

Serious Charges.

Some of the commission merchants of the Twin Cities are said to have received illegal consignments of game and fish, and, after selling them to firms in Chicago and other cities, to have notified the original shippers that the game and fish were confiscated by the state commission. In this way, it is said, the firms have sold large quantities of game and fish without making any returns to the shippers.

Renews Recommendation.

In its nineteenth annual report, the state railroad and warehouse commission renews its recommendations that the state enact a law making it illegal for any common carrier to advance its rates for transportation of any class of freight or commodity without first having obtained the written consent of the commission. The subject and the necessity for such a law is strongly urged, as a needed restraint.

Branded as a Fake.

Dr. H. L. Williams and the athletic authorities at the university branded as a fake, pure and simple, the story which appeared in a Minneapolis paper to the effect that Minnesota authorities were negotiating with Robert Fitzsimmons, the prize fighter, with an idea of bringing him to the university as trainer for the football squad.

Minnesota Notes.

The mangled body of O. H. Bergstrom, of Hector, Minn., was picked up by the section crew at a point a few miles west of Willmar.

The state dairy and food commission has analyzed samples of so-called pure maple syrup sold in Minnesota that is 100 per cent adulteration.

C. P. Thurston, St. Paul, has been appointed inspector of customs at St. Vincent. This customs office was created on account of the increased train service on that branch of the Great Northern railroad.

Faults of Electric Lighting.

Many scientists are working on the problem of producing an efficient artificial light. All our present methods of lighting by electricity are exceedingly wasteful of power, practically all of it going to the producing of heat. The object, then, is to produce a light, electrically, without a large heat loss. In endeavoring to build up a strong physical system, you will find golden grain belt beer indispensable. It has the strength of bread and meat in a liquid form, and is readily absorbed by the digestive organs. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

Lumber Trust's Liberality.

Northfield News: The lumber interests gave as one of the reasons for the advance in price of lumber that they were paying more for help. We learn that at Crookston the lumber trust is hiring men for from twenty to twenty-six dollars per month, and that the labor supply is much greater than the demand. It does not appear that we shall hear any more about the liberal wage scale of the lumber trust.

One View of the Case.

Grafton Record: The ban placed on the use of intoxicating liquors or intoxicants by the Northern Pacific railroad is the most practical step in the way of temperance that has been taken in the west. The enactment of statutes will not keep men from the use of liquor. But when an employer says that if any of his employees use liquor they will be discharged, a very practical prohibition is placed before the employe. When a man is threatened by the loss of his position, and with it a darkening of his prospects for the future he will very likely watch himself very closely.

A faded out, care-worn woman of 40, with a spruce up-to-date husband, should take Rocky Mountain Tea. Brings back that youthful girlish beauty. Keeps the old man from going to lodge. 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

The Dunn Sentiment.

Wadena Tribune: Alvah Eastman, of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, seems to take it as a personal grievance that the people of Duluth are inclined to favor Dunn for the governorship, which leads the Brainerd Tribune to assert that not alone in his own district is the man from Princeton strong. It declares that from its own knowledge the ex-state auditor is pretty well supplied with friends in Crow Wing and Morrison counties—both in the Sixth congressional district—which is supposed to be in Collins' own baliwick.

It warms the heart like sunshine, cheers the soul like ancient wine, gives hope for the future, blots out the past, That's what Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

Those Frosted Windows.

A preparation has been discovered which if applied to show windows, will prevent the troublesome accumulation of frost. It consists of a mixture of 55 drams of glycerine dissolved in a little over a quart of 62 per cent alcohol, containing, to improve the odor, some oil of amber. As soon as the mixture clarifies, it is rubbed over the inner surface of the glass. The New Year's Crowning.

Bring from the islands that lie afar
In the tropical waters clear,
Decked in their pride like a glowing star,
A crown for the glad New Year;
Pluck for the brows of the Nation's guest
Who comes to us o'er the snow,
The bloom of the Southland, fairest and best,
Where the orange blossoms blow,
And the waters run
To the seas of sun
With a song devoid of woe.

Bear from the Northland's boughs of pine,
From the crest of the loftiest peak,
Wherever the snows in the sunlight shine,
A wreath that the bravest seek,
For the New Year comes with lightsome tread
In the morning cold and gray,
Passing the Old Year nearly dead
By the fringe of his wintry way;
He brought us cheer,
Did the old, Old Year,
And—Well, he has had his day.

Gather the wild, wild blossoms fair
That ope in the olden East—
The bloom that laughs at the cold sea air,
For the New Year's welcome feast;
A hardy rose from the Pilgrims' land,
A bough from the northern lakes,
Where in their might the bare cliffs stand
And laugh at the tide that breaks—
A rose and a bough
For the new Year's brow,
Fresh kissed by the Winter's flakes.

Over the pathway of the stars
He comes to abide a year,
His smiles of peace now nothing mars,
He brings us never a tear;
Hark to the wild bells in the sky
And their music sad and low!
For the old, Old Year, just passing by,
The New Year waiteth so;
By the starlit gates
In his robes he waits,
With his sandals in the snow.

O bells, ring out for the welcome guest
On land and over the sea!
And North and South and East and West
Fling out your banners free;
He comes with smiles and a song of mirth
And his is a feast of cheer;
Let every nation hail the birth
Of the winsome, glad New Year;
Let pæans arise
To the winter skies,
And all the bells ring clear!

JUDGE COLLINS WITHDRAWS

Conference at the State House at Which He Decides to Quit Race for Governor.

It is reported from St. Paul today that after eight weeks in the field as a prospective candidate for governor, Judge Loren W. Collins, of the state supreme bench, has decided to drop the entire fight, withdraw his candidacy, and stick to the bench.

This is the arrangement now and will be effected within a week unless something unexpectedly happens.

Incidentally the relations existing between certain gentlemen "close to the throne" are said to be seriously strained.

Judge Collins has been awaiting developments in various sections of the state before deciding whether to resign or to stay on the bench.

He admitted frankly that he had been disappointed in the support accorded thus far.

However he was willing to make the fight if his friends deemed that the best thing.

Judge Collins agreed that the best thing under all circumstances was to inform his friends that he would not be a candidate.

OUR FIRST RURAL ROUTE

Farmers on Lambert Star Route Can Have Mail Delivered.

Any farmer living on or near the star route leading from Red Lake Falls to Terrebonne and Lambert and not within the corporate limits of any town or within eighty rods of any postoffice, who desires his mail deposited at a given point on the line, may provide and erect a suitable box on the roadside to be reached conveniently by the carrier without dismounting from his vehicle, and such person shall file with the postmaster at the postoffice to which his mail is addressed, a request in writing for the delivery of his mail to the carrier on the route for deposit at a designated point, at the risk of addressee.

The carrier is not required to collect mail from the boxes, but can do so if it does not interfere with making the schedule time.

The law provides that every carrier of the mail shall receive any mail matter presented to him if properly prepaid by stamps and deliver the same for mailing at the next postoffice at which he arrives, but that no fees shall be allowed him.

CHICAGO THEATER BURNS

Feared That Five Hundred People Either Lost Their Lives or Were Injured.

Fire broke out in the Iroquois theater at Chicago yerterday afternoon. The audience fled in panic to the streed during the second act of the play, "Bluebeard," presumably from a defect in the electrical display.

In an instant the draperies and flimsy stage settings had burst into flames. The actors and actresses ran wildly about the stage as the audience fought and jammed its way to the front doors.

In a short time the interior was a mass of flames and smoke was issuing in clouds from the front.

With over sixty bodies recovered from the burning theater, a conservative estimate was that there were at least 200 more persons inside, either dead or unconcious. Firemen and policemen said that inside in the balconies the bodies were piled five deep.

At 5 p. m. the police estimated that 500 persons either lost their lives or were injured in the fire.

Business Men and Politics.

One of the great mistakes made by business men is to assume an indifference to the political situation. Politics is government, and the more light thrown on the matter, the better it will be for the future of good government.—Minneapolis Telegram.

DUNTLEY'S STORE IS ROBBED

Henry Prue Pleads Guilty, and is Sentenced to the State Training School.

Duntley's confectionery was robbed last Thursday afternoon of $41, and on the following day Henry Prue and Sidney Belair were arrested for the theft. Both are boys about fourteen years of age. Young Prue plead guilty, and at first insisted that the Belair boy was a partner in the crime, but at Belair's trial confessed that he alone concocted and executed the robbery, and as a result of this confession young Belair was acquitted.

Prue says that he stole the money in the afternoon, taking the sack in which the money was kept from a drawer behind the counter while Mrs. Duntley and the employees were at work in the rear room. He was having a glorious time during the brief interval between the robbery and the discovery on the part of Mrs. Duntley that her money was gone, and when arrested all but $10 of the plunder had been spent. Prue gave up the $10—the remainder having been spent in the various stores for Christmas goods. He was sentenced to the state training school by Justice Toupin, and Sheriff Linnihan leaves this afternoon for Red Wing with his prisoner.

The incident ought to be a lesson to other boys who are tempted from the path of honesty. No boy can expect to continue that sort of a life without getting into trouble with the law and losing the respect and esteem of all good people. Absolute honesty and truthfulness is the best asset for a boy, and one whose daily life proves that he is honest and truthful is far better equipped for a successful career than the one with prospects of an inheritance. The confidence of other people is necessary to any boy's success, and in abusing it he throws away every opportunity for getting along in the world. Boys, your manhood is worth more than the few paltry dollars you can ever pick up by petty thievery.

Fire At Mentor.

Tuesday morning a fire started in the basement of the store of M. O. Matson & Co. at Mentor. The flames were soon beyond control and the entire stock of the company was either destroyed by fire or water. The building was gutted but not materially damaged beyond the plaster, paint and floors.

The fire department made a heroic fight to control the flames and two men whose names could not be ascertained, were nearly strangled by the exhaust of the gasoline engine. They were unconcious and did not revive for some time. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $10,000, partially covered by insurance.

The Sensible Thing to Do.

It would not be the least surprising if Judge Collins reconsidered his announcement as a candidate for governor and remained upon the supreme bench. Under the circumstances this is probably the most sensible thing he could do.—Hastings Gazette.

NAILS A CANARD.

George A. Flinn Squelches a Cheap Campaign Yarn.

It is remarkable how very unanimous the Democratic press is in advising the Republicans to nominate Bob Dunn. Is it owing to the fact that he has employed a Democrat, Mr. Flinn, as his campaign manager, or is it because they feel a political fellow feeling for him that they are boosting him so? At any rate, the extreme solicitude and concern manifested by our friends and political enemies along this line is sufficient to arouse suspicion among the Republicans.—Hallock News.

The above quotation was published in the St. Paul Dispatch on Saturday last, Dec. 5th, among a number of political items prepared by Mr. George Thompson, personally, and done into English by an intelligent member of the Dispatch staff. It is small wonder that Mr. Thompson is in doubt as to the politics of Mr. Flinn. There is good reason for Mr. Thompson being in doubt. Mr. Flinn was once a member of the Dispatch staff, being city editor and editorial writer on that paper prior to 1890, and his main duty during city campaigns was to bear assurances from Mr. Thompson to Robert A. Smith, Democratic candidate for mayor, that he, Smith, would not receive any serious injury, politically, from Mr. Thompson or the St. Paul Dispatch, and that if matters got serious for Smith's candidacy he was to "let Mr. Thompson know."

It is therefore quite possible that Mr. Thompson does to this day possess rather hazy notions as to the politics of Mr. Flinn, but if he desires to learn definitely, or if the Hallock Weekly News or State Librarian Nelson feel any desire for information on the question, Mr. Flinn will take pleasure in directing them for the purpose of inquiry, to Governor Van Sant who is indebted to Mr. Flinn for many of his most beautiful speeches, notably the great speech he delivered on state issues in the campaign of 1900 when he defeated John Lind for the governorship.

The fact that Mr. Flinn used his best efforts to secure the nomination and election as state auditor of Hon. R. C. Dunn in 1894 and at the present time is glad to place his service at the disposal of Mr. Dunn and is doing what he can to aid Mr. Dunn to secure the Republican nomination for governor may throw a mild illumination upon Mr. Flinn's politics and at the same time will shed a few elucidating beams on the reason for the Hallock News, State Librarian Nelson and George Thompson of the St. Paul Dispatch, raising any question upon such an unimportant personal matter.

As to Mr. Flinn being the "political manager" of R. C. Dunn, Mr. Flinn must reluctantly deny the truth of the assertion, Mr. Dunn has no political manager, doesn't need one, and it is open to doubt if there is a man in Minnesota who could manage him, politically or otherwise. Mr. Dunn is managing his own affairs and is quite capable of doing so, as any person who knows him will cheerfully testify.

The title of "political manager" is an honorable one and carries with it an atmosphere of distinction, hence the reluctance of Mr. Flinn to deny the kind impeachment; but in the interests of truth, the fact must be stated that Mr. Dunn is his own political manager and appears to be making a great success of the job. In the meantime Mr. Flinn has given Dunn the free and unrestricted use of his real estate office, a single room on the fourth floor of the Pioneer Press building, just as long as he wants which will no doubt be until Mr. Dunn formally announces his candidacy early next year and finds it necessary to open an official and more commodious headquarters.

THE "SHORT COURSE."

Winter Course For Farmers Open at the University, Jan. 12.

The state agricultural school will open its annual "short course for farmers" on Jan. 12. The course will continue eight weeks and will cover a wide variety of subjects, intended to make better farmers of men who are already depending on agricultural pursuits for a living and profit. The course in previous years has been very successful. This year it will treat of general farm management, drainage, rotation of crops, building and maintaining roads, farm machinery, dairy, husbandry, animal husbandry, agricultural chemistry, farm machanics, dressing and curing meats, veterinary science, farm accounts, diseases of plants, economic entomology and poultry, all with reference to the needs of the practical farmer.

Classes will be called at 9 o'clock every morning during the continuance of the course and school work will last until 2:50 in the afternoon. No lectures or classes will be held Mondays during the term and the day will be given over each week to visits to the stock yards, flax and flour mills, greenhouses and stock farms and other places of interest to farmers. The tuition fee is $10 and other expenses are solely those of board and personal expenditures.

An effort will be made to confine the instruction in the division of agriculture solely to those things that can be put into actual practice on a Minnesota farm.

COAL IN NORTHWEST.

Mining Industry in State of Washington Increasing.

Fields Extend in Broken Line from Canadian Boundary to Columbia River—Nature of the Product.

At the world's fair in Chicago the state of Washington exhibited a chunk of coal weighing 25 tons. It excited considerable interest because those were the young days of important mining in that state; and the Pacific coast is not able to boast of such enormous coal resources as are found further east, says a report from that section.

The geological survey of Washington has just published a map showing the distribution of the coal fields in the state. One may see at a glance that all the coal fields yet discovered are situated quite conveniently to the sea.

They extend in a broken line from the Canadian boundary to the Columbia river. One group is situated on or near the sea, a little above the northern end of Puget sound; another group lies to the east of Seattle and Tacoma, and still other fields are south of Puget sound.

Altogether there are 17 fields which are contributing more or less to the coal supplies. Some of them are entirely within the Puget sound basin, and others lie between it and the foothills of the Cascades. It is fortunate for Washington, which is not overburdened with railroads, that her coal fields are so conveniently situated for the water transportation of the fuel.

It has been said that the coal of the Pacific coast is not of a superior quality, and this is true. But Washington mines a great deal of coal of the most useful kinds.

There are some beds which are classed as anthracite, but the fuel is not mined and is believed to be inferior; a large supply of lignite is mined, and a great deal of semibituminous coal, which is excellent for locomotives and steamboat use. Nearly all of it is used for steam making. A higher grade of coal is the bituminous coking coal, a part of which is turned into coke, while far larger quantities are used for steam and domestic purposes.

Last year Washington produced the largest quantity of coal ever mined there. There was no very important production before 1886, but nearly every year since then the quantity mined has increased. It amounted last year to 2,690,789 short tons.

The larger part is consumed in the state, and as time goes on and the population increases the home market will require much greater supplies. The largest use to which coal is put is in the making of steam for locomotives, steamboats and stationary boilers.

Wood is extensively used as fuel in western Washington, but in the timberless region of the eastern part of the state coal is used for all purposes, and is chiefly supplied by the Roslyn district, which furnishes nearly half the coal mined and is conveniently situated in respect of the transportation facilities afforded by the railroads and shipping of Tacoma.

The great bulk of the coal shipped from Seattle and Tacoma goes to San Francisco, but a number of cargoes were sent in 1901 to Hawaii, as well as to Alaskan ports. British Columbia competes with Washington in supplying Alaska, but that territory has coal of her own and is likely in a few years to become an exporter instead of an importer.

California buys about one-third of the coal produced; the railroads of Washington and the adjoining states are also large purchasers, and about 300,000 tons a year are consumed by steamers in the foreign and domestic trade.

FOREIGN BANKING METHODS.

Conservatism in Periods of Prosperity Contributes to Stability in Stress and Storm.

In France or in England, for example, the specie reserves of the whole country are concentrated very largely in the vaults of a central bank, says Prof. Charles J. Bullock, in Atlantic. The Bank of France and the Bank of England occupy an independent position, and are dominated by no outside interests that can involve them in the fortunes of special enterprises. Sobered and steadied at all times by an appreciation of the enormous moral responsibility that rests upon them the managers of these institutions adhere to their ultra-conservative policy even when the spirit of speculation is rampant in other financial circles. Against its enormous deposits the Bank of England maintains a cash reserve of over 50 per cent. while the position of the Bank of France is even stronger, when, therefore, other banks experience a demand for ready money, relief can be quickly afforded by these central institutions. And it is only through such conservatism as these banks display in periods of prosperity that they can contribute to stability in times of stress and storm. When it is remembered that the reserves of the New York banks seldom exceed very greatly the 25 per cent. limit which has been established by law and by custom, the contrast between American and French or English conditions becomes at once apparent. For an independent bank, which is free to seek its own safety at the approach of danger, a reserve of 25 per cent. should ordinarily prove to be ample; but for institutions that aspire to the rank of central banks such a safeguard must be wholly inadequate.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A woman in business is natural as a man rolling a baby carriage in the park.

Either you cuss the furnace because it won't burn or because it will and burns too much coal.

Anyaway, a bachelor doesn't bore everybody to death telling what smart things his children say.

It is a great comfort to a wife to feel that if she had married better than she did she might not be as good a woman as she is.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 84.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 ($1,052.86) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof. Said Mortgage was given to secure a note dated February 13, 1903, for the sum of One Thousand ($1,000) Dollars.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (S. W. ¼ N. E. ¼) and Lots Two (2) and Three (3) and Four (4) and Five (5) in Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred and Fifty-one (151), Range Forty-four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court-House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

A New Year Conquest

By

CHARLES MOREAU HARGER

A Story of the Great Southwest

GREAT clouds of yellow dust, a dazzling blue sky, sweeping winds, long reaches of level lands—the midwinter southwest, and on the siding the palatial train of the cattle king who was now off among the ranches looking after sleek and well-bred herds.

The cattle king's daughter, whose prospective wealth entitled her to the rank of princess, sat under the striped awning on the rear platform of the train, gazing wearily at the monotonous landscape.

"How long are we to stay here?" she demanded, of the porter who was industriously trying to keep the leather-covered chairs clean. He did not answer—he did not know. She went back to the parlor of the other private car and accosted the quiet woman who sat by the window sewing. "Auntie, how long is this to last?"

"Until your father gets back or there are orders."

"I'm tired of it—I'm going out of doors."

She seized a jacket and cap, slipped down the side steps and disappeared behind the squalid depot. A dilapidated livery stable stood in the sunshine. "I want a riding horse—quick!"

The man fairly trembled in his anxiety to serve the city girl, and in a moment she was cantering over the sand and sage brush, headed straight for the green hills in the distance.

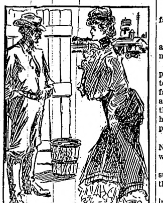
Away and away she sped; delighting in the free rush of the wind, the swish of her pony's hoofs through the grass and the exhilaration of the open lands.

At last she turned the horse's head—where was the station? Nothing but a rolling plain, not shining with sunlight, but dampened by shadow. With a little cry of terror she sent her mount racing ahead and strained her eyes for the engine smoke on the horizon.

"Ah, there it is—but so far away!"

She surmised what had happened—her father had reached a station farther down the line and wired for the train to join him, and they had not discovered her absence before starting.

As she looked she saw off to the left another rider—a wide-hatted ranchman—toward him she rode. As she drew nearer her cheeks grew red and her eyes brightened. Once she stopped and turned as if to leave him. Then he came close to her.



"I WANT A RIDING HORSE."

"Oh, Mr. Mason, what shall I do?"

Frank Mason, the handsome ranch superintendent, scarcely recognized her, bowing so slightly that it seemed to be merely the motion of his horse.

"What is the matter, madam?"

"Don't be mean"—the girl's eyes were beseeching.

"But you told me never to speak to you again—only this morning."

"Yes, I know, but you see how it is—the train has gone—it is almost evening and here I am."

"It does look serious, doesn't it? Where do they think you are?"

"They don't think. Aunty's probably gone to sleep and won't wake up until midnight—the others think I'm in my room, in papa's car."

"It is serious—and nobody's at the ranch to take care of you. I suppose they will come back to-morrow anyhow."

"To-morrow!" The girl fairly screeched the word. "We must get them now—to-night, don't you understand—now!"

"But it is 50 miles to the next telegraph station—how can the engineer get orders?"

He looked toward the train, which was disappearing in a cut between some creek bluffs a mile or two below the station.

"You see, it's New Year's day and everybody but the stable boys and station agent has gone to the county seat to a celebration. There's a dance to-night, so they won't be home—yes, it is serious."

Their horses were moving slowly toward the station, yet a long distance away. They were talking earnestly and did not notice the curious movements of a herd of cattle that had strayed from the grasslands toward the station and now, hundreds and hundreds of them, were pushing close to the two figures. The girl's bright jacket and the flashing red of the cap that topped her brown curls may have caused their exceeding interest. When a huge fellow trotted in front of her weary horse, the girl stared about her in alarm.

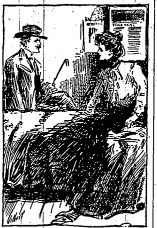
"Oh, Frank—Mr. Mason—look!"

The young ranchman seemed much excited. "Hurry!" he exclaimed, and urged his horse into a run. She cantered by his side, alarmed by the strange apparition of the herd, which it seemed had risen out of the sod.

The ranchman saw something else that the girl did not—a cluster of earth mounds thrown up in the level of the plain, the work of prairie dogs or some other burrowers of the plains. Before he could caution the girl, her horse stumbled, fell, staggered, went tumbling in a heap with a broken leg.

Now it was serious. The cattle, more curious than ever, scampered faster toward the object of their interest; the fallen horse plunged and snorted; the skirts of its rider held her prisoner.

In an instant Mason was by her side, tugging at the fair burden. When she was free he found her helpless from a strained ankle, and with tenderness he lifted her in his arms and to his own saddle. Then jumping beside her he turned the nervous animal, drew his revolver and shot unerringly the struggling beast on the ground—then away toward the station resting on the broad and dusty plain.



"I'M SORRY I WAS SO RUDE."

Arrived there, he lifted her gently to one of the benches which stood in the tiny waiting-room; he transformed it into a settee with blankets from the livery stable; he heard with pleasure her words of satisfaction.

"That pin you wear—where did you get it?" she asked, irrelevantly. "It looks like Harvard."

"It is Harvard—I graduated there."

"And you are herding cattle?"

"I am superintending a ranch—my father owns it—10,000 head."

"And you live?"

"In Chicago—my special train is at St. Louis now with my sister and mother aboard, bound here."

So this was the "cowboy" she had patronized and made fun of as he came to the train day after day to see her father. She had been amused by his assurance and had quarreled with him that very morning. Now she was at his mercy—and she found it rather pleasant.

"This is a strange beginning for the New Year," she broke out. "I wonder when the train will be back."

"I think it is a good beginning—I'm sure I don't know about that train—there is no connection with it yet."

"I'm sorry I was so rude this morning, Fr—Mr. Mason."

"Don't worry, Anna—Miss Seamans." He smiled, cautiously, at her.

"It is fine of you to care for me and protect me this way," she went on, "and I don't know how to thank you."

"Don't try. This is not the first time I have seen you—I danced with you two years ago at your cousin's ball."

"I do not remember, but you have been very good now. I shall not forget it."

"I know—but don't you think it would be a fine thing to have me take care of you all the time?"

She gave a pressure of her hand—but no more. Almost at the door was a rumble, a high note "T-o-o-t!" and the striped awning of the rear car came into view a few feet away.

"Quick—love, will you?" His words were eager, and as he lifted her in his arms once more for a journey to the train she whispered: "Yes."

Almost as soon from the opposite direction came Mr. Seamans and his foremen. He greeted the pair, with smiles and laughed at the daughter's injuries when he found they were not serious.

"Stay on with us," he invited Mason. "We'll bring you back before we leave for Chicago."

"How did the train come back so soon?" asked Miss Seamans, rising from her couch. "I thought it was 50 miles to the next station!"

"Wireless telegraphy," suggested Mason.

"Shucks," said the aunt, contemptuously. "The engineer pulled it down to the creek to fill the boilers. We weren't gone half an hour."

The girl looked quickly into the laughing eyes of the young ranchman

"I believe you knew it all the time," she exclaimed.

"I did not tell you differently," he pleaded. "You remember I was under orders."

She was not satisfied. That evening as they sat out under the striped awning on the rear paltform and watched the landscape, glistening under the winter moon, as the train sped southward, she continued: "Really, Frank, didn't you bribe the engineer to run behind the hill so it would scare me?"

But he did not answer—nor has he answered yet, though his wife propounds the question every New Year's day.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S WHIM.

The Practical Joke a Celebrated Man Played on Posterity.

One of the most famous of postmortem jokes was that perpetrated by the donor of the celebrated Soane museum of pictures and other valuable objets d'art to England, the late Sir John Soane, who died in 1837. In his will Sir John made provision for the opening of three sealed cupboards on certain specified dates in the presence of the trustees. In 1866, that is to say almost thirty years after the death of the testator, the first of the mysterious receptacles was with much ceremony and breaking of seals opened in the presence of a committee of men, with the then president of the Royal academy, Sir F. Grant, at their head. Instead of a priceless treasure or some evidence that would throw an entirely new light upon some doubtful incident in political history the contents of the cupboard proved to be worthless accounts, letters and stationery.

Twenty years pased by, and the interest that had smoldered after the disappointment of 1866 was again fanned into flame at the prospect of breaking the seals of the second cupboard, at which rite there were present among others Dr. Alfred Waterhouse, R. A., and Sir (then Dr.) B. W. Richardson. Like the cupboard mentioned in the well known nursery rhyme, Sir John's second cabinet proved "bare" of any sensation, the contents being chiefly composed of letters relating to certain long forgotten family quarrels that had not even the merit of being interesting. If some of those authorized to be present at the opening of the third and last receptacle of mystery were dubious about the profit that would accrue by letting the light of day fall upon the contents thereof after sixty years' darkness one at least, Sir B. W. Richardson, looked forward with unabated interest to that day in 1896 when the last seal would be broken and the mystery solved, but he, alas, died just two days before the ceremony was performed, and the fact that Sir John had played a practical joke upon posterity was duly confirmed by the presence of a collection of perfectly worthless letters and papers.

MERRY MEALTIMES.

The Table No Place For Fault Finding, Nagging and Strife.

Has it ever been your lot to sit at a table with a group of young folks who ate the meal in silence or, with a few constrained remarks, looked askance at the head of the family before venturing on any remark? I have seen such a sight on more than one occasion. Doctors have told us over and over again of the beneficial results arising from a meal eaten with a contented frame of mind and with cheerful surroundings; but, sad to say, there are many households where each meal is a constant scene of bickering, nagging and fault finding.

This is not only the case where there are young children, who require a reprimand occasionally for carelessness, but I am speaking of those homes where the girls and boys are well into their teens. Wrong is that parent, either father or mother, who chooses the hour when all are assembled round the table to mention some half forgotten grievance or to find some fault.

If any trivial thing has been done wrong or any duty omitted wait until dinner or tea is over before you scold, blame or reprimand. Let the food which God gives us for the purpose of nourishing and sustaining our bodies have the opportunity of accomplishing that end, which cannot be the case if every mouthful is swallowed with either a sarcastic word or an uncomplimentary remark. More indigestion, nervousness and other derangements are caused by the too common fault of uncomfortable mealtimes than many people would suppose, and it is our positive duty, which we should all try to remember, to make those hours of the day cheerful and agreeable to the children and to set them an example which you would be the first to notice and approve in others.—Scotsman.

So Nice and Sympathetic.

A gentleman whose one glass eye has served him for years had the misfortune to drop it. It smashed to atoms. This happened when he was far away in the country. He inquired of a friend where was the nearest place for him to go and get refitted.

"Why don't you call upon the girl you were flirting with all last night?" his friend inquired. "She has a first class reputation for making eyes."—Punch.

Prayer of the Convert.

A south sea islander at the close of a religious meeting offered the following prayer: "O God, we are about to go to our respective homes. Let not the words we have heard be like the fine clothes we wear—soon to be taken off and folded up in a box till another Sabbath comes around. Rather, let thy truth be like the tattoo on our bodies—ineffaceable till death."—Carleton's Magazine.

The Temperature.

"Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely?" queried the invalid.

"Because," replied the untrained nurse, "the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine."

Bewildered.

"John Henry, I'll thrash you soundly if I ever catch you telling another story that isn't true."

"And yet, ma, I heard you say to the minister that I had great imagination."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

$1.00 Per Year, in Advance.

THE average man won't know what his Christmas gift cost until the bill comes in.

JUDGE COLLINS seems to have reached the conclusion that a seat on the supreme bench is not a bad sort of a job after all.

SENATOR HANNA may not be a candidate for president, but he is getting busy enough to excite the friends of the present incumbent.

AN Eastern genius for figures has given out that it costs $24,000 to raise six boys to manhood's estate. This is another argument in favor of diversified crops.

THE St. Paul Pioneer Press is for Hanna—not Mark, but Hugh H., of Indianapolis, for vice president. Nine-tenths of the people will be excused for asking, "Who's Hanna?"

SOUTHERN Minnesota farmers are caught with a lot of threshing unfinished. The fall and early winter was exceedingly wet. The farmers down south were certainly in hard luck this year.

THE Northfield News tritely remarks that "a good road from farm to town helps the farmer in many ways. It not only saves the horses and vehicles, but enchances the value of his farm."

THE country press is after Ray Jones and Ira B. Mills with a sharp stick. It will be greatly to the credit of the Republican country papers if they can drive these notoriously unfit persons from public life.

THERE is nothing certain about politics. The papers that are so cock-sure that Roosevelt is to slide in on flowery beds of ease may have occasion to revise their estimate. Just now the situation is not at all flattering to the president's chances of re-election.

L. P. HUNT, the Mankato editor with an avaricious office-holding appetite, is "mentioned" for membership on the board of control and also as a successor to Captain Castle as auditor for the postoffice department. The office in seeking the man was never able to catch up with Bro. Hunt, and he has always been ready to meet it half way.

HERE is a quiet jab at our own John from the Elk River Star News: "The Eastman line of papers up north are getting a great deal of satisfaction quoting from one another in favor of Collins. The St. Cloud Journal-Press originates a line of argument and then it goes along the line until the Thief River end of the string is reached. Great is the Eastman syndicate of the newspapers."

IT is reported that Mr. Jonathan Hutchinson has said that "when a man sneezes heartilly he may know himself to be in the best of health," and that "no man in poor health was ever known to sneeze." The Scientific American, referring to this reported statement, falls foul of the English surgeon for making so dogmatic an assertion when the contrary is so easily proved.—Medical Record.

A NOTED European physician has recorded during several years the hour of death of 2,880 persons of all ages in a mixed population. The largest number of deaths occur between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning, and the smallest between 9 and 11 o'clock in the morning. From 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. the death rate is not large, and most fatal hours are from 3 to 6 a. m. Commenting upon these figures, the Annales d'Hygeine explains them by saying that it is in the early hours of the morning that patients are most often neglected.

COLONEL HOPE of the British army announces that after nine and a half years' continuous work, in which he has calcuated and recorded over ten thousand experiments, he has produced an absolutely safe and stable smokeless powder, which he calls veloxite. He says that it contains 73 per cent. more power as a propelling agent, weight for weight, than the government's present powder, yet it contains no nitro compound, no sulphur, no phosporous, no chlorate, in fact no dangerous ingredients. The flashing point of black powder is at 640 degrees Fahrenheit, that of cordite powders is only from 360 to 370 degrees, while that of veloxite is about 12,000. He says that veloxite stands the hammering of a sledge hammer on an anvil.

SENATOR TELLER relates a good story by way of illustrating his opinion that the Columbian delegates who have come to see if something cannot be done to get Panama back into their country, are wasting their time. Senator Teller says that these delegates remind him of a justice of the peace before whom he once tried a case. According to the Senator: "The suit was over an old debt for supplies. The defense was that the bill was paid. The justice was a pompous old chap, who knew no law. After we had finished, the justice said: 'The court knows all about this case. The court has heard what the witnesses has got to say and the talk of the lawyers. The court will not decide the case just now. The court will take the case under advisement for three days and the court will then decide the case in favor of the plaintiff.' "

SMALLER FARMS.

In conversation with one of the largest farmers in Rice county the other day, says the Northfield News, we were impressed with the fact that what this country needs now is smaller farms and more intensive cultivation. Farmers in Holland, Denmark, Switzerland and all of the older countries where land is worth from one hundred to five hundred dollars an acre, are making a success with farming from ten to forty acres, the latter named figure being considered a very large farm. In a greater measure will this solve the help problem than any other plan that may suggest itself. A farmer with a farm of the size mentioned can with his own family do all the work the year around, and in the case of rush the owners of two small farms could cooperate and do their harvesting together. One man with ten good cows cared for as they are cared for in some of the older countries, and from ten to thirty hogs, a good flock of chickens, etc., could make as much by constant application as can the farmer today with 160 acres poorly tilled, and poorly harvested, and who has to rely almost constantly upon hired help. The cutting up of large farms into smaller ones would not only benefit the farmer but would also be a boon to the business interests of all small cities and towns as well. In this way the benefit would be mutual. We venture to say that on every farm of 160 acres today there is enough land being poorly tilled or not being tilled at all in fence corners, weed patches, quack spots, etc., to make a good living for the owner thereof if it were in a state of high cultivation. It might be well for the farmers of this section to study this matter a little more closely and see if there is not truth enough in it to warrant the cutting up of some of the larger farms and instead of one man farming all of this, he could farm forty acres for himself and rent three smaller farms to good advantage.

KILLING OFF LIND.

Fairmont Sentinel: Seven or eight months ago the editor of the Sentinel informed John Lind that he would draw blanks when Speaker Cannon came to name the committees of the house of representatives. Events have proved that we were right. Our information at that time was that the Republican members of the Minnesota congressional delegation had met together and formally and deliberately resolved and agreed to use their personal and official influence and united efforts to prevent Mr. Lind from securing any position on committees that would give him prestige or power in the passage of bills or in securing congressional favors. Our informant was a man who stood high in the councils of the Republican party and while he doubted the policy that had been adopted said "the boys have very effectually cropped John's wings."

It is very clear that the pin-headed partizans who planned this contemptible job are not acquainted with John Lind. The Republican party has not enough men or money in its ranks to keep John Lind down or run him out, and the underhanded attempts to discredit him will increase his standing and influence and bring him the support of all those who love fair play and hate dirty politics.

The Minneapolis Journal, partizan as it is, has already commended Mr. Lind as the only member from Minnesota who has voiced the sentiments of his constituents upon the great question of reciprocity and the St. Paul Dispatch also remarks that Mr. Lind seems to be right on the tariff question. And comes ex-Congressman Joel Heatwole who boldly says in his Northfield News:

"We think that Mr. Lind's committe assignments will have a tendency to make him friends instead of weakening him."

Bro. Heatwole knows what he is talking about and the pigmies who have planned to brush aside the man who served three terms in congress and was honestly elected governor of Minnesota three times will yet have reason to regret their course.

THE VERGE.

Winston Churchill, the eminent young English author, gives it out boldly that he will come to America to seek a rich wife, says the St. Paul News.

That is frank.

It saves time.

And prevents misunderstanding.

Briefly catalogued, Churchill offers as consideration the following: Age 30. Good health. An American mother. An eccentric but able father. Collateral securities: Literary ability and fame.

A pretty good bargain.

The young author offers a much better trade than most of the heiress hunters who have nothing to offer save a barren title.

He will probably bring several millions in the American market. And here is hoping he will get what he wants—a pile of gold.

Seriously, however, is not this about the verge?

Of all others one would least expect to find a sordid spirit in a literary worker. Such men are supposed to have ideals. And here we have a most horrible index of a commercial age—the mercenary theory of sacred marriage!

Interesting Facts.

An Indian rubber ball immersed in liquid air becomes brittle and if dropped to the floor breaks like glass. A lead ball, when put in liquid air, acquires elasticity and will rebound like rubber in its natural state. Likewise a man who from hard work or over worry has lost his strength and elasticity of mind and muscle, will regain both by careful use of golden grain belt beer with meals and regular exercise. This beer should be in every household; no home is complete without it. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

WOULD MAKE A CHANGE.

Don't Like Making Treaties With Indians for Lands.

Indian Commissioner Jones has declared himself in favor of a change of policy in the disposal of Indian lands. He would not require the consent of the Indians for the sale of reservation lands, a policy and practice which has prevailed for years.

"I believe the time has come when there should be a change in the government's policy regarding the sale of Indian lands," said the commissioner to-day. "The Indians should be paid a fair price for their land, but as they are the nation's wards we should treat them as other wards are treated, let those in authority dispose of their property in the best way for their interests, without going through the formality of getting their consent."

"It is almost impossible, under present conditions, to secure the consent of the Indians to an agreement for the sale of their lands. This was shown in the cases of the Red Lake Indians in Minnesota and the Rosebuds in South Dakota. Inspectors were sent to both places but failed to get the consent of the Indians because of the opposition of certain interests. The objections urged against both these treaties were valid, but are used as an illustration of the fact that there is always some obstacle in the way of a consummation of the sale when consent of the Indians is required."

"Tradition in this office and in the interior department, require that the consent of the Indians should be obtained, but owing to changed conditions, we should break away from this rule. Congress should provide for the allotment of 80 or 160 acres each to all Indians and for the sale of the remainder of the lands at a fair valuation. Such a change of policy cannot come too soon, in my judgment, for the good of the Indians, the government and the white people."

Weather Man Talks.

Adrian Democrat: Monday was the briefest day in the year. (Applause.)

It was the first day of Winter. (Laughter.)

That snow we had last week and the zero weather following it were altogether too premature. It was not winter at all. (Cries of: "Go on; go on!")

The almanac, the calendar, the goose bone, Professor Cox and all the other weather sharps agree that December 21 was the first day of Winter. If you froze your toes before, it was your own fault. It was fine Autumn weather up to that time. The almanac says so.

It was the Winter equinox. It was also the shortest day in the year. Most people think Christmas eve is the shortest, but they take a strictly financial view of the matter. (Renewed laughter.)

The sun rose at 7:40 o'clock today. (A voice: It ought to be ashamed of itself.")

But it quit for the day at 4:20 o'clock. (Voice from the crowd: "Must have joined the union.")

"Sharp freezing weather is in sight," and Christmas will probably be clear and cold.

Adam is Father of All.

Slayton Gazette: The only difference between the financial doings of Morgan, Rockefeller and such big guns and the smaller fry in the small towns throughout the country is in the extent of their operations. Such men as Rockefeller have the ability to do things on a large scale, and the magnitude of the transaction make the evil features show up prominently and their evil doings are seen of all men. The business transactions of the small fry attract no attention, and the evils in them are so small as to attract little or no attention, yet in proportion to the transaction of a Rockefeller they may be much larger than the latter's. The average man is about as shy in the observance of the Golden Rule as are the few billionaires who are the targets of those who talk or write on social or economic questions.

Miss Agnes Casserly, of Marshall, is visiting at the home of Thomas Welsh. Miss Casserly is an experienced stenographer and typewriter and is looking for a position.

H. L. Dudley, of Thief River Falls, was a caller today. Mr. Dudley was formerly one of the proprietors of the Thief River Press, but is now engaged in the confectionery business.

The Christmas services at St. Mary's were exceptionally elaborate and enjoyable, Rev. Father Ansgar was assisted by Revs. Father Bernard and Eloi, of St. John's university, both of them talented ministers.

The services at St. Joseph's church on Christmas day attracted one of the largest congregations of the year. The music was especially enjoyable, the choir being accompanied by the Red Lake Falls orchestra.

The case of Eli Emard vs. the town of Red Lake Falls was decided by Judge Watts yesterday in favor of the defendant. The case was tried at the last term of court and was taken under advisement by the judge.

The tax books have been completed by Auditor Ford and turned over to Treasurer Tandberg. The abstract of taxes was sent to the state auditor yesterday. Auditor Ford says the work of the office is right up to date.

All of the children of Woodmen families will be entertained at the Woodman hall Saturday afternoon. As the lodge membership of the lodge is over a hundred, if all the children turn out the hall will not be any too large.

The twenty-first anniversary of the Modern Woodmen will be fittingly celebrated by the Red Lake Falls lodge next Tuesday evening, January 5. All members are requested to be on hand and assist in making the occasion a merry one.

Nels Benoit came over from Grand Forks last Thursday evening to spend the holidays with the home folks. Nels is yard foreman for the St. Hilaire Lumber company at that place, and has a splendid job. His many friends are glad to learn that he is doing well.

Omer Brameau and Miss Alexandria Chatel were married Saturday morning at St. Joseph's church by Rev. Father Fayolle. The contracting parties are popular young people, and have a host of friends to wish them a long life of wedded bliss.

John Mayhew and Miss Amanda Benoit were married this afternoon at St. Joseph's church, Rev. Father Fayolle officiating. Nels Benoit, brother of the bride, was groomsman and Miss Tillie Lizotte bridesmaid. The couple will reside in Red Lake Falls.

The "Busy Store" has a new advertisement this week. Messrs. Garceau & Zaiser seem to have struck a happy title for their establishment, and the best of it is it is true to life. The clerks are kept on the jump from morn to night in supplying the wants of customers.

Joseph McCaffrey, who has been the efficient stenographer in the office of the Healy Land company, left yesterday for St. Paul, where he has secured a good position with the Park Region Land company. Joe is a fine young man, and will be greatly missed from Red Lake Falls.

A. L. LaFreniere, editor of the Northome Record, visited his parents during the holidays. Anthony has built up a splendid business at Northome, and is enthusiastic over the prospects of his little city for the future. He pictures a city of 5,000 and a county-seat during the next five years.

GARCEAU & ZAISER.

The teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday school entertained their scholars at the church parlors Saturday afternoon, and a very pleasant time was had by the little folks.

C. L. Hanson, who has been traveling over Red Lake county for the Watkins Medicine company, left today for Kentucky, where he will be employed in the same capacity. He expects to return in a month or so with a bunch of Illinois landseekers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Longtin expect to entertain about sixty of their friends and relatives at New Years dinner. All of the relatives in this immediate vicinity—which is a considerable number—will be present, and a number are expected from Grand Forks and elsewhere.

County Treasurer Tandberg is this week preparing the personal property tax notices to be sent to the tax payers. Personal property taxes for 1903 are due on the first Monday in January and if unpaid on the first day of the following March a penalty of ten per cent. attaches.

The office of the Union Land & Investment company has recently been freshened up by the liberal use of new wall paper and paint. Manager Gaass has decorated the walls with neatly-arranged exhibits of Red Lake county grains and grasses, and the office presents a very attractive appearance.

Marriage licenses were issued this week by Clerk Perrault as follows: Omer Brumeau of Terrebonne to Alexandria Chatel of Red Lake Falls; John Mayhew and Amanda Benoit, both of Red Lake Falls; Theodore Torgerson and Mary Dempsey, both of Lambert; Armides Lambert and Blanche Bergerson, both of Lambert.

The county commissioners will meet next Monday for their regular January session. This is the most important meeting of the year, as all contracts for the year are made at this session. It is likely that the entire week will be occupied by the county dads in looking after the affairs of their constituents.

Romeo St. Marie and Miss Eva Sauve, daughter of X. Sauve, one of the prominent farmers of Terrebonne township, was married last Sunday at the Terrebonne church, Rev. Father Fournier officiating. The newly-married couple left the following day for Grand Rapids, where they expect to make their home.

Sam Treadwell, of Minneapolis, arrived yesterday to assume foremanship of THE COURIER office. Mr. Treadwell has been engaged in the printing business for a quarter of a century, and during the last ten years has been employed in some of the leading job printing houses in Minneapolis. Our patrons may be sure that their work will be thoroughly up-to-date in every respect.

Joseph Belair was arrested yesterday for assault on the person of County Attorney Grady. He plead guilty in Justice Toupin's court and was fined $10 and costs. Mr. Belair, it seems, took personal offense at the manner in which the prosecution of his son, Sidney, was conducted, and assaulted Mr. Grady without provocation, inflicting an ugly gash on the cheek.

Edward J. Labree, advertising manager of the Superior Telegram, visited his friends and relatives in Red Lake Falls several days of this week. Mr. Labree learned the printer's trade in Red Lake Falls many years ago, and has worked his way to a position which carries with it a large responsibility and a handsome salary. THE COURIER is indebted for several pleasant calls from Mr. Labree.

Louis Erickson, the popular merchant tailor, was made happy this week by the receipt of a legacy of $925 from Sweden, collected by Attorney Thomas Germo. This money should have been paid nine years ago, but Mr. Erickson was unable to get it, though he had the matter in the hands of several attorneys, all of whom gave up in despair. Mr. Germo has been working on the case for nearly a year past, and is to be congratulated upon his success.

Edward J. Druecker, the hotel keeper of St. Hilaire, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, placing his assets at $993, of which $50 is exempt, and his liabilities at $2,585.20. The Minneapolis Brewing company is the heaviest single creditor, its claim amounting to $317.45. The Duluth Brewing company comes second with a claim for $280, and A. Hirschman & Co., of St. Paul and a dozen other liquor houses in different parts of the country have claims for smaller amounts.

The postal authorities at Washington have affixed a penalty of $200 on persons for taking mail out of the office other than their own. All postmasters are liable to make mistakes and get mail in the wrong boxes, and the law is that people must look at their mail before leaving the office, and if they have other mail than their own it must be returned at once. That it is the postmasters' fault makes no difference. This includes newspapers as well as letters.

Crookston Times: Albert McKnight, of Adrian, Minn., who has been a city charge during the past few weeks, will be returned to his home this evening. McKnight came in from Erskine and reaching the city in a destitute condition, was cared for at the Scandia hotel, and the bill charged to the city. Dr. Just after examining him stated that his death might occur at any time. Alderman Misner, chairman of the poor committee, has been busy during the day making arrangements for his return to his home at Adrian.

A SPECIAL DISPENSATION.

Catholics May Eat Meat on Friday—New Year's Day.

Rev. Father Ansgar, of St. Mary's church, has favored THE COURIER with a copy of the following letter from His Excellency, the Apostolic Delegate, to the Bishops of the United States:

> Apostolic Delegation, United States of America; Washington, D. C., December 22, 1903—Your Lordship: I have received a cablegram from His Eminence, Cardinal R. Merry-del-val, through which he informs me that, as New Year's day falls on Friday, His Holiness, Pius X, has been pleased to grant on that day a general dispensation from abstinence to all the faithful throughout the United States.
>
> In making this communication to Your Lordship, I beg leave to offer the compliments of the season, praying the Holy Infant Jesus to bestow upon you and the faithful committed to your care His choicest blessings. Most faithfully yours —D. Falconio, Archbishop of Larissa, Apostolic Delegate.

ITASCA COUNTY LANDS.

Five Townships Available for Entry Next Month.

Inquiries are pouring into the land offices concerning the five new townships in this district which are to be thrown open for settlement next month and many prospective homesteaders and entrymen on stone and timber claims have gone north to inspect the property.

All of the land which is to become available for entry is in northern Itasca county, in the Big Fork country, and southwest of International Falls. The opening of these lands will take place as follows:

Townships 66-26 and 67-26, Jan. 12; townships 66-27 and 69-27, Jan. 12; township 156-25, Jan. 14.

This makes over 100,000 acres of valuable land which will be available for the public.

Dr. Lanctot, opthalmologist, now of Crookston, will visit Red Lake Falls regularly about once a month. By his assistance nature straightens cross eyes and cures so-called diseases of the eyes without drugs, operation or pain. Opthalmogists are natural doctors who teach how to remove the cause of 85 per cent. of all so-called diseases. Nature does all the curing, if we but give her a chance. Dr. Lanctot will in the near future deliver a free lecture here on "The New Opthalmology." Watch this paper for dates and do not miss hearing his interesting talk to old and young.

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

Their New Year's Dinner

"SO you went to Isabel's New Year's dinner?" said the brunette. "Lucky you! Tom and I dine with his mother on the first day of each year, listening to a discourse on economy which lasts from oysters to coffee."

"Knowing that all your bills will be in the next morning's mail, too," cried the blonde. "Yes, we accepted Isabel's invitation, and—"

"How do you like Isabel's new dress? Is it as cold as—"

"Her reception of a tardy guest? Not quite. I was ready at only ten minutes after the last moment at which we could safely start—and if that is not being punctual, I'd like to know what is! 'Eleven sharp!' Jack called to the driver, and then I looked up to see—Isabel's old house!"

"When the dinner was given to display the new one?"

"Exactly. After running a block through the snow in his thin shoes and nearly being arrested as an escaping thief, Jack got the driver to return. Once inside, he declared I hadn't told him Isabel had moved."

"Because he had kept on reading his paper while you told him about it?"

"Yes. I had even told him how the bathroom was tiled. But, dear, I had forgotten whether the new number was 250 or 2550."

"What on earth—"

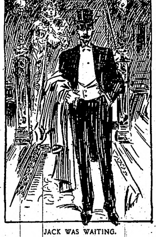
"Jack threatened to go home and get dinner on the chafing dish—the cook had holiday. Then I remembered thoughtfully writing out the address while Mae and I discussed that new dressmaker, and putting it in Jack's waistcoat pocket, because I am so forgetful."

"How thoughtful."

"Jack gave the slip to the driver and promised him something awful to drive fast."

"Then your troubles were ended?"

'N—no. I had written down the address of the new dressmaker, instead of Isabel's."



JACK WAS WAITING.

"And you were no better off than before?"

"Worse. Jack's language was awful. I said we could just drive along the avenue until we came to the house, which I would recognize immediately."

"So—"

"He said we were invited to dinner, not to breakfast. Then he asked the driver if he happened to know where Mrs. De Style lived."

"Nonsense. He—"

"He knew. It was about six blocks from our house. Stupid of Jack not to have asked sooner. And he seemed to think the whole affair my fault!"

"Well, you reached Isabel's after all."

"Ye-es, in time for the salad. And—and I really should not like to repeat the things our hostess said when she had a chance to speak to me alone."

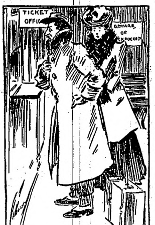
A Good Beginning for the Year

"I BELIEVE in beginnning the New Year well," observed young Mr. Talkington, as he carved the turkey; "I am not superstitious, but—"

"Yes," said his wife, demurely, "I remember how well we began it last year."

"You were to start on a trip that day, weren't you?" queried a guest.

"Yes, and the train, a new one just put on, left at 9:25. Ned said we should arise at five, thus beginning the New Year well and catching the train comfortably. He ordered a cab for 6:30, so it would reach the house at night; he did this over night and also wound up the cook's alarm clock. Ned duly waked me the next morning."



HAD TIME TO BURN.

"With difficulty, dear."

"You waked me, anyhow, and your voice sounded like the dentist's saying, 'Step this way, please.' We hadn't heard the cook go down, and going to investigate I found her asleep. She said the alarm had gone off at 2:15, and she'd been up every half hour since to see if it was five. The volcano was awake then!"

"Oh!"

"When I returned, Ned pointed to the clock on the mantel and said it was 5:17, and we were late."

"Well?"

"Nothing—only that clock was a wedding present and so handsome that nobody ever expected it to keep time. Investigation proved it was just four, and we went back to bed for an hour. I was dreaming that the cook's New Year's resolve was that she would never leave me, when an awful noise waked me. The cook called that it was eight, and as breakfast had been ready three hours she thought she'd better call us!"

"But did you reach the station in time?"

"Yes. In my haste I did my hair with three pins and Ned put on his dress coat and odd shoes—we are both forgetful, you know. We scalded our throats with hot coffee and choked ourselves with overdone steak. The cabman, who had arrived at 6:30 sharp, demanded full pay for the time he had waited, else he'd deduct from the number of Ned's useful eyes!"

"Dreadful!" chorused the guests.

"While he did this the cook gave warning and told me that the catch on the back cellar window was loose.

"We were in time. To Ned's feverish inquiries the ticket agent calmly responded, 'Oh, yes, we had plenty of time—24 hours and 29 minutes!'"

"Why, how on earth could that happen?"

"The train, as I said, was a new one, put on for the first time on New Year's day, and—and the calendar to which the agent pointed told us that to-day was December thirty-first!"

Pain

From Inflammatory Rheumatism

Would Have Killed Our Son.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills Saved Him.

"We began to use Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills six years ago. My wife had liver trouble and a neighbor gave her some of your liver pills to try, after which we bought a bottle of them and my wife used them until cured. Since then I have used them and I must say that I have never used any pills that gave me the satisfaction these have. We also use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with greatest satisfaction. Three years ago our son Harry had inflammatory rheumatism. He had suffered so much that I believe if we had not given him Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills which relieved him almost instantly he would have died. I am always glad of the opportunity for praising Dr. Miles' Remedies."—James Evertt, Alton, Ills.

"I was afflicted with neuralgia for years and never found any permanent relief till I began using Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They are a sure cure for headache and neuralgic pains. Only this morning I recommended them to a friend with a severe headache and in a half hour he came into the store smiling. The headache was gone. We use them in the family and find them excellent for the women folks. This high altitude makes them very nervous. Grandma says I should tell Dr. Miles she could not live here were it not for the Anti-Pain Pills that she takes occasionally."—L. B. Morris, Helena, Montana.

Happy New Year

New Year's Resolves

Better to Make and Break Them Than Not to Make Them at All

SOME facetious individual has defined New Year's day as "a time when men make good resolutions in the confidence of breaking them as soon as possible." But he has much to learn to his own profit who sneers at good resolutions because some men break them. To resolve to do right does not mean necessarily that one will keep the promise, but such purpose, whether outwardly expressed or inwardly understood, is proof that the individual is conscious of abiding sin of some sort.

It is the self-righteous individual who is in danger. Good resolutions are born of repentance; and repentance when genuine is a cardinal virtue. The self-righteous fellow does not resolve to do better because his vanity tells him there is nothing wrong in his makeup. He may go along committing blunders every day and doing no end of mischief. Such a fellow is beyond redemption. Like Ephraim of old, he is joined to his idols and should be left alone.

Doubtless there are many thoughtless and some insincere good resolves made on New Year's day. Nevertheless it is a good thing that many men do begin the new year with resolves to strive after what is higher and better. It is a marked and glorified improvement upon the custom once so general but now, thank God, obsolete, of men going from house to house paying calls and guzzling wine or stronger drink until before the round was completed they were hopelessly drunken.

It is a great deal better for a man to resolve a hundred times and fail in each resolve than to go along contented with his lot of sin and shame. There is hope for a man just as long as there abides in him desire for what is better. It is well to enter into argument with one's self only after due deliberation; but a broken pledge to do right is far better than no pledge at all.

There is nothing strange in association of good resolves with the dawn of a new year. On the contrary, the occasion is one that suggests just such a general practice. The old year has ended. Its memories suggest "sins committed while conscience slept," practices that degraded the moral man, follies that brought shame and vices that weakened body and brain. But memory is not all. Body and mind tell the sensible man that such practices end in physical wreck and moral decay.

The year is new and clean. The sun, just risen, looks upon it for the first time. Men of business close up their pages for the year ended and begin new and fresh ones for the new year that has dawned. They figure out accurately their losses and their gains in the old year, subtracting one from the other.

As the merchant begins his year anew, why may not the moral nature of a man be renewed if the memories of the past year and the physical shortcomings of the present suggest the need of a striving after what is higher and better?

That the practice has been abused is no argument against its use. That some men have made good resolutions only to break them is not evidence that reform is impossible. Striving after what is right is Godlike. One may raise his standard so high as not to be able to attain it, but there is virtue in every attempt to make better one's life. Indeed one may find at the closing of a long life that he has tried but to fail, and yet his very efforts to do right will be counted to him for righteousness.

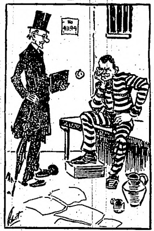
The objection is, if it can be called an objection, that men are too much influenced by special occasions for special efforts. There is no more virtue in New Year's Day than there is in All Fool's Day. It would seem foolishness to wait for any such time or season for a starting period in right living. The present is the time for action, and one day is as good as another in the sight of God, as well as of men.

But the man who has put off the day of resolves to be good until the dawn of the new year will strengthen himself and work righteousness by starting out clean with the year. He will only hurt himself by devoting too much time to resolving. What he most needs is to avoid the pitfalls and snares which formerly overcame him. He has need to change resolves into action. It is his duty to retrospect in order to know himself. Each conquest of self is added strength for future victories.

Happy indeed is that New Year's for the man who, having resolved in its dawn to do right, finds at its gloaming that he has been true to his promises.

WILLIAM ROSSER COBBE.

THERE IS HOPE FOR HIM.

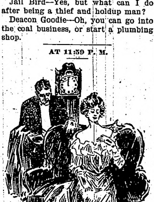


Deacon Goodie—Cheer up; my man; you'll be out on the first of the year.

Jail Bird—Yes, but what can I do after being a thief and holdup man?

Deacon Goodie—Oh, you can go into the coal business, or start a plumbing shop.

AT 11:59 P. M.



"One kiss," he begged, "before I go."

"Well, take it; but you cannot have another one this year."

And then the clock struck the New Year.

THE SHIP'S PURSER.

Some of the Things That Make His Life at Times a Burden.

The lot of the purser is anything but a happy one. From his title one would think that he had only to look after the finance of the vessel, but in reality his office, so conveniently and picturesquely situated at the top of the grand staircase, is really as busy a bureau as any in Capel court or Wall street. It is no doubt legitimate enough to expect the purser to be quite au fait with the monetary matters, to explain to the Britisher the difference between a dollar and a crown or to the American that the greenback is treated with scorn and contumely in Europe, but our American friends are par excellence the interrogators of the world, and to them the purser is simply a walking encyclopedia.

He is expected to tell them all about the ship—that's right enough—but they want to know all about the passengers as well, who they are, where they have come from and where they are going, how much they are worth and any little titbit of news about their social life. He is also asked about every hotel, beginning at Liverpool and ending at Rome, the best shops whereat to purchase different articles, who will give the best discount for cash, where the questioner's wife can best be rigged up in European fashion and the most likely resort at which his daughter might run across some impecunious scion of British nobility.—Harry Furness in Strand.

Position of Wood and Its Durability.

The problem has troubled many why two pieces of wood sawed from the same section of a tree should possess very varied characteristics when used in different positions. For example, a gate post will be found to decay much faster if the butt end of the tree is uppermost than would be the case if the top were placed in this position. The reason is that the moisture of the atmosphere will permeate the pores of the wood much more rapidly the way the tree grew than it would if in the opposite direction.

Microscopical examination proves that the pores invite the ascent of moisture, while they repel its descent. Take the familiar case of a wooden bucket. Many may have noticed that some of the staves appear to be entirely saturated, while others are apparently quite dry. This arises from the same cause—the dry staves are in the position in which the tree grew, while the saturated ones are reversed.

A Reminiscence of Fanny Kemble.

Fanny Kemble is remembered by old residents of Germantown and Philadelphia as a superb horsewoman. She had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the law books. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once when an impertinent street lounger stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked, "Are you?"

An Aggravating Speech.

One of the wits of the parliament house is said to have observed on the occasion of Judge Deas' promotion to the honor of knighthood, "The queen may make George Deas a knight, but no one will ever make him a gentleman." Deas was quite able, however, to hold his own, and he punished the wits when they came to make their maiden speeches before him. "Prisoner at the bar," he once said to an unfortunate wretch on whose behalf an infant advocate had been feebly urging "extenuating circumstances," "everything that your counsel has said in mitigation I consider to be an aggravation of your offense."

Two Ways of Doing Business.

The industrious man—the plain, everyday kind, we mean—gets to his work early. Three hours later the man of marked executive ability drops in to see that the industrious man keeps steadily at work. If everything is going well the man of marked executive ability leaves for the day, for there is no need for a display of his peculiar qualities. If everything is going ill the man of marked executive ability quits at once in order that his reputation may not be compromised by his presence.—Boston Transcript.

A Slave to Method.

A medical specialist was very much in the habit of using a notebook to assist his memory and insure precision. In course of time it happened that his aged father died. The worthy doctor attended the obsequies as chief mourner with due solemnity. At the close he was observed to take out his notebook and carefully to erase the words "Mem. Bury father."—Scottish American.

Accidents Will Happen.

Landlady—Yes, sir, two chickens went into that soup.

Boarder—Never mind, madam, never mind. No harm done. No one would ever suspect it, I assure you.—Town and Country.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

● In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

VERDICT OF MURDER

MRS. MYRA WILLIAMS CONVICTED AT BRAINERD OF KILLING HER CHILD.

Governor Van Sant Fixes Feb. 10 as Date for Execution of Nelson Brothers—Famous Mueller Case, Involving Valuable Ore Lands, Decided by the Supreme Court—Boycott by Labor Unions Held to Be Illegal.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 28.—Mrs. Myra Jane Williams, on trial charged with killing her child, two and one-half years old, was found guilty of murder in the first degree, the jury being out only three hours.

The penalty for the crime, as defined by the Minnesota statutes, is hanging.

Mrs. Williams maintained the same stoical attitude that has bewildered the lawyers and spectators throughout the entire proceedings and when the verdict was pronounced there was not a change in her expression.

The defendant's attorney gave notice of a motion for a new trial on evidence, and this will be heard early this week. Mrs. Williams is closely confined in the county jail.

TITLE TO RICH ORE LANDS.

Minnesota Supreme Court Decides Famous Mueller Case.

St. Paul, Dec. 25.—The supreme court has filed a decision affirming the findings of the lower court in the big land case of E. S. Kosmerl et al. against Katrina Mueller et al. This action originated in Duluth and concerned the ownership of rich mineral lands in the Mesaba range.

This land was formerly owned by Johann Mueller, who died a few years ago. During his life he mortgaged the property to the plaintiff, Rev. Father Kosmerl, who afterward asserted title through foreclosure.

Later Katrina Mueller, of Detroit claimed to be the wife of the decedent Mueller.

The lower court ruled against her, holding that the only rightful heirs lived in Austria.

The supreme court says that the only question for it to pass upon was as to the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the trial court that the appellants, the defendants, were not the rightful heirs.

The court rules that the findings of the lower court are fully sustained by a decided weight of evidence.

NELSON BROTHERS TO HANG.

Governor Van Sant Sets Feb. 10 as the Date for Their Execution.

St. Paul, Dec. 28.—Governor Van Sant has fixed Wednesday, Feb. 10, as the date of execution of Charles and Henry Nelson, who were convicted by the Steel county court of the murder of Henry Krier, a saloonkeeper, last April.

The Nelson brothers and William Sutton were indicted by the Steele county grand jury and charged with murder in the first degree. Sutton pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The Nelsons pleaded not guilty, were tried and found guilty on the indictment of the grand jury.

They vainly petitioned the supreme court for a new trial.

It is understood that the attorneys and friends will endeavor to have the sentence commuted at the meeting of the state board of pardons in January.

BOYCOTT HELD ILLEGAL.

But Union Workmen Have the Right to Use Pickets.

St. Paul, Dec. 25.—Judge Cray of the Hennepin county district court is upheld by the supreme court in having granted W. I. Gray & Co. protection of law against the boycott threatened by the Building Trades council of Minneapolis. But in affirming Judge Cray's judgment on that point the higher court rules that he exceeded the law in denying the union workmen the right to picket the premises where Gray & Co.'s employes were at work or to use any other peaceable means to induce those employes to quit work.

This case originated in the general strikes among the workmen in the building trades in Minneapolis last summer.

MAIL AGENT ROUSE KILLED.

Passenger Trains Collide Between Pine City and Hinckley, Minn.

Duluth, Dec. 28.—Northern Pacific northbound and southbound limited trains, running between St. Paul and Duluth, collided head-on at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Beroun, a small station between Pine City and Hinckley, demolishing both engines, badly smashing one of the baggage cars and causing the death of Mail Agent D. P. Rouse of St. Paul. All of the passengers escaped injury, although it is possible that one other man may have met death in the wreck.

FOR CHIPPEWA TIMBER.

Commissioner Richards Announces the Successful Bidders.

Washington, Dec. 25.—Commissioner Richards of the general land office has announced his awards under the sealed bids received for timber on the ceded Chippewa Indian lands in the state of Minnesota in the vicinity of Cass Lake, the sale for which was held several weeks ago. The total amount covered by the accepted bids is $1,-$32,732.

Minnesota Town Scorched.

Hoffman, Minn., Dec. 28.—Fire which destroyed half a block of buildings on Main street here and threatened to raze the town caused damage to the amount of $75,000. The fire started in L. L. Breen's general store, it is supposed, from an overheated stove. A high wind caused the fire to spread and several other buildings on the same side of the street were burned before the flames could be placed under control.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

WOUNDS HIS LANDLADY.

Jealous Minneapolis Man Then Commits Suicide.

Minneapolis, Dec. 28.—Inflamed by jealousy and maddened by drink, Gust Kuhn, a dredge worker of this city, shot and seriously wounded his landlady, Mrs. Ida Johnson, and, thinking her dead, almost severed his head from his body with a knife.

The shooting took place in the block in which both parties live. Mrs. Johnson was mopping up some milk which had been spilled in the hall, when Kuhn stepped before her and fired twice, wounding her in the breast the second time.

Charles, the woman's eldest son, rushed out into the hall at the first sound and helped his wounded mother into her room. As he started to call a doctor he saw Kuhn step into his own room at the front of the building.

Kuhn, thinking he had killed the woman who had disdained his advances, entered his own room, reloaded his revolver, and securing a large "Swedish knife," kneeled by the side of his bed and cut his throat from ear to ear, after which he shot himself twice in the head.

Drenched in his own blood, the police found him dead in his room five minutes later, apparently in an attitude of prayer.

LONG CAREER OF CRIME.

J. J. Carlisle Said to Be a Man of Many Aliases.

Minneapolis, Dec. 25.—J. J. Carlisle, the professional hypnotist, is said to be the man who paraded the cities of Montana as J. Coleman Drayton.

The young man claiming the name of Carlisle who is in the Hennepin county jail awaiting trial on the charge of swindling has been positively identified as the J. Coleman Drayton who controlled a number of Montana papers for Senator W. A. Clark when the Montana millionaire was making his fight for re-election.

Carlisle has also been identified as Harry Silberberg by Pinkerton detectives. Silberberg is a man with an international reputation. He has, according to his confession written by himself and sold to a New York newspaper, stolen thousands in Mexico, grafted thousands in New York, forged exchange drafts in San Francisco, robbed a count of his wife in Venice, welched his race bets for thousands in India, been entertained by the king of Siam by means of forged credentials and married women in several parts of the world.

INSPECTION IS LEGAL.

Case Against Minnesota Officials Dismissed at West Superior.

West Superior, Wis., Dec. 25.—Homer T. Fowler has failed in his attempt to prevent Minnesota inspectors from weighing grain in Wisconsin. When the case against the Minnesota men came up Judge Haily scored Fowler for his methods and immediately granted a writ of dismissal of the twenty-nine actions brought by Fowler.

The prosecuting attorney had not been consulted before the cases were brought and he has asked that Fowler be taxed $200 for costs in the case.

It was shown that Minnesota grain inspectors worked in Wisconsin at the express invitation of the Wisconsin grain inspection commission.

COLLEGE WILL REMAIN CLOSED.

Trustees to Assign Property to Pay Its Creditors.

Albert Lea, Minn., Dec. 28.—It looks as if Albert Lea college, the institution of learning established here several years ago by the Presbyterians of the state, had been closed for all time, as the trustees, who have for several years been pressed with debts, have filed a deed of assignment to C. H. Freeman of this city. The debts are placed at about $10,000 and the assets are not far from $50,000, so there is no trouble but what everybody will get dollar for dollar for all that is owed. As much of the assets is in real estate it is presumed an order from the court will be secured to sell the same.

COSTLY FIRE IN ST. PAUL.

Furniture Company Sustains a Loss of Nearly $175,000.

St. Paul, Dec. 25.—A telephone call and a general alarm called out every company of the St. Paul fire department except two at 9 o'clock p. m. to fight a fire in the two six-story buildings occupied by the Wallblom Furniture and Carpet company at 407-417 Jackson street.

The fire, which is the most disastrous that has occurred in the city in the past two years, caused a loss of nearly $175,000 to the Wallblom company and other concerns, and resulted in the serious injury of three firemen, while twenty more suffered from frost bites and exposure.

DULUTH UNION ENJOINED.

Court Orders Boycott Against Restaurant Be Raised.

Duluth, Dec. 24.—A temporary injunction has been issued by Judge Page Morris of the United States district court restraining Henry Perrault, president of the trades and labor assembly, its members and all other persons from interfering with the business of Barry B. Coon, proprietor of a Chinese restaurant, a boycott having been declared upon his place.

Veteran Engineer Dead.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 24.—Patrick H. Carney, the oldest engineer on the Northern Pacific, who had been in the service for thirty-two years and for the last twenty-five years had run trains Numbers 5 and 6 between Brainerd and St. Paul, is dead at his home here. He was one of the most generally known men in the history of railroad service in the state.

For Attempted Murder.

New Ulm, Minn., Dec. 25.—Charles Kimball, the Sleepy Eye barber who terrorized that village on Sept. 8 in an attempt to shoot Mrs. Toomey because of alleged unfaithfulness, was tried during the day on the charge of assault in the first degree and was found guilty. He was given a sentence of four and one-half years.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Three men were asphyxiated by escaping gas at Baltimore.

Fire at St. Paul caused a loss of $175,000 to the Wallblom Furniture company and surrounding property.

One man was killed and eighteen persons injured in a wreck on the Louisville and Nashville near Morris, Ala.

Two men were killed and six injured in a rear-end collision at Williamstown, Ky., on the Cincinnati Southern railway.

Emery Sheldon and Eli Hemp of Highwood, Mich., were run over by a train and instantly killed while driving across the track.

A battery of seven boilers in the powerhouse of the St. Louis Transit company exploded, killing five employes, injuring six and wrecking the building.

H. A. Mullen, one of the proprietors of the Sunday Philadelphia World and well known in Philadelphia politics, was instantly killed by being struck by a train.

Typhoid fever is rapidly increasing in Pittsburg and threatens to take on the character of an epidemic. For the first twenty-two days of December there were 410 cases.

Twenty-two persons were killed and thirty-eight injured in a collision of Pere Marquette passenger trains near East Paris, Mich. The accident is charged to the high wind, which extinguished the red signal light in the order board at McCords Station, where the westbound train was expected to stop and receive new orders.

The Duquesne limited, the fastest through passenger train from Pittsburg to New York on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was wrecked near Dawson, Pa., and it is estimated that fully sixty-three lives were lost and thirty persons were injured. Most of the killed were foreigners and negroes, who were in the smoker, just back of the baggage car. They were literally roasted to death, the baggage and smoker telescoping the engine and immediately catching fire.

FAR EASTERN SITUATION.

Japan is negotiating for the purchase of two Chilean warships. Negotiations with other South American governments for the purchase of warships are also in progress.

The Chinese officials are awakening to the peril confronting China in the event of a Russo-Japanese war and they are greatly distressed. China will attempt to remain neutral, though doubtless she will be subjected to strong Japanese pressure to participate in a conflict for the preservation of her integrity.

It is asserted in official circles at Tokio that the Japanese reply to Russia rejects the fundamental points at issue, which are understood to include mutual guarantees for the preservation of Chinese and Korean sovereignty, while securing their individual interests. The situation is graver than since the commencement of the negotiations, but is still susceptible to a pacific solution if Russia will quickly reconsider her reply.

The Russian government is still considering the reply of the Japanese government to its note which was sent in answer to Japan's demands relating to the situation in the Far East. A reconsideration of the proposals made in the Russian note is considered as a matter of course at St. Petersburg, as it is said Russia has never been disposed to take any step which would lead to an abrupt termination of the negotiations with Japan.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. T. J. Cummins, mother of Governor Albert Cummins of Iowa, is dead at Des Moines.

Ruth Miller Hoar, wife of Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, died suddenly at Washington last week.

Major Malcolm McDowell, widely known as an iron and steel expert, is dead at Chicago, aged seventy-five years.

Ex-Governor Isaac Sharp of Kansas died in Washington Friday of an affection of the stomach, aged seventy-one years.

William Coggswell, one of the best known and oldest artists in the country, is dead in South Pasadena, Cal., at the age of eighty-five years.

Rear Admiral Edwin White, retired, was stricken with apoplexy at New York and died before medical aid could be summoned. He was a native of Ohio and entered the naval service in 1861.

Hiram W. Beckwith, a law partner of Abraham Lincoln from 1856 to 1861, is dead at Chicago at the age of seventy-two. His father was one of the pioneers of the state of Illinois and among the founders of Danville in 1819.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

The entire plant of the Illinois Steel company at South Chicago has been closed down for an indefinite period, throwing 6,500 men out of employment. When the mills are reopened it is said a wage cut of from 10 to 15 per cent will result.

Charles M. Schwab has filed his answer to the cross bill of the United States Shipbuilding company and James Smith, Jr., its receiver, in the United States circuit court for the Southern district of New York. The case is that of the company and its receiver against the New York Security and Trust company and Mr. Schwab. Mr. Schwab denies every charge of fraud, misdoing, unlawful combination and confederacy.

NEWS OF NOTED PERSONS.

Captain Dreyfus, accused of treason to his country, degraded, dismissed from the French army and most bitterly punished, will have another trial, this time by a civilian tribunal. The court will assemble next month and Dreyfus will then have full opportunity to make a complete exposition of the wrongs he has suffered. The former captain, as a result of this new trial, expects to obtain a full and complete vindication, followed by restoration to his rank in the army.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM, Northwest Cor. 7th and Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

RED LAKE MAN LOST HIS LIFE

C. E. Winslow, Secretary of Thief River Lumber Company, in the ill-Fated Iroquois.

Almost every section of the country is affected by the horrible holocaust last Wednesday at Chicago, in which nearly 700 people perished. Red Lake county is keenly afflicted, as one of its most prominent and best beloved citizens was among the number that went down to his death in the pit of panic and flame. C. E. Winslow, secretary of the Thief River Falls Lumber company. started east the day before Christmas to visit relatives and friends, and on the day of the terrible fire happened to be in Chicago on a business mission. The particulars are gleaned from the Thief River Press:

"The first report of Mr. Winslow's death came at shortly after 9 o'clock Thursday morning in a telephone message from John Ballard from Minneapolis stating that he had seen among the list of dead one C. A. Winslow of Three Rivers, Minn., and as it was known that Mr. Winslow was in Chicago an investigation was at once set on foot to ascertain whether or not this referred to the Thief River man. At 12:00 a telegram was received from D. N. Winton which left no doubt of the truth of the rumor. The telegram read as follows:

"'Mr. Winslow was burned to death at Iroquois theatreat 3 o'clock yesterday. Break news gently to Mrs. Winslow and advise what to do with the body.'

"The news was at once broken to Mrs. Winslow who bore up wonderfully well, she seeming hardly to realize the full force of the blow. She in company with her son, Carl, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wright left on the afternoon train for Milwaukee to which point the body was taken by Mr. Winton pending the arrival of the family.

"The news of the death of Mr. Winslow cast a gloom over the entire community, there being no man in the city better beloved and held in higher esteem than he. His ready smile, cheery voice and helping hand was at the disposal of his fellow man from his immediate friends down to the humblest workman. Prominent in business, social, lodge and church affairs there was no one man in the city who will be so sorely missed or more sincerely mourned. The force at the lumber mill were badly broken up by the news, and tears were close to the eyes of many of the men as they sorrowfully discussed the death of the man with whom they had worked for so many months.

"The funeral will be held at the deceased's former home at Stevens Point, Wis., the date to be decided upon later. It is very probable that a delegation from this city will attend the funeral, but at the present time this has not been fully decided upon.

"C. E. Winslow was born Sept. 7, 1860, at Stevens Point, Wis. In 1882 he was married to Miss Lizzie Boehm, who survives him as does one son. He had at various times been interested in lumbering at Wausau, Stevens Point and Chicago. Four years ago he came to this place where he has since resided. He was a Knight Templar, Knight of Pythias, and Mason, of which local lodge he had been master since its organization some three years ago. He was also chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias."

NEW CITY ADMINISTRATION

Mayor Duffy and New Council Take Hold Tuesday—Appointments Announced.

John A. Duffy, who was elected mayor in November, assumed the reins of office Tuesday afternoon, and Tuesday evening the new city council was sworn in and organized for business by electing Fred Borchers president and M. A. Hatten vice-president.

The other officers elected by the council are as follows:

A. P. Toupin, city clerk; Chas. E. Boughton, city attorney; Ed Moran, assessor, and John Deforge, street commissioner.

Mayor Duffy announced the following appointments, which were immediately confirmed by the council: George Brunelle, chief of police; Arthur Lizee, nightwatch, and Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, health commissioner.

Councilmen Hatten, Crompe and Brady was named as the board of health, and the bonds of Ovide Emerald, treasurer, and A. P. Toupin and S. L. Lewis, justices, were approved.

An adjourned meeting of the council will be held this evening.

KRATKA LOSES MAYORALTY

Ira C. Richardson Declared Elected Mayor of Thief River Falls by Judge Grindeland.

Ira C. Richardson is mayor of Thief River Falls, notwithstanding the decision of the election judges to the contrary. On the face of the returns Kratka had a majority of four, and a contest on behalf of Richardson was brought in the district court by Henry W. Lee, a well-known up-river attorney. The case was tried at a special term of court held at Thief River Falls two weeks ago, at which R. J. Montague appeared for Richardson and Frank A. Grady and Perl W. Mabey for Kratka.

The decree of Judge Grindeland in the case was received by Clerk Perrault Tuesday, under which Richardson is declared elected by a majority of one vote, five votes cast for Kratka having been thrown out on the grounds of illegality. The votes cast by Casmer Panek and Casper Panek were rejected because of the fact that both swore that they were not naturalized citizens; that of Henry Olson was declared void because the voter was not of age; that of August Carpenter was rejected because it was marked by another party without the fact appearing that Carpenter could not read English or that he was physically incapable of marking his own ballot. One other ballot which had been counted for Kratka was thrown out because the Judge was unable to determine for whom the ballot was intended. All of the ballots referred to were cast for Kratka, and under the court's decree Richardson has 262 votes to 261 for Kratka. It is not likely that the case will be appealed, and it is probable that Mr. Richardson will be installed as mayor without further opposition.

The court further declares that the contestant, Henry W. Lee, is entitled to recover from the contestee all expenses incurred in bringing the action.

How to Chew One's Food.

The fact that the average man chews his food too short a time is not by any means new, but the advantage of careful mastication is so great that it is well worth careful consideration. An English merchant residing in Italy, has started a crusade along these lines which has really worked wonders. Despeptics of years standing have cured themselves by slow careful eating and others have found themselves better by a less amount of food when taken this way. If golden grain belt beer is added to the meals eaten in this way, no man could complain of indigestion and in addition he will enjoy his meal twice as much. ST. HILAIRE MILL TO CLOSE

Owing to Failure of Red Lake Transportation Company Mill will Get no Logs.

Owing to the failure of the Red Lake Transportation company, their logging contract with the Crookston Lumber company for logs for the St. Hilaire mill could not be fulfilled and the logs will not be gotten down in time for the next season's cut. This will necessitate the shutting down of that plant during the entire season. The mill will not be steamed up during the coming summer, and it will mean considerable hardship to the people of St. Hilaire.

On the other hand the Crookston plant will be run night and day during the entire season. There will be considerable sawing which would be done normally at St. Hilaire, but it does not amount to enough to pay to operate the mill. This work will be done at the Crookston mill, and will make it necessary to run the plant at its full capacity for the entire season.

CUPID MONARCH FOR A DAY

Popular Red Lake Falls Young People Plight Their Troth at Presbyterian Church.

Sylvanus L. Lewis, senior partner in the Lewis-Higinbotham Land company, was married at two o'clock this afternoon to Miss Alyce L. Buse, daughter of Frnest Buse, one of the oldest residents of Red Lake county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Andrew Walker at the First Presbyterian church in the presence of a large audience of friends.

Miss Henrietta Zaiser officiated at the organ, and as the notes of Lohengrin's wedding march pealed forth the bridal party entered the church and advanced to the altar, where the beautiful ritualistic ceremony of the Presbyterian church was performed. Messrs. Henry N. Johnson and Ernest G. Buse were groomsmen and Misses Lillian Buse and Melvina Allard bridesmaids. Messrs. W. A. McIntyre and M. T. Whittemore were the ushers. The bride wore a beautiful costume of china silk and carried bride's roses, while the bridesmaids carried pink roses. Miss Lillian Buse was dressed in light blue mousseline and Miss Allard in pink of the same material. The church was beautifully decorated with holly and evergreen.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party at the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Converse. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left on the Northern Pacific for Minneapolis, where they will visit friends for a few days, going from there to Forest City, Iowa, where the groom's parents live. They will be at home after February 1 in the residence recently vacated by John L. Watson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis are well-known and popular young people, and their host of friends will hope that the matrimonial barque will have smooth sailing. In common with all the rest of the people in Red Lake Falls the COURIER extends hearty congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy married life.

COUNTY FATHERS IN SESSION

Regular January Meeting of Board of County Commissioners Held This Week.

The board of county commissioners met Tuesday afternoon for their regular January session, and will not finish their work until tomorrow.

W. C. L. Demann, commissioner from the Red Lake Falls district, was elected chairman for the ensuing year, and James Sutor vice-chairman.

J. O. Gjerberg, who has officiated as janitor at the court house for many years, was re-elected at a salary of $40,00 per month.

By unanimous vote $14,000 was transferred from the general ditch fund to the county revenue fund. As fully this amount of ditch money will not be needed for a year, the board thought that quite an amount could be saved in interest by providing the revenue fund with sufficient funds to make orders payable in cash at the time of issue.

The jury lists were certified and filed with the clerk of courts.

All bids for constructing peirs under the Terrebonne bridge were rejected and the auditor instructed to advertise for new bids.

Only one bid for the county printing was filed—that of the St. Hilaire Spectator, which offered to do the work at legal rates and have all official matter printed in the Red Lake Courier, the Red Lake Falls Gazette, the Thief River Press and the Thief River News. This bid was accepted.

Today the board is going over the annual financial statement, prepared by Auditor Ford, and approving bonds of the county depositories.

Have you indigestion, constipation, headache, kidney trouble? Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will make you well. If it fails get your money back. That's fair. Tea or tablet form, 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

If you intend to give a party call at THE COURIER office and see the new line of invitation cards, program pencils, tally cards, or in fact anything you need in the line of fancy stationery.

CHAPTER I.

RAGS AND TATTERS.

Lawrence Drane awoke with a shudder from a dream of poverty. Doubtless many people would like to know how he did it. Some of us have tried it and failed. We have struggled with this nightmare even when our eyes were open, and have not cast it off. In various shapes it haunts the shadows of this world. Mr. Drane, however, awoke; but before sending him our congratulations let us see what he found waiting for him.

The first thing he saw on opening his eyes was a ragged coat which lay upon his arm. It was a garment eminently qualified to be offensive to a gentleman; shiny, soiled and raveled at the edges. Mr. Drane blinked at it an instant and concluded that it must be a part of his recent troublesome fancies.

"Get out," he muttered, sleepily, shaking the garment to the floor; "you're a fake. I dreamed you, and I'm going to wake up in a minute."

No wonder he was deceived, for the coat fitted the dream with diabolical accuracy. It had not been a vision of financial embarrassment alone; he had seen himself walking on the uppers of disgrace over the rocky road of despair.

His first waking impression had been a great thankfulness that he was himself again, a man of wealth and consideration; a gentleman by birth and breeding. Then he had seen the ragged coat and denied its reality.

He let his head fall upon the pillow again and sank for a moment into sleep. Then he awoke with a start.

"Queer notion about that coat," he said, and glanced over the edge of the bed. The coat was there. None of its fine points had got away. The summer sunbeams round the edges of the curtains glinted upon its greasy wristbands and glassy sleeves. Mr. Drane sat upon the bed and stared stupidly at the strange garment. The sight confused him.

He tried to recall the events which had preceded his sleep. He remembered his journey eastward from his home in Kansas City; the business interests which he had in charge; the hot, dusty, tiresome ride which had brought him to New York on his way to Boston. He recalled how he had found himself so tired that he had resolved to wait in New York long enough to have a good nap in a hotel; how he had entered the first one he found, and had stumbled sleepily along in the wake of the hall-boy to the room wherein he lay. Then he had cast himself upon the bed after removing only his outer clothing.

"By the way," thought he, with a sudden start, "where are my clothes I should like to know?"

How easy it is to ask questions, and how eternally hard it is to answer them. Mr. Drane's hasty but thorough search of the apartment revealed no reply to his very natural query. He did not find his clothes because they were not there, but he did succeed in discovering a waistcoat and a pair of pantaloons which owned disgraceful kinship with the coat.

"If I were a drinking man," he muttered, in dire perplexity, "I think that I should find the motive for a great reformation somewhere in this affair."

At this moment he found himself confronted by a mirror, and as his own reflection met his eyes he couldn't help being assailed by the idea that a change had come over his countenance which, if it were not equal in extent to that which had overtaken his clothes, was yet in the same unfortunate direction.

Of course it was one of those crooked hotel mirrors which so shockingly wreck the features of their victims. According to this veracious glass, Mr. Drane had a swelling on his right cheek, and was afflicted with strabismus, erysipelas and a disordered liver, complicated with a three-days' beard. None of these personal charms had any real existence except the beard, and that wasn't so bad as it looked. In spite of it, Mr. Drane was a very good-looking young man; but he couldn't see it in that glass.

"Jingo!" he exclaimed, as he gazed upon this optical monstrosity. "They've stolen me along with my clothes. I must have assistance."

He turned to the annunciator and consulted the directions for its use. First, he rang once for the hall-boy, but there was no response. Then he gave three jabs for ice-water, but it did not come. Six for a hack and seven for the police were equally unproductive; and when he had tried eleven for the fire department and twelve for an ambulance he gave it up.

"If they had given me permission to ring thirteen times for the coroner I should feel that I had done my full duty," groaned Lawrence; and then he laughed, it was all so absurd. He felt in the pockets of the deplorable clothes which had been left for him, but he did not find their late wearer's name and address, nor any other article of value. The loss of his money and watch did not trouble him much, for he had never felt the pressing need of a dollar, and did not know what its absence may imply. As for his watch the police would recover that. Mr. Drane had exaggerated notions about the metropolitan police. He did not know that before they would find that watch in the ordinary course of their business he would be all done with time and a large part of eternity.

So he didn't worry about those things, but bestowed his regret very sensibly upon the absence of certain papers. He knew nobody in New York, and had now no means of establishing his identity. Evidently he would have to make the landlord telegraph to his friends while he remained in pawn for all further charges at the hotel.

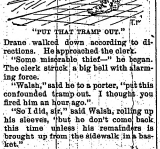
The first necessity was to get downstairs to the office, for while he delayed his clothes were no doubt getting more and more remote every minute. He ventured into the hall in his underclothing, but was instantly driven back by the sight of a young woman's back. That in itself was not considerable, but there was no telling when she might turn about. So Mr. Drane retreated.

Consideration, repulsive and prolonged, showed him that there was no help for it, he must don the habiliments of poverty. His soul was full of wrath, tempered with admiration when he thought of the coolness of the thief who had made the exchange of garments so cleverly. He remembered that for greater security he had held his coat in his arms when he had lain down to sleep.

Dressed in the character of Lazarus Mr. Drane hastened along the hall and intercepted the elevator in its descent.

"Down," said he, with dignity.

"Walk down," replied the elevator boy, sharply, as the car swept by. It was the first humiliation of rags. Mr. Drane walked down according to directions. He approached the clerk.



"PUT THAT TRAMP OUT."

"Some miserable thief—" he began. The clerk struck a big bell with alarming force.

"Walsh," said he to a porter, "put this confounded tramp out. I thought you fired him an hour ago."

"So I did, sir," said Walsh, rolling up his sleeves, "but he don't come back this time unless his remainders is brought up from the sidewalk in a basket."

Mr. Drane turned about with the intention of standing the porter on his head for his impertinence, a thing he could easily have done, for he was a young man of remarkable strength and excellent training in the use of it; but as he turned he saw his own image in a long mirror let into the wall. He was the ideal dead-beat. He stared at this libelous caricature of himself with utter amazement. The character reached out from the mirror and seized upon him with a grip he could not shake off. He seemed to shrink morally, intellectually and physically to fit his garments and there was no more back-bone in his body.

He was the tramp all over. In spite of himself, he played the part to the life and submitted to ejection with only the ordinary protestations of injured innocence which are always ridiculous.

He stood on the edge of the sidewalk and endeavored to collect his senses. It was time to stop making mistakes and he knew it. Evidently he must have money, and the only way to get it that was speedy enough to satisfy the demands of his impatience was by wire. He found a telegraph office and wrote out a modest request that his father in Kansas City should send five hundred dollars at the rate of one hundred and ninety thousand miles a second or faster if the electricity could be hurried.

It was a branch telegraph office and a young man with a shrewd face was in charge.

"Send this collect," said Lawrence, laying down his message.

"What do you take me for?" inquired the young man, blandly.

Lawrence recognized that some explanation was necessary, so he briefly outlined the case. The young man looked interested, and Lawrence was encouraged. He entered more into detail, and the young man put on a sweet and trustful smile. Lawrence reached the point in his narrative where the porter loomed into prominence, and he hesitated, feeling the humiliation of his defeat.

"And then—and then," said he, blushing.

"And then," said the young man, solemnly, "you put the cork back into the bottle and the green snakes disappeared. I commend your prudence. You've had enough."

"Do you mean to intimate that I am intoxicated?"

"Not at all," replied the young man; "but you'll have to try this story at the main office on Broadway. It is too exciting for my nerves."

From this position the manager refused to recede, and Lawrence was obliged to content himself with directions how to find the main office. It was not a very long walk, but shame at his garments made it a path of torture. It was not plain sailing after he got there, either, for it took half an hour of painful argument to coax the message on to the wire.

The answer was slow in coming. The long evening twilight was well advanced before he was notified that Kansas City had been heard from. This was the reply:

"Have wired money to New Haven.
"SANFORD DRANE."

When Lawrence read this he deeply regretted his small command of expletives. His disappointment nearly burst him.

"Any reply?" asked the man who had brought the telegram. Lawrence's temper got the better of him, and he wrote:

"Why didn't you send it to Jericho?
"L. D."

He cooled down after awhile, and finally persuaded the night manager to have a query sent to New Haven. The answer read as follows:

"Lawrence Drane collected money here. Fully identified."

When this reply had been read by the night manager it was evident that he had made up his mind what to do. Lawrence saw it in his eyes, and he knew that he was in a bad scrape. He prepared to get out, for he was well aware that arrest stared him in the face. The manager tried to detain him. Lawrence pushed him over a chair and fled, hotly pursued by a half dozen messenger boys and a few clerks. He was too nimble for them, however, and in a few minutes he stood alone upon the street, penniless, tired and hungry.

It is a curious physiological fact that a man can voluntarily abstain from food for twenty-four hours with far less remonstrance from his stomach than that organ will make if its owner unwillingly fasts for half that time. When Lawrence realized that he had not money enough to buy a sandwich he became hungrier than he had ever been before in his life. He was positively faint, and as he stood upon a corner trying to decide upon a course of action he closed his eyes and actually reeled with exhaustion.

A man passing rapidly along ran against him. Lawrence did not even look at him.

"Poor fellow," muttered the stranger; "he's blind," and he slipped a ten-cent piece into Lawrence's hand.

"Confound you!" exclaimed Lawrence, in a rage, "I can see as well as you can."

The stranger opened his eyes, his mouth and his charitable heart at the same moment.

"Have I lived to see this day!" he cried. "Here, my friend, here is half a dollar for the only really honest man in New York."

Lawrence refused it, and tried to give back the dime, but the stranger wouldn't take it. He appeared to be an exceptionally humane old fellow. Lawrence walked along by his side for a few steps, and the idea struck him that here was a chance to tell his story to believing ears. He began it with considerable hope in his heart, but he had got no further than a brief outline of his real financial solidity and apparent poverty when he heard the stranger mutter: "New game; new game. Never saw it before, but I'm onto it just the same."

Then he hurried away, and Lawrence was left alone with the dime still in his hand. The encounter had not been wholly unprofitable, at all events.

He debated long with himself upon the question how he should expend his ten cents. That he should buy food with it was of course a foregone conclusion, but how could he get the most for his money? He tried to recall all the stories he had heard of men who had been in similar depths of poverty—stories told by Bohemian acquaintances who prided themselves upon such experiences. In all of these that he could remember the salvation of the narrator had ultimately depended upon that great modern institution, the free lunch. He had never had any personal experience with such fare, because he was a total abstainer, and never visited places where free lunches are found; but he thought he knew the machinery pretty well from the experience of others. It was necessary to buy a drink at the bar, after which one could go to a convenient counter and gorge himself with all the delicacies of the season.

He looked about him for a saloon. There was one behind him, another in front of him and several more in sight. New York is that kind of a town. Lawrence hesitated. He reflected that his circumstances did not justify him in selecting a gilded den of vice where drinks might be fifteen cents apiece. He must choose something better suited to a gentleman in adversity. He selected a den without any gilding and entered. Approaching the bar he put down his ten cents and tried to think of some mild decoction which he could safely take. It was one of Mr. Drane's peculiarities that he could not drink alcoholic liquors, or even wines, without almost instantaneous inebriation. He never dared drink even a glass of wine with his dinner because it went to his head. Beer he detested. He was in a quandary.

"Well, young feller?" said the bartender, interrogatively. At that moment Lawrence's eyes rested upon this inscription:

GENUINE NEW JERSEY APPLE-JACK,
TEN CENTS.

"That must be something like cider," he reflected, and then he said aloud: "Give me a glass of apple-jack."

"It's a little out of season, but I'll go yer," said the bartender, and he produced the fluid. Lawrence drank it in a hurry, because he was anxious to get at the free lunch. It made him cough.

"Your apple-jack is a trifle strong," said he, apologetically.

"If you don't like our apple-jack," said the barkeeper, "you can take it out'n de place, see?"

Lawrence hastened to say that on second thought he found it the best he had ever tasted. In reality he perceived with horror that it was already going to his head. There was a mist before his eyes as he made for the lunch counter, but that was not the reason why he did not find what he expected. He saw all that there was—a few fragments of crackers in the bottom of a big bowl and a liberal supply of pickled cucumbers in a tin pan. That was all. And the dime was irrevocably gone.

He gathered up a few cracker crumbs and tried to eat one of the pickles, but as a Bohemian meal it was not a success. Ten minutes later he was out in the street. The apple-jack was with him, and it was very busy. It made the lights in the windows dance like demons; it dug holes in the pavement under his feet; it filled his brain with a foolish exhilaration which gradually subsided into a confused shame at the thought that he, Lawrence Drane, a gentleman born and bred, was homeless, hungry, ragged and drunk—yes, actually drunk on the streets of New York.

He staggered along he knew not how far, it seemed interminable miles, till at length he came to a broad park in the middle of the city. There he fell upon a bench, and an uneasy sleep closed his eyes.

CHAPTER II.

THE PRINCESS IN DISGUISE.

A bird was twittering in the tree above him when Mr. Drane awoke. His consciousness returned at a jump with the opening of his eyes, and as he looked up at the gray sky he murmured:

"And rosy-fingered Dawn brought in the Day."

For a full minute he sat there, his lungs filled with the freshness of morning, his mind with the shallow exhilaration consequent upon the last fumes of intoxication; his legs stretched out at a preposterous angle, his hands plunged into his trousers' pockets, his hat defiantly poised upon his left ear. He looked at his shabby boots and shabbier trousers and smiled in infinite amusement.

"A man in my circumstances," he thought, "would never imagine that a bundle of rags may ill conceal so much real joy. Glorious morning. Lucky to see it, by Jove."

This was a fatal reflection.

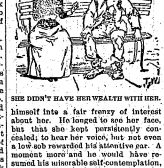
"My circumstances?" he continued. "What are they? These are not mine at all. They belong to someone else."

His eyes were fixed at the moment upon a rent in his trousers which admitted a small detachment of cool, morning breeze fresh from the sea. The smile on his face gave way to an expression of disgust, and he sat up in sudden irritation. This movement caused a sharp pain to shoot across his back, which reminded him that the way of the transgressor is hard.

And then the full, delightful, cussedness of the situation dawned upon him. What should he do? What could he do?

He sat up again and looked hopelessly about. Upon a bench not fifteen paces away was a young woman, evidently a servant of some kind, for her dress was of plain material, set off with big white cuffs at the sleeves, and such a frill of lace at the neck as only ladies' maids wear. Her face was concealed by a kerchief which she held to her eyes, and which Mr. Drane doubted not was in a process of lachrymose drenching. He watched her with languid interest, wondering stupidly what brought her there at such an hour, whether she had been locked out and feared a reprimand or discharge when she should go home, whether, perhaps, she, too, had indulged too freely in—bah! Mr. Drane recoiled in profound horror at the suggestion. Was it possible that a mere accidental change in circumstances, the mere accoutrements of the slums, should make him capable of entertaining for an instant such a thought about a woman? Was a man to be the victim of his garments?

In silent reparation for his unuttered offense Mr. Drane began vigorously to think all manner of pretty things about the unhappy young woman, insisting to himself that she must be beautiful, innocent, injured, lovely and so on, until presently, his adjectives having been three times exhausted, he had worked himself into a fair frenzy of interest about her. He longed to see her face, but that she kept persistently concealed; to hear her voice, but not even a low sob rewarded his attentive ear. A moment more and he would have resumed his miserable self-contemplation, but his interest in the young woman was sustained by an unexpected episode.



SHE DIDN'T HAVE HER WEALTH WITH HER.

Across the park came strolling idly a man such as the night wanderer in New York may meet at any hour. He wore an approved silk hat and the complete uniform of an evening diner. The collar of his light overcoat was turned up about his neck, but it was not buttoned. It was clear that he had dined wisely and played with a cool head afterwards and was now going home on principle, holding it as a canon of gentlemanly behavior that one should always be in bed by sunrise.

Mr. Drane did not observe this vision of prosperous indolence until it paused directly before the weeping young woman. It was clear that the man addressed her, for she started suddenly and took her kerchief from her eyes. Mr. Drane's brows contracted and he watched the scene with more than curiosity. He saw the young man step nearer to the bench, put out his hand towards the young woman and move as if he would sit down beside her.

He saw the young woman rise hastily and try to walk away, but the man laid his hand upon her shoulder. A second later and Drane had seized the fellow's wrist with a grip that made the joint crack. Then he doubled the arm he held across the other's chest so suddenly that he was flung back a pace or two.

"You infernal tramp!" cried the fellow, and he was following it up with language much stronger, when Mr. Drane interrupted him.

"Speak a single word that fails in respect to this woman," said he, "or raise your finger to do her an injury, and I'll break every bone in your body!"

"Well, take the chippie and—"

Mr. Drane lost patience and knocked the fellow down. It was a straight, quick blow and it closed the disturbance as well as the right eye of the man who received it. He staggered to his feet, growled something about the police and walked rapidly away.

Mr. Drane turned to the lady's maid, who, very pale, was leaning heavily against a tree.

"I trust that I did not frighten you," he said. "Perhaps I should have been less violent."

The maid did not reply at once. She looked at Mr. Drane in a daze of surprise until a faint color crept into her cheek and a suspicion of a smile crossed her lips. Then Mr. Drane remembered. He glanced at his remnant of a hat which he held in his hand, and his eyes immediately fell, but he found no comfort in his boots, where they rested. All his gentility departed on the instant, and he shifted awkwardly, trying to speak and merely mumbling. With the same irresistible gaucherie he passed his hand over his chin, and the rough stubble there gave further evidence of his absurdly miserable situation. The young woman seemed to realize somewhat of his emotions, for her face instantly became serious and she said, softly:

"I am sure I owe very much to your kindness, your courage, your muscle. Truly I am very grateful."

DARK SIDE OF THE PAST YEAR

A Brief Glance at Some of the Sorrowful Occurrences During the Twelve Months.

Many Crimes That Resulted in Death in Various Forms—Increase in Number of Suicides and Lynchings—Record Closes with Crowning Horror in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The record of crime, of suicide, of disaster, of property losses, of legal executions and lynchings, and of private beneficence is made up for 1903, and it closes with the crowning horror of the year in our own midst. Its details should furnish ample material for investigation by students of sociology and criminology, political reformers, and municipal, state and national governments.

Deaths by Violence.

There were 8,976 crimes resulting in death by various forms of violence in 1903, a small increase over 1902, when there were 8,834. Ine of the most significant features of this record is the fact that 406 of these murders were committed by thugs and holdup men, being nearly twice as many as were committed last year, and showing proportionately the increase of lawlessness.

Suicides and Hangings.

There were 8,597 cases of suicide in 1903. The following figures show the steady increase of self-murder: In 1899, 5,340; in 1900, 6,755; in 1901, 7,245; in 1902, 8,291; in 1903, 8,597. As has been the case during the last three or four years, poisoning and shooting have been the principal methods, the two numbering 7,677 out of 8,597. The ease with which poison may be obtained accounts for 4,050 of these cases.

The total number of legal executions in 1903 shows a falling off compared with last year, being 123, as against 144 in 1902, 118 in 1901, and 110 in 1900. There were 77 hanged in the south and 46 in the north, and of these 63 were white and 60 colored.

Lynchings.

Lynchings numbered 104, as compared with 96 in 1902. Notwithstanding this comparatively slight increase, an examination of the reports for several years back shows that there were many less lynchings in the decade just closed than in the preceding decade. The total for 1903 includes 92 in the south and 12 in the north; 86 negroes, 17 whites, and one Chinaman; 102 men and two women. The two principal alleged crimes were murder, 47 cases; and criminal assault, 20.

Trains Held Up.

The number of trains held up in 1903 was 13, as compared with 22 last year. The number of stage robberies in 1903 was 6, while that of last year was 7. The record shows that no passengers or trainmen were killed by robbers, but there were six wounded. In 1902 one was killed and three wounded. One robber was killed in 1903, as compared with three in 1902. The total number of trains held up in 14 years is 341; total number of people killed, 99, and the number of people injured (shot), 109.

Various Disasters.

The loss of life by disasters in 1903 has been large. Shipwrecks on the ocean and inland lakes and rivers have taken 1,935 lives. Over 4,000 persons have been killed and over 5,000 injured in railroad accidents. These figures include only the severely injured, and the list of killed is mainly passengers. The complete returns, including those killed and injured on electric roads, will be much larger, as this record includes only prominent disasters.

There have been numerous other disasters involving heavy loss of life. Cyclones and rockslides in April killed 127 persons. By cyclones and the floods at Topeka and Kansas City in May 266 persons perished. In June there was a series of unusual disasters. Eighty lives were lost by a cyclone at Gainesville, Ga.; 58 by a flood at Spartansburg, S. C.; 31 by a cloudburst at Clifton, Ariz.; and 200 by a cloudburst at Heppner, Ore. Then the country enjoyed immunity from great disasters until Dec. 30, when between 500 and 600 lives were lost by the burning of the Iroquois theater—the crowning horror of the year's record at home or abroad.

Embezzlers and Defaulters.

The embezzlers and defaulters in 1903 got away with $6,586,165, not a large sum as compared with the average of the last 50 years. Compared with this there stands to the credit of the national generosity and philanthropy the handsome sum in donations and bequests of $76,934,978, distributed as follows: To educational institutions, $39,950,692; to charities, $21,726,318; to religious purposes, $3,996,912; to museums, art galleries, and for municipal betterments, $2,927,500; and to libraries, $7,583,556.

FEELING HER WAY.

Russia Will Seek to Learn Attitude of United States in Event of War with Japan.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Information was received here that the Russian government would ask the United States government what its attitude would be in the event of hostilities between Russia and Japan. Until such inquiry is presented officials decline to comment on the matter, but from a knowledge of the views of the administration it is safe to say the United States will preserve an attitude of neutrality, while at the same time asserting that concessions to American trade obtained through the commercial treaty with China, providing for the opening of Manchurian ports, shall not be curtailed by any outcome of the war.

Tokio, Jan. 4.—War with Russia is regarded here as unavoidable and the press is urging the immediate opening of hostilities. All of the banks are withholding funds and it is believed this is the result of official instructions. The government has completed and perfected arrangements for the transpoprtation of troops and supplies and the people calmly await developments.

Held for Murder.

Carbondale, Ill., Jan. 2.—City Attorney Charles A. Jachum and J. L. Gulley, the latter the son of City Marshal Gulley, have been held to the grand jury for the killing of John W. Chamness at Creal Springs last Saturday evening. The arrest of Attorney Jachum came as a great surprise, although rumor had coupled his name with the tragedy.

Shows a Surplus.

Washington, Jan. 1.—The forthcoming monthly statement of the government receipts and expenditures will show the total receipts for December last to be about $42,747,532, and the expenditures $32,248,000, leaving a surplus for the month of $10,499,532. The surplus for the six months of the present fiscal year will be about $8,433,667.

The Public Debt.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business December 31, 1903, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $914,150,880, a decrease for the month of $11,618,530.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—St. Catherine's academy, a Catholic school for girls, located near Springfield, Ky., burned to the ground early yesterday. There were no fatalities. The loss is about $200,000.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S WHIM.

The Practical Joke a Celebrated Man Played on Posterity.

One of the most famous of postmortem jokes was that perpetrated by the donor of the celebrated Soane museum of pictures and other valuable objets d'art to England, the late Sir John Soane, who died in 1837. In his will Sir John made provision for the opening of three sealed cupboards on certain specified dates in the presence of the trustees. In 1866, that is to say almost thirty years after the death of the testator, the first of the mysterious receptacles was with much ceremony and breaking of seals opened in the presence of a committee of men, with the then president of the Royal academy, Sir F. Grant, at their head. Instead of a priceless treasure or some evidence that would throw an entirely new light upon some doubtful incident in political history the contents of the cupboard proved to be worthless accounts, letters and stationery.

Twenty years pased by, and the interest that had smoldered after the disappointment of 1866 was again fanned into flame at the prospect of breaking the seals of the second cupboard, at which rite there were present among others Dr. Alfred Waterhouse, R. A., and Sir (then Dr.) B. W. Richardson. Like the cupboard mentioned in the well known nursery rhyme, Sir John's second cabinet proved "bare" of any sensation, the contents being chiefly composed of letters relating to certain long forgotten family quarrels that had not even the merit of being interesting. If some of those authorized to be present at the opening of the third and last receptacle of mystery were dubious about the profit that would accrue by letting the light of day fall upon the contents thereof after sixty years' darkness one at least, Sir B. W. Richardson, looked forward with unabated interest to that day in 1896 when the last seal would be broken and the mystery solved, but he, alas, died just two days before the ceremony was performed, and the fact that Sir John had played a practical joke upon posterity was duly confirmed by the presence of a collection of perfectly worthless letters and papers.

MERRY MEALTIMES.

The Table No Place For Fault Finding, Nagging and Strife.

Has it ever been your lot to sit at a table with a group of young folks who ate the meal in silence or, with a few constrained remarks, looked askance at the head of the family before venturing on any remark? I have seen such a sight on more than one occasion. Doctors have told us over and over again of the beneficial results arising from a meal eaten with a contented frame of mind and with cheerful surroundings; but, sad to say, there are many households where each meal is a constant scene of bickering, nagging and fault finding.

This is not only the case where there are young children, who require a reprimand occasionally for carelessness, but I am speaking of those homes where the girls and boys are well into their teens. Wrong is that parent, either father or mother, who chooses the hour when all are assembled round the table to mention some half forgotten grievance or to find some fault.

If any trivial thing has been done wrong or any duty omitted wait until dinner or tea is over before you scold, blame or reprimand. Let the food which God gives us for the purpose of nourishing and sustaining our bodies have the opportunity of accomplishing that end, which cannot be the case if every mouthful is swallowed with either a sarcastic word or an uncomplimentary remark. More indigestion, nervousness and other derangements are caused by the too common fault of uncomfortable mealtimes than many people would suppose, and it is our positive duty, which we should all try to remember, to make those hours of the day cheerful and agreeable to the children and to set them an example which you would be the first to notice and approve in others.—Scotsman.

So Nice and Sympathetic.

A gentleman whose one glass eye has served him for years had the misfortune to drop it. It smashed to atoms. This happened when he was far away in the country. He inquired of a friend where was the nearest place for him to go and get refitted.

"Why don't you call upon the girl you were flirting with all last night?" his friend inquired. "She has a first class reputation for making eyes."—Punch.

Prayer of the Convert.

A south sea islander at the close of a religious meeting offered the following prayer: "O God, we are about to go to our respective homes. Let not the words we have heard be like the fine clothes we wear—soon to be taken off and folded up in a box till another Sabbath comes around. Rather, let thy truth be like the tattoo on our bodies—ineffaceable till death."—Carleton's Magazine.

The Temperature.

"Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely?" queried the invalid.

"Because," replied the untrained nurse, "the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine."

Bewildered.

"John Henry, I'll thrash you soundly if I ever catch you telling another story that isn't true."

"And yet, ma, I heard you say to the minister that I had great imagination."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A show of daring oft conceals great cowardice.—Lucan.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO. 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

Consumption.

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

GOVERNOR TAFT, of the Philippines, has been called home to take the post of secretary of war.

ACCORDING to the Railway Age, the total mileage of the United States on January 1, 1904, will be 209,855 the present year having added 2,723 miles.

THE terrible holocaust in Chicago, in which six hundred lives were lost by the burning of the Iroquois theatre, will serve as a lesson to public authorities. All over the country the building inspectors are investigating the possibilities of fire horrors.

JOHN F. JACOBSON, of Lac qui Parle county, has been appointed chairman of the state board of control, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of James A. Martin, who resigned to accept the management of ex-Supreme Justice Collins' campaign for the nomination for governor on the Republican ticket.

REGARDING Congressman Steenerson's efforts to get a better mail service for Red Lake Falls the Thief River Press makes an attempted witty sally by remarking that "Halvor keeps in close touch with even the most remote and obscure portions of his district." When Halvor turns to the primary election returns he is probably better satisfied with the result at Red Lake Falls than at some more pretentious up-river points.

IT is reported that an agreement has been reached whereby the government of the Philippines is to purchase the land held by the friars, paying for 403,000 acres the sum of $7,250,000. Under the terms of the agreement, the Spanish friars, to whom the native population seriously object, will withdraw from the Philippines. The land purchased from the friars will be sold, the tenants now occupying the land being given the privilege of purchasing.

THAT the creamery is an important factor in prosperity's race is indicated by conditions in Freeborn county, says the Mapleton Enterprise. They have something over twenty creameries that are bringing in from sixty to seventy thousand dollars every month, and such a thing as hard times is unknown. According to the Standard, the banks of the county have more than a million dollars of farmers' money, while much more is stored away in stockings and hidden away in their homes.

JUDGE COLLINS has resigned his position on the supreme bench, and will begin an active campaign for the Republican nomination for governor. Attorney General Douglass has been named as Collins' successor, and W. J. Dohahower appointed attorney general. The redoubtable Jacobsen of Lac qui Parle, goes on the board of control, succeeding James A. Martin, who resigned to become the manager of the Collins gubernatorial campaign. It can now be asserted that the campaign of 1904 is in progress.

Some people look so far ahead for trouble that they never see the joys scattered close around them.

There is trouble ahead for the man who begins 1904 by worrying over the things that went wrong in 1903.

Paradoxical as it may seem, a man never has any trouble "seeing things" when he looks on the dark side.—Commoner.

Socialism and Plutocracy.

Commoner: Many newpapers are just now engaged in a systematic fight against socialism, and a number of these publications point out that "in the new moral world the irrational names of husband and wife, parent and child, will be heard no more. Children will undoubtedly be the property of the whole community." Commenting upon this tendency, the Omaha World-Herald says that "those who would put a check upon socialism should undertake to put a check upon plutocracy." Also, "those who stand in such terror of socialism and who fear its growth in this country can accomplish better and quicker results if instead of inveighing against socialism itself, they bend their energies toward bringing order out of chaos and contribute their best efforts toward a complete restoration of popular government so that we may shape our policies along clean-cut democratic lines, a method that, intelligently and vigorously employed, will cure every public evil under which we now suffer."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

Della Rasche has been absent for some time.

Will Hunt began work on his studies Monday.

The next debate will be held on Friday, January 8th.

New thermometers were put up in the rooms Wednesday.

Mamie Linnihan began her studies Monday after a long absence.

Sam Allard was at the high school Tuesday inspecting the radiators.

Janitor Phillion was hurt quite seriously Wednesday while going about his duties.

Rule No. 36 of the high schoo regulations referring to permission, was repealed to the joy of the students.

The history classes began reviewing this week. The history work covers a half term period and examinations will follow in a few weeks.

A girl's shoe has been wandering and flying around the high school rooms. It may be looking for its owner, as the kid said who threw it across the room last.

The vision of a loud voiced tomcat on the back fence on a hot summer night, hovers over the assembly room. The Latin grammar class has been declining.

The attendance in the graded rooms has been increased by several new pupils. The 8th grade room now has an enrollment of fifty, forty members of which constitute the 8th grade.

School reopened Monday after a reported pleasant Christmas vacation. Undoubtedly the vacation was a benefit to the students and the busy whirl of minds has increased.

Vern Healy was absent Monday and Tuesday forenoon because of a sprained ankle. The industrious "Mark" could not stay away from school and therefore limped it to school Tuesday afternoon.

Anton Schusser, Joseph Helm, Norman Schreiter and Earnest Fletcher, four members of the famous class of '03, visited the high school Monday. Since graduating last spring the boys have been doing nicely and we are pleased to see them at the high school again. They bring to our minds the stirring high school days of '02-'03.

It Wasn't Catching.

A story is told of a young lady school teacher who was almost thrown into a panic at the mere thought of a contagious disease. She sent a little girl home because she said her mama was sick and the doctors thought her symptoms were alarming. To the horror of the contagion frightened teacher the little girl came back the next morning, and to hurried questions replied that her mama was real sick, but added: "But we'se got a little baby at our house, and mama said to tell you good folks needn't be afraid, cause taint catching."

The fear blanched face of the teacher turned to a rosy red and she hastily told the little one to say no more but go to her seat at once.—Fairmount Sentinel.

GUARD EYES OF CHILDREN.

State Board of Health Will Consider The Question.

The advisability of providing for the inspection of eyes of school children of the state to ascertain defective vision and to prevent the spread of diseases of the eye and probably the question of requiring tuberculosis to be reported to the state board of health every month will be discussed at the next quarterly meeting of the board.

The committee of physicians of the Twin Cities appointed to consider plans for the inspection of eyes will report to the executive committee of the board in the meantime, and the executive committee will present a formulated plan at the quarterly meeting. It is understood that the physicians and the members of the executive committee are in favor of a plan of inspection, by which the board will co-operate with school boards and county superintendents throughout the state.

A simple test to be applied by teachers will probably be devised to test myopia, astigmatism and other irregularities of eyesight. The teachers will report the condition of the pupil's eyes to the parents, with the recommendation that an oculist be visited. In other states provisions of this nature are obligatory, and in others they are optional.

Several states have recently passed laws requiring all cases of tuberculosis to be reported to the state board of health. There are no such laws in Minnesota, although it is thought that such power vests in the board. This requirement enables the board to keep track of the disease and to recommend sanitary measures to the patients as well as to the attending physicians.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of of the mucous services.

The Lyre—whether or not it is a cheerful one is not related—tells this poker story on Mark Hanna:

> "Hello, Senator Hanna! How are you feeling after your strenuous campaign in Ohio?" asked a western member of Congress in Washington the other day.
>
> "I am feeling all right except a little tired and run down—a sort of reaction after the battle," replied the senator.
>
> "Why don't you go away for a week's rest?"
>
> "I can't. I am like the chap who was out one night playing poker, and when he got home the next morning his wife noticed stains on his waistcoat. She asked what they were, and he said he supposed they must be tobacco juice."
>
> "But can't you turn your head when you expectorate?" she inquired.
>
> "Not while sitting in the game with that crowd of fellows," he replied.

How infrequently we give praise to those who merit it! Wouldn' life be a little pleasanter, and all of us be encouraged to do still better work if once in a while we took occasion to commend our fellow-men? This thought is suggested by an item in the Mapleton Enterprise:

> "That was a good paper you got out this week," and "that article in your paper was all right" were two of the most welcome Christmas presents we received as we wended our way home from work last Thursday evening. The remarks were from business men and indicated that the Enterprise was appreciated in the community. How easy it is to say a word of encouragement once in a while but how few of us do so. The minister and the editor work on day in and day out but no one ventures to remark to the clergyman "that was a good sermon this morning" or to the editor "that he is getting out a good paper." Men in all lines of work appreciate a word of encouragement and if you would lighten their burdens say a word when you think it deserving.

Sydney Warren Moses, in the current Lippincott's, pays this tribute to "The Fellow Who Can Whistle:"

The fellow who can whistle when the world is going wrong
Is the fellow who will make the most of life;
No matter what may happen, you will find him brave and strong—
He's the fellow who will conquer in the strife.

The fellow who can whistle when the whole world seems to frown
Is the kind of man to stand the battle's brunt;
He's got the proper metal, and you cannot keep him down,
For he's just the sort that's needed at the front.

The fellow who can whistle is the fellow who can work,
With a note of cheer to vanquish plodding care;
His soul is filled with music, and no evil shadows lurk
In his active brain to foster grim despair.

The fellow who can whistle is the "trump" card of the deck,
Or the "whip-hand," in the parlance of the street;
No petty cares nor trifles can his buoyant spirit check,
For a sunny heart can never know defeat.

The fellow who can whistle—he is built on nature's plan,
And he cheers his toiling fellow-men along;
There is no room for pessimists, but give to us the man
Who can whistle when the world is going wrong.

The new officers of the Knights of Pythias were installed Monday evening by the grand lodge deputy, John E. King. After the exercises the lodge members enjoyed themselves at cards for a couple of hours, and did ample justice to an appetizing luncheon.

H. W. Lee the well-known Thief River lawyer, was a Red Lake Falls visitor yesterday. Mr. Lee is greatly pleased over his victory in the contested election case, and deserves to be. It was a hard-fought legal battle, and the victory for Mr. Richardson and his friends is a notable one.

C. O. Kankel, the genial Terrebonne miller, was in the city Tuesday on business before the board of county commissioners. Mr. Kankel, with many other Terrebonne citizens, is interested in getting some improvements for the bridge across the Clearwater at Terrebonne.

Judge N. W. Tarrant had the misfortune to slip on the sidewalk in front of the courthouse this morning falling on his game leg. He has been suffering great pain all day, but fortunately the injury is not considered dangerous and we shall hope to see the genial Nick around again in a few days.

As will be seen by a notice elsewhere all of the clothing, grocery and general stores will hereafter close at 6:30 in the evening. This will give the clerks needed recreation and is just as well for all concerned. The people can just as easily do their shopping before supper if they only think so.

Fred Morin has been appointed manager of the Hallock yard of the Robertson Lumber company, and left Monday for that place to commence his new work. Mrs. Morin will remain in Red Lake Falls during the winter. Fred is a splendid young man, and the COURIER will expect to hear of continued success in the line of work he has taken up.

The next monthly band concert will be given at the Metropolitan opera house Friday evening, January 15, and an unusually excellent program is promised. Among the new numbers to be given is "Faust" and "A Forge in the Forest," both of them among the best and most classical of band music. A complete program will be printed next week.

An interesting serial entitled "The Victim of His Clothes," by Frank R. Stockton, is commenced in this issue of the COURIER and will run for seven or eight weeks. Stockton is one of the very best American fiction writers, and this story is considered his masterpiece Don't miss the opening chapters this week, for you will never regret reading it.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Longtin entertained sixty-two of their relatives at New Years' dinner. The party consisted of twenty-one grownups and forty-one children, and all of them were relatives either by blood or marriage. It was a most delightful occasion, and will doubtless be long remembered by the participants.

Lucien Phillion, janitor at the school house, was injured yesterday while suffering from an attack of vertigo, induced by a recurrence of heart trouble, with which he has been afflicted for several years. He was starting down the basement stairs, at the school house, and fell downward on his face, bruising his face and head quite severely.

The annual meeting of the Red Lake Falls Creamery association was held at the city hall Tuesday afternoon and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President, William Scharper; vice-president, Peter Emard; secretary, A. D. Dufault; treasurer, Ildage Baril. The creamery has had a very successful year, and all of the stockholders are satisfied with the results obtained.

Thief River Press: J. H. Koke, foreman in the Gazette office at Red Lake Falls, was up here over Saturday and Sunday visiting at the Holzknecht home. Mr. Koke expects to leave soon for Tacoma, Wash., where he will enter the employ of Phil Kaufer, for whom he formerly worked in Red Lake Falls. Mr. Kaufer now has a printing establishment at the latter place where he is prospering.

Edwin, the nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Marchildon, of Lake Pleasant township, died Monday evening of quick consumption. The funeral was held Wednesday from St. Joseph's church, and the remains interred in the cemetery east of town. The Marchildon family has had more than their share of affliction during the past few weeks. Just a short time ago another son was killed by a railroad train at Tacoma, Wash.

The twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the Modern Woodmen of America was fittingly celebrated by the Red Lake Falls camp Tuesday evening. Nearly a hundred couples were at the hall that evening to participate in the dancing and other festivities of the occasion. Dancing was indulged in until after midnight, when a tempting luncheon was served, and appropriate remarks made by Mayor Duffy and Attorneys Germo and McIntyre. The celebration was highly successful from every point of view, and the local Woodmen are to be congratulated upon the excellent manner in which they entertained their guests.

The residents of school district 12, just east of town, are having a very bitter fight with regard to a winter term of school. It seems the district has a large number of farmers without children, and these people oppose winter school because of the expense that would naturally be incurred. So far this fall and winter four special elections have been called, and at all of them the no-school faction has won out by from one to five votes. The last election was held Saturday night, and the side opposed to the school had one majority. It is alleged, however, by the other faction, that two of these votes are illegal, and if these are thrown out the majority will be the other way. The end is not yet in sight, and the people in favor of school are determined to win out if it takes all winter.

Crookston Times: Dan Shaw and Rev. Flesher, of Thief River Falls, who went to LaCrosse, Wis., to attend the funeral of C. E. Winslow, arrived in the city this morning on their way home. They stated to a Times man that the awfulness of the Chicago disaster had not been exaggerated by the Press reports and that if anything the awful results were worse than the papers pictured. The idea that the greatest number of victims were found at the exits Mr. Shaw thought to be a wrong impression. Mr. Winslow in company with several friends occupied seats in the second gallery and never stirred from his seat after the cry of fire and the sweep of flames through the house. His dead body was hardly scorched when found and it is thought that the one breath of flame killed him. According to Rev. Fleisher and Mr. Shaw there were hundreds in the five galleries of the house who met death in the same way without even getting a chance to struggle for their freedom.

SMALLPOX DISAPPEARING.

Only Half as Many Cases Last Year as in 1902.

The recent smallpox epidemic which was brought to Minnesota in January, 1899, and which has attacked from 25,000 to 30,000 people, was the mildest during the year that closed yesterday since its origin. During the last year 3,721 cases were reported to the state board of health as compared with 8,656 cases in 1902 and 8,485 the year before.

These figures do not correctly show how the disease has fallen off in the state, since many more cases were reported in the early part of 1903 than in the last few months. A year ago last December 635 cases broke out, and the smallest number reported for any one week was 116. In December, 1903, there were only 154 cases, and for two successive weeks only 17 cases were recorded.

Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, attributes the falling off in the cases to three causes. First, because in the four years many people in the state have had the disease and are therefore immune; second, many who have not been attacked have secured immunity through vaccination, and third, as a general rule the people of Minnesota pay more attention to sanitary regulations, and health officers and physicians are more assiduous in ferreting out violations of the law requiring quarantine.

Resolutions of Condolence.

WHEREAS, God, the Creator and exalted ruler of the universe, to Whose will and law we humbly kneel and obey, in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call to His eternal home our good friend and loyal brother Knight, Charles E. Winslow, chancellor commander of the Thief River Falls lodge, who perished at the disastrous holocaust in the Iroquois theatre at Chicago,

Therefore, Be it Resolved, by the Red Lake Falls Lodge No. 169, of the order of the Knights of Pythias, that in this hour of sad affliction we extend to the bereaved family of the deceased our sincere sympathy and brotherly affection.

And it is Ordered, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of Red Lake Falls Lodge No. 169, a copy sent to Thief River Falls lodge, a copy sent to the widow of the deceased, and that the same be also published in the local papers of Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls.

Just Try This Once.

The Appleton Press suggests that when you get a catalogue from a big mail order house just look it over and see how much they will pay you for your produce. Also, investigate and see what their terms of credit are in case you do not have the ready cash. How much they will give to keeping up the sidewalks; just write and ask how much they will give toward the erection of a church; how much they will give to assist the poor. After you have done this and received a reply, see if your home merchant don't treat you better in every way, being an important factor in the growth and prosperity of the entire community.

To Die of Paralysis Like Father.

Helpless Invalid For Three Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Made My Nerves Strong.

"For many years I suffered from terrible headaches and pains at the base of the brain, and finally got so bad that I was overcome with nervous prostration. I had frequent dizzy spells and was so weak and exhausted that I could take but little food. The best physicians told me I could not live; that I would die of paralysis, as my father and grandfather had. I remained a helpless invalid for three years, when I heard of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and began using it. That winter I felt better than I had before in many years, and I have not been troubled with these dreadful headaches since I first used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My appetite is good and my nerves are strong."—Mrs. N. M. Bucknell, 2929 Oakland Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration, and could not direct my household affairs, nor have any cares. My stomach was very weak headaches very severe, and I was so nervous that there was not a night in years that I slept over one hour at a time. We spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicine. I was taken to Chicago and treated by specialists, but received no benefit at all. Finally I heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine and began its use. I was surprised that it helped me so quickly, and great was my joy to find, after using seven bottles, that I had fully recovered my health."—Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn.

HARVEST OF DEATH IN THEATER FIRE

Awfulness of the Catastrophe in Chicago Playhouse Grows with Every Passing Hour.

Death March Is Kept Up All Night Long—Identification of Victims Is Difficult—Period of Mourning Proclaimed—Funerals of Many of the Dead Are Held.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—With every hour the horror of the fire that swept over the Iroquois theater at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday increases. While no official list of the dead has been compiled as yet, and the number of victims has not been ascertained, it is considered certain that the dead number 587. All but ten have been identified. Of the remainder the majority are disfigured beyond recognition and there is little doubt that many will never be identified. Of the number 99 per cent. are bodies of girls from nine to 17 years of age. Pitiful sights followed at all of the undertaking establishments, where friends are flocking to seek their dead. The same is true of the hospitals.

Death March All Night.

There was a death march all night long in Chicago. From morgue to morgue distracted fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters trudged, seeking their dead.

House of merriment at 3:15; charnel-house at 3:30! Perhaps never before in the history of the continent has so much of grief, agony and horror been pressed into so short a space of time.

Never before has Chicago been bowed with such grief. Not even that other fearful fire—the great fire of 1871—left such sorrow in its wake.

Satiated with Horror.

Even the morbid crowds which always collect near scenes of disaster were satiated with horror. As wagon after wagon came by and its load of dead was emptied, the bystanders shrank back. The sight of charred hands or feet, distorted faces and mangled forms was too much even for the stoutest.

All sorts of vehicles were pressed into service in the removal of the dead. Drays and delivery wagons carried scores. Ambulances and cabs, as far as obtainable, were needed for the injured. Police patrol wagons from all over the city were used in the removal of the bodies, and even heavy trucks and coal wagons were pressed into service.

Identification Difficult.

Some of the later identifications have been based by loved ones on recognition of bits of jewelry and shreds of cloth hanging to the seared bodies. In a number of instances only the buttons of burned clothing remained as clews to lead the searchers to final recognition of the dead.

Each Body Numbered.

In the morgues where the larger number of the dead were lying, each body was numbered. All jewelry, money and other marks of identification were replaced in an envelope bearing a similar numeral, and carried by the police to the city hall. In this way it was hoped to facilitate the identification.

The heartrending scenes in and around the morgues are beyond description. Frantic mothers, worn with sorrow and fatigue, sunk down fainting on the icy pavements.

Cause of the Fire.

The cause of the "jamming" of the asbestos curtain, considered the chief origin of the disaster, was explained by an inspector for the underwriters, who made a tour of the house and found that the wire on which the queen of the aerial ballet flew out over the audience in the second act held the asbestos curtain in place and prevented it from being lowered. It was shown by the inspector that the wire on which the most spectacular feature of the show was made practically caused the holocaust.

Day of Mourning.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—By an official proclamation of Mayor Harrison Saturday was set aside as a day of mourning. Business in the downtown district practically was suspended. The large department stores closed at one o'clock, and the stock exchange, board of education, the courts and the public offices in the county building and the city hall were closed throughout the day. Yesterday over 200 funerals were held.

All Theaters Closed.

All theaters in Chicago, 35 in number, have been closed until further orders. Mayor Harrison declares that all violate the law and must stay closed until the council takes action. Alterations must be made and the ordinances complied with. Theater managers, after a conference, agreed to make all changes demanded. Companies which were to have appeared in many theaters are idle as a result of the mayor's order, and managers are unable to say when performances will be resumed.

Held in Heavy Bail.

Will J. Davis, Henry J. Powers and Building Commissioner George Williams, who were arrested on warrants charging them with manslaughter in connection with the Iroquois disaster, were arraigned before Justice Underwood, and were released under bonds of $10,000 each. The hearing of the accusations against the three men—Davis and Powers as managers and part owners of the theater, and Williams as the city official whose province it was to prevent the opening of an unsafe playhouse—will be held January 12 at ten a. m.

Banker Suicides.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 1.—Banker Charles F. Woods shot and instantly killed himself in his bank at St. Charles, death resulting instantly. The cause of the tragedy is not yet known. So far as could be learned the bank was in good condition.

RECONVENE AFTER RECESS

Senate and House Resume Sessions at Washington.

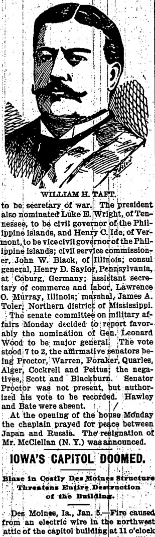
Former Body Receives Message and Several Important Nominations from the President.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Rev. Edward Everett Hale pronounced the invocation in the senate on the convening of that body Monday.

At 12:30 a message from President Roosevelt was received by the senate and its reading begun.

The reading of the message was completed at 1:45.

The president sent to the senate the nomination of William H. Taft, of Ohio, to be secretary of war. The president also nominated Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, to be civil governor of the Philippine islands, and Henry C. Ide, of Vermont, to be vice civil governor of the Philippine islands; civil service commissioner, John W. Black, of Illinois; consul general, Henry D. Saylor, Pennsylvania, at Coburg, Germany; assistant secretary of commerce and labor, Lawrence O. Murray, Illinois; marshal, James A. Toler, Northern district of Mississippi.



WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The senate committee on military affairs Monday decided to report favorably the nomination of Gen. Leonard Wood to be major general. The vote stood 7 to 2, the affirmative senators being Proctor, Warren, Foraker, Quarles, Alger, Cockrell and Pettus; the negatives, Scott and Blackburn. Senator Proctor was not present, but authorized his vote to be recorded. Hawley and Bate were absent.

At the opening of the house Monday the chaplain prayed for peace between Japan and Russia. The resignation of Mr. McClellan (N. Y.) was announced.

IOWA'S CAPITOL DOOMED.

Blaze in Costly Des Moines Structure Threatens Entire Destruction of the Building.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 5.—Fire caused from an electric wire in the northwest attic of the capitol building at 11 o'clock Monday did over a quarter of a million dollars' damage and caused the indefinite postponement of the Twenty-ninth general assembly.

Eleven fire companies sought in vain to prevent a spread of the flames, but owing to the altitude the pressure was insufficient and the firemen had to abandon the upper floor.

Officials endeavored to save their effects and made preparations to move to other quarters.

The ceiling of the house of representatives fell in and the flames spread to the senate chamber. The building is doomed. It was erected 20 years ago at a cost of nearly $3,000,000. At two o'clock the flames were not under control.

The fire was under complete control at three o'clock.

ARE ENTITLED TO ENTRY.

Supreme Court Decides Citizens of Porto Rico Are Not Aliens and Must Not Be Barred.

Washington, Jan. 5.—In an opinion by Chief Justice Fuller, the supreme court of the United States Monday decided that citizens of Porto Rico are not aliens of the United States and that they are entitled to enter this country without obstruction. The opinion was delivered in the case of the Porto Rican woman Gonzales, who, in 1902, was refused admission to the port of New York on the ground that she was likely to become a public charge. The decision was based entirely on the immigration act of 1891 and took the ground that the Porto Ricans owe allegiance to the United States and to no other government.

Ohio Assembly Convenes.

Columbus, O., Jan. 5.—The seventy-sixth general assembly convened at ten o'clock Monday in biennial session, there being a full attendance. The senate was called to order by Lieut. Gov. Harry L. Gordon. George H. Chamberlain, of Lorain county, was chosen president pro tem. The house was called to order at the same hour by Secretary of State Laylin. George T. Thomas, of Huron county, was elected speaker and Hollis Johnson, of Gallia county, speaker pro tem.

Another Epidemic Feared.

Kittanning, Pa., Jan. 5.—Grave fears exist that Kittanning may have an epidemic of typhoid fever that will rival Butler. A month ago there were but four cases reported. Now there are 100 cases and the disease is increasing rapidly. So far the death rate has been small.

EMPRESS OF COREA.

She Is an American and Was Born in Wisconsin.

Unusual Career of Daughter of a Missionary Who Entered Harem of Emperor and Later Married Him.

Born in the backwoods as the daughter of an itinerant missionary and at 40 the empress of an oriental kingdom and mother of the heir apparent to the Corean throne is the story of Emily Brown, born in Appleton, Wis., and now Empress Om of Corea.

Last January Yi Hongs, emperor of Corea, celebrated the fortieth anniversary of his coming to the throne, and on the same day Miss Brown, who had long been the light of the emperor's harem, was crowned empress of Corea and her son declared heir apparent to the throne. Up to the time of her coronation Miss Brown was known as Lady Emily. Now she is Empress Om, which in English means "dawn of the morning."

Emily Brown was born in Appleton about 1860, her father, Rev. Herbert Brown, being a Presbyterian missionary, who lived there only a few months, and her mother a remarkably beautiful woman. When Emily was about 15 years old her father went as a missionary to Corea, and is said to have been the first Protestant missionary to settle in the capital city of Seoul. His wife and child went with him.

Emily sang in the mission church, and learning the language rapidly came to be used as an interpreter in church dealings with the government. Her beauty was reported to the emperor, and he commanded her to enter his harem, which she indignantly refused to do. About two years later she concluded to accept the emperor's protection and went to live in the palace after securing from the emperor a solemn promise of marriage when affairs of state would permit. This promise was kept soon after she bore the emperor a son.

These facts were learned here by recent private correspondence from Tokio, Japan, from American missionary sources.

The four greatest needs of Greece—grain, coal, iron and lumber—are the ones which the United States would best be able to supply.

The yearly gross earnings of the United States Steel corporation are approximately equal to the gross revenue received by the United States government.

Seventy French firms manufacture motor cars and their combined output last year was 12,000 cars. The industry employed 180,000 workmen, earning on an average $360 a year each.

Large deposits of stone suitable for lithographic purposes have been discovered and opened in Thessaly. Greek experts report that this stone is far superior in quality to the best lithographic stone heretofore known in Europe.

Under the heading, "A New German Industry," German papers state that the manufacture of quartz glass is rapidly developing in that country. Quartz glass consists essentially of melted quartz and is perfectly translucent.

The membership of the United Mine Workers of America, as shown from the number who paid the per capita tax during the month of March, is larger than it has ever been in the history of the organization. Last year it reached 232,000, while this year it is 264,439.

Peat fuel in freight locomotives in Sweden has hauled the maximum load, the cost being about the same as with English coal. To avoid the expense of an extra fireman, however, the peat is now mixed with an equal weight of coal, and the mixture has proven so satisfactory that it is to be tried on passenger trains.

The shape of the rudder of a vessel seems to be of more importance than has been generally supposed. Experiments in Scotland by J. Foster King indicate that the rectangular form has decided advantages, as it presents a larger surface at the loda line under all conditions and requires a smaller stock and working gear than curved shapes. With sufficient area the narrow blade is as effective as the broad one, while it can be set more rapidly.

The Youth's Companion in 1904.

As the years increase THE YOUTH'S COMPANION endeavors to keep pace with them in all that is wise, beautiful and progressive, and not only to retain but to deserve the honorable and exceptionally high place it holds in the confidence and affection of three generations of readers. The greatest living authors in all branches of literature continue to contribute to it.

Among the important series of articles will be one occupation of the farmer in many parts of the world in England, in Ireland, in India, in Argentine, etc.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St,
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

MEMORABLE EVENTS OF YEAR 1903

History of the Past Twelve Months Recalled in Brief Manner for Future Reference.

In the United States Progress and Prosperity Prevailed—Portion of Work Done by Congress—Labor Disturbances Were Numerous—Notable Gifts—Other Notes.

Peace reigned throughout the greater part of the world during the year 1903. There was no war in progress between nations, though Russia and Japan are still unfriendly and there is a possibility that the new year will see them engaged in a deadly contest for supremacy in the far east.

One of the most hopeful signs of the year was the progress made in establishing the principle of international arbitration.

In this country the year has been one of peace, general prosperity and progress. The trouble with Colombia on account of the revolution in Panama and an encounter or two with the Moros in the Philippines have given the army and navy a little work to do, but no difficulty has arisen of sufficient importance to cause the authorities any real concern.

From a national point of view the important events of the year so far as concerns the United States have been the Alaska boundary award, the conclusion of a reciprocity treaty with Cuba, the creation of a department of commerce and labor in Washington designed in part to deal with the trust question, the passage of other antitrust laws and the measures taken looking toward the building of an isthmian canal across Panama.

Work of Congress.

At the closing session of the Fifty-seventh congress several laws were passed with a view to curbing and regulating industrial combinations and local monopolies. Among them were the act creating a bureau of corporations in the department of commerce and labor, the act expediting antitrust litigation, the Elkins rebate law and the appropriation of $500,000 for prosecuting violations of the Sherman, interstate commerce and other similar laws.

Panama revolted, formed a new republic, was recognized by the United States and other powers and negotiated a canal treaty of its own with the United States. This treaty is pending before the United States senate for ratification and Colombia is threatening to make war upon both Panama and this country.

The Political Field.

Politically the year was uneventful. The few elections of importance that took place in November indicated no marked change of sentiment in any part of the country. The republicans elected governors in Iowa, Massachusetts and Ohio, while the democrats carried Kentucky, Maryland, Rhode Island and Mississippi. In New York city Tammany triumphed over the reform or fusion forces by defeating Seth Low and electing George B. McClellan mayor.

Labor Disturbances.

Labor disturbances were many and serious, though none reached the proportions of the anthracite coal miners' strike of last year. In Colorado, Utah and a few other states in the far west a struggle arose between the miners' unions and the employers which resulted in an almost complete cessation of work, the destruction of much property and the calling out of the national guard. Several collisions took place in which lives were lost and serious injuries inflicted. The contest is still in progress.

Investigation of irregularities in the post office department extending back several years occupied much of the time of government officials in Washington. The alleged frauds were chiefly in connection with the purchase of supplies for the post offices of the country, such as cancelling machines, money order blanks, mail bags, typewriters, badges, etc. Other charges concerned the use of the mails by "get rich quick" and other fraudulent concerns.

In the Philippines.

In the Philippines the most noteworthy events of the year was the substitution of a new currency system for the unstable money in use during the Spanish regime, the resignation of Gov. Taft, who is to take the place of Secretary of War Root about February 1, and the settlement of the friars' land question.

Pension Statistics.

Washington, Jan. 1.—A New Year's greeting issued by E. F. Ware, commissioner of pensions, shows that 150,828 pension certificates were issued for the calendar year, 1903, which is 25,000 more than were issued in 1902, and nearly 50,000 more than were issued in 1901. Mr. Ware expresses the hope that the work of the bureau will be brought up to date before the close of the fiscal year.

Capt. Pabst Dead.

Milwaukee, Jan. 2.—Capt. Frederick Pabst, president of the Pabst Brewing company, died at his residence yesterday. While the members of his family and his friends knew that he was suffering from an incurable disease, and that he could not live more than a few months longer, his death came quite suddenly and unexpectedly. He was 67 years of age last March.

Heavy Immigration.

New York, Dec. 31.—During 1903 a total of 619,980 immigrants, steerage passengers, arrived at this port, against 547,197 in 1902, which was considered a record-breaker, the increase over 1901 being 129,600. Italy contributed the largest number, though there was a marked increase in the arrivals from Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Chance for the Militia.

Every officer and enlisted man in the Minnesota National guard, every civilian who has seen service in the regular, volunteer or militia forces, and every private military school graduate in the state, soon will be given an opportunity to appear before a board of officers at Fort Snelling and be examined as to his fitness for the position of a commissional officer in the volunteer forces of the United States.

Every applicant for examination will be permitted to name the rank for which he thinks he is fitted, from the grade of second lieutenant to that of colonel, and the questions propounded to him will be in accordance with the requirements of the rank to which he aspires. This means that a private in any national guard regiment, if he so elects, may stand the examination for colonel, and if he passes it he will have a good chance of going to the front in command of a regiment when Uncle Sam needs troops.

Valuable Land.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson, received from the United States general land office a second list of 6,296 acres of swampy lands in the Chippewa Indian reservation which have been awarded to Minnesota under a recent decision of the secretary of the interior. An installment of 11,178 acres was received a few days ago, making a total of 17,484 acres.

The lands in this second list were included among those from which timber was to be sold Dec. 28 at Cass Lake for the benefit of the Indians, under the Morris law, passed June 27, 1902. These lands have been withdrawn from sale, as were the lands in the first list, the timber on which was scheduled to be sold Dec. 9.

Inside City Limits.

Two full grown gray wolves killed within the city limits, of Duluth, is the report made at City Clerk Cheadle's office by Captain Joseph W. Mann of the steamer Mary Mann, a resident of West Duluth.

The animals were killed with strychnine some distance from the city proper in the vicinity of Spirit Lake. Because the wolves were caught in the city limits Mr. Mann was obliged to procure a certificate from the city clerk in order to receive his voucher from the county auditor. He will receive $25 for the scalp of the female and $15 for the male.

The day's work will net him obout $45 in bounties on the wolves and a red fox killed at the same time.

Heir to Fortune.

From cookshop to palace.

This is the revolution in the fate of W. H. Turner of St. Paul, which the wheel of fortune has brought him. Until a few days ago he worked and toiled day after day in front of a fiery cook stove at $20 a month. Now he is in Winona where $60,000 awaits him. The cause—a rich uncle, never heard of until after his death.

Recently a St. Paul attorney called his place of work, 584 Wabasha street, to notify him of the inheritance awaiting him. Turner is now in Winona to claim his estate, but says that he will return to fulfill his contract with his employers.

Robert Mannheimer.

Robert Mannheimer, president of Mannheimer Bros. company, St. Paul, died at his home, 215 Nelson avenue, in that city. Mr. Mannheimer had been ill for more than a year, and during that time it was only at intervals that he was able to be out, while during the last four months he was confined to the house. Altho the end was not unexpected, it came as a severe shock to his relatives and friends when he sank to sleep and passed peacefully away.

Mr. Mannheimer was born in Bavaria sixty-four years ago last month and came to America when he was a boy.

Date Named.

Wednesday, Feb. 10, 1904, was fixed by Gov. Van Sant as the day upon which Charles and Henry Nelson, the two Owatonna boys, must pay the penalty of death upon the gallows for the murder of H. H. Krier, proprietor of a saloon and bowling alley at Owatonna on the night of April 13, 1903.

Judge Collins Resigns.

Judge L. W. Collins has tendered his resignation as a justice of the supreme court, to take effect March 31.

Governor Van Sant accepted it, and announced that he would appoint Wallace B. Douglas, attorney general, to the vacant place. W. J. Donahower, assistant attorney general, will succeed Mr. Douglas, and will become attorney general on April 1.

News in Brief.

The next session of educators may go to Duluth.

Peter Stegendahl, aged 40, was found dead in a bunk in a lumber camp at Homestead, Wis.

The Young Men's Sunday club of St. Paul will endeavor to get St. Paul colored railroad porters to refuse tips.

Senator and Mrs. E. W. Durant of Stillwater celebrate golden wedding anniversary and give recipe for domestic happiness.

Charles Hammerstrone, aged 63, and unmarried, expired suddenly while engaged in conversation with August Oman at Hastings.

Work on the actual construction of the Twin City building at the World's Fair in St. Louis will be commenced some time in January.

The controller of the currency has approved the application for the organization of the First National bank of Leroy, capital, $25,000.

Judge Loren W. Collins denied that he has withdrawn or intends to withdraw from the race for the Republican nomination for governor.

THE SHIP'S PURSER.

Some of the Things That Make His Life at Times a Burden.

The lot of the purser is anything but a happy one. From his title one would think that he had only to look after the finance of the vessel, but in reality his office, so conveniently and picturesquely situated at the top of the grand staircase, is really as busy a bureau as any in Capel court or Wall street. It is no doubt legitimate enough to expect the purser to be quite au fait with the monetary matters, to explain to the Britisher the difference between a dollar and a crown or to the American that the greenback is treated with scorn and contumely in Europe, but our American friends are par excellence the interrogators of the world, and to them the purser is simply a walking encyclopedia.

He is expected to tell them all about the ship—that's right enough—but they want to know all about the passengers as well, who they are, where they have come from and where they are going, how much they are worth and any little titbit of news about their social life. He is also asked about every hotel, beginning at Liverpool and ending at Rome, the best shops whereat to purchase different articles, who will give the best discount for cash, where the questioner's wife can best be rigged up in European fashion and the most likely resort at which his daughter might run across some impecunious scion of British nobility.—Harry Furness in Strand.

Position of Wood and Its Durability.

The problem has troubled many why two pieces of wood sawed from the same section of a tree should possess very varied characteristics when used in different positions. For example, a gate post will be found to decay much faster if the butt end of the tree is uppermost than would be the case if the top were placed in this position. The reason is that the moisture of the atmosphere will permeate the pores of the wood much more rapidly the way the tree grew than it would if in the opposite direction.

Microscopical examination proves that the pores invite the ascent of moisture, while they repel its descent. Take the familiar case of a wooden bucket. Many may have noticed that some of the staves appear to be entirely saturated, while others are apparently quite dry. This arises from the same cause—the dry staves are in the position in which the tree grew, while the saturated ones are reversed.

A Reminiscence of Fanny Kemble.

Fanny Kemble is remembered by old residents of Germantown and Philadelphia as a superb horsewoman. She had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the law books. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once when an impertinent street lounger stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked, "Are you?"

An Aggravating Speech.

One of the wits of the parliament house is said to have observed on the occasion of Judge Deas' promotion to the honor of knighthood, "The queen may make George Deas a knight, but no one will ever make him a gentleman." Deas was quite able, however, to hold his own, and he punished the wits when they came to make their maiden speeches before him. "Prisoner at the bar," he once said to an unfortunate wretch on whose behalf an infant advocate had been feebly urging "extenuating circumstances," "everything that your counsel has said in mitigation I consider to be an aggravation of your offense."

Two Ways of Doing Business.

The industrious man—the plain, everyday kind, we mean—gets to his work early. Three hours later the man of marked executive ability drops in to see that the industrious man keeps steadily at work. If everything is going well the man of marked executive ability leaves for the day, for there is no need for a display of his peculiar qualities. If everything is going ill the man of marked executive ability quits at once in order that his reputation may not be compromised by his presence.—Boston Transcript.

A Slave to Method.

A medical specialist was very much in the habit of using a notebook to assist his memory and insure precision. In course of time it happened that his aged father died. The worthy doctor attended the obsequies as chief mourner with due solemnity. At the close he was observed to take out his notebook and carefully to erase the words "Mem. Bury father."—Scottish American.

Translated.

"I heard her boasting that her dinner party was a success from the beginning and ended with the greatest 'eclaw.' What's 'eclaw,' anyway?"

"Why—er—that was the dessert, of course. Didn't you ever eat a 'chocolate eclaw?'"—Exchange.

Accidents Will Happen.

Landlady—Yes, sir, two chickens went into that soup.

Boarder—Never mind, madam, never mind. No harm done. No one would ever suspect it, I assure you.—Town and Country.

Narrow minds think nothing right above their own capacity.—Rochefoucauld.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

● In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

MAY BE VERY COLD.

Minnesota Januarys Have Peen Known To Bring Severe Weather.

The weather bureau at St. Paul, has given out some facts gleaned from the records there, showing that if the coming month does not depart from established precedents for January, it will bring lots of intensely cold, fuel-consuming weather.

It was during the month of January sixteen years ago, that Minnesota points experienced the greatest fall of temperature ever known. The mercury kept going down until it reached 41 degrees below zero. This remarkable fall of the thermometer occured on January 21, 1888, and it is recalled that the fall was attended with peculiar phenomena. The day was a cloudy one, and the atmosphere was so full of frost that considerable difficulty in breathing was experienced.

The highest temperature for the first month of the year ever recorded at the St. Paul weather station was 49 degrees above zero, which was on January 24, 1894.

The same bureau shows from its records that January has also seen some great snow blockades, a notable one being on Jan. 16, 1887. At that time over a part of the state, snow stood a full foot deep upon the level, and the drifts in towns and cities paralyzed traffic.

RESIGNS FROM BENCH

JUDGE COLLINS TENDERS RESIGNATION AS MEMBER OF SUPREME COURT.

Worthington Physician Dies From Poison Taken by Mistake—Record Breaking Prices for Pine on the Cass Lake Reservation—Nelson Boys Want Sentence of Death Commuted—General State News.

St. Paul, Jan. 1.—Associate Justice Loren W. Collins of the state supreme court, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, has tendered his resignation to Governor Van Sant, who promptly accepted it. Attorney General Douglas has been named to fill the vacancy on the bench and Assistant Attorney General W. J. Donahower succeeds Douglas.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—Following closely upon the resignation of Judge Collins from the state supreme bench, comes the retirement of James A Martin from the state board of control. Mr. Martin will probably manage Judge Collins' campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

SPIRITED BIDDING FOR PINE.

Record-Breaking Prices Submitted at Cass Lake, Minn.

Duluth, Dec. 30.—Frederick Weyerhauser's spirited bidding for Chippewa pine, as disclosed by the record-breaking prices submitted Monday at the second sale at Cass Lake, will put many thousands of dollars into the pockets of the Indians. Through the agency of the Rock Island Lumber and Manufacturing company, of which Weyerhauser is the head, the price of $5.84 obtained earlier in December was advanced to $6.80 Monday—a figure which is unprecedented in the history of reservation sales. All of the eleven bidders were well up to this figure.

It is stated that Weyerhauser and his associates now control three-fourths of the pine stumpage in Minnesota.

PHYSICIAN DIES ON ROAD.

Drinks Poison by Mistake While Returning From Visit to Patient.

Worthington, Minn., Jan. 4.—Dr. E. J. Dolan accidentally drank the contents of a one-ounce vial of carbolic acid during the evening and died under peculiarly tragic circumstances.

He had been called to attend a patient several miles south of this place and started for home about 8 o'clock.

The weather was bitterly cold and he opened his case and, mistaking the bottle, swallowed the poison. He immediately took what little antidote he had with him and called to his driver to make all possible speed to town.

When they were within a mile of his home Dr. Dolan, crazed with pain, jumped out of the carriage. The driver was unable to hold him and he died in a few minutes.

ASK FOR LIFE SENTENCE.

Nelson Boys Appeal to Minnesota Pardon Board for Clemency.

St. Paul, Dec. 29.—Charles and Henry Nelson, condemned to be hanged Feb. 10 for the murder of Henry H. Krier, at Owatonna, April 13 last, have made formal application to the state board of pardons for commutation of their sentences to imprisonment for life.

Charles Nelson, who is the elder of the two, has only within the past few days arrived at the age of nineteen years, and Henry became seventeen Aug. 22. In both cases the chief ground upon which clemency is asked is the extreme youth of the condemned prisoners.

MORE THAN 100,000 ACRES.

Minnesota Public Land to Be Thrown Open to Settlement.

Duluth, Dec. 30.—All of the land which is to become available for entry next month is in Northern Itasca county, in the Big Fork country, and southwest of International falls. The opening of these lands will take place as follows:

Townships 66-26 and 67-26, Jan. 12; townships 66-27 and 69-27, Jan. 13; townships 156-25, Jan. 14.

This makes considerably over 100,000 acres of valuable land which will be available for the public.

MANY CUT AND BRUISED.

Flooring of Hokah (Minn.) Opera House Collapses.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 2.—The weight of 400 people attending an entertainment in the opera house at Hokah, Minn., caused the flooring to give way and nearly half the number were thrown to the ground in a heap.

Panic reigned among the women and children for a short time, but no one was fatally injured. Many were severely cut and bruised.

Brainerd Hotel Destroyed.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 2.—Fire broke out in the Arlington hotel, the leading hostelry of the city, at 6 a. m. and before the flames were subdued $50,000 worth of property went up in smoke. There were some thirty guests in the house at the time but all escaped safely.

Carlisle Denies Charges.

Minneapolis, Jan. 2.—Harry Silberberg, alias J. J. Carlisle, the accused hypnotist in the Hennepin county jail, confident that he will live but a short time, has issued a denial of the charges made against him, saying they are the result of spite and all false.

Attempt Suicide by Piosen.

Minneapolis, Dec. 31.—May Smith, a waitress, and Michael Tilfin, a butcher, despondent over unfortunate love affairs, attempted suicide last evening by swallowing carbolic acid. Both were carried to the city hospital and both will recover.

CITY ORDERS PAYABLE—To whom it may concern: City orders are now payable up to December 1, 1900, (except Order No. 855.) Interest on payable orders will stop on date of this notice.—O. Emard, City Treasurer, Red Lake Falls, Minn., December 31, 1903. d31-j7

ENGINEER'S BRAVE DEED.

Crosses Ruined Bridge to Save Approaching Train.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 30.—What might have been a very serious catastrophe, with a heavy loss of life and a long list of injured, was averted by the bravery and coolness of a Crookston man.

The large Great Northern railroad bridge over the Mouse river at Surrey, N. D., in some mysterious manner caught fire late at night, and the structure in a short while was a mass of charred ruins. No. 4, the eastbound fast coast train, was approaching the burning bridge, and the crew had no knowledge of the fire. Owing to the fierce blizzard the blaze could not be seen for more than 100 yards, and telegraph communication was cut off shortly after the fire started, and railroad men at Granville were in a quandary about warning the approaching flyer. The bridge which crosses the Mouse river is ten miles east of Minot, and Norwich was the nearest point upon the west side at which the train could be stopped.

Engineer Greenhough boarded a light engine, pulled the throttle wide open and headed down the track in the hope that he might reach the bridge before the fire had seriously weakened it. Without a thought of his own life or the fate of his engine, as he approached the bridge he pulled the throttle wide open, to either go over it and warn the approaching train or through the structure into eternity.

The bridge stood the trial and the engine rushed on to Norwich, where the "flyer" was flagged and the crew warned of their danger.

FRANKLIN CHOSEN PREESIDENT.

Fairbault Man Head of Minnesota Educational Association.

St. Paul, Jan. 1.—The forty-first annual meeting of the Minnesota Educational association, the most successful in the history of the organization, came to a close yesterday afternoon with a general session at the Central Presbyterian church.

The final session was attended by nearly a thousand teachers. A large amount of business, including the election of a compromise slate of officers, which prevented an impending clash of the McIntire-Bryant factions, occupied the early part of the afternoon.

The following officers were elected: President, George A. Franklin, Fairbault; general secretary, Guy Maxwell, Winona state normal school; recording secretary, Miss Mary Fanning, St. Paul; treasurer, Miss Christine Goetzinger, county superintendent of Otter Tail county.

Francis B. Atkinson of Chicago, editor of the Little Chronicle, delivered the principal address of the afternoon. All the special sections closed up their work yesterday morning.

COUSIN SUSPECTED OF MURDER.

Insane Man Shot and Killed Near Little Falls, Minn.

Little Falls, Minn., Dec. 31.—William J Snow was shot and instantly killed near here and his cousin, Charles Snow, is said to have fired the fatal shot. Charles Snow has not been arrested as yet although Sheriff Tanner and his deputies are searching for him.

It is said that the dead man was subject to fits of insanity and became violent at times. He threatened to kill his aunt, with whom he has lived for fifteen years, and that person fled to her daughter's house, a short distance away.

William Snow then went away and his cousin is said to have started out in search of him with a gun.

Some hours later William Snow's body was found lying in a pool of blood with a revolver by his side. After an examination, however, it was decided that death was caused by a bullet from a 42-caliber rifle, which is said to have been the caliber of Charles Snow's gun.

Order For Hearing on Claims, Etc.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF Red Lake, ss:

In Probate Court,
Special Term, January 6, 1904.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole John Ellingson, deceased.

Letters of administration on the estate of Ole John Ellingson, deceased, late of the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota, being granted to H. O. Gjerberg:

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 83;

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 56; which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Four Hundred Ninety-four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The East Half of the Northeast Quarter (E. ½ N. E. ¼), and the Northwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (N. W. ¼ N. E. ¼), and the Northeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter (N. E. ¼ N. W. ¼), (or Lot One (1)) of Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred Fifty-One (151), Range Forty-Four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred Ninety-Four and 33-100 ($494.33) Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars, Attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, November 14th, A. D. 1903.

Order to Examine Accounts.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } ss

In Probate Court.
Special Term, Dec. 23, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of Jennie R. Francis deceased:

On Reading and Filing the Petition of Charles B. Francis, Executor of the estate of Jennie R. Francis, deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law;

It is Ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this Court, on Saturday the 16th day of January, A. D., 1904, at one o'clock P. M., at the Probate Office, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County.

And it is Ordered Further, That notice thereof be given all persons interested by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 23rd day of December A. D. 1903.

By the court,

Order to Show Cause on Filing Petition to Mortgage Land.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE } ss

In Probate Court,
Special Term, January 5, 1904.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole John Ellingson Deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of H. O. Gjerberg, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon his estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of the said Ole John Ellingson, deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate or any part thereof.

It is Therefore Ordered, That all persons interested in said estate before this Court, on Saturday, the 30th day of January, A. D. 1904, at 2 o'clock P. M., at the Probate Office in the Court House in the city of Red Lake Falls in said County, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said H. O. Gjerberg to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased, for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessments and liens, and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is Further Ordered, That this Order shall be published once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 6th day of January, A. D. 1904.

By the Court,
(Seal) N. W. TARRANT,
j7-21 Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Pochardt and Carrie Pochardt, his wife, Mortgagors, to Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of June, 1903, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, 1903, at 5:30 o'clock, P. M., in Book 29 of Mortgages, on page 84.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Ed L. Healy, Mortgagee, to Grant Van Sant, by written assignment dated the 13th day of August, 1903, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds, on the 14th day of August, 1903, at 9 o'clock A. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 50, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Grant Van Sant to Miles J. Scandrett, by written assignment dated on the 14th day of November, 1903, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Red Lake County, on the 16th day of November, 1903, at 2 P. M., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 75.

And whereas, the said Miles J. Scandrett, the Assignee, Mortgagee and Holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said Mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 ($1,052.86) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, from the 14th day of November, 1903, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof. Said Mortgage was given to secure a note dated February 13, 1903, for the sum of One Thousand ($1,000) Dollars.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (S. W. ¼ N. E. ¼) and Lots Two (2) and Three (3) and Four (4) and Five (5) in Section Nineteen (19), in Township One Hundred and Fifty-one (151), Range Forty-four (44), in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County and State, on the 8th day of January, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Thousand Fifty-two and 86-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, November 14th, A. D. 1903.

TO HAUL LOGS BY RAIL.

Thief River Lumber Company will Get a Train Every Day.

Arrangements are being made by the officials of the Thief River Falls Lumber company and the Great Northern for the hauling of a train of logs per day from the Blackduck country on the M. & I. to Thief River Falls. 15 or 20 cars per day will be taken into the mill if arrangements are completed satisfactorily, and will enable the plant to start in the spring as soon as the ice goes out. The haul will be a long and expensive one but it is understood that the Thief River company is short on stock and does not like to waste any of the cutting season. A slip is being arranged near the mill for the easy unloading of the pine from the cars.

BOB DUNN IS A CANDIDATE

Former State Auditor Makes Formal Announcement of His Candidacy for Governor.

In the last issue of the Princeton Union, Hon. Robert C. Dunn announced his candidacy for governor. It reads as follows:

"I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Minnesota and I respectfully solicit the support of all Republicans and my fellow citizens generally.

"No man is big enough to dictate a platform for the Republican party of Minnesota. The party through its representatives in convention assembled, will formulate a platform upon which I will squarely stand. The combined wisdom of the Republican party of the State is better than the judgment of any individual member of the party.

"I heartily endorse and approve the platform adopted by the Republican State convention of 1902.

"There are certain other things which I believe in and will practice, advocate and recommend if I am chosen governor:

"The State board of control should be absolutely divorced from politics and the affairs of the board should be conducted on business principles on broad guage lines with due regard to humanitarian features; no niggardly policy should be pursued.

"One of my cardinal beliefs is non-interference of the executive with the legislative branch of the government, and the appointive officers should eschew politics and devote their energies to the performance of their official duties. Those who serve the State best will serve me best.

"The State should make liberal provision for the reclamation of its swamp lands.

"I pledge myself to observe and enforce the law which gives to ex-Union soldiers the preference to appointive offices.

"I pledge myself to a fearless and impartial enforcement of the laws upon our statute books, particularly those which guard the interests of the people from the encroachments of corporate greed and aggression. Every citizen is equal under the law and should enjoy equal privileges and equally share the burdens.

"In this connection I think my record in the legislature and in the State auditor's office, which is an open book, should be a guarantee that I will discharge the duties of the office of governor in an intelligent and businesslike manner. If nominated and elected, I pledge myself to devote my entire time and attention to the faithful performance of the duties of the position.

"R. C. DUNN."

The Home Support.

Fergus Falls Journal: Robert C. Dunn has announced his candidacy for governor. The announcement was made at a reception by his fellow townsmen at Princeton, who not only "bade him God speed," but presented him with a campaign fund of $5,000. This home support cannot fail to be very gratifying. Glenwood and St. Cloud are yet to be heard from.

PROGRAM FOR BAND CONCERT

Several Difficult Numbers to Be Rendered Tomorrow Evening at Opera House.

The January concert of the Red Lake Falls band will be given tomorrow (Friday) evening at the Metropolitan opera house. The program is an unusually heavy one, and it is hoped that it will be better patronized than any of the previous efforts. Red Lake Falls has just cause to be proud of the fact that it has the best band organization in this part of the State, and the citizens should show their appreciation of the efforts put forth by the boys. Following is the program:

PART I.

1—"Ronde des Petits Pierrots" ....Bose
Brass Quartette
2—Reminiscenses from Opera "Indra" —Flotow
Messrs. Lemiex, Freund, Healy and Brunelle
3—Trombone Solo, "If Dreams Come True"—Trevelyan
Harry B. Healy
4—Ouerture, "The Daughter of the Regiment"—Donizetti

PART II.

1—Violin and Cello Duet, Sextette from "Lucia di Lammermoor"—Donizetti
Messrs. Onstad and Berthon
2—Male Quartette, "The City Choir" —Parkers
Messrs. Onstad, Healy, Nauman, Marshall and Berthon
3—Grand Opera, "Faust"......Gounod
4—Idyll, "The Forge in the Forest" —Michaelis
5—March ....Selected

CHEESE BRINGS COIN.

Factories Are Better Money Producers Than Creameries.

"In a sparsely settled community, a cheese factory is much more profitable to the farmers than a creamery," says State Dairy and Food Commissioner W. W. P. McConnell. Continuing, he said:

"For example, in a place where there are 200 cows, a cheese factory can be established at a cost of $800 to $1,000 and can pay the farmers as much per 100 pounds for their milk as a creamery, which costs from $3,000 upward, can pay in a community where there are from 300 to 400 cows.

"A creamery run on anything less than the product of 400 cows cannot be made to pay. A cheese factory can be profitably operated in a community where there are 200 cows.

"Some time ago I advocated this idea in a published article and the objection was raised that the by-products from the manufacture of cheese could not be so profitably utilized as those from the creamery. It was argued that calves could not be fattened on whey; but I induced one farmer to try that plan and I have a photograph of as fine a lot of calves as I ever saw that were fattened entirely on whey."

Cole's Carbolisoap is simply delightful for use in hard or soft water. You can always enjoy the luxury of a foamy, perfumed bath if you use Carbolisoap. It is not carbolic soap. Be sure to get Cole's. It is sold by all druggists.

WILL TEACH FARMERS.

Thief River Authority will Work to Encourage Dairying.

James A. Wilson, of Thief River Falls, has been employed by W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, to instruct the farmers of the Red River Valley in the proper care and feeding of cows and to encourage the establishment of creameries and cheese factories.

Mr. McConnell has great confidence in the future of the Red River valley and believes that there is room for many more creameries and cheese factories. Several institutions have been started during the year, and it is thought that with proper encouragement more still will be launched next spring.

Mr. Wilson will try to show the farmers how to increase the output of the raw material. He will argue that a creamery can handle 3,000 pounds of milk at almost the same cost as 1,500 pounds, and that the farmers will get twice the returns. He will teach the dairymen by practical experiments just what kinds of feed to use and in what quantities to use it.

We all know people whose chief charm lies in their exquisite cleanliness, and about whom there lingers a faint, swee odor as of wild flowers. If you would acquire this charm use Cole's Carbolisoap This is not carbolic soap. It is purely vegetable. Get Cole's, try it once—and you will use no other. By all druggists.

RICHARDSON'S COUP D'ETAT

Special Election to Choose a Mayor Must Be Held at Thief River.

The political situation at Thief River Falls has not been clarified by recent developments. No sooner was the decree of Judge Grindeland announced than the rumor became current that Richardson would not qualify as mayor after all, owing to the fact that the postal law would not allow him to hold a municipal office while serving as postmaster. The hopes of the Kratka people ran high, for it was assumed that Kratka would continue as mayor. The law says a mayor shall hold office until his successor is elected and qualified.

But Richardson is to qualify tonight, make his appointments, and then resign the office. In this way the war is opened afresh, as a new election for mayor will be called by the city council, and the people of our neighboring city are to have another season of political strife between the opposing factions that are fighting for control of the city government.

Vanadium Steel.

A new alloy of steel is Vanadium steel. When three to five parts of this metal, now little known, are added to a thousand parts of steel, it communicates remarkable properties. It does not confer any new properties on the steel, but it doubles its resistance to fracture of all kinds, and gives such extreme hardness that the thickness of armer plate on war vessels can be reduced about one half. With the strength of bread and meat in a liquid form, golden grain belt beer is unexcelled as a table beverage. It sparkles with purity and is very refreshing. THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES
BY HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON.
COPYRIGHT

Mr. Drane knew that he was blushing, and he wondered whether his face were clean enough to show it. He looked up and saw the young woman's blue eyes regarding him compassionately.

"I feel as if I must apologize for addressing you at all, miss," he half stammered. "I forgot my—well, my loathsome appearance. It isn't mine, it isn't my fault; in fact, I am not exactly the thing you see."

"Oh, forgive me if I have appeared to notice any thing but your goodness, sir," exclaimed the young woman, approaching him impulsively as she spoke; "you have doubtless been unfortunate, perhaps seen better days. I am sure you are a gentleman at heart, and I am grateful, indeed I am, believe me," and without further ado she took his hand and pressed it warmly in both of hers. Mr. Drane winced. There was the most delicate condescension in her manner and tone; her action said what words would have rendered offensive: "See, I recognize your nobility of character, no matter how ugly is your disguise, and I am not ashamed to acknowledge it." To be thus treated by a servant!

Yesterday this interesting young person would have stammered in his presence, hung her head, and would have been overwhelmed at receiving a service at his hands. Now, forsooth, she speaks grandly, airs her superiority, condescends to grasp Mr. Lawrence Drane's hand! The unhappy man began to experience profound resentment at this conceited lady's maid when a surprising change in her manner aroused his curious interest. She let fall his hand as impulsively as she had seized it, blushed painfully and looked at her white little hands which she folded before her.

"Alas! I forgot," she said, and her lips trembled. "You can not understand, of course. Oh, dear! oh, dear! You see, I, too, am not at all what you see me, or what you think I am."

Mr. Drane hastened to give the lie to his recent emotions.

"I am sure, miss," he declared, gallantly, "I have seen you and thought of you only as a lady in distress to whom it has been my unalloyed pleasure to render some small assistance."

The young woman looked up again. Her eyes were brimming with tears, nevertheless she laughed softly.

"I can not help it, miserable as I am," she said; "for your words do sound so incongruous," and she glanced as if in spite of herself at Mr. Drane's tattered clothing.

"Yes, miss," responded Mr. Drane, humbly. Then gathering courage from the remnants of his pride he added: "And do you know, miss, I have thought the same about your words," and he made no disguise of looking at the big cuffs, the emblem of her social position.

"I do not wonder," she replied, calmly, "for I am not 'miss' at all. I am a widow."

"I am deeply grieved!" exclaimed Mr. Drane, hastily. "A blow of that nature coming upon one so young must be severe indeed."

There was a most improper twinkle in the young woman's eyes as she responded:

"Pray do not distress yourself. My widowhood came so unexpectedly, was such a surprise, in fact, that it was more of a shock than a blow. There were certain compensating circumstances. but, of course, I ought not to speak of such a matter lightly."

"No, I suppose not," admitted Mr. Drane, rather dubiously. Even in his wretched situation he felt an extraordinary interest in this young widow, and he wondered again vaguely how it came that she was away from her employment at daybreak. She was tapping the ground with her foot thoughtfully, evidently hesitating about continuing her explanation. Mr. Drane was naturally curious. Circumstances had brought them strangely together. What could be better than to exchange confidences? He began:

"You have been so good, madam, as to admit the possibility of my having seen better days. That is decidedly the case, and I mean to see better ones yet if luck is not wholly against me."

Then he stopped abruptly, for the consciousness of his situation overwhelmed him, and he felt the absurdity of confiding in a mere servant. The young woman did not notice his manner.

"It is you who have been good," she said, "and you ought to know more fully how you have befriended me. My story is a strange one; people do not credit it, but I trust you will believe me. Let us sit down, for I am fatigued with anxiety and sleeplessness."

Still this same irritating condescension from a lady's maid! Mr. Drane thought ruefully of his bedraggled appearance and admitted that appearances justified it. What becomes of the fine

"A man's a man for a' that,"

when every body estimates him by his apparel? How can the ragamuffin maintain his own pride when he knows that the rest of the world is against him? It is folly to kick against appearances, and what is folly is useless, and what is useless should not be held; ergo, a man who appears to be a vagabond and disreputable is a vagabond and disreputable, and so much the worse if he stubbornly endeavor to maintain the contrary. Such was the bitter train of reasoning indulged by Mr. Drane as he and the fair young widow went to the bench from which she had been driven, for she was fair, notwithstanding sundry evidences of a sleepless night, and interesting in spite of her big cuffs and lace frill:

"To begin, as a woman must, at neither end of the story," she began when they were seated, "you must know that I possess immense wealth."

Mr. Drane rose quickly.

"I beg your pardon for the interruption," he said, "but do you happen to have any of that with you?"

"Alas! no," she replied, dismally, "and that is not the worst of it."

"It's as bad as it can be for the moment," Mr. Drane insisted, as he resumed his seat. "You see, I would have been very glad to give you my note for five hundred if you had it convenient."

The young woman looked at him searchingly.

"I should be wicked if I did not desire to help you, poor man," she said, gravely, "and I trust the time may come speedily when I shall be able to do so."

Mr. Drane was stung, but not crushed.

"You must understand," he exclaimed, "that I should repay it. I've got plenty of money, that is, there's plenty belonging to me, and I can get it if I can only prove my identity."

The young woman's eyes were dilated with wonder and doubt.

"Strange!" she said, slowly, "for that is exactly my own case. You shall tell me your story presently. Listen to mine. I became an orphan at an early age, and until a little more than a year ago I lived with my guardian, a warm friend of my father's, in Buffalo. At the time of which I am about to speak with some particularity I had just attained my majority, so that I controlled what little property had been bequeathed to me. I still lived with my guardian, however, and had not thought seriously of the fact that I was at last absolutely a responsible being in the world. There had been some suitors for my hand, but to none had I shown the least favor. That they were all sincere I have no doubt, for my fortune was too slight to be a temptation. Among them was a singular young man of really immense riches. He was generally credited with being the possessor of thirteen millions."

"Deuced unlucky figure," interposed Mr. Drane.

"You shall see," said the fair narrator. "I could not bring myself to feel towards this young man as I believe a woman should towards a husband, although I had no reason to entertain any thing but respect for his character. My guardian pleaded with me to make a match so palpably desirable, but I could not consent. It was while this matter was pending that some of my associates arranged to give an amateur theatrical performance for the benefit of a charitable institution. As fortune, or perhaps shrewd design, would have it, this wealthy young man and I were cast for opposite parts. I had plainly rejected his proposals to me, but he would not take no for an answer, and he persisted in a quiet, good-natured devotion that I could not resent, but which began to grow irksome, until at last I feared that I should have to marry him in order to be free from him. I was in this half tormented spirit when we met one night at a private house for rehearsal.

"He was always insisting that we should go over our love scenes again and again, and the others who understood the situation sided with him. At the end of that evening, having teased me as much as possible, he suggested that we carry the story of our play to its logical conclusion by rehearsing a marriage ceremony. 'It's something we must all come to,' he said, 'and I imagine that a fellow would feel much better before the altar if he had learned how to go through the motions.' The others, silly young things! were fired with the idea and without further thought arranged the furniture so as to represent an altar, the chancel rail and all that."

"A very reprehensible proceeding," commented Mr. Drane. The young woman was about to proceed when a gray-coated officer, one of those guardians of public parks ironically known as "sparrow chasers," stepped up and addressed Mr. Drane:

"Say, yous, do you think nobody else don't want to sit down? I let you sleep off your jag here, see? an' it's 'bout time you moved on, see?"

Mr. Drane was about to resent the interference when the young woman whispered:

"Say nothing and obey?"

So they rose, and followed for a moment by the policeman's curious eyes, walked along the winding path to another bench, where they sat down again.

"Officious impudence!" muttered Mr. Drane.

"Never mind," said the young woman, soothingly, "he has to do something to earn his pay. Let me see, where was I on the other bench?"

"At the mock chancel rail."

"Oh, yes; well, teased as I was I consented to the farce, saying that it should be the last of my lover's nonsense that I would endure. We went through an absurd rigmarole, they made me say lots of foolish things, and at the end the young man who played the minister insisted on kissing the bride. Then my mock husband insisted, and—oh! dear me!—it was very mortifying, and until that wretched performance was given I had to endure all sorts of banter and jest. Then came the tragedy. A few days after the performance my mock husband was thrown from his carriage and instantly killed. Of course I was shocked, together with his other friends, but you may imagine my surprise when his will was unsealed to find that he had left, after a few minor bequests, all his thirteen millions to me, his

"Whew!" exclaimed Mr. Drane, softly, and he looked hard at the ground to conceal the incredulity that he knew must show itself in his eyes.

"I then learned," continued the young woman, "that the man who performed the mock ceremony was authorized to do it in real earnest, and that the presence of witnesses and the other features of New York law made the marriage legal. It was carried to the courts and so decided. Behold me, then, a widow with great wealth. The situation was not wholly pleasant, for people talked and suitors came in troops. So I went abroad. Yesterday I arrived in America again. I know nothing of this city, and yielding to my maid's advice I went to the Adams Hotel. That was in the early afternoon. My trunks were to follow me this morning. Fatigued with the worry of landing and the waiting for customs officers and feeling the approach of a sick headache, I retired. About six o'clock I awoke refreshed to find that my maid had disappeared with my clothing, my hand-baggage and all my money. She had left me what I now wear, which I was forced to put on. The clerk of the hotel very impudently discredited my story; said that my mistress had paid the bill and gone, and that I was to follow her to the St. Cloud. He added, moreover, that two games of the kind in one day were more than he could stand. I was not clear as to his meaning, but I understood him to refer to some man who had attempted to impose upon the house earlier in the day with a similar story."

"Yes, that was me," groaned Mr. Drane, ungrammatically.

"In sheer desperation," continued the hapless widow, "I went to the St. Cloud, but, of course, found no trace of my maid. Since then I have wandered about most of the time in this park, supperless, sleepless and, until you interposed, friendless."

"Madam," said Mr. Drane, when she had finished, "your tale is most interesting."

"And a clever fabrication, I suppose?" she added, sadly.

"No, madam, I do not say that," he exclaimed, in confusion, for he was struggling hard to believe it. "I am not a widower, and I have not been robbed by my valet, but otherwise I am in a situation to trust your account of your career implicitly. Somebody has taken my clothing, my money, my credit, my name, my identity from me, and—"

"Hush!" whispered the widow; "here comes the officer again. Let us be off before he speaks to us."

As they walked into the street, and so out of the "sparrow-chaser's" territory, Mr. Drane's feelings, which had been somewhat stirred by his companion's recital, sank again to a level with his condition.

"What in the world shall we do?" he asked. "I'm hungry."

"So am I," said the widow. "I don't know which way to turn."

At this moment hurried footsteps behind them caused them to face about. A young man in evening dress and a black eye was coming up with a policeman.

"That's the fellow!" exclaimed the young man, pointing at Mr. Drane. "I charge him with unprovoked assault."

Mr. Drane's heart went into his boots at the prospect of fresh humiliation, but before he could utter a word the policeman had snapped an iron ring over his wrist and had said, roughly:

"Come now, step lively!"

Dazed, mortified, crushed, Mr. Drane could neither speak nor move, and the policeman drew back his club to persuade him into motion, but the blow did not reach him. It raised a cruel welt on the young widow's wrist, and her voice trembled with pain and indignation as she said:

"Do not take this gentleman, Mr. Officer! He was at fault only in defending me against that man's insults. Please let him go."

"That's nonsense, of course, Tom," said he of the black eye. "The fellow tried to rob me."

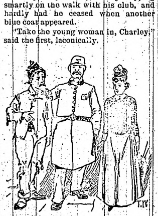
"Come now, get a move on," commanded the policeman, giving Mr. Drane an uncomfortable poke in the small of the back with his club. Mr. Drane stumbled forward, trying to tell his unhappy companion to pay no attention to him, when she once more interposed, seizing the policeman by his club arm and imploring him to free the prisoner. The policeman shook himself free, prodded Mr. Drane again, and said to the young woman:

"Will you clear out now?"

"No! I won't!" she cried, and she stamped her foot imperiously. "That gentleman defended me and I won't see him wronged. So there!"

The policeman replied by rapping smartly on the walk with his club, and hardly had he ceased when another blue coat appeared.

"Take the young woman in, Charley," said the first, laconically.



"IN THE GRASP OF THE LAW."

"This is an outrage!" exclaimed Mr. Drane, and then that quick, dismal philosophy recurred to him and he saw that it was all perfectly natural. Another poke and a warning from the policeman showed him that it was folly to resist. So the five marched up Broadway to the nearest station house. Mr. Drane wrathful and silent, the widow indignant and tearful, and he of the black eye sullen and vengeful.

CHAPTER III.

A SCOTCH VERDICT.

Arrived at a police station the party marched in and halted in front of a big counter behind which sat a benignant-looking man reading a book. Drane saw that it was a volume of Shakespeare, and he felt a dim hope that this man at least would prove to be kind and trusting. He did not know the New York policemen, though he was scraping acquaintance with the species faster than he really cared to. The man at the desk continued to read until he had come to a convenient stopping place when he took up a pen, looked at Drane and asked:

"What's your name?"

It flashed over poor Lawrence that all the reporters in town would write up his adventures, that the accounts would be telegraphed to Western newspapers, and that a full measure of disgraceful notoriety would be heaped upon him. So, "Tom Jones," he replied at hazard. The benignant man's face wrinkled into an incredulous sneer, but he put the name down without a word. Then, "Where do you live?" he demanded.

"Kansas City," faltered Lawrence, utterly at a loss to carry on his fiction, and when he was questioned as to his business he hung his head in despair. His garments would belie his claim to be a gentleman; for the same reason he could not explain that he was charged with enlisting Boston capital in the interest of a new railroad, a commission that he had undertaken more for the sake of diversion than for any need of money-making, and in a fair frenzy of misery he blurted out:

"I haven't any business!"

"Umph! walking gent, I suppose," said the man at the big desk. "What were you doing with this man and woman?"

The young lady at once began a protest and explanation which was checked by the officer in charge of her, who growled:

"Say, yous, will you keep quiet until you're asked to say something?"

The accuser declared that Drane had assaulted him and tried to rob him.

"Lock him up," said the benignant man, drily; and the obedient policeman conducted Lawrence to a cell. As he passed through the doorway he heard the young lady sobbing bitterly. Walking down the corridor he repressed the tremendous resentment that raged within him, but as soon as the key was turned he addressed his conductor:

"I wish you'd let me have a word with you."

The officer paused. Drane had intended to tell his story, hoping to convince his jailor, if not of his innocence, that at least there was a grave error in the proceedings somewhere, but his feelings overpowered him.

"I'd have you understand," he exclaimed, "that you don't know whom you are dealing with. I could buy this house fifty times over and not feel it! My reputation never has been questioned, and somebody will suffer for this. Why—"

"Oh, rats!" interrupted the jailor, and he walked away. There is no phrase in polite or vulgar literature that compresses so much contempt into so small a space as that one word "Rats!" It is unanswerable, complete, depressing. As Lawrence listened to his jailor's retreating footsteps his resentment turned to disgust.

"That just shows," he thought, "how ill-fitted I am for these clothes. If I had been brought up to wear them I should have known how to express myself adequately. Some really shocking language might have had an effect on that fellow."

Then for four mortal hours Lawrence ruminated on visions of penal servitude, balls and chains, breaking rocks, stories of galley slaves; and he wondered whether much famed Sing Sing would be better ventilated than his present quarters. He took one little comfort in his gruesome reflections—he could at least depend on something to eat as long as the Government should be his host. There was no breakfast for him, however, and when at last he was marched to Jefferson Market court he was in that state of faintness that he would have walked willingly many miles had the officers required it. Without realizing how time had passed, or what had happened, he found himself one of a nondescript company shut in by an iron railing. The audience room was crowded with spectators, and in the enclosure where he stood were policemen, lawyers and reporters. Lawrence shrunk as close as he could against the wall and gave way to profound discouragement.

"Well, pard," said a low voice at his side, "you seem to have struck it rough this time."

Drane saw a man in rags more loathsome than his own, with rum-bloated features leering at him sympathetically.

"You have the advantage of me, sir," he responded, haughtily.

"I guess not," said the other, with a dreadful smile. "That ain't to say that I knows ye, that I ever had the honor of 'sociatin' with ye, but I recognize the fraternity wherever I comes across 'em, see?"

Drane shuddered.

"I'm goin' to take a vacation at the island," continued the other, cheerfully. "Got kind o' tired walkin', an' need to rest up. 'Spect to go up for long?"

"I don't know what they will do with me," replied Drane, "and I don't want to talk to you."

"All right, all right," said the ragamuffin, "only if you ain't used to this business you'll find 'fore long that it's useful to make friends wherever you can pick 'em up. No tellin' what a man might do for you, see?"

Lawrence turned away, feeling in his disgust a forlorn conviction that the fellow was probably right. At the other side of the court where several women prisoners were grouped he saw the young lady whose misfortune had had so much to do with bringing him there. He started at once to go over and speak to her, and of course a policeman prevented him. He saw that she was speaking eagerly with an elderly lady who stood on the other side of the rail.

"She at least has found a friend," thought Drane, and so it proved, for in a few minutes she was called before the judge, and the elderly lady stood up

THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES
FIELDING AND
FREDERICK R. BURTON.

Mr. Drane knew that he was blushing, and he wondered whether his face were clean enough to show it. He looked up and saw the young woman's blue eyes regarding him compassionately.

"I feel as if I must apologize for addressing you at all, miss," he half stammered. "I forgot my—well, my loathsome appearance. It isn't mine, it isn't my fault; in fact, I am not exactly the thing you see."

"Oh, forgive me if I have appeared to notice any thing but your goodness, sir," exclaimed the young woman, approaching him impulsively as she spoke; "you have doubtless been unfortunate; perhaps seen better days. I am sure you are a gentleman at heart, and I am grateful, indeed I am, believe me," and without further ado she took his hand and pressed it warmly in both of hers. Mr. Drane winced. There was the most delicate condescension in her manner and tone; her action said what words would have rendered offensive: "See, I recognize your nobility of character, no matter how ugly is your disguise, and I am not ashamed to acknowledge it." To be thus treated by a servant!

Yesterday this interesting young person would have stammered in his presence, hung her head, and would have been overwhelmed at receiving a service at his hands. Now, forsooth, she speaks grandly, airs her superiority, condescends to grasp Mr. Lawrence Drane's hand! The unhappy man began to experience profound resentment at this conceited lady's maid when a surprising change in her manner aroused his curious interest. She let fall his hand as impulsively as she had seized it, blushed painfully and looked at her white little hands which she folded before her.

"Alas! I forgot," she said, and her lips trembled. "You can not understand, of course. Oh, dear! oh, dear! You see, I, too, am not at all what you see me, or what you think I am."

Mr. Drane hastened to give the lie to his recent emotions.

"I am sure, miss," he declared, gallantly, "I have seen you and thought of you only as a lady in distress to whom it has been my unalloyed pleasure to render some small assistance."

The young woman looked up again. Her eyes were brimming with tears, nevertheless she laughed softly.

"I can not help it, miserable as I am," she said; "for your words do sound so incongruous," and she glanced as if in spite of herself at Mr. Drane's tattered clothing.

"Yes, miss," responded Mr. Drane, humbly. Then gathering courage from the remnants of his pride he added: "And do you know, miss, I have thought the same about your words," and he made no disguise of looking at the big cuffs, the emblem of her social position.

"I do not wonder," she replied, calmly, "for I am not 'miss' at all. I am a widow."

"I am deeply grieved!" exclaimed Mr. Drane, hastily. "A blow of that nature coming upon one so young must be severe indeed."

There was a most improper twinkle in the young woman's eyes as she responded:

"Pray do not distress yourself. My widowhood came so unexpectedly, was such a surprise, in fact, that it was more of a shock than a blow. There were certain compensating circumstances, but, of course, I ought not to speak of such a matter lightly."

"No, I suppose not," admitted Mr. Drane, rather dubiously. Even in his wretched situation he felt an extraordinary interest in this young widow, and he wondered again vaguely how it came that she was away from her employment at daybreak. She was tapping the ground with her foot thoughtfully, evidently hesitating about continuing her explanation. Mr. Drane was naturally curious. Circumstances had brought them strangely together. What could be better than to exchange confidences? He began:

"You have been so good, madam, as to admit the possibility of my having seen better days. That is decidedly the case, and I mean to see better ones yet if luck is not wholly against me."

Then he stopped abruptly, for the consciousness of his situation overwhelmed him, and he felt the absurdity of confiding in a mere servant. The young woman did not notice his manner.

"It is you who have been good," she said, "and you ought to know more fully how you have befriended me. My story is a strange one; people do not credit it, but I trust you will believe me. Let us sit down, for I am fatigued with anxiety and sleeplessness."

Still this same irritating condescension from a lady's maid! Mr. Drane thought ruefully of his bedraggled appearance and admitted that appearances justified it. What becomes of the fine

"A man's a man for a' that,"

when every body estimates him by his apparel? How can the ragamuffin maintain his own pride when he knows that the rest of the world is against him? It is folly to kick against appearances, and what is folly is useless, and what is useless should not be held; ergo, a man who appears to be a vagabond and disreputable is a vagabond and disreputable, and so much the worse if he stubbornly endeavor to maintain the contrary. Such was the bitter train of reasoning indulged by Mr. Drane as he and the fair young widow went to the bench from which she had been driven, for she was fair, notwithstanding sundry evidences of a sleepless night and [illegible] in spite of her big cuffs and [illegible]

"To begin, as a woman must, at neither end of the story," she began when they were seated, "you must know that I possess immense wealth."

Mr. Drane rose quickly.

"I beg your pardon for the interruption," he said, "but do you happen to have any of that with you?"

"Alas! no," she replied, dismally, "and that is not the worst of it."

"It's as bad as it can be for the moment," Mr. Drane insisted, as he resumed his seat. "You see, I would have been very glad to give you my note for five hundred if you had it convenient."

The young woman looked at him searchingly.

"I should be wicked if I did not desire to help you, poor man," she said, gravely, "and I trust the time may come speedily when I shall be able to do so."

Mr. Drane was stung, but not crushed.

"You must understand," he exclaimed, "that I should repay it. I've got plenty of money, that is, there's plenty belonging to me, and I can get it if I can only prove my identity."

The young woman's eyes were dilated with wonder and doubt.

"Strange!" she said, slowly, "for that is exactly my own case. You shall tell me your story presently. Listen to mine. I became an orphan at an early age, and until a little more than a year ago I lived with my guardian, a warm friend of my father's, in Buffalo. At the time of which I am about to speak with some particularity I had just attained my majority, so that I controlled what little property had been bequeathed to me. I still lived with my guardian, however, and had not thought seriously of the fact that I was at last absolutely a responsible being in the world. There had been some suitors for my hand, but to none had I shown the least favor. That they were all sincere I have no doubt, for my fortune was too slight to be a temptation. Among them was a singular young man of really immense riches. He was generally credited with being the possessor of thirteen millions."

"Deuced unlucky figure," interposed Mr. Drane.

"You shall see," said the fair narrator. "I could not bring myself to feel towards this young man as I believe a woman should towards a husband, although I had no reason to entertain any thing but respect for his character. My guardian pleaded with me to make a match so palpably desirable, but I could not consent. It was while this matter was pending that some of my associates arranged to give an amateur theatrical performance for the benefit of a charitable institution. As fortune, or perhaps shrewd design, would have it, this wealthy young man and I were cast for opposite parts. I had plainly rejected his proposals to me, but he would not take no for an answer, and he persisted in a quiet, good-natured devotion that I could not resent, but which began to grow irksome, until at last I feared that I should have to marry him in order to be free from him. I was in this half tormented spirit when we met one night at a private house for rehearsal.

"He was always insisting that we should go over our love scenes again and again, and the others who understood the situation sided with him. At the end of that evening, having teased me as much as possible, he suggested that we carry the story of our play to its logical conclusion by rehearsing a marriage ceremony. 'It's something we must all come to,' he said, 'and I imagine that a fellow would feel much better before the altar if he had learned how to go through the motions.' The others, silly young things! were fired with the idea and without further thought arranged the furniture so as to represent an altar, the chancel rail and all that."

"A very reprehensible proceeding," commented Mr. Drane. The young woman was about to proceed when a gray-coated officer, one of those guardians of public parks ironically known as "sparrow chasers," stepped up and addressed Mr. Drane:

"Say, yous, do you think nobody else don't want to sit down? I let you sleep off your jag here, see? an' it's 'bout time you moved on, see?"

Mr. Drane was about to resent the interference when the young woman whispered:

"Say nothing and obey?"

So they rose, and followed for a moment by the policeman's curious eyes, walked along the winding path to another bench, where they sat down again.

"Officious impudence!" muttered Mr. Drane.

"Never mind," said the young woman, soothingly, "he has to do something to earn his pay. Let me see, where was I on the other bench?"

"At the mock chancel rail."

"Oh, yes; well, teased as I was I consented to the farce, saying that it should be the last of my lover's nonsense that I would endure. We went through an absurd rigmarole, they made me say lots of foolish things, and at the end the young man who played the minister insisted on kissing the bride. Then my mock husband insisted, and—oh! dear me!—it was very mortifying, and until that wretched performance was given I had to endure all sorts of banter and jest. Then came the tragedy. A few days after the performance my mock husband was thrown from his carriage and instantly killed. Of course I was shocked, together with his other friends, but you may imagine my surprise when his will was opened to find that he had left, after a few minor bequests, all his thirteen millions to me, [illegible]

"Whew!" exclaimed Mr. Drane, softly, and he looked hard at the ground to conceal the incredulity that he knew must show itself in his eyes.

"I then learned," continued the young woman, "that the man who performed the mock ceremony was authorized to do it in real earnest, and that the presence of witnesses and the other features of New York law made the marriage legal. It was carried to the courts and so decided. Behold me, then, a widow with great wealth. The situation was not wholly pleasant, for people talked and suitors came in troops. So I went abroad. Yesterday I arrived in America again. I know nothing of this city, and yielding to my maid's advice I went to the Adams Hotel. That was in the early afternoon. My trunks were to follow me this morning. Fatigued with the worry of landing and the waiting for customs officers and feeling the approach of a sick headache, I retired. About six o'clock I awoke refreshed to find that my maid had disappeared with my clothing, my hand-baggage and all my money. She had left me what I now wear, which I was forced to put on. The clerk of the hotel very impudently discredited my story; said that my mistress had paid the bill and gone, and that I was to follow her to the St. Cloud. He added, moreover, that two games of the kind in one day were more than he could stand. I was not clear as to his meaning, but I understood him to refer to some man who had attempted to impose upon the house earlier in the day with a similar story."

"Yes, that was me," groaned Mr. Drane, ungrammatically.

"In sheer desperation," continued the hapless widow, "I went to the St. Cloud, but, of course, found no trace of my maid. Since then I have wandered about most of the time in this park, supperless, sleepless and, until you interposed, friendless."

"Madam," said Mr. Drane, when she had finished, "your tale is most interesting."

"And a clever fabrication, I suppose?" she added, sadly.

"No, madam, I do not say that," he exclaimed, in confusion, for he was struggling hard to believe it. "I am not a widower, and I have not been robbed by my valet, but otherwise I am in a situation to trust your account of your career implicitly. Somebody has taken my clothing, my money, my credit, my name, my identity from me, and—"

"Hush!" whispered the widow; "here comes the officer again. Let us be off before he speaks to us."

As they walked into the street, and so out of the "sparrow-chaser's" territory, Mr. Drane's feelings, which had been somewhat stirred by his companion's recital, sank again to a level with his condition.

"What in the world shall we do?" he asked. "I'm hungry."

"So am I," said the widow. "I don't know which way to turn."

At this moment hurried footsteps behind them caused them to face about. A young man in evening dress and a black eye was coming up with a policeman.

"That's the fellow!" exclaimed the young man, pointing at Mr. Drane. "I charge him with unprovoked assault."

Mr. Drane's heart went into his boots at the prospect of fresh humiliation, but before he could utter a word the policeman had snapped an iron ring over his wrist and had said, roughly:

"Come now, step lively!"

Dazed, mortified, crushed, Mr. Drane could neither speak nor move, and the policeman drew back his club to persuade him into motion, but the blow did not reach him. It raised a cruel welt on the young widow's wrist, and her voice trembled with pain and indignation as she said:

"Do not take this gentleman, Mr. Officer! He was at fault only in defending me against that man's insults. Please let him go."

"That's nonsense, of course, Tom," said he of the black eye. "The fellow tried to rob me."

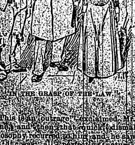
"Come now, get a move on," commanded the policeman, giving Mr. Drane an uncomfortable poke in the small of the back with his club. Mr. Drane stumbled forward, trying to tell his unhappy companion to pay no attention to him, when she once more interposed, seizing the policeman by his club arm and imploring him to free the prisoner. The policeman shook himself free, prodded Mr. Drane again, and said to the young woman:

"Will you clear out now?"

"No! I won't!" she cried, and she stamped her foot imperiously. "That gentleman defended me and I won't see him wronged. So there!"

The policeman replied by rapping smartly on the walk with his club, and hardly had he ceased when another blue coat appeared.

"Take the young woman in, Charley," said the first, laconically.



"IN THE GRASP OF THE LAW."

"This is an outrage!" exclaimed Mr. Drane, and then that quick, dismal philosophy recurred to him and he saw that it was all perfectly natural. Another poke and a warning from the policeman showed him that it was folly to resist. So the five marched up Broadway to the nearest station house, Mr. Drane [illegible]

CHAPTER III.

A SCOTCH VERDICT.

Arrived at a police station, the party marched in and halted in front of a big counter behind which sat a benignant looking man reading a book. Drane saw that it was a volume of Shakespeare, and he felt a dim hope that this man at least would prove to be kind and trusting. He did not know the New York policemen, though he was scraping acquaintance with the species faster than he really cared to. The man at the desk continued to read until he had come to a convenient stopping place when he took up a pen, looked at Drane and asked:

"What's your name?"

It flashed over poor Lawrence that all the reporters in town would write up his adventures, that the accounts would be telegraphed to Western newspapers, and that a full measure of disgraceful notoriety would be heaped upon him. So, "Tom Jones," he replied at hazard. The benignant man's face wrinkled into an incredulous sneer, but he put the name down without a word. Then, "Where do you live?" he demanded.

"Kansas City," faltered Lawrence, utterly at a loss to carry on his fiction, and when he was questioned as to his business he hung his head in despair. His garments would belie his claim to be a gentleman; for the same reason he could not explain that he was charged with enlisting Boston capital in the interest of a new railroad, a commission that he had undertaken more for the sake of diversion than for any need of money-making, and in a fair frenzy of misery he blurted out:

"I haven't any business!"

"Umph! walking gent, I suppose," said the man at the big desk. "What were you doing with this man and woman?"

The young lady at once began a protest and explanation which was checked by the officer in charge of her, who growled:

"Say, yous, will you keep quiet until you're asked to say something?"

The accuser declared that Drane had assaulted him and tried to rob him.

"Lock him up," said the benignant man, drily; and the obedient policeman conducted Lawrence to a cell. As he passed through the doorway he heard the young lady sobbing bitterly. Walking down the corridor he repressed the tremendous resentment that raged within him, but as soon as the key was turned he addressed his conductor:

"I wish you'd let me have a word with you."

The officer paused. Drane had intended to tell his story, hoping to convince his jailor, if not of his innocence, that at least there was a grave error in the proceedings somewhere, but his feelings overpowered him.

"I'd have you understand," he exclaimed, "that you don't know whom you are dealing with. I could buy this house fifty times over and not feel it! My reputation never has been questioned, and somebody will suffer for this. Why—"

"Oh, rats!" interrupted the jailor, and he walked away. There is no phrase in polite or vulgar literature that compresses so much contempt into so small a space as that one word "Rats!" It is unanswerable, complete, depressing. As Lawrence listened to his jailor's retreating footsteps his resentment turned to disgust.

"That just shows," he thought, "how ill-fitted I am for these clothes. If I had been brought up to wear them I should have known how to express myself adequately. Some really shocking language might have had an effect on that fellow."

Then for four mortal hours Lawrence ruminated on visions of penal servitude, balls and chains, breaking rocks, stories of galley slaves; and he wondered whether much famed Sing Sing would be better ventilated than his present quarters. He took one little comfort in his gruesome reflections—he could at least depend on something to eat as long as the Government should be his host. There was no breakfast for him, however, and when at last he was marched to Jefferson Market court he was in that state of faintness that he would have walked willingly many miles had the officers required it. Without realizing how time had passed, or what had happened, he found himself one of a nondescript company shut in by an iron railing. The audience room was crowded with spectators, and in the enclosure where he stood were policemen, lawyers and reporters. Lawrence shrunk as close as he could against the wall and gave way to profound discouragement.

"Well, pard," said a low voice at his side, "you seem to have struck it rough this time."

Drane saw a man in rags more loathsome than his own, with rum-bloated features leering at him sympathetically.

"You have the advantage of me, sir," he responded, haughtily.

"I guess not," said the other, with a dreadful smile. "That ain't to say that I knows ye, that I ever had the honor of 'socialin' with ye, but I recognize the fraternity wherever I comes across 'em, see?"

Drane shuddered.

"I'm goin' to take a vacation at the island," continued the other, cheerfully. "Got kind o' tired walkin', an' need to rest up. 'Spect to go up for long?"

"I don't know what they will do with me," replied Drane, "and I don't want to talk to you."

"All right, all right," said the ragamuffin, "only if you ain't used to this business you'll find 'fore long that it's useful to make friends wherever you can pick 'em up. No tellin' what a man might do for you, see?"

Lawrence turned away, feeling in his disgust a forlorn conviction that the fellow was probably right. At the other side of the court where several women prisoners were grouped he saw the young lady whose misfortune had had so much to do with bringing him there. He started at once to go over and speak to her, and of course a policeman prevented him. He saw that she was speaking eagerly with an elderly lady who stood on the other side of the railing.

"She at least has found a friend," thought Drane, and so it proved, for in a few minutes she was called before the judge and [illegible] with her at the bar. There was a brief conversation which Lawrence could not hear, and then both women stepped down and passed through the gate into the audience room. They were on the way out of the court, but the young lady paused a moment and looked inquiringly back. Lawrence caught her eye and bowed. She returned his salutation and hurriedly whispered to her companion. The latter raised a pair of glasses, beautifully framed and handled in ebony, to her eyes and scrutinized Drane keenly. Then she shook her head decidedly and passed out.

"Oh, yes, go on," thought Lawrence, "he's a bad case, of course. Look at his clothes and his villainous face!"

The young lady's face was grave with disappointment, but just as the door was closing on her she threw back at him a smile which made the unhappy prisoner's heart bound.

"She's trying to tell me to be hopeful," he thought, "and so I will, by Jove!"

For a full minute after that he felt convinced that somehow all would go well with him; but this uplifting of his soul was transient. He soon relapsed into a dull, faint indifference, paying no attention whatever to the trial of cases constantly going on before him. He did not hear the crier call out twice: "Thomas Jones," and he did not half comprehend what was up when an officer seized him by the shoulder roughly, saying:

"Here, come along! why don't you stand up when you're called?"

In the little delay that thus ensued another case was crowded before the judge. Lawrence, standing at the bar, tried to listen. He caught some words about "common vagabond," and "stale beer gang," but he could not understand it all. Presently, however, the prisoner on trial turned to him and Lawrence recognized his recent acquaintance, the ragamuffin.

"I've got ten days," he said, smiling complacently. The fellow shuffled off, and Lawrence looked up just in time to catch the judge's eye as the formal question was put:

"What is your name?"

"Lawrence Drane," he responded quickly, and then he thought—too late. The judge scowled at a document before him and glanced inquiringly at the policeman.

"That's my prisoner," said the latter, "he gave a different name at the station house."

"What do you mean," demanded the judge, "by giving one name at the station and another one here?"

"I—I didn't want to be known, your honor," stammered Lawrence.

"No, I suppose not," snapped the judge; "well, what is it, Jones, or the other name?"

"Jones is right," replied Lawrence, realizing gloomily that another hope that he had cherished slightly, that of convincing a judge, had been shattered by his blunders.

"You are charged," continued the judge, "with assault and attempt to rob. What do you say to it?"

Of course Lawrence responded "not guilty," and then the judge called for the complainant. The well-dressed young man was not present. Thereupon his honor reprimanded the policeman for bringing up a case without a witness and added:

"In the absence of a complainant, I should discharge this man at once if he had not tried to assume a false name. That attempt makes him a suspicious character. Hold him until three o'clock, and see that your witness is here at that hour."

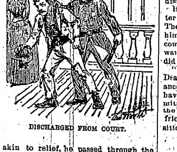
The hours dragged along, the judge went to lunch, another session was begun, and at last "Thomas Jones" was again called to the bar. The complainant had not turned up, and the judge said, irritably:

"You are discharged, Jones, but I warn you not to do any thing of this kind again."

"But I haven't done any thing wrong, your honor," protested Lawrence.

"You'll get into serious trouble right here if you're not careful," cried the judge.

"Here, you, get out! Understand?" said a court officer, pushing Lawrence toward the gate. Lawrence did understand, and with a feeling somewhat akin to relief, he passed through the audience room a free man.



DISCHARGED FROM COURT.

"When once I get well out of all this," he thought, "I'll get the Legislature to provide a fund for supplying discharged prisoners with a square meal. I'd almost give my liberty for a sirloin steak with lyonnaise potatoes."

What to do to get this desirable refreshment was a problem. He looked up and down the avenue a moment and then returned to the court-room. He inquired of an officer near the door about the elderly lady who had carried off his park acquaintance.

"I will at least let the young widow know that I am no convict," he thought, and he did not disguise from himself a hope that she would help him somehow in his straits.

The officer told him that the lady came to court every day, exercising her charitable disposition in assisting innocent prisoners who were unable to secure legal advice.

"But she won't do any thing for you," added the officer; "she draws the line at men."

Nevertheless Lawrence obtained her name and address, and set off to call upon Mrs. Bowers far up on Madison avenue. He amused himself on the way by trying to estimate how long his vital forces would endure miles of walking every day without any renewal of the tissues, and by speculating as to what stage of starvation would be the most painful. Now and again he became dizzy and almost lost consciousness, which led him to think that perhaps he had compassed the worst part of starvation already.

Mrs. Bowers was at home and she received Drane in a tiny room which she evidently used as an office for her charitable work.

"Madame," began Drane, "I am in circumstances so unusual for me, I am so faint from lack of food that I find it difficult to say what I wish to. I was in court this morning when you secured the release of a young lady—"

"Oh, yes," interrupted Mrs. Bowers. "You are the man who went to her aid in the park. H'm. That was a very worthy thing to do," and she eyed him critically through her glasses. Lawrence felt so oppressed by this fresh humiliation that he hung his head. Mrs. Bowers continued: "I should not have expected it of you. I have made a long study of human nature, my man, and I warn you that you can not impose on me. So they discharged you. H'm. If you're willing to work I will send you a card to a wood yard—"

"Madam," cried Lawrence, "I never have had to work in my life! I don't ask for work; I did not come here to ask any assistance of you. I want to see the young lady and tell her my story."

"Quite impossible," interrupted Mrs. Bowers, placidly. "She is young and inexperienced, and I certainly shall guard her against any vulgar imposition. You make a mistake in refusing work. I can read you closely enough to see that you will recognize your error as soon as you are convinced that I am not to be imposed on. Therefore I shall give you this ticket. It will secure you lodging and breakfast if you will saw wood. And in consideration for your defense of the young lady you refer to, I will pay your car fare to the wood-yard. I seldom do this, never when I am convinced of a man's character as I am of yours, but you are doubtless faint and weary. Therefore, here is the card, and here is a dime to pay your way on the horse cars."

"Madame," said Drane, huskily, "you have done me injustice and given me pain that is worse than all the ills that have come on me since I arrived in New York. I decline your charity, and you may rest assured that no extremity of misery will ever make me regret my course."

With that he bowed haughtily and stalked from the house, while Mrs. Bowers looked shocked and made an entry in her book of charitable work as to the evil pride that keeps some men from acknowledging the superiority and goodness of others.

CHAPTER IV.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY.

Drane had occasionally reflected upon the possibility of such a misfortune as had overtaken him, though he had never carried his imaginings to the point which the actualities of the case had reached. He had supposed in a general way that there were plenty of things to be done by a man in such a position, but when he ran over the list in his mind he realized that every course of action involved painful humiliation. He knew that there were many charitable organizations which sometimes assisted the distressed, and at other times distressed the assisted; but he could not remember the names or addresses of any of them, with the single exception of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It hadn't come to that yet, he thought, but there was no telling when it would. He had gone to sleep a gentleman and had waked up a tramp; an equal drop in the next twenty-four hours might make him a chimpanzee or a cow

The thought was not pleasant, and it aroused Drane to desperation. Either that or his hunger stimulated his memory, for he suddenly recalled the fact that a gentleman with whom he had had some dealings by letter was in business on Murray street. He asked a policeman where that was, and the reply fairly staggered him. It was miles away. He felt that he should fall dead of hunger before he covered half the distance.

He leaned against a lamp-post in utter weariness, and closed his eyes. Then he heard a woman's voice behind him, saying: "I hoped that you would come to see Mrs. Bowers, and I have waited to thank you again for what you did to help me."

"When I heard your voice," said Drane, turning to greet his acquaintance of the morning, "I thought I must have died of starvation, and been admitted to paradise through a mistake in the records. You can not imagine what friendly words are to a man in my position."

THE SHIP'S PURSER.

Some of the Things That Make His Life at Times a Burden.

The lot of the purser is anything but a happy one. From his title one would think that he had only to look after the finance of the vessel, but in reality his office, so conveniently and picturesquely situated at the top of the grand staircase, is really as busy a bureau as any in Capel court or Wall street. It is no doubt legitimate enough to expect the purser to be quite au fait with the monetary matters, to explain to the Britisher the difference between a dollar and a crown or to the American that the greenback is treated with scorn and contumely in Europe, but our American friends are par excellence the interrogators of the world, and to them the purser is simply a walking encyclopedia.

He is expected to tell them all about the ship—that's right enough—but they want to know all about the passengers as well, who they are, where they have come from and where they are going, how much they are worth and any little titbit of news about their social life. He is also asked about every hotel, beginning at Liverpool and ending at Rome, the best shops whereat to purchase different articles, who will give the best discount for cash, where the questioner's wife can best be rigged up in European fashion and the most likely resort at which his daughter might run across some impecunious scion of British nobility.—Harry Furness in Strand.

Position of Wood and Its Durability.

The problem has troubled many why two pieces of wood sawed from the same section of a tree should possess very varied characteristics when used in different positions. For example, a gate post will be found to decay much faster if the butt end of the tree is uppermost than would be the case if the top were placed in this position. The reason is that the moisture of the atmosphere will permeate the pores of the wood much more rapidly the way the tree grew than it would if in the opposite direction.

Microscopical examination proves that the pores invite the ascent of moisture, while they repel its descent. Take the familiar case of a wooden bucket. Many may have noticed that some of the staves appear to be entirely saturated, while others are apparently quite dry. This arises from the same cause—the dry staves are in the position in which the tree grew, while the saturated ones are reversed.

A Reminiscence of Fanny Kemble.

Fanny Kemble is remembered by old residents of Germantown and Philadelphia as a superb horsewoman. She had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the law books. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once when an impertinent street lounger stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked, "Are you?"

An Aggravating Speech.

One of the wits of the parliament house is said to have observed on the occasion of Judge Deas' promotion to the honor of knighthood, "The queen may make George Deas a knight, but no one will ever make him a gentleman." Deas was quite able, however, to hold his own, and he punished the wits when they came to make their maiden speeches before him. "Prisoner at the bar," he once said to an unfortunate wretch on whose behalf an infant advocate had been feebly urging "extenuating circumstances," "everything that your counsel has said in mitigation I consider to be an aggravation of your offense."

Two Ways of Doing Business.

The industrious man—the plain, everyday kind, we mean—gets to his work early. Three hours later the man of marked executive ability drops in to see that the industrious man keeps steadily at work. If everything is going well the man of marked executive ability leaves for the day, for there is no need for a display of his peculiar qualities. If everything is going ill the man of marked executive ability quits at once in order that his reputation may not be compromised by his presence.—Boston Transcript.

A Slave to Method.

A medical specialist was very much in the habit of using a notebook to assist his memory and insure precision. In course of time it happened that his aged father died. The worthy doctor attended the obsequies as chief mourner with due solemnity. At the close he was observed to take out his notebook and carefully to erase the words "Mem. Bury father."—Scottish American.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

THE COUNTY PRINTING.

The editor of the Thief River Falls Review, who has been a resident of the county for nearly eight weeks past, is greatly excited because the board of county commissioners was not favored with competitive bids for county printing, and sheds many mock heroic tears in lamenting the utter helplessness of the downtrodden taxpayer.

THE COURIER does not care to engage in controversy with the Review. The issues involved are too largely a matter of personal opinion to hope for agreement, but we are glad the Review has given opportunity for us to make a statement to our readers with reference to the county printing.

From the organization of Red Lake county down to the present time the printing has always been let at full legal rates, and the official publications made in every paper in the county, until last year, when owing to a break in the personal relations between the editors of the Red Lake Falls papers, THE COURIER withdrew from the alleged "combination" and made an independent bid, offering to do all of the work for $300, about one-seventh of the price the law allows. This bid was rejected, and the contract let to the other four papers of the county at a price nearly 200 per cent. higher. As a consequence THE COURIER struggled along without any county printing, while the other papers did the work, if not at an actual loss, at a margin of profit that would put a newspaper publisher in the poor house if he had no other means of support. The newspapers at Red Lake Falls did not stop here. The rivalry intensified, and prices were cut on all kinds of work in the effort to get business away from the other fellow until it became practically a war of extermination. It is violating no confidence in saying that neither paper was making money, and that both publishers foresaw that one of two things must happen: either a truce must be patched up or one of the publishers get out. The latter contingency occurred last September when the proprietor of the Gazette transferred his paper to the present management.

THE COURIER is glad that the taxpayers were saved several thousand dollars last year by reason of the stand taken by this paper, and feels that it can afford to rest on its laurels for at least a year and give some other patriot an opportunity to pose in the role of martyr. Out of some 4,000 tax-payers in the county, we believe four of them congratulated THE COURIER in taking the stand it did, and doubtless several hundred others wondered why newspaper men did not use the same business judgment common to other professions.

If the cutting of prices and each other's throats stopped at the county printing there might be a possible excuse for the unseemly warfare. But it doesn't. During the past year THE COURIER and all of the other papers have printed legal notices and many classes of job work—in fact all of the work in which there is a fair margin of profit, for any price they could get. This method of doing business is unfair to both the newspaper and its patron. Some have paid approximately the legal rate, while others, knowing the condition of affairs and anxious to take advantage of it, secured unwarranted concessions.

A newspaper has the same right to a living profit as other business enterprises, and there can be nothing illegal or immoral in refusing to accept work at a price that does not afford adequate return for the services rendered. What would the general public think of the general stores, for instance, if they should attempt to get business at any cost and sell their wares for less than they paid for them? The community might find temporary profit in the arrangement, but when all of the stores were forced into bankruptcy by such ruinous business methods, would it be a good thing for the town or the county? Would the temporary benefit derived by a few from a newspaper war be a good thing? THE COURIER proprietor, for example, has all of his capital invested in his business. All his receipts are spent for labor, material and household needs. It is not an algebraic problem to figure out that the less he receives the less he can buy, and the fewer improvements he can make. A poor newspaper is about the worst affliction that can visit a town.

The dealers in every line of business have a tacit understanding with each other that they will not court ruin by taking business at a loss. This understanding may not be direct, but it is implied. This is all there is to the "newspaper combine". The publishers have simply told the public that they will not do business for the public at a less price than they will do it for the individual. The law fixes a price for official printing, and there is no attempt to get more than the law allows. As these prices are fixed by statute they could not if they desired.

Last year THE COURIER's bid for the county printing, though 200 per cent. lower than the bid accepted, was rejected. It is not apparent that a similar bid would have been in more favor this year. Is it incumbent on THE COURIER to make another bid that the commissioners have said they did not want and which would not be considered? By what code of ethics is a newspaper bound to offer to do work at less than cost, and then be calmly told that it can't have it?

This paper is under sincere obligations to the Thief River Review for affording an opportunity to make this statement without seeming to be inopportune.

This is the time of the year when the newspaper men don't love each other for several weeks following the county printing squabble.

J. J. MCCARDY, formerly controller of the city of St. Paul, has been appointed to succeed Captain Castle as auditor for the postoffice department.

FRANK EDDY say all the Ninth district counties except Roseau, Kittson and Marshall, are for him. This puts Red Lake in the Eddy column. This is to laugh.

THE Albert Lea Standard discovers that harmony is so thick in Republican politics in Minnesota that when a Republican runs against it it almost makes his head swim.

THE Thief River Falls Review says "a legal newspaper is one published in the county for a year prior." Prior to what? Poor old Noah Webster must turn over in his grave.

RUTH, eldest daughter of Former President and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, died last Thursday from an attack of diphtheria. The entire nation shares the grief of this distinguished family.

WILLIAM HENRY EUSTIS is still hoping for an excuse to become a candidate for governor. The office never seems to seek the charming William Henry, and he has had poor success in chasing it.

A DAKOTA newspaper man is now convinced that the story of Lot's wife and the pillar of salt is literally true. The other day a young lady put her foot on a store box to tie her shoestring and a young man turned to rubber.

ELBERT BEDE, eldest son of Congressman J. Adam Bede, has leased the Warren Sheaf and assumed editorial management last week. If Elbert is "a chip of the old block" Ninth district journalism has received a distinguished acquisition.

SENATOR DIETRICH, of Nebraska, was found not guilty of accepting a bribe in connection with the leasing of a postoffice building, on the ground that he was not sworn in as United States Senator at the time the offense was committed. This is vindication with a vengeance.

THE purity of purpose on the part of the Collins campaign committee is manifest by the following item in Windom Reporter: "Twenty thousand dollars is said to be the amount necessary to nominate Collins, and the fellows who hold the state house jobs found the way to raise it."

THE Crookston Journal has changed from an evening to a morning paper, commencing Tuesday of ehis week. It now has an associated press service and has been greatly improved in other respects. There ought to be room for a first-class morning daily in this part of the state.

THE scales held by the goddess of Justice on the new court house at Bemidji dropped off the other day, and were carried off by some petty thief. Neither event occasioned unusual surprise. In Bemidji Justice doesn't need scales. She ought to have a bandana handkerchief to bandage her eyes.

LIKE Banquo's ghost, the charges of corruption against John Goodnow, minister to China, refuse to down. New evidence has recently been filed with the state department which tends to show that John has been working a graft of his own over on the other side of the world. It is sad to hear of a Minnesota man going wrong.

AL KAISER, the well-known banker, has moved from Fosston to Bagley, and the knowing ones insist that there is a political significance in the move. In many quarters Mr. Kaiser is credited with an ambition to run for the lower house of the legislature. Red Lake county Republicans will hardly relish the idea of Beltrami taking both the senator and representative.

THE Minneapolis Times has at last concluded to inject a little honesty into its editorial page, and on Saturday admits that Bob Dunn appears to have a lead-pipe cinch on the Republican gubernatorial nomination. This has been plainly apparent for some time, but it seems unlikely that the Journal, Tribune and Dispatch will find it out until after the convention.

PRESIDENT JAMES J. HILL, of the Great Northern, is not a Panama canal enthusiast, judging from his remarks at the banquet given in honor of President Elliott. He declared that the completion of the ditch might be a good thing for a man with an appetite for bananas, but it would not do the North much good, although it must pay part of the cost. He warmly espoused reciprocity with Canada, and declared that in the conduct of railroads restraint of trade meant destruction.

THE entire system of awarding county printing in Minnesota is wrong, and frequently does great injustice to the taxpayers. The Iowa plan is much better, and prevents the senseless warfare among newspapers and insures the best possible service. In Iowa the county printing is awarded to the two newspapers in the county that can show the largest list of subscribers, and the statute fixes the price for doing the work, which is 25 per cent. higher than the legal rate in Minnesota.

THE Minneapolis Journal's political writer scents a deep-laid political plot because Frank Day, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, was discovered in consultation with Bob Dunn the other day. As Bob Dunn and Frank Day have been warm personal friends for a quarter of a century there is no reason why they should not enjoy a visit with each other. However, in the minds of some of the Collins managers it is a high crime for a Republican candidate for office to shake hands with a Democrat.

AN editor has discovered that there is a wide difference between the school books of the present and those of long ago. He says that when he went to school he read the lesson something like this: "See the cow. Is not the cow nice? Can the cow run? Yes, the cow can run. Can the cow run as fast as the horse?" But the latest up-to-date style of reading it by the average kid is about as follows: "Get onto the cow. Hain't she a bute? Sure, she is a corker. Can the cow get a move on herself? Can the cow hum it like a hoss? No, she ain't in it with de hoss."

A SHOCK such as that caused by the Iroquois theater horror in Chicago is often the starting point in reforms which eventually repay the original loss. All over the country local authorities are taking steps to make public places of amusement safer than they have ever been in the past. How far this movement will go under the impulse of the moment, it is impossible to say, but in Chicago orders have been given to close every theater until these measures of safety have been taken. Steel-roll curtains, wider exits, each having its own stairway to the street; fire-proofed scenery and stage rigging; the elimination of calcium lights on the stage; skylights over the stage to give a vent for smoke, fire, and gas that otherwise pours out into the auditorium when a conflagration begins.

POLITICS is a fickle goddess. A year ago a man would have been considered visionary to predict the defeat of Theodore Roosevelt for the nomination or election to the presidency. Today a large and influential portion of the Republican party is engaged in fostering an anti-Roosevelt sentiment that may defeat him in the convention. And the prospects at the election, should the president be fortunate enough to be renominated, are by no means bright. Practically all well-versed politicians agree that the solid South and New York will go for the Democratic candidate by tremendous majorities. This leaves the Democrats with only about 35 additional electoral votes to gain. Taking the figures of many leading Republican prognosticators for it, the chances of Democratic success this year are even brighter than in 1892.

COURIER BARGAIN ...SALE...

A CHANCE TO GET THE COURIER, THE ST. PAUL DISPATCH, AND THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST AN ENTIRE YEAR FOR ONLY ONE DOLLAR . . . . . .

THE COURIER WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER THE COMING YEAR ❧ EVERYBODY MAY TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER, OLD SUBSCRIBERS AS WELL AS NEW ❧ TELL YOUR FRIENDS OF THIS OPPORTUNITY

IN order to encourage the payment of the coming year's subscriptions in advance, we have decided to hold a BARGAIN DAY SALE, after the manner of many successful merchants, when we will offer THE COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist all one year for $1.00, the regular price of THE COURIER alone. The regular price of these three papers is $2.25. For two days, on

Saturday, February 13, and Monday, February 15,

you can pay one dollar and get all three of these papers for an entire year. This is a special bargain offer, good only for the days named. After these dates the regular prices will be charged.

The quality of THE COURIER is going to be better than ever during the coming year. This bargain offer is made because we desire as many subscriptions as possible paid in advance, and we are willing to make a sacrifice in order to secure the payment of a large number. No subscriber ought to miss this chance. Those in arrears may secure the same privilege for the coming year by paying up arrearages. If you do not know how much you owe ask us to send you a statement.

Subscribers who are not able to call personally at the office on February 13 or 15, may send in their dollar by mail. Drafts, checks and money orders mailed on February 11, 12, 13, 14 or 15 will be accepted on the bargain offer the same as cash. Cash payments at the office, however, can be made only on the dates named, February 13 and 15.

If you can't come to the office, send your dollar. THE COURIER and the two other papers one year for one dollar is too good an offer for anyone in Red Lake county to miss. No one can afford to be without it or borrow his neighbor's paper.

REMEMBER THE DATES, FEBRUARY 13 AND 15, AND HAVE YOUR DOLLAR READY . . . .

A BOOK OF INTEREST more absorbing than the most thrilling work of fiction is a bank book. Its tale is never too long, or its pages too many, and the long row of figures so dry in other books are intensely interesting in this. But in order to enjoy its pages each man must own his own book. The way to do this is to open an account with the MERCHANTS STATE BANK which numbers among its depositors many of the richest and smartest men in the city. Mrs. R. H. Duntley is at St. Hilaire this week, and Miss Emma Johnson of that place is assisting at the Red Lake Falls confectionery in Mrs. Duntley's absence.

Attorney W. A. McIntyre and Miss Lydia Fletcher drove to Crookston Saturday, the former to look after business affairs and the latter to visit friends.

Rev. Andrew Walker preached at Thief River Falls Sunday. It is reported that the Presbyterian people of that city are considering the question of engaging Rev. Walker as a pastor.

The basket social given by the young ladies of the Presbyterian church last Saturday evening was well attended and the handsome sum of $45 was realized from the sale of baskets.

Arthur Zaiser visited over Sunday at Crookston. Arthur makes so many trips to that city that his friends have about concluded that there is an attraction of some sort at that end of the line.

The new officers of the Odd Fellows were installed Saturday evening by Deputy James E. Ford, and after the ceremony a luncheon was served. It was a most enjoyable evening for all in attendance.

John Patterson, of Thief River Falls, was in the city over Sunday. Mr. Patterson owns a large stock ranch in Alberta, and Neil Crawford, formerly of Red Lake Falls, is managing it for him this winter.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice: Ella Anderson, Emma C. Anderson, Mrs. Luis Baguen, Bertha Burnelle, H. Howard, Lars Salem, Mike Madden, Charley Westby and V. Denosier.

Clerk Perrault has issued marriage licenses this week to the following persons: Reinert A. Knutson and Anna M. Soderlund, both of Thief River Falls; John Sorenson and Rande Haaven, both of Garnes.

The Woodmen installed officers last night, and a very enjoyable time is reported. After the ceremonies, luncheon was served, and cigars were passed with the compliments of the district deputy, William Schwalen.

S. M. Sivertson received word Sunday of the death of an aunt at Atwater, Minn., and left Tuesday to attend the funeral the following day. Mr. Sivertson will make a business trip to St. Paul before returning home.

The Polk county board of commissioners has passed a resolution authorizing the register of deeds of that county to transfer the records of Red Lake county prior to its separation from Polk county to Auditor Ford.

A little daughter came to the home of Prof. and Mrs. F. A. Whiteley yesterday afternoon. Mother and child are doing nicely, and the Professor is about the same, except that his step is a little higher and his smile a little broader.

Rev. Knox, of Thief River Falls, filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening. It is understood that Rev. Knox is a candidate for this pastorate, and it is not unlikely that the church will extend a call.

The Hotel Markham at St. Hilaire has been re-opened by W. A. Arthur, who has leased the premises for a considerable time. The Markham was closed for a short time on account of the bankruptcy of the former manager, E. J. Druecker.

The county board has appropriated $1,200 to assist in building a bridge across the Red Lake river in Red Lake Falls; $1,100 to assist in building a bridge across the Red Lake river at Thief River Falls, and $350 for a bridge across Black river in Polk Center township.

The regular monthly concert of the Red Lake Falls band will be held tomorrow evening at the Metropolitan opera house. The boys have been practicing on a number of new pieces during the past month and the public may be sure that a first-class program will be rendered.

At the meeting of the county board of commissioners last week Chairman Demann announced the appointment of the following committees: Printing—Hanson, Johnson and Sutor; roads and bridges—Sutor, Johnson and Falardeau; court house and jail—Sutor, Falardeau and Johnson.

From now on the stockmen who visit the cities with stock will be furnished with transportation but one way, and if they accompany the stock will have to buy a ticket home. This restriction, like many others, has been made because of the abuse of privileges granted by shippers too many return passes have reached the hands of scalpers.

Dr. J. Gendron got home Monday from Chicago, where he has spent the past seven weeks in taking a post-graduate course at the Chicago Policlinic school and hospital. The Doctor took special courses in surgery, diseases of women and obstetrics, besides a general medical review course. These special studies will doubtless be of great value to the doctor in his practice.

The stockholders of the First State Bank held their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon. There is no change in the list of officers or directors. The officials of this popular banking institution are as follows: J. I. Wyer, president; Frank E. Hunt, vice-president; Theo. Garceau, cashier, and R. E. Wyer, assistant cashier. The directors are J. I. Wyer, F. E. Hunt, Theo. Garceau, A. P. Toupin and Chas. N. Bourdon.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Emardville creamery held Monday afternoon the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, P. S. Medchill; secretary, A. J. Hemstead; treasurer, A. F. Anderson; directors, Erick Craft, Harold Bugge, H. H. Finrow, Jacob Valdal and Andrew Johnson. William Lauritzon was re-elected manager for the coming year, and prospects are flattering for a good season's business.

Dr. Lanctot, ophthalmologist of Crookston, will be at the Grand View hotel from 12:40 p. m., January 27, to 2:25 p. m., January 28. See him about your eyes or any other trouble caused wholly or partly by eye strain. Complete examination, analysis and correction of ordinary cases, $10.00 cash; cross eyes, $15.00 to $50.00; "old sight" alone, $5.00 cash. Good results assured in each case or money refunded. Reference, First National Bank of Crookston.

The Lambert and Garnes No. 1 ditch bonds, which were not sold at the time of the big issue of ditch bonds a few months ago, were sold Friday by the board of county commissioners to John A. Duffy, cashier of the Merchants State Bank. The issue will be $6,500, bearing interest at the rate of 5½ per cent. annually, the same rate the other bonds bear. It is expected that the money for these bonds will be in the county treasurer's hands within thirty days.

Crookston Times: The Soo surveyors have reached McIntosh on their return trip over the original route as mapped out on their northward trip. It is said to be a mooted question as yet whether the permanent survey will pass through the towns of McIntosh, Erskine or Fosston. Although the chances favor the former, there are several bad cuts and fills to be made in the immediate vicinity of the place which could be avoided by going to either of the other points.

South Idaho Herald: Joseph Laframboise came in last week from Red River Valley, Minn. He is a gentleman of considerable wealth and has the esteem and confidence of the people of his section. Mr. Laframboise is a farmer, an experienced veterinary surgeon, also an honest, true Democrat, and the Herald extends to him the glad hand. Sunday he visited the Longtom dam, and is much pleased at the progress already made on John Garrett's great enterprise.

After the installation of officers at the meeting of the Odd Fellows Saturday evening, Noble Grand Mizen announced the appointment of the following officers: Warden, Frank Jeffers; conductor, Anthony Quesnelle; inside guardian, Treffle Grandbois; outside guardian, J. W. Bourdon; chaplain, Leo Steinert; right supporter to noble grand, Fred Borchers; left supporter to noble grand, S. A. Swanson; right supporter to vice grand, H. C. Hanson; left supporter to vice grand, Fred Zaiser.

Joseph Fortier, an aged resident of the town of Gentilly, died Tuesday morning at four o'clock after an illness of several weeks. Deceased was one of the earliest residents of the county, having settled in Gentilly township over twenty-five years ago. He was 87 years old at the time of his death. He leaves one son and several grand children. The funeral will take place from the Catholic church in Gentilly this morning. Deceased was the grandfather of J. R. Fortier, of Red Lake Falls.

The annual meeting of the Gentilly Mutual Fire Insurance company was held at Gentilly Tuesday afternoon and officers for the year elected as follows: President, R. Fortier, Gentilly; vice-president, A. D. Dufault, Red Lake Falls; secretary, Joseph Dufault, Gentilly; treasurer, Joseph Sauve, Crookston; directors, Louis Perrault, Terrebonne; A. D. Berry, Louisville; M. Waldorf, Lake Pleasant; Joseph Bergeron, Lambert; S. Moreau, Poplar River. The company has now in force policies aggregating $221,000, and during the past year has paid losses of $400.

A new petition for a judicial ditch in the towns of Johnson and Chester, Polk county, and Equality, Garnes and Lambert, Red Lake county, has been filed with Judge Watts, and a hearing will be had on the matter in the early spring. It will be remembered that this ditch was petitioned for last year, and the prayers of the petitioners denied because of the objection of the Garnes people. However, the route of the proposed ditch has been changed in conformity with the wishes of the people of that township, and it is understood that they are satisfied with the new arrangement.

Contrary to expectation the county commissioners did not accept a bid for county printing at the session last week, and the matter was laid over until the adjourned session February 1. As a result the county attorney rules that the auditor must designate a paper in which the delinquent tax list is to be published. The annual statement and commissioners' proceedings will not be published until the commissioners take action. Owing to this complication the statement will not appear before March 1, as it requires several weeks to get the type set. The law requires that the statement appear before January 30, but as the commissioners did not designate an official paper and the auditor has no authority to have the statement published without authority from the commissioners it is evident that the law cannot be complied with.

When a man gets married he ought to put his faith in the Lord—and his wife, for there is no one else he con trust for three seconds. Even a fellow's best friends go back on him at this crisis. Last week when S. L. Lewis was married, he was the victim of a "job" put up by H. N. Johnson, his best man and best friend. Mr. Johnson had printed several hundred cards announcing the fact that Mr. Lewis had just been married, each card having a coupon attached reading: "Good for one cigar." These cards were sent to a wicked traveling man at Crookston, who industriously circulated them among the passengers on the Northern Pacific train. When the train reached Fertile the bridal couple got aboard, and the requisitions on the groom's cigar box commenced. The first forty or fifty drafts were honored manfully, but when the supply was exhausted there was no other course except a voluntary assignment, with an empty cigar box and a wife as the only tangible assets. Mr. Lewis contended that the last-named item in the schedule was exempt from execution, and we understand the court so ruled. If Johnson contemplates matrimony we advise him to have the affair pulled off while Lewis is on a trip to Europe or quarantined for the small pox.

Life

Renewed. Left Side Badly Affected.

Liable to Paralytic Stroke.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Me New Life.

"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Remedies quite extensively, especially the Restorative Nervine, which has done wonders for me. Six years ago I had nervous prostration and again three years ago, at which time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I kept taking it for six months and have taken an occasional dose during the last two years. I am practically a new man and feel that I have been given a new lease of life. I used to have very bad attacks of stomach trouble but since using the Nervine I can eat most anything I want with impunity. I was examined in Omaha by a noted German doctor three years ago. He told me I was liable to a paralytic stroke any moment; that my whole left side was badly affected. That was just before I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My work for two years and a half has been very trying on my nerves. I am a presiding elder, traveling my districts at the rate of ten thousand miles a year, preaching on an average of five times a week, besides many business meetings, and the multitudinous cares of my work in general. Thanks to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I have been gaining in flesh despite this hard work until now I weigh a hundred and ninety-six pounds, nearly twenty pounds more than in all my life. I preach Nervine wherever I go to those afflicted with nerve, heart or stomach trouble."—Rev. M. D. Myers, Presiding Elder, Free Methodist Church, Correctionville, Ia.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen. made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. NOTED SOUTHERN LEADER IS DEAD

Well-Known Confederate Commander, Gen. J. B. Gordon, Passes Away in Florida.

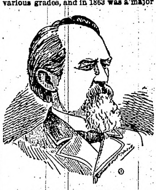
HAD SERVED STATE OF GEORGIA AS GOVERNOR AND SENATOR

Eulogistic Funeral Exercises to Be Conducted Over the Body—Ex-Governor Brown, of Kentucky, Dies at Advanced Age—Was Prominent as Both Statesman and Soldier.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 12.—Gen. John B. Gordon, the last of the great confederate commanders, died Saturday night at 10 o'clock. He had been growing weaker all day. He was delirious in his last moments and talked of the Appomattox campaign. Gen. Gordon had been in poor health for some time, but his ailment became acute a few days ago.

His Career.

He was born in Georgia in 1832, and educated at the University of Georgia. Before the war he practiced law, and in 1861 entered the confederate army as captain of infantry. He rose through the various grades, and in 1863 was a major general and a corps commander. When the army of Lee surrendered at Appomattox, Gen. Gordon was in command of the Second army corps. During hostilities he was wounded eight times, and bore on his face an ugly scar made by a union minie ball. After the war he took a prominent place among the progressive men of the south, and in 1868 ran as a democrat for governor of Georgia. In 1868 and in 1872 he was a delegate to the democratic national convention, and in both years was a presidential elector. In 1872 he was elected to the United States senate and soon took rank as one of the most brilliant orators of that body. He was elected to succeed himself, but resigned before his term had expired, so that he could give more attention to his private affairs. In 1886, and again in 1888, he was elected governor of Georgia, and in 1890 was again chosen as United States senator.



GEN. JOHN B. GORDON.

The Funeral Exercises.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 12.—Funeral exercises, which will be participated in by distinguished men of the south, will be held over the remains of Gen. John B. Gordon on next Thursday, this city. The exercises, which will be of eulogistic character, will be conducted in the house of representatives in the state house in this city.

Under the escort of Florida troops and in the private car of Henry M. Flagler Gen. Gordon's body will leave Miami Tuesday morning. At the state line an escort from the Georgia militia will meet the party.

A proclamation was issued Monday by Gov. Terrell ordering that the day of the funeral be observed throughout the state. The flag over the state house was placed at half-mast Monday and flags were lowered in many buildings as a tribute of respect.

Ex-Gov. Brown Dead.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 12.—Former Gov. John Young Brown died here Monday at an advanced age. He was prominent as a statesman and soldier and distinguished as a citizen. In 1875, while congressman, he became widely known through a denunciation of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who as military governor of New Orleans was distasteful to the southern people. For this speech Gov. Brown received a vote of censure, but the next congress expunged it from the records. He was one of the first men to take a stand against the merger of competing railroads. He remained a democrat until William Goebel was named for governor, when he was nominated as an independent democrat candidate to oppose him.

Old Church Burned.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 12.—St. Patrick's church, an old landmark and the oldest Catholic church in this city, was destroyed by fire Monday. The loss probably will amount to more than $100,000. The Notre Dame academy connected with the church was saved by a fireproof wall. The church was 50 years old.

Grounded Steamer Released.

Philadelphia, Jan. 12.—The steamship Haverford, which grounded in the Delaware river a short distance below Newcastle, Del., early Sunday morning, floated Monday and proceeded to Liverpool. The Haverford, which was driven ashore by the immense ice floes in the river, sustained no damage.

Return to Work.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 12.—After six weeks' idleness 250 employes of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railway shops returned to work Monday. They will work ten hours a day instead of nine. The steel mills also resumed operations in all main departments, furnishing over 3,000 men employment.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Died From Eating Shot.

His intestines perforated several hundred times by shot that he had swallowed when eating wild game that had fallen to his gun, Chris Larson of McIntosh died in the Bethesda hospital at Crookston, while his medical attendants were ignorant of the nature of his ailment.

A post mortem examination revealed the astonishing condition of the man, a condition such as never has been noted before in modern surgery.

Larson owned an eighty-acre farm near McIntosh. He was extremely eccentric and refused to sleep anywhere but on a heap of straw in a stable, with his horses and cattle—never having any more adequate covering than an old binder canvas.

His diet consisted mainly of wild game, such as rabbits, prairie chickens, ducks and geese, supplemented with additions of vegetables as he was able to raise on the farm. Altho eccentric, he was thrifty and managed to work his land to a good advantage.

Unusual Fatality.

Arthur Proehl, the nine-year-old son of Mrs. Elizabeth Proehl, who resides with her father, Henry Beneke, in Rich Valley, near Glencoe, was killed in a peculiar manner.

The little fellow went to the henhouse to gather some eggs, and had to climb up to reach the upper tier of the nests.

His weight on the tier pulled it over and it fell, carrying the boy with it, pinning him down on the floor in the corner of the coop in such a manner that his mouth and nose were forced into the hollow of his left arm, which had become doubled under his face as he fell.

The weight of the box was so great that the boy was unable to move it and he was suffocated, being dead when found ten minutes later by his uncle, John Beneke.

Cost of Corn.

The results for 1902 of the statistical investigations at Northfield, Marshall and Halstad, which are being carried on by the state experiment station and by the statistical bureau of the United States department of agriculture, are being summarized. These investigations were undertaken to secure facts for the use of all the farmers of the state as to the cost, returns and profits of each line of business on the farm.

It was found that the cost of growing an acre of field corn, including cutting, shocking and shredding, was $14.83. The cost each acre when husking on the hill was $11.81.

Some of the factors used, as 15 cents an hour for man labor and 7½ cents an hour for horse labor, have not been finally settled upon, hence the footings may be changed before the facts are finally published.

Board of Regents.

Judge Greenleaf Clark of St. Paul was reappointed member of the board of regents of the state university by Gov. S. R. Van Sant and E. W. Randall of Hamline, secretary of the Minnesota Agricultural society, was named to succeed Theodore L. Schurmeier of St Paul. The term of office is six years, beginning Jan. 1, 1904.

A delegate of citizens from Hamline appeared before the governor to urge the appointment of Mr. Randall. They emphasized his business ability and sound judgment as evidenced by his work in connection with the management of the state fair.

State Treasury.

The December receipts at the state treasury aggregated $660,745.94. The principal items were: State taxes, $238,711.87; state institutions, $156,170.61; telephone taxes, $33,209.97; redemption of funding banks, $25,000; interest on bonds, $32,787.50; grain inspection, $48,234.73; stumpage, $29,263.36; school lands, $32,811.92; interest on school lands, $17,580.84; hunters' licenses, $11,338.85.

Bad Man Hurt.

Con Davis, a giant lumberjack, with an alleged record as a bar room fighter, lost an eye in W. G. Carlin's saloon at Floorwood a few weeks ago, and later he returned to that village with a 38-caliber revolver to get satisfaction. He now lies mortallly wounded in the jail at Floorwood.

Long Service.

Judge F. M. Crosby of Hastings has been in judicial service longer than any judge in Minnesota. This year he entered upon his thirty-third year on the district bench, a record not only remarkable but unequaled. His present term will not expire until January, 1909. Judge Crosby is regarded as one of the best judges of the state, and has a unblemished record.

News in Brief.

The coal sheds of the Northwestern railroad at Tracy were destroyed by fire.

The Arlington hotel at Brainerd was damaged by fire to the amount of $50,000.

Steele county land owners are agitating drainage ditch propositions of much importance.

Ancient Landmark lodge, A. F. and A. M., will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary at St. Paul.

The knitting and top-setting departments of the knitting mill at Mankato were closed on account of a strike of 100 operatives, who are mostly girls. The strike was caused by a temporary reduction of 10 per cent in the wages.

Armando Martinucci, employed as a bartender in a saloon in St. Paul, tried to start a fire with gasoline. He was badly burned.

Gilbert G. Olson, of Pelican Rapids, attempted suicide by hanging, but failed.

An organization is formed at Crookston, to include local real estate dealers, bankers and loan agents.

POPE ON LABOR QUESTIONS

Important Rulings of Pius X. Received in Washington.

He Says All Society Is Not Equal—Draws Sharp Line Between Justice and Charity.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The text of an important instruction by Pope Pius X. upon the relative duties of capitalists and laborers has been received here. It is not in the nature of an encyclical, and is headed with the words "Motu Proprio," to show that utterances express the pope's personal views upon this important topic.

It reduces the various Roman Catholic teachings on the subject of property rights, and especially on the philosophy of Pope Leo's encyclical on labor to 19 precepts.

The first four lay down that society is composed of unequal elements, whose only equality is in their redemption by Jesus Christ and their equal individual responsibility to God.

The fifth precept states that "the right of property, the fruit of labor or industry or of cession or donation by others, is an incontrovertible natural right, and everybody can dispose reasonably of such property as he thinks fit."

From the sixth to the fifteenth precept the pope draws a sharp distinction between justice and charity as they apply between employer and employe. These are summed up as follows:

"The following are obligations of justice binding on the proletariat and the working man: To perform fully and faithfully the work which has been freely and according to equity agreed upon; not to injure the property or outrage the persons of masters; to abstain from acts of violence even in the defense of their known rights, and never to make mutiny of their defense.

"For the capitalist the obligations are: To pay just wages to their workingmen, not to injure their just savings by violence or fraud, or by overt or covert usuries; not to expose them to corrupting seductions and danger of scandal; not to alienate them from the spirit of family life and from love of economy, and not to impose upon them labor beyond their strength or unsuitable for their age or sex."

Other obligations are characterized as charitable, and the rich are exhorted to the exercise of this virtue. The instruction closes with fervent admonition to Roman Catholic writers, "when defending the cause of the proletariat and the poor, not to use language calculated to inspire aversion among the people for other classes of society. Let them refrain from speaking of redress and justice, when the matter comes within the domain of charity only."

THE POSTAL FRAUDS.

Persons Indicted in Connection with Sale of Letter Box Fasteners Placed on Trial.

Washington, Jan. 12.—August W. Machen, Diller B. Groff, Samuel A. Groff, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. and Mrs. George E. Lorenz, of Toledo, O., indicted in connection with the post office investigation, were placed on trial Monday in criminal court No. 1, Justice Pritchard presiding. All the defendants were present, but the attendance of spectators was small.

The defendants were put on trial on an indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the sale of letter box fasteners and, after formal demurrers to the indictment were entered and overruled, they were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. The work of securing a jury was then begun.

A subpoena has been issued for George W. Beavers, who is wanted as a witness for the government in connection with the trial of these cases.

After an hour spent in selecting a jury the panel was exhausted and court adjourned until Tuesday.

Chicago in the Lead.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Democratic campaign leaders are beginning to gather in this city for the meeting of the national committee, which meets at the Shoreham hotel in this city on Tuesday, to select a time and place for the next democratic national convention. Convention boomers from Chicago, St. Louis and New York have opened headquarters at the Shoreham. It is believed Chicago is at present in the lead as the convention city, and that the convention will be held about two weeks after the republican national convention.

Killed Himself.

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—One of the oldest steamboat men in the west, Capt. Richard S. Fairchild, committed suicide at the home of his son Sunday. He took his life with a butcher knife. Capt. Fairchild was born at Lawrenceburg, Ind., in 1843, and during the civil war he was in the federal service as engineer on different transports. Several years ago he retired from the river on account of poor health. He was well known on both the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

Severe Defeat for Mad Mullah.

Aden, Arabia, Jan. 12.—An engagement in Somaliland between a British force and the forces of the Mad Mullah has resulted in a severe defeat of the latter, who lost 1,000 men killed. The British had two officers killed and eight officers severely wounded.

Losses Are Enormous.

Paris, Jan. 12.—The bank known as the Credit International has suspended with losses to depositors estimated at $1,400,000.

China Opens the Door.

Peking, Jan. 12.—The Chinese emperor has ratified the American and Japanese treaties of commerce with China.

FIRE WITNESSES GIVING EVIDENCE

Describe Before the Coroner's Jury Conditions That Prevailed at Iroquois Theater Fire.

Tell of Finding Locked Exits When Effort Was Made to Escape Death—Ushers Made No Attempts to Assist—Aisles Overcrowded and Other Law Violations Described.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Curtains which would not come down, aisles which were overcrowded, fire protection which did not protect, absence of discipline among employes and many other things which might have contributed to cause the appalling loss of life in the Iroquois theater fire were charged in the testimony of the witnesses who appeared at the session of the inquest yesterday.

Aisles Crowded.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Balcony aisles crowded far beyond the safety point, ushers ignorant of what to do in case of fire, a stage with scarcely any appliances for extinguishing a blaze, and stage hands who lost their heads at the critical moment—these were some of the disclosures made to the coroner's jury at the inquest over the Iroquois theater victims.

Vital Points of Evidence.

Out of the mass of evidence the following are a few of the important threads:

There were no fire extinguishers on the stage except two tubes of kilfyre; there were no leads of hose for the standpipes; there were no instructions as to action in case of fire; there had been no fire drills of employes; the ushers made no attempts to open exits; the aisles of the top balcony and the space at the rear of the first balcony were crowded; the exits toward the alley were never opened during performances; two of the three exits toward the main entrance on the first balcony were closed at time of fire; the stage hands became confused and were slow in handling the "asbestos" curtain. The stories that brought out these facts were in many cases dramatic in the extreme.

Theaters May Open.

The Chicago theaters may be reopened within the next two or three days. The theater committee will present an order to the city council requesting that the managers be given a special license to reopen their theaters under certain restrictions pending compliance with the provisions contained in the new ordinance regulating theaters, which will also be presented to the council. The committee will also recommend that the managers be given until October 1 to make the changes required by the new ordinance.

Death of a Journalist.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 7.—Otis Henry Brand, for 21 years city editor of the Janesville Daily Recorder, and one of the best known newspaper men of southern Wisconsin, died Wednesday at his home in this city from a cerebral hemorrhage. Mr. Brand had been in failing health for nearly three years.

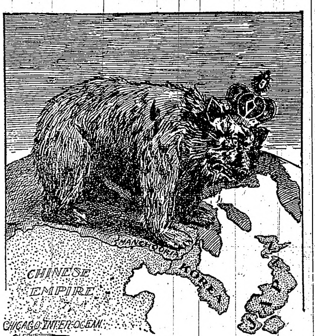
WHO WILL PUSH HIM BACK?



AT WORK AGAIN.

Congress Resumes Its Sessions and Takes Up Panama Question—President Sends in Appointments.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Practically the entire session of the senate yesterday was devoted to a speech by Senator Lodge on the situation on the isthmus of Panama. He discussed the abstract question of the right of the president to recognize the independence of a new nation, and concluded that such a prerogative pertains exclusively to the office of chief executive. Resolutions of sympathy, condoling with the grief-stricken people of Chicago, were adopted by the house yesterday. The president's message relative to Panama and the canal was read.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Alleged irregularities in the post office department constituted the only theme in the senate yesterday. In the house nothing of importance was done.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Senator Morgan occupied the time of the senate yesterday in a reply to a speech of Senator Lodge and criticised the president and the attitude of this government in connection with the Panama republic. The nomination of Gov. Taft, of the Philippines, to be secretary of war, was favorably reported. The house was in session but 12 minutes.

Washington, Jan. 9.—When the senate met yesterday Senator Scott (Va.) offered a joint resolution providing for an investigation of the Darien canal route. Alleged post office frauds were discussed. The nomination of Maj. Gen. Chaffee to be lieuentant general was received. Adjourned to the 11th. In the house the sum of $250,000 to be used to meet the emergency caused by the ravages of the cotton boll weevil and other insects and diseases affecting cotton was made available. Adjourned to the 11th.

FUNERAL IS HELD.

Brief and Simple Services at Interment of Daughter of Ex-President Cleveland.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9.—The funeral of Ruth Cleveland, who died Thursday of diphtheria, was held at the family residence at ten o'clock Friday morning. The service was brief and simple and was conducted by Rev. Maitland Bartlett, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. In addition to the family a few of the closest friends of the family were present. The interment in the Princeton cemetery was private and took place immediately after the service. At the request of her physician Mrs. Cleveland did not go to the cemetery. Among the hundreds of messages of condolence from friends was one from President Roosevelt.

Trains Collide.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 6.—Fast passenger train No. 3 on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad from Chicago crashed into a freight train eight miles west of here at one o'clock this morning. The engineers and firemen on both trains were instantly killed and 26 passengers were injured. Several are reported killed.

Bandits on Trial.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Van Dine, Marx and Niedermeier, three men accused of the street car robbery and double murder, and a long list of other desperate crimes, were put on trial for their lives in Judge Kersten's court yesterday morning.

Six Killed.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 11.—A dynamite explosion occurred near Casville in Wayne county while a number of employes on the Norfolk & Western extension were at luncheon and six men were killed and 14 injured.

Peace Declared.

Capetown, Jan. 9.—It is officially announced that peace has been declared in Damaraland, German Southwest Africa, and that the hostile Hottentots have surrendered.

BOAT GOES DOWN IN PUGET SOUND

New Coast Steamer Clallam Founders Near Port Townsend and Fifty-Two Lives Are Lost.

All the Women and Children on Board Were Drowned Despite Heroic Efforts to Save Them—Nearly All Who Remained on the Ill-Fated Craft Were Rescued.

Seattle, Wash, Jan. 11.—Fifty-two persons were drowned when the fine new passenger steamer Clallam of the Puget Sound Navigation company's fleet sank in the Straits of Juan de Fuca Saturday. Not a woman or a child in the passenger list of 56 escaped, and ten members of the crew perished in attempting to save the people in their care. The drowning of the women and children resulted, singularly, from the self-sacrificing efforts of the men to give them the first chance for life. When the Clallam was seen to be in great danger two boats were lowered containing all the woman and children, and just enough members of the crew to man the oars.

Lifeboats Capsize.

The first boat was capsized within sight of the sinking ship. The other one disappeared in the darkness after a number of people were swept overboard by the waves. A third lifeboat, containing only men, was launched, but capsized alongside the steamer.

Thirty-one passengers and members of the crew were rescued by two tugs after an heroic effort to tow the sinking steamer into port. In spite of the tremendous seas the tugs were taken alongside the steamer and held there until everyone was taken off. They were brought here on the steamer Dirigo.

Steamer Was New.

The Clallan was a new passenger boat on the Seattle-Victoria run. She left Port Townsend for Victoria Friday noon, facing a terrific southern gale. Within sight of her destination a huge sea overwhelmed the steamer, smashing in her deadlights, flooding her hole with water, extinguishing the fires beneath her boilers and placing her at the mercy of a howling gale. Bravely the officers and crew of the helpless craft worked to save the boat and the people aboard her, but in vain. The Clallam could not stand the terrific onslaught of the large seas that raced in from the ocean, and just before dark it was decided to make an attempt to save at least the passengers by the lifeboats.

All Lost at Once.

Two boats were launched. The first contained only women and children and three deck hands and Capt. Lawrence, a Yukon pilot of Victoria, as crew. The boat was overwhelmed 600 feet from the Clallam, and the shrieks of its occupants were head aboard the steamer. No aid could be given.

The second boat rowed away into the darkness. From the Clallam men were seen as the waves tore them from the boat into the sea. Though the lifeboat was righted later, a diligent search failed to find it, and it is certain that all were drowned.

The third boat, containing only men, was swamped in launching.

Bodies Recovered.

The tug Albion, on her way from Victoria to Vancouver, Sunday morning picked up life boat No. 1 of the lost steamer Clallam. It contained the body of one woman, and another was floating but a short distance away. They were identified as those of Miss Louise Harris, the daughter of W. J. Harris, the Spokane mining millionaire, and Mrs. Thomas Sullins, of Seattle. The bodies of both Miss Harris and Mrs. Sullins had life preservers buckled around their bodies.

Chaffee Heads the Army.

Washington. Jan. 11.—After five months' service as head of the army as chief of staff, with the rank of lieutenant general. Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young relinquished his duties at noon Saturday to his successor in office, Gen. A. R. Chaffee, who has been acting as his chief assistant for several weeks past. The change is due to the fact that General Young became 64 years of age to-day, and therefore under the law was relegated to the retired list.

Bryan Home Again.

New York, Jan. 11.—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, arrived in New York Saturday on the liner Celtic, after a two months' trip through the various countries of Europe. He was welcomed home by a delegation of democrats, who met the Celtic on a tugboat at quarantine, and a reception was given him at the Hotel Victoria.

Passed Away.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Warren Barnhart, oldest member and vice president of the firm of Barnhart Brothers & Spindler, type founders, 183-187 Monroe street, died at his late residence, 577½ La Salle avenue. Mr. Barnhart was 67 years of age.

Twenty Killed.

Mexico City, Jan. 9.—At the Los Laureles mines near the little hamlet of La Yesca, west of Guadalajara, a large number of boxes of dynamite which were stored in a powder house exploded, killing 20 men and injuring 40 others.

Not Guilty.

Omaha, Jan. 9.—United States Senator Charles H. Dietrich was cleared yesterday of the charges of bribery and illegally leasing a building to the United States government.

Died of Pneumonia.

Shelby, O., Jan. 11.—Congressman William W. Skiles, representing the Fourteenth district of Ohio, died of pneumonia at his home here, aged 54. He was a prominent attorney.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

RUNNING THE FARM SEPARATOR.

In localities where the hand separator has been used for a while, and seems to have obtained at least a temporary foothold, it has been found that many of the operators of these machines are more or less puzzled by the variation in the test of the cream as reported by the factory to which it is sold. They do not understand why it is that cream from their separator does not have a uniform test from day to day. It is perhaps natural for them to expect that since the separation of cream is a mechanical process the product should be fairly uniform in comparison. There are, however, several things which influence the test of separator cream, and they should be well understood by the owners of hand separators.

First—The temperature of the milk when separated ought to be uniform. If there is a variation of ten or more degrees when the milk is run through the separator at different times, the richness of the cream will vary with the temperature. In some cases the milk may not be separated so soon after milking as at other times, on account of some delay at the farm, and when the separator is finally started the milk has cooled off considerably below the proper temperature of separation, and the test of the cream is thereby changed.

Second—The speed of the bowl has considerable influence on the richness of the cream, and if for any reason this speed is not uniform, or is different at one separation than at another, the test of the cream will be changed by this irregularity.

Third—Cream changes in richness with the amount of milk separated per hour. If at any time the separation is hurried by crowding more milk through the bowl than it is customary to separate, the test of the cream will be changed.

Fourth—The cream screw in the separator bowl is placed there for the purpose of changing the thickness of the cream when desired. This screw can be regulated so as to make a thick or a thin cream and it will perform its work if all the other factors of separation are uniform.

Fifth—The amount of skim milk or water run through the bowl when the separation is about finished will influence the test of the cream, depending upon whether the bowl is flushed out with a little water or if a large quantity is used.

After the operator of a hand separator becomes aware of the effect which each one of these things has on the test of the cream, he can, if he wishes to do so, run the separator each time so that his cream will have a uniform test. Now, it so happens that when milk is separated at the farm there are a great many things that interfere with the regularity with which the separator is operated. At some farms the separator is started up when the dairyman begins to milk, and it is allowed to run from the beginning to the end of milking. Each cow's milk is poured into the receiving can on the separator, and the milk is separated by the pailful. In such cases the separator skims for a few minutes and then runs empty. This alternation of skimming and not skimming has considerable effect on the cream separated, and a cream more nearly uniform in composition can be obtained by arranging the milking so that the separator will be running at full capacity until the milk has all been run through it. In other cases the dairyman gets rushed, and tries to hurry a lot of milk through the separator in a short time, thus changing the rate at which the milk is skimmed, and the effect of this fluctuation will be noticed in the test of the cream.

If the users of hand separators are careful to regulate the skimming each time so that it is done in the same uniform manner they can depend upon getting cream that will be uniform in test. The points which need to be especially watched are the speed of the bowl, the temperature of the milk, and the amount of milk skimmed per hour.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

Della Rasche is still absent from school.

Janitor Philion is slowly recovering from his illness.

The program of the Spartans will be given January 29.

The work of the Geology class is becoming more interesting.

The Ancient History class is now reviewing Roman History.

Cora Adler returned to school Monday after a few weeks absence.

The English History class has some exceedingly good guessers.

Will Philion is now superintending the janitor work at the High school.

The next debate has been postponed a week and will occur January 22.

A bunch of boys were late Wednesday noon, probably on account of the new rule.(?)

The student body was unruly this week, and as a consequence was deprived of a few recesses.

The Athenians received 42.88 points for their program last week. We predict a heavy wind for the next three weeks.

On account of a few have-a-lot-of-fun pupils a new rule has been formed which makes it an offense to come to school before one o'clock.

Miss Steele gave a few experiments this week. They were to show the amount of control in the students and the result was the usual rubber.

That banner joke is so very, very old that we will kindly advise the Athenians to give it new life by dyeing its gray hair with that beautiful red color of the Athenians.

A human newspaper which devotes its undivided attention to sarcastic remarks on the Spartans, is the latest by the Athenians. They have applied for a patent. What next?

The First Year English class have been illustrating some of the descriptions in their English work, Enoch Arden. The blackboard held some fair representations of an isle in the tropical regions.

The Spartans have won all the debates so far and the Athenians are wondering how it was done. After giving a large number of causes for their defeat, they wind up by declaring that the Spartan success was due to the unwise decision of the judges. As a matter of fact the Spartans have earned what they were entitled to and that the lay-the-blame policy of the Athenians is a poor one.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of of the mucous services.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rheumatism
Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rhuematism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

Bowling Green, Ky.
About a year ago I was attacked by acute rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs below the knee. I could not raise my arm to comb my hair. Doctors prescribed for me for over two months without giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. Immediately I commenced its use I felt better, and remarked to mother that I was glad I had at last found some relief. I continued its use and am entirely well. I will always feel deeply interested in the success of S. S. S. since it did me so much good.

A Few Reasons Why the Eyes are Responsible For So Many Nervous Ailments.

Of all the nerve centers the visual centers are the most delicate and the most constantly in use, and are larger than all the other nerves put together. From morning until night the filling of the visual centers has been a most constant one. While we see apparently without effort, every impression costs a certain amount of nerve force. Think of the thousands of impressions that are received by the eye in a single day. To lift a penny once does not require a great deal of nerve force, but no one can lift a penny a million times in a day.—Henry W. Anderson, State Graduate Optician.

WYLIE.

John Dargan left Monday for the woods.

Peter Hansel was a business visitor at St. Hilaire last Monday.

Carl Gerlach, of Louisville, was here on business last Monday.

Messrs. Bourdon and Simons were here yesterday on business connected with their bank.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sutor spent Sunday at Fisher, being called there by the serious illness of Mrs. Sutor's father.

Section Foreman Dreelan informs us that the logging train for the Thief River Falls Lumber company will commence to run this week. It is reported that they will run two trains daily.

P. E. Smidesang & Sons have their new gasoline engine in place and are all ready for business. They expect their new feed mill this week, and will soon be prepared to do all the grinding for the farmers in this vicinity.

The young ladies of Wylie are preparing an elaborate leap year party for January 22. The best of music has been secured, and no pains will be spared to make this dance the swellest affair Wylie has ever seen. Supper and dance only 75 cents.

Many children in this neighborhood have been very sick lotely with speciet of lagrippe which terminates in severe earache, lasting about 48 hours. While it is nothing serious it is very painful for the little sufferers and decidedly interesting for the parents.

Bill, with his umbrella, and Ikey with his fan taking a "hike" across the prairie for a six mile walk in the teeth of a strong wind and the thermometer at 20 below, to attend a hen party! Simply shows what some young men will do when they get it real bad.

Order to Show Cause on Filing Petition to Mortgage Land.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss
COUNTY OF RED LAKE }
In Probate Court,
Special Term, January 5, 1904.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole John Ellingson Deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of H. O. Gjerberg, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon his estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of the said Ole John Ellingson, deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate or any part thereof.

It is Therefore Ordered, That all persons interested in said estate before this Court, on Saturday, the 30th day of January A. D. 1904, at 2 o'clock P. M., at the Probate Office in the Court House in the city of Red Lake Falls in said County, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said H. O. Gjerberg to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased, for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessments and liens, and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is Further Ordered, That this Order shall be published once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 6th day of January, A. D. 1904.

By the Court.

DEATH OF A CENTENARIAN

Mrs. Julienne Violete Reaches the Advanced Age of 102 Years.

Mrs. Julienne Violete died Tuesday morning at Mrs. Moquin's hospital at the advanced age of 102, and the funeral was held yesterday from St. Joseph's church, Rev. Father Fayolle officiating. Mrs. Violete has been in good health all her life, and was conscious to the last, the cause of her death being senility. For a number of years past she has been a county and city charge. She has one son, Denys Violete, of Cass Lake, who was here to attend the funeral.

Mrs. Violete was born at St. Basil, New Brunswick, in 1802. Her maiden name was Thibodeau. She was probably the oldest person in Northwestern Minnesota.

There was present at the funeral a godchild of the deceased in the person of Mrs. Anastasie Sanfacon, aged 87 years.

PINE WILL GIVE OUT.

Gen. Andrews Says Original Timber will be Cut in 15 Years.

"What forestry means for Minnesota is simply this," said Gen. C. C. Andrews, chief state fire warden, yesterday: "The remaining original pine timber will be cut in the next fifteen years. Some second growth pine, if protected from fire, will then be cut from year to year, but it will not be as good as the original growth, and there will not be enough of it for home consumption.

"Lumber will be dearer and our great lumber industry will decline. There are, however, fully 3,000,000 acres of waste land in scattered localities which, if planted with pine, would in time become normal forests, yielding forever a supply sufficient for our home need. On such waste, sandy land it will take on an average about eighty years for a crop of pine trees to grow to merchantable size. Individuals cannot wait so long for a crop and they will not engage in the business. The state, to whom time does not occur, must undertake the work by purchasing waste land and planting it with pine.

"The Minnesota forestry board is ready to go to work, but until there is some man in the legislature who will make forestry a specialty and fight for it with energy, we shall not get money for forestry."

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

John Sutter, One of Our Earliest Settlers, Passes Away.

John Sutter died last Friday afternoon at 2:30, after an illness extending over a period of seven years. Mr. Sutter enjoyed comparatively good health until August 6, 1897, when he was stricken with paralysis, disabling his entire left side. Since then he has been confined to his bed the greater part of the time. His condition showed little change until a few weeks ago, when he was attacked with the most excruciating pains, and from that time until his death required the constant care and attention of his devoted wife, children and friends. Mr. Sutter was conscious to the last, although he was unable to speak for several days preceding his death. All the children were at the bedside.

John Sutter was born May 29, 1829, in Wilendinger, Baden, Germany, emigrating to America fifty-two years ago and locating at Cleveland, Ohio. Later he lived successively in Pennsylvania, Mississippi, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. He came to Minnesota when the Twin Cities were in their infancy, and Fort Snelling just springing into a trading post. Mr. Sutter lived at the latter place for a time, afterwards locating at St. Cloud, living there two years and then going to Alexandria, where he remained for ten years. With his wife and small family he came to Red Lake Falls twenty-two years ago, and they have since resided here, enjoying the esteem of a wide circle of friends. Mr. Sutter revisited his mother country a few years ago, and came back more firm than ever in the conviction that America was good enough for him. Besides the bereaved widow, two sons, Simon and Leo, and five daughters, Magdalene, Anna, Rose, Mrs. H. J. Fritz and Mrs. C. J. Chapman, are called upon to mourn the loss of a noble-hearted father. Outside of his immediate family Mr. Sutter had but one blood relative in America, a cousin, Captain Sutter, who first discovered the shining gold in the Sacramento Valley, Cal.

The funeral service was held Monday morning from St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Ansgar officiating. The casket bore many beautiful floral tributes. The remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery.

The deceased was a devout Christian, never missing services even in the most disagreeable weather as long as he was able to be about.

Only Two Eclipses.

The year of 1904 will be remarkable for the small number of eclipses, there being only two, and both of the sun. This is the minimum number of eclipses that can occur in any one year, the maximum number being seven, when there would be either five solar and two lunar, or four solar and three lunar. Both of the eclipses of the year are invisible in the United States. The first is an annual eclipse and occurs on March 16. The second a total eclipse on September 9.

RAILROAD BONDS ARE VALID

Supreme Court Says the Taxpayers Are Estopped from Questioning Them.

Bonds of the municipality of Red Lake Falls, issued a number of years ago in aid of the construction of the St. Paul & Manitoba road, are held in a decision of the supreme court filed Friday to be valid, and the city is held to be liable for their payment.

The amount of the bonds involved in the action is $9,000, and the question of their validity arises in a suit brought by Adam Schmitz, a citizen, to stop their payment. The validity of the bonds was assailed on the ground that the issue of which they formed a part was in excess of the amount permitted by law for the purpose to which they were to be converted.

On this point the court holds that under such circumstances bonds are only invalidated to the extent of the excessive issue. The opinion in the case is written by Justice Brown and the syllabus is as follows:

Adam Schmitz, appellant, vs. Adam Zeh, as County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota, defendant; Anna W. Smith and James Bristol, intervenors-respondents.

1. In an action to enjoin the payment of certain municipal bonds issued under section 2771, G. S. 1894, to aid in the construction of a railroad, it appears that the bonds were issued by the municipal officers, being authorized to do so by vote of the people, delivered to the railway company, and by it sold and transferred to third persons who were purchasers thereof in good faith and without notice of, irregularities in their issue; taxes were, for thirteen years thereafter, annually levied and collected in payment of the interest as it accrued on the bonds, and the same promptly paid when due; plaintiff is, and has been for six years a taxpayer of the municipality, and neither he nor any other taxpayer, or other person, ever questioned the validity of the bonds, but all acquiesced in their validity during the time stated.

Held, that plaintiff and all other taxpayers are now estopped from questioning their validity, it not appearing that there was a total lack of power in the municipality to issue them.

2. Bond issues by municipalities in aid of the construction of a railroad under statutory power, though the amount thereof be in excess of the amount prescribed by statute, and void only to the extent of the excessive issue.

3. General Statutes, 1894, section 2771, was not repealed by the act incorporating the village of Red Lake Falls.

Judgment affirmed. —Brown, J.

FRED WILLIAMS DEAD.

Former Red Lake Falls Man Victim of Liquor Habit.

The following item from the Minneapolis Times refers to a man who lived in Red Lake Falls several months of last year:

"Fred D. Williams, aged 51 years, cast out from a good family in Cincinnati, Ohio, on account of his slavery to the drink habit, was found dead in bed in a cheap Washington avenue lodging house yesterday morning. Coroner Williams believes death was due to acute alcoholism, but an autopsy will be held this morning. Williams came here several years ago, and being well educated and affable, found an excellent position with a large Minneapolis clothing house. His fondness for drink caused his ruin and he has recently been living on a monthly allowance of $55, which came from an Ohio estate, most of the money going for liquor."

Mr. Williams came here in July, 1902, to enter the employ of the Surprise store as head salesman. He was throughly conversant with the clothing business, and was popular with the people. After a few months his appetite for liquor developed and his employers were obliged to discharge him. Mr. Williams was well-educated and a courteous and gentlemanly fellow. He had no enemies save himself.

GOOD CREAMERY YEAR.

State Dairy Commissioner Expects Even Greater Activity During 1904.

The state dairy and food department has received information that new creameries will be erected next spring in many parts of the state. Many letters are received daily from the farmers and dairymen asking advice concerning the kind of material to use in building the creamery, the size, location and other features.

During the year ending Dec. 31, 1903, thirty-three new creameries were erected in Minnesota, making the total 714. From present indications it is thought that more will be erected this year than in 1903.

Mr. McConnell, as a general rule, discourages the establishment of a creamery when the patrons own less than 400 cows. In such districts he says a cheese factory will pay better than a creamery. He also advises farmers to erect brick or stone buildings in preference to wooden structures.

Negligence of Trainmen.

Princeton Union: Do train crews observe signals? We should judge not. The officials of the Northwestern road took possession of a small station just outside the city limits of Chicago and put out all the semaphore lights. Eight trains whizzed by without even stopping and one of these was a Northwestern limited. All trains are supposed to stop when semaphore lights are not burning and get orders or ascertain the cause of the lights being out. But it would seem that railroad men as a rule don't do this. The members of the train crews who violated the rules of the Northwestern road were given a lay-off of ninety days, and in the future they will probably pay more attention to semaphores.

FATAL TO FIFTY-FIVE.

Smallpox Proved More Virulent During the Past Year.

Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has compiled statistics of the number of cases of smallpox in the state, and the number of deaths from that cause each year for the past five years. The totals are as follows:

Year.	Cases.	Deaths.
1899	257	11
1900	1,371	22
1901	8,485	43
1902	8,666	29
1903	4,502	55

Although the number of cases reported last year was far smaller than either of the preceding years, the number of deaths was the laagest of any of the five years.

Detailed figures for last year show that this increased death rate prevailed only in the months of May and June, and except for the period covered by the month of May and the first two weeks in June, the average number of deaths per month was smaller than in most other years.

In the six weeks mentioned there were thirty-two deaths, and health officers throughout the state became alarmed at what they believed to be a marked increase in the virulence of the disease. From that time, however, the number of deaths showed a decided falling off, and in July there were but two, in August one, and for all the remainder of the year none at all.

Cases were most numerous in January, when there were 780, and February, when there were 889. In those two months there were but six deaths.

A Non-strenuous Life.

No one can deny that Americans of today are leading the most strenuous lives of any race that ever lived, but the question is, when will the tide turn? History shows that with every nation energetic, pushing, successful generations are invariably followed by slower, lazier ones. Will the same be true of Americans? Not if we keep up our energy with golden grain belt beer. Such a pure tonic is needed to keep man's energy from burning out with overwork or worry. When tired out this tonic will help to rest and refresh you. Better keep a case at home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

THREE PAPERS FOR A DOLLAR

Special Bargain Day at The Courier Office on February 13 and 15, 1904.

The special offer the COURIER is making on the fourth page of this paper is unprecedented in this county. On February 13 and 15 we will receive subscriptions for the COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist, and the price for the three papers on those days will be only one dollar. Don't forget that this offer is good only for the two days advertised.

When it is considered that the regular price of these papers is $2.25, the reader will easily see what a bargain we are offering. For one dollar the average farmer can secure ample reading matter for an entire year. Old subscribers can secure advantage of the offer by paying their subscriptious one year in advance.

THE COURIER would esteem it a special favor if its patrons would tell their neighbors about the offer. Doubtless many will in that way be induced to take advantage of the offer who would not know of it otherwise.

A Few Reasons Why the Eyes are Responsible For So Many Nervous Ailments.

Of all the nerve centers the visual centers are the most delicate and the most constantly in use, and are larger than all the other nerves put together. From morning until night the filling of the visual centers has been a most constant one. While we see apparently without effort, every impression costs a certain amount of nerve force. Think of the thousands of impressions that are received by the eye in a single day. To lift a penny once does not require a great deal of nerve force, but no one can lift a penny a million times in a day.—Henry W. Anderson, State Graduate Optician.

THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES

BY HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON.

COPYRIGHT 1899

"And have you really suffered from hunger?" she exclaimed, while the tears came to her eyes. "Ah, that is horrible! Take this" (and she put a silver dollar into his hand); "it should be multiplied a thousand-fold if I could but prove my identity, and then I should feel that I had done but little for you. There, do not say a word now. I know that you will repay me. Oh, dear me! there is Mrs. Bowers; she is coming down the steps; she will be here in a moment. Hurry away, but write to let me know that you have come out of all your difficulties."

"Where shall I address you?"

"Oh, dear! I don't know; I can't think of any place at all except that park where we met."

"That's hardly an address, you know," said Drane, trying to be blithesome, though Mrs. Bowers was bearing down upon them very fast. "I might try the general post-office but I don't know your name and—"

"And it isn't necessary that you should," put in Mrs. Bowers. "Come along, my good girl. He is not a fit acquaintance for you."

She dragged the younger woman away, and gave her no chance to reply. Lawrence, half crazed at being thus interrupted, was following them when a hand was laid upon his shoulder; and, as he turned about, the policeman who had directed him to Murray street stood before him.

"Look here, young feller," said he, "I saw de young woman give you something, an' that's enough for you, see? Don't you follow her no more."

Drane couldn't abide the idea of another incarceration, and he obeyed the policeman's instructions, with wrath in his soul. And yet, when he cooled down a bit, he perceived that his condition had been ameliorated to the extent of one silver dollar, a consideration by no means to be overlooked. He had never till that moment realized the value of money. In the blessed thought that he could at last buy something like a square meal he forgot even the means by which the money had been obtained. Food was his one great need. He looked about him for a restaurant. There was none in sight. Away to the left was the elevated railroad. He knew that it would take him down town where eating houses would be plenty, and he hurried to a station.

An L-train at ten miles an hour is not rapid transit to a man who has not dined for two days. Before he reached the City Hall station Drane fully realized how badly New York needed another and a quicker system. Electricity in a moment of excitement would have been the proper thing to keep pace with his impatience. However, the journey ended before the tissues of his body had wholly wasted away; and two minutes later he was seated at a restaurant table and had ordered just seventy cents' worth of food. Nothing, from fish-balls to terrapin, had ever tasted so good to him as that soup.

"If I ever meet a hungry beggar again," thought he, when the food had begun to take effect, "I'll treat him to a ten-course dinner."

The world took on a different aspect as he ate. He felt sure that every thing would come out right. His acquaintance at Murray street would gladly help him out of his predicament, and he could laugh at his strange experience. With a tight waist band and ninety-five cents in his pocket, he was a rich man again as he strolled up to the desk to pay his check. Just there temptation seized upon him. He wanted to smoke. It seemed as if his longing for food had been feeble to his present craving for just one fragrant whiff of tobacco.

"How much are those cigars?" he asked, indicating some which the man at the desk had just spread before a customer.

"Fifteen cents—two for a quarter," was the reply.

Drane reflected that a man so poor as he was could not afford to pay fifteen cents for a cigar when he could get it for twelve and a half by simply purchasing two. Overcome by this unassailable arithmetic, he laid down his last quarter, and in another moment he was enjoying one of the weeds for which New York is justly infamous to such a degree as he had never enjoyed a good one in his life. But he was penniless again.

He crossed City Hall Park with a firm step, and his head in the air. His woes were floating away in smoke; his hopes were high. He walked down Murray street and quickly found the number he sought. The name Richard H. Billings, in white letters on a window of the lower story, set all doubts at rest; and, indeed, the man himself sat at a desk in plain view from the sidewalk. Lawrence identified him at once from description, and he felt that he was saved.

Mr. Billings, however, was engaged in earnest conversation, and Lawrence, after staring at him a minute through the window, decided to walk around the block and give him a chance to finish his business. When he had completed the circuit Mr. Billings was no longer in sight. The rolling top of the desk was closed, and when Drane noted that fact his heart stood still. He hurried into the office.

"Mr. Billings has just left for the Grand Central depot," said an office boy. "He is going on to Boston to-night. If you hurry up there you can catch him. Have you got a message for him?"

"No; I wish to see him personally."

"Go on," said the boy, "you want to strike him for the price of a beer."

Drane could not wait to reprove the youth for his impudence. He was in too much of a hurry to get to the depot. He learned that the train which Mr. Billings was to take left at six o'clock. It was then half-past five.

When he had reached the street he reflected that it would be necessary to know where the Grand Central depot was, before going there. He had supposed that if it was "central" it must be near at hand, and he learned with horror that it was more than three miles away. To reach it on foot in time was out of the question, and he had not a cent!

He cursed his folly in leaving Billings' door unguarded, and was inclined to be offended with Billings for going to Boston. The world had turned blue again. He could see nothing ahead of him but another night in the street.

For the next three hours he wandered about the lower part of the town, and at nine o'clock he found himself in front of the Pennsylvania railroad ferry-house at the foot of Cortlandt street. Then the thought came over him like a flash: "This road goes to Trenton. Bob Tyler—my old friend Bob—lives there, and he'll let me have a thousand quicker than a wink if I can only reach him."

But how to do it? Supported by a good dinner he would have started along the ties cheerfully, but a ferry was a different matter. How he regretted the extravagance that had left him penniless!

Across the street from the ferry was a little "high stoop" house used as an hotel. Lawrence had come to the conclusion that he must look up some charitable institution and ask for a night's lodging, and with this purpose in mind he entered the hotel office and asked to see the directory. While he was consulting it a man with a concertina in his hand dropped into a chair near him.

"Hello, Billy," said the clerk to the new arrival, "where's your side partner?"

"I donno," replied Billy. "Guess he's in the jug. I haven't seen him since the three o'clock boat this morning."

"Going to play a lone hand to-night?"

"Guess I'll have to. I can do the dancing all right, but I can't sing. You'd better come along, Jimmy, and try your little song on the public."

Jimmy laughed, and it was evident that the offer was intended as a joke; but it set Lawrence thinking. The man with the concertina took a seat in a remote corner and appeared to be somewhat downcast. Lawrence approached him.

"Did I understand you to say that you were going to give an entertainment somewhere and desired a singer?" he asked.

Billy looked up with an amused stare.

"Can you sing?" he inquired. "No foolin', now. I took a feller on his word some years ago, and when he opened his mouth aboard the ferry-boat the passengers came pretty near throwin' us both overboard."

"I didn't know that entertainments were allowed on the ferry-boats," said Lawrence. "There was a sign prohibiting such things on the boat I came over in."

"Don't worry about the sign," said Billy. "I stand in with all the night crews. Now can you sing, honest? What do you know? All the old chestnuts, I suppose. Give us a sample. If it's very bad I'll beg the clerk's pardon, and you won't get shot."

Drane was amused. He had a tenor voice of good power and compass, and excellently cultivated. He looked Billy squarely and sternly in the eye for a moment, and then gave him a short vocal exercise somewhat pyrotechnic in its character, and concluding with a smooth, mellow howl in the neighborhood of high C. Billy and every body else in the place jumped to their feet, but they did not run away, as Drane had feared they might.

"Say," said Billy, slowly, putting his forefinger on the breast of Drane's coat, "that's great stuff. Just do that a couple of times on board the boat while I knock out a little accompaniment on the old concertina, and we'll pick up big money."

Drane was elated. Here was his chance to escape from all his difficulties. He wondered that he had not thought earlier of using his voice to make his living.

He had often been affected by just such entertainments as he now proposed to take part in, and he had wondered what would be the success of a really competent performer. He had no end of faith in good music, and he resolved to give the ferry-boat's passengers something worth hearing. The time dragged heavily till twelve o'clock, when Billy said the curtain could rise. Billy was a queer specimen, and Drane would have felt very much ashamed of his society under ordinary circumstances, but now he only thanked his stars that the fellow was no worse. He was a great deal more ashamed of the concertina, and afraid of it, too.

They left the hotel and boarded the twelve-o'clock boat. Drane was nervous. He hadn't decided what to sing and he feared the miscellaneous audience to the last degree. He had often sung in public, and occasionally in costumed light opera parts, but he had never been so thoroughly and outrageously "made up" before.

They took their positions in the welcome obscurity of the passage between the forward and after cabins on the ladies' side.

"We'll have to wait till she starts," said Billy. "That's the rule, and perhaps it's just as well."

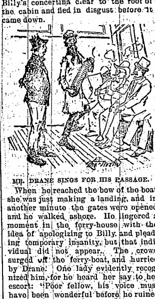
Drane shivered. "I'm a little nervous about these new songs," Billy acknowledged. "Do you think I'd better try to foller along or strike one chord all the time and take my chances?"

"Billy," replied Drane, pointing to the concertina, while the cold perspiration gathered on his brow, "if you let that thing break loose while I'm singing I'll throw you overboard."

"Oh, I'll handle her careful," said Billy. "Don't you worry about me. Go ahead now. She's started."

Billy pushed Drane out into the cabin and then extracted a few wails from the concertina by way of prelude. When he had finished, Drane began the well-known air, "Spirito Gentil," which is suited to a high tenor voice, but not to an audience of New Jersey people returning to their homes in the dead of night. After the first few melodious notes had agitated the air, an intoxicated citizen waked up with a start and shouted: "Say boss, quit that and sing something we all know. Sing 'Annie Laurie.'"

The inebriate started his favorite song in a voice much the worse for liquor, and both he and Drane were having a very bad time of it, when Billy, thinking it his duty to help his partner in distress, came to the rescue with a concertina accompaniment, fortissimo, which passed from one key to another like a gentleman struggling with a series of epileptic fits. Several persons near the door escaped, and others were on the point of following their example. Drane kept his tune and his temper for about a minute, and then, turning suddenly, he kicked Billy's concertina clear to the roof of the cabin and fled in disgust before it came down.



MR. DRANE SINGS FOR HIS PASSAGE.

When he reached the bow of the boat she was just making a landing, and in another minute the gates were opened and he walked ashore. He lingered a moment in the ferry-house with the idea of apologizing to Billy and pleading temporary insanity, but that individual did not appear. The crowd surged off the ferry-boat, and hurried by Drane. One lady evidently recognized him, for he heard her say to her escort: "Poor fellow, his voice must have been wonderful before he ruined it by drink."

Riddled by this double-barreled insult, Drane hung his head and made off up street, which runs parallel with the Pennsylvania tracks for a few blocks. At the first crossing he turned to the right and passed over the confusion of rails at the imminent risk of his life. There is no more dangerous place on the face of the earth, but Drane was in a condition of mind where collision with a shifting engine would have been a relief to his feelings.

A freight train was being made up on a side track, and Drane crawled along in the shadow of it till he came to a car which looked as if it might be entered. He was on the point of trying it, when a figure appeared from the shadows. Drane was about to run, but perceiving that the other man had a similar intention, he understood the case at once.

"Hold on," said he, "I won't hurt you. I'm looking for a free ride on this train, and so are you. Isn't that so?"

"You've called it, boss," said the fellow, "that's my game."

"Well, I'm in with you," returned Drane. "You know more about this business than I do. What shall we do?"

The tramp answered by deeds, not words. He pried open the door of the car and crawled in. Drane followed. The car appeared to be freighted with pig-iron or some other heavy substance of which very little made a load, for there was plenty of room. Drane and his companion found the most comfortable place they could in the darkness. To the former's great relief the train soon started and ran with no stop for nearly an hour. Then there came a halt. Presently Drane heard a man stop just outside the door by which they had entered.

"Jimmy," said a voice, "somebody's been getting into this car."

"Thunder and turf," whispered the tramp, "we're in for it now. They'll send us up. There's just one chance for us. You stand on one side of the door and I'll stand on the other. When they climb in we'll make a break."

That was exactly what they did; and as Drane happened to jump out directly upon the head of the brakeman on guard, they escaped.

In the lea of a fence, a few minutes later, Drane was joined by his late acquaintance, whom he had outrun with ease. Two or three others struggled up immediately after.

"They've cleaned all the boys off the train," the tramp explained. "We're hung up here for sure."

There was a hasty consultation, and from it Drane learned that they were near an old barn which was well-known to the "profession" as a harboring place. It was decided that the best thing to do was to put up in this place for the night. Drane fell into the line, and after a march across some fields, he entered the tramp's hotel with the motley crew.

Counting those already in it, who were aroused by the entrance of his party, there were nearly a dozen in all. Through a great hole high up in the wall the moonlight streamed, and in the circle thus marked out the strange company sat down and prepared to exchange some friendly gossip before going to sleep.

"I take it you're new to the profession?" said the man whose acquaintance Drane had made in the freight yard. "What's your name?"

Drane told him.

"Do you spell it just like any other drain?" called out one of the men.

There was some good-natured laughter at this, and then one of them asked Drane where he came from. He endeavored to sketch briefly and accurately the events which had led him to his present situation. He thought it might interest them. It did. They regarded him as a first-class humorist, and a liar of great natural endowments.

"Oh, yes, we've all been there," said one. "I was a gentleman and a scholar day before yesterday. It seems to me that I met you in Mr. Gould's office. I dropped in to sell him a couple of railroads; don't you remember?"

It was utterly impossible for Drane to convince them that he was telling the truth. The more closely he stuck to facts the louder they laughed at the extent and variety of his genius for falsehood.

"He'd make a good delegate for the convention," said Johnny. "What's the matter with sending him to Pittsburgh when the profession assembles?"

"He'd represent all the liars in it," responded another, "in a way that would more than do 'em justice."

"I can't promise to go," said Drane, "but the first man of you who finds me in Kansas City and learns the truth of what I have told you shall have a hundred dollars and a chance to go to work."

"I'll sell my chance in that hundred for a pipeful of plug," said the man who had put Drane in nomination for the convention. "As for the chance to go to work, I don't want it. I'll give it away."

Altogether, Drane did not find this assemblage of the unfortunate so interesting as he had thought it might be. He withdrew from the circle soon and climbed high up on the hay till the rafters were just over his head. Then he lay down to sleep, and dreams carried him to other and far different scenes. At first there were pictures of home, and then the familiar faces faded away and in their place came one which had imprinted itself on his heart more clearly than he knew—the face of the woman whom he had befriended and who in turn had remembered him.

Through strange and difficult paths he was pursuing her. There was danger around them both. Suddenly he overtook her and tried to speak to her, but his voice would not come. He was choking. She seemed to read the agony in his eyes, for her face grew pitiful. He was dying at her feet. The hot sun cast a terrible red glare upon him. It was descending from the heavens to burn him to a cinder.

With a struggle he threw the hideous vision from him and awoke. The red glare was still in his eyes, the choking in his throat. The barn was on fire. Already the hay below him was blazing, cutting off his escape. The smoke was like a visible demon clutching him. He groped to the wall and put his lips to a little space between the boards, seeking for air, but the hot vapor from within rushed out, and he could not breathe.

The thought of death in that strange place crowded upon him—a fate of which those who loved him would never hear—his ashes scattered to the winds. Frantically he struck the board before him with his clenched hand. It yielded. Hope sprang up in his heart. He rained blows upon the rotten wood, till he beat it from its fastenings, and then with a last effort he forced his body through the opening and swung himself to the ground.

CHAPTER V.

A REMARKABLE THEFT.

It is a mistake to judge wholly by appearances, for even Jersey mud was not created in vain. To the gentle, yielding nature of that substance Drane owed his preservation from serious injury when he came tumbling down the side of the barn. As it was, the shock was violent. He dragged himself with some difficulty to the lee of a rock fence and made a hasty examination, which convinced him that no bones were broken. There was a soreness in his throat and lungs which made every breath he drew seem full of three-cornered files, but on the whole he was in fair condition and able to walk, which was fortunate, as no other means of getting away were at hand.

Before him was the blazing barn, now one mass of fire. He reflected with a shudder that perhaps some poor wretch had perished there, and he began to reproach himself for having made no effort to rescue those who had been his companions in misfortune. Then the recollection of the way the flames had leaped up over the hay assured him that he need not charge himself with cowardice. He recalled the fact that he had climbed up on the loft and that the others had remained below, where doubtless they had been awakened while the fire smoldered, filling the barn with that smoke which had nearly been the death of him.

A crowd had now collected about the barn, and he decided to go down and mingle with it. He did so, and the first words he heard were these: "Some blamed tramp has set this barn afire. Every one of 'em found in the county to-day ought to be put in jail."

Drane did not wait to discuss the question. He took a hasty and unceremonious leave. For half an hour he plodded through plowed fields, and climbed fences, till at length he came to a factory of some sort from which several little branch railroad tracks ran to the main line near by. Freight cars were being loaded there; and Drane, watching his chance, got aboard of one unobserved. On the top of a big box he stretched his weary limbs and fell asleep.

The train was in motion when he awoke. It ran on for nearly an hour, he thought, without stopping. Then came a lot of bumping and switching about, followed by a prolonged pause. Listening, he heard a strange sound like the splash of waves. He crept to the side of the car and found a crevice through which he peered. To his astonishment he found that he was sailing on a broad river. A great city lay to the right, and it did not take him long to discover that it was New York. Apparently the metropolis was a hard place to get away from.

The float which bore the freight cars was pushed against a pier. Drane stood up and stretched his cramped limbs. "This isn't exactly a vestibuled palace-car," he thought, "but I have at least come through to New York without change, as the time-tables say," and he thrust his hands into his empty pockets.

Travel by freight-car without a handbag has its disadvantages, and among them is the lack of water, soap and a chance to brush one's hair. Drane looked out through the hole in the side of the car and wondered whether, out of respect to cleanliness, he ought to jump into the dock. Then he noted the color of the water and decided that he ought not. However, he resolved to give an imitation of a good citizen making his toilet, so he picked up a piece of broken glass from the floor of the car, and propping it against a daub of black paint on a box he combed his hair with his hands, after which he decided that he was ready for breakfast. But the rolls and coffee didn't come.

By the exercise of discretion he escaped from the car and from the pier, and stood again in the streets of New York. Then came more wandering, more hunger, more perplexity. At noon he found himself in a park which looked familiar. He dropped upon a bench and tried to decide whether it was the one where he had sat with her. Then he asked himself frankly whether he would rather see her at that minute or a sirloin steak with fried potatoes and a cup of coffee.

"I don't know," he muttered, burying his face in his hands. "It's a hard question. I must be in love."

He fixed his eyes on the ground and wondered why he didn't find a half dollar there. No doubt there were coins enough buried in the dust of New York streets to pay his way to Kansas City. Why couldn't he find one? He began to accuse his guardian angel of serious neglect of duty. She ought at least to throw enough in his way to get him a breakfast. He poked around in the little heaps of rubbish at the ends of the bench with the toes of his delapidated shoes; but his guardian angel apparently had no change to spare. He didn't find a penny.

The only article which differed from the general collection was a piece of pasteboard which looked like a theater check. It had evidently been dropped very recently, for it was scarcely soiled at all. He remembered, with a sudden start, that restaurants sometimes sold tickets that were good for a meal. With a hasty hand he snatched the piece of pasteboard from the ground and read:

"This ticket entitles the bearer to one Turkish bath at Hubbard's, No. 99 West Twenty-seventh street. An extra charge for alcohol or electricity."

This is the way that Fate takes advantage of a man's position to insult him. It was not Drane's fault that he had not washed his face, and it was aggravating to have a hint like this thrown out by fate to embitter the results of her own doings. Drane was on the point of tearing the ticket in rage and disdain when his better judgment checked him. A Turkish bath-house was a nice, quiet place to rest. It offers the greatest of luxuries on a hot day. True, a severely thorough bath is not a good thing to take on an too empty stomach, but still he was sure that it could not make him feel any more hollow than he did without it. He arose and began his search for West Twenty-seventh street. It was not far away, and in less than half an hour he stood in front of No. 99. A handsome building it was; perhaps a little too ornate, but eminently suggestive of luxury. Drane entered and presented his ticket at the desk. The attendant stared at him.

"How the dickens did you get this ticket?" he asked.

Then Drane saw that he would have to lie. He was determined to get inside the bath now, and a small matter of falsehood should not stand in his way. His moral sense had been gradually weakened by the evil companionship of his clothes and he was in a condition to stretch the fabric of truth's spotless robe till he split it up the back.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

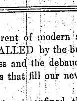
THE ONLY REMEDY FOR THE EXCESSES of SOCIETY

By JOHN D. LONG,
Ex-Secretary of the Navy



NO one can look at the seething current of modern society and not be UTTERLY APPALLED by the brutalities and crimes, the drunkenness and the debauchery, the iniquities and the outrages that fill our newspapers and are almost epidemic.'

These brutalities and crimes are not confined, this drunkenness and debauchery ARE NOT CONFINED, TO THE LOWER CLASSES, but they break out among the young men and women who have had the opportunities of our boasted education. There are corruption, bribery and embezzlement by our public servants. The sacred ties of domestic life are polluted. The temple of the Lord is invaded by mere birds of prey who should be WHIPPED OUT of it with lashes of scorn.

* * *

In all this festering mass of sores lies our task. The remedy is not in the efforts of labor and capital to promote their material interests. It is not in the EFFORTS MEN MAKE to better their condition by theories of social organization. These things will, under natural laws in a free country, work out their own salvation.

THE VITAL NEED IS RELIGION IN THE INDIVIDUAL MAN, REVERENCE FOR THE GREAT FUNDAMENTAL PRECEPTS OF THE MASTER, THEIR INCORPORATION INTO ACTUAL DAILY LIFE AS CONTROLLING SPRINGS OF ACTION.

WE SHOULD BE ACREEABLE TO OTHERS

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

I THINK that one's own faults sharpen one's appreciation of the faults of others and make it harder to endure them.

But, apart from faults, how can anybody with eyes and ears and trained perceptions avoid seeing how many persons fail of making things pleasant for others —in fact, fail of being agreeable IF THEY DO NOT BECOME ABSOLUTELY DISAGREEABLE?

Society does not go on harmoniously without CONSTANT EFFORT upon the part of the persons making up society, and when through selfishness or laziness, or from any other cause, a person does not try to be agreeable, he generally falls into the other extreme.

WE ARE ALL SELFISH. Some philosophers say that selfishness is the salt that preserves the world from corruption and decay, and these cynics go so far as to aver that martyrs and saints and devotees and Damiens give their lives to toil and suffering and death in the hope of earning heavenly rewards above their fellows.

IF THESE THEORIES ARE CORRECT WE CANNOT HOPE TO ESCAPE SELFISHNESS AS THE BASIS OF OUR CHARACTER, BUT WE CAN AND WE OUGHT TO AVOID THOSE OUTWARD MANIFESTATIONS THAT ANNOY OTHER PEOPLE. IN FACT, WE MUSTN'T LET OUR SELFISHNESS MAKE US DISAGREEABLE.

DEPORTATION LAWS AND LABOR

By WHITELAW REID

I VENTURE to predict that the time will come within the lives of many who now hear me when the man who shall propose the incorporation as a state into this government of the United States of America of any island of the sea, the Philippines, the Sandwich Islands or Porto Rico or Cuba, WILL BE HUNTED FROM POLITICAL LIFE as a public enemy, whether he be animated merely by lingering reminiscences of the filibusters and the slavery propaganda or whether he represent the sugar trust in Wall street or a sagebrush trust in the United States senate.

* * *

Are we finding the safe course when we hold public meetings for an immigrant detained and about to be deported to protest against the enforcement of the law in his case, since the poor man was merely under contract for preaching anarchy, while we have not one word of protest against the arrest and deportation of a laborer when he is guilty—the wretch—of coming under a contract TO EARN AN HONEST LIVING BY HONEST TOIL?

Are we taking the safe course to preserve the blessings of liberty for ourselves and our posterity if, after fighting four years to free negro labor in the south, we now, under this new guidance, permit organizations unknown to the law to ENSLAVE WHITE LABOR in every building and manufacturing center in the north? Are we following that safe course if an honest laborer can be driven from his employment and denied work anywhere at his trade because he obeyed the call of the governor of his state on the militia of the state TO MAINTAIN ORDER in the state?

The Responsibility of the Rich Hebrew

By RABBI EMIL G. HIRSCH of Chicago

JUDAISM is judged by the deeds of the RICH Hebrews alone, and yet there is no greater fallacy than the assumption that the rich Hebrews REPRESENT our people.

The individual acts of the wealthy representatives of our people reflect for good or evil upon the entire race. If one of the Rothschilds buys a rare lapdog the act is recorded in the newspapers of the world as one which is typical of the people of Israel in all lands.

But where we have one Rothschild we have hundreds of thousands of poor ghetto folk, winning a scanty living by arduous toil. The Hebrews have never been rich as a people, and IT IS THE RICH HEBREW, NOT THE PEASANT, WHO HAS BROUGHT DISCREDIT UPON THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by
J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y.,
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

IN THE WOLVERENE STATE

Michigan Patrons Are a Notably Business Body at State Meetings.

"The Michigan state grange has outgrown even the wildest dreams of its originators," says a Detroit paper. And that is so. With a membership of over 42,000 it is pressing New York hard for first place. It was deemed wise to reduce the representation to the state grange to two delegates to every five granges, and yet on that basis there were 350 delegates present at the annual meeting. In his annual address Worthy Master Horton remarked upon the phenomenal growth of the Order in that state and upon what it has accomplished in co-operative buying of farm supplies. Members of the Order bought over a thousand tons of fertilizers last year, and next year's order for binder twine will amount to 450 tons, while a contract for woven wire fence is now in force of greater magnitude than any contract ever undertaken by the grange. The treasury of the grange is in good condition, receipts for the year having been $10,856, and there is already $15,000 loaned on good security. Primary election reform was one of the chief topics discussed. It is a pressing question just now in Michigan. The grange made a most emphatic declaration respecting it, adopting the following recommendation of the legislative committee:

"We recommend that the grange, through its legislative committee and proper officers, urge the next legislature to pass a state primary election law providing for the nomination of all officers, state, county and township, by direct vote of the members of their respective political parties; that nominations be made by petition and not by fee; that the primaries of all parties be held at the same time and under the supervision and charge of the state and at public expense."

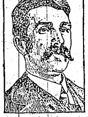
Among other important resolutions adopted were these: Indorsing parcel post, favoring nature study in the public schools and centralization of schools in such counties as might like to make the experiment, asking for a law to regulate speed of automobiles, favoring the Torrens system of recording land titles, requesting the state legislature to prohibit the manufacture, sale and use of cigarettes in Michigan, asking that the bounty for killing English sparrows be restored, favoring the election of United States senators by popular vote and many others of lesser importance.

It is said that the state grange will organize a cyclone insurance company at the next annual meeting. Risks will be taken and a board of directors chosen prior to the meeting next year.

J. O. WING.

Worthy Master of the Washington State Grange.

J. O. Wing was born at Rockford, Ill., in 1857. Mr. Wing's early life was spent on the farm, where he attended public school. His education was finished at Syracuse, N. Y., while living with his uncle, the late Bishop Peck of that city. In 1878, at Caledonia, Trempealeau county, Wis., he married Miss Hulda Beardsley. He united with the grange in 1881. In 1884 he moved to Washington and settled in the primitive wilderness. He was elected master of the Washington state grange in 1901. A friend writes of him: "It is safe to say that no man has done more for the grange in his state than he. The Order is in a prosperous condition and is putting on a solid, substantial growth."



J. O. WING.

A Good Record.

Recent returns from 162 subordinate granges in Maine fully maintain the average increase of the year and indicate that the total membership in the state in this time exceeds 40,000. This shows a net yearly gain of almost 2,800 during the past six years, a record of which the Order may well be proud.

Indiana Patrons Meet.

The Indiana state grange met this year at Warsaw. Under the magnificent leadership of Hon. Aaron Jones, who is also master of the national grange, Indiana Patrons had only good things to report. The grange is in a flourishing condition throughout the state.

We get out of life just what we put into it: the world has for us just what we have for it. The grange has for us what we have for it, and no bank pays dividends which has no deposits.—G. A. Fuller.

Probably the oldest granger in the state of Maine is William H. Dearing of Saco, now in his ninety-second year.

Delegates to state granges chosen at Pomona granges must be elected by written ballot, same as officers of the grange.

About 3,000 Patrons in 120 granges in Massachusetts ship milk to the Boston markets.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

Loss of Flesh

When you can't eat breakfast, take Scott's Emulsion. When you can't eat bread and butter, take Scott's Emulsion. When you have been living on a milk diet and want something a little more nourishing, take Scott's Emulsion.

To get fat you must eat fat. Scott's Emulsion is a great fattener, a great strength giver.

Those who have lost flesh want to increase all body tissues, not only fat. Scott's Emulsion increases them all, bone, flesh, blood and nerve.

For invalids, for convalescents, for consumptives, for weak children, for all who need flesh, Scott's Emulsion is a rich and comfortable food, and a natural tonic.

Scott's Emulsion for bone, flesh, blood and nerve.

We will send you a free sample.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

IN newspaper controversy the rapier is a better weapon than the bludgeon. It does the work just as effectively and leaves the corpse in more presentable condition.

THE Minnesota editors will hold their annual convention at Minneapolis February 18 and 19. A banquet will be tendered the scribes and their ladies by the Commercial club.

ACCORDING to the expense account of the United States senate, 30,000 quinine pills were consumed by that body during the last year. No wonder that there issomuch bitterness in that body.

THE indorsement of Prest. Roosevelt by the Arkansas Republicans loses uothing of its weight when it is considered that Republicans in that state are a little less numerous than feathers on a monkey.

IN Oklahoma, where charters come cheap, a railway has been chartered to run "from the North Pole to the Southern Cross, and from Hades to Breakfast." When it comes to builing railroads the Oklahomans lead the world.

SENATOR SMOOT has made answer to the charges brought against him before the committee on privileges and elections. The Utah senator denies emphatically that he is a polygamist or that he ever had but one, his present, wife. He also denies that he is under any oath or obligation to the Mormon church which conflicts with his oath as a senator.

IN an opinion delivered by Chief Justice Fuller in the supreme court of the United States it is decided that the citizens of Porto Rico are not aliens of this country and that therefore they are entitled to enter this country without obstruction. The decision was based entirely on the immigration act of 1891, and took the ground that the Porto Ricans owe allegiance to the United States and to no other government.

THE Thief River Falls Review calls on County Attorney Grady to "go after" the newspaper "combine," and asserts that there is no question but the courts would hold it illegal. Passing the question whether or not a "combine" exists, we would refer the Review to a decision rendered nine months ago by Judge Baxter at Fergus Falls. The newspapers of Ottertail county made a joint bid for the county printing at legal rates, and in an action brought to restrain the county commissioners from carrying out the contract entered into, the judge holds that there was no attempt to do anything illegal or to get more pay than the law allows. As the Review editor is apparently unfamiliar with recent Minnesota history the above information is offered for what it is worth. If any more legal advice is wanted we shall expect the usual retainer.

"STONY LONESOME."

Anyone who has been fortunate enough to read Albert J. Russell's new book, "Stony Lonesome," will appreciate the following review of the work by the editor of the Litchville, N. D., Bulletin:

A. J. Russell, whose front name is Albert, has written a book. He has also written some other things, notably some very good paragraphs for the Minneapolis Journal. In fact it has been alleged that he does more to keep the people of half a dozen states in good humor than the weather man—in winter! Mr. Russell's book is called "Stony Lonesome," after a little town 'way down in Posey county, Indiana, where Albert first saw the light of day and wore stone bruises and calico shirts made from dad's old ones. "Stony Lonesome" was mostly inhabited by boys—the real article, too. Boys who went barefooted from May until November, played mumblepeg, two-old-cat and raised the dickens daily with the few sober grown-up folks of the town who had forgotten that they were once boys. "Stony Lonesome" is a pretty good book, and has a nice-looking illuminated cover and plenty ot pictures all through it. It will adorn any center table in the land. We hope never to see the back of our neck if the first chapter didn't make us want to go out and stuff putty in the keyhole of the postoffice, and before we got through with the book the woman who keeps buttons on our clothes had to blow cut all the lights and order us off to bed, and we went for all the world feeling like we did thirty-five years ago. We then lay awake half the night reviewing all those elegant pranks we used to play, and somehow we knew every little cuss whom Russell brings back to life in his interesting book. The next day the Litchville druggist got mad because we tied a tin can to the tail of his red Irish setter dog, and told us we were old enough to know better. The boys in "Stony Lonesome" were just as much opposed to washing their soil-kissed feet as were the eminently respectable members of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce in the long ago. The book is full of boys we all know, and their antics are so cleverly sketched they appear to live and we remember every rascal of them. The cash sales of "Stony Lonesome" have not caused any trouble to the publisher, however. Beekman, over on Sixth street, St. Paul, sold a copy several weeks ago. A Swede mason, just over, enroute to North Dakota, wished to inform himself as to the best method of laying boulders into a wall, wandered into the book shop and purchased a copy. He left town before ascertaining he had secured a scientific work on the prolongation of life instead of a stone mason's guide. He swapped it to the Bulletin man for a meal ticket, and it tickled us so much the mason is still boarding on the ticket. We expect to pay about $8 on that man's board for we've gotten that much fun out of the book. "Stony Lonesome" is worth $8 to any man who was ever a boy. It's worth twice that sum to any half-baked individual who was born with a disordered liver. It sells for 80 cents and every newsdealer in the country has a large supply somewhere in his back room. Mr. Russell will doubtless send a copy for that price and pay the postage himself. You see there is considerable rivalry between St. Paul and Minneapolis and Russell is anxious to secure as large a sale in Minneapolis as that reported by Beekman, of St. Paul.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Princeton Union: Two of the old war veterans of the Confederacy, Longstreet and Gordon, have passed into the Camp Eternal. They were noble men and when the war ended set to work to advance the interests of a re-united country.

St. James Journal: Alfred Henry Lewis says that if Judge Parker, of New York, should be elected to the presidency the country would be relieved in one way, there would be no children at the White House for visitors and newspapers to gush mushily over.

Commoner: Mr. Hanna was re-elected senator on the 13th. By providing for all contingencies before electing the legislature, instead of afterwards, Mr. Hanna saved himself considerable annoyance and incidentally made it possible to take a run home from Washington occasionally.

Fairmont Sentinel: A sample of the methods of the postoffice grafters is found in the statement of a Wisconsin postmaster to the effect that he was notified at one time that he would soon received a new automatic cash register for the use of his office. Such a bit of furniture was not needed, and the postmaster so notified the department, whereupon he received a letter from Mr. Beavers, of the division of salaries and allowances, expressing surprise that "a sick man should not know what was good for him," and explaining that as the machine had been prescribed to relieve the sufferings in his office he should shut his eyes and swallow the dose. In due time the automatic cashier arrived, and was paid for out of the receipts of the office. It was immediately consigned to the cellar, and has been there ever since.

When men screen sand the fine particles sift through and the big particles do not, but when men reach in their pockets for money as the church collection basket starts around the big coins slip through and the little ones come to the surface. Funny isn't it?

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

Don't forget about "The Deacon" next spring.

Marie Page visited the high school Wednesday afternoon.

The Virgil class has been doing work in scanning lately.

This week will be the finish of most of the half-year studies.

The second year English class are working on descriptions in Marmion.

The warm basement seems to be the favorite abode of the boys during the intermissions.

The final test of higher algebra will be on Friday. Solid geometry will be indulged in next.

"B-z-z-z-z," hissed the noisy radiator. "B-r-r-r-r!" replied the shivering knowledge seeker.

The ancient history class will have a test Thursday and will take up mediaeval history next week.

The final test of the geology class will be held on Friday. The class will take up physical geography instead.

Janitor Phillion is greatly improved from his recent illness and will probably be at the high school again next week.

The physiology class will study Botany after the final examination this week. They will find that Botany is a nice study. We did.

The English history class will have a final test Thursday. The remainder of the term will be taken up with the study of senior American history.

It is now January 21, and not a 1904 calendar in the high school. One of those beautiful calendars would look well on the walls of the assembly room.

The civic division of the Freshman class will have a parting test in commercial geography in the latter part of this week and will then take up senior grammar.

The clock was generous to the "always tardy" pupils Monday morning. It stopped for two hours at a quarter of nine, thus allowing them to get here on time.

It wes 12:30. Peel after peel rent the air. "Do you need help?" inquired an excited passerby of the janitor. "No," he replied, "it's only our noon boarders throwing away their banana skins.

The debate will be held on the coming Friday. The question is: "Resolved, That Cabinet Ministers Should Have a Seat and the Right to Vote in Congress." The Spartans have the negative, and their debaters are Doretta Matthies, Orson Doe and Lucy Hunt. The Athenians will be represented by Ralph Healy, Mabel Zaiser and Mabel Rue.

The program of the Spartans for January 29 is as follows: Song, school; recitation, Rosa Cyr; essay, Verne Healy; biography, Blanche Berthiaume; vocal solo, Iza Tibbetts; recitation, Clement LaBissoniere; essay, Clara Marchand; oration, Will Ittner; mandolin trio, Dan Johnson, Harry Garceau and Orson Doe; book review, Emma Allard; oration, Olive Gjerberg; original story, Ewald Zaiser; song, school.

COURIER BARGAIN ...SALE...

A CHANCE TO GET THE COURIER, THE ST. PAUL DISPATCH, AND THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST AN ENTIRE YEAR FOR ONLY ONE DOLLAR......

THE COURIER WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER THE COMING YEAR ☙ EVERYBODY MAY TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER, OLD SUBSCRIBERS AS WELL AS NEW ☙ TELL YOUR FRIENDS OF THIS OPPORTUNITY

IN order to encourage the payment of the coming year's subscriptions in advance, we have decided to hold a BARGAIN DAY SALE, after the manner of many successful merchants, when we will offer THE COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist all one year for $1.00, the regular price of THE COURIER alone. The regular price of these three papers is $2.25. For two days, on

Saturday, February 13, and Monday, February 15,

you can pay one dollar and get all three of these papers for an entire year. This is a special bargain offer, good only for the days named. After these dates the regular prices will be charged.

The quality of THE COURIER is going to be better than ever during the coming year. This bargain offer is made because we desire as many subscriptions as possible paid in advance, and we are willing to make a sacrifice in order to secure the payment of a large number. No subscriber ought to miss this chance. Those in arrears may secure the same privilege for the coming year by paying up arrearages. If you do not know how much you owe ask us to send you a statement.

Subscribers who are not able to call personally at the office on February 13 or 15, may send in their dollar by mail. Drafts, checks and money orders mailed on February 11, 12, 13, 14 or 15 will be accepted on the bargain offer the same as cash. Cash payments at the office, however, can be made only on the dates named, February 13 and 15.

If you can't come to the office, send your dollar. THE COURIER and the two other papers one year for one dollar is too good an offer for anyone in Red Lake county to miss. No one can afford to be without it or borrow his neighbor's paper.

REMEMBER THE DATES, FEBRUARY 13 AND 15, AND HAVE YOUR DOLLAR READY.......

"I had suffered for a long time and for three weeks was down in bed, unable to move without great pain because of pains in my back, which several doctors pronounced lumbago. They failed to give me any relief whatever. A sample bottle of Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure greatly relieved me. I bought and used two more bottles and was completely cured, although my occupation as a dyer requires me to be much about water and often my clothing becomes damp or very wet. I have suffered no return of the trouble nor any signs of rheumatism. Yours truly, FRED BRANDT, 213 N. Elbright St., Muncie, Ind."

St. Hilaire Spectator: Messrs. J. M. Bray, Z. Bray and Julius Bourdon, of Red Lake Falls, were here Friday morning returning from a trip to Crookston. They were making arrangements for a trip to Mountain Home, Idaho, where a number of their friends have located and where some of them expect to move and engage in business.

Frank Jeffers is in receipt of a letter from the New York Life which states that the company has paid twenty-one policies, aggregating $39,000, on lives lost in the Iroquois theatre disaster. All of the policies were for small amounts, and most of them were carried by women, as is evident from the fact that few men lost their lives in the fire.

Our patrons who are members of the grange will please note that The Courier is devoting a column to the general news of the order. This column is edited by J. W. Darrow, press correspondent of the New York state grange, who is admitted to be the leading writer on grange topics. This column will appear each week, and ought to be of special interest to the members of the grange.

H. L. Stafford, an experienced machinery man, arrived in Red Lake Falls Friday to work for Joseph Helm during the coming season. Mr. Stafford is a decidedly prepossessing young man, and as he has had many years experience in the machinery business he will doubtless prove a valuable addition to the force at Mr. Helm's emporium. The Courier is indebted for a pleasant call from Mr. Stafford.

Oliver T. Romsos was over from Wylie Monday to meet a traveling man, of whom he bought a bill of spring goods. Mr. Romsos reports business good for this time of year and anticipates a large spring trade. Romsos Bros. have one of the best general stores in the state for a town the size of Wylie, and as they are hustling business men and mighty good fellows in the bargain have met with splendid success.

The Northern Pacific spur to the Northern Minnesota Milling company's plant is undergoing repairs this week. The pile driver and a crew of twenty-five men will be here Monday, and it is expected that the work will be finished in about two weeks. Heretofore the milling company has been under a great disadvantage, as it has been necessary to haul all of the wheat to the mill and the flour to the depot.

Bemidji Pioneer: F. A. Grady, of Red Lake Falls, county attorney of Red Lake county, is in the city today. Mr. Grady is attorney for Mr. Chatel, a Red Lake Falls man, who recently put fourteen head of horses into one of the Irwin & O'Brien camps near Blackduck. Mr. Chatel decided to take the horses out but the lumber company holds that they were put in under contract. Replevin proceedings will be instituted.

It is reported that the large department store company that was recently organized at Fertile has gone broke. A large number of farmers who live in the vicinity of Fertile are heavy losers, as it is said that they furnished most of the capital, which amounts up into the thousands, to start the venture. The farmers were warned by the business men of that village not to go into the deal, as it was more or less a fake.

Chas. J. Chapman, wholesale druggist, and also a stockholder in the DeVelda Drug & Remedy company, of Duluth, left Monday afternoon for his home in that city, after spending a week at the bedside of his father-in-law, John Sutter. Mrs. Chapman will remain for a time to visit friends and relatives. We regret that Mr. Chapman was called on such a sad mission, but hope he will make Red Lake Falls many future visits.

L. C. Simons will leave Monday for a six weeks' sojourn in California. He will visit various part of the West. This is the season of the year when all of us long to get away from Minnesota for a season to bask in the sunshine of a warmer climate, but since the most of us for good and sufficient reasons are unable to gratify the desire we can hug the stove a little tighter and wait for Mr. Simons to get back and tell us what a delightful time he had.

Dr. Lanctot, ophthalmologist of Crookston, will be at the Grand View hotel from 12:40 p. m., January 27, to 2:25 p. m., January 28. See him about your eyes or any other trouble caused wholly or partly by eye strain. Complete examination, analysis and correction of ordinary cases, $10.00 cash; cross eyes, $15.00 to $50.00; "old sight" alone, $5.00 cash. Good results assured in each case or money refunded. Reference, First National Bank of Crookston.

C. O. Kankel, the Terrebonne miller, in sending an order to The Courier for job work, adds a postscript to the effect that a young miller arrived at his home Friday morning. It is not as yet known whether the young fellow amounts to anything, but as he has offered to work for his board and clothes for the next twenty-one years Mr. Kankel has decided to accept the proposition. We are pleased to learn that the mother and child are doing nicely.

Marriage licenses were issued by Clerk Perrault this week to the following parties; Chris. Strom and Josephine Larson, both of Thief River Falls; Elias Hjelle of Marshall county, and Marie Johnson, of Thief River Falls; Ranil O'Niel and Maud Winters, both of Red Lake Falls township; Daniel Lefebvre and Delia Champagne, both of Poplar River; Armand Corbeil and Coranna Lafebvre, both of Poplar River; Jno. Kehoe and Mabel Pollock, both of Red Lake Falls city.

Rev. H. W. Knox, of Thief River Falls, will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church again Sunday morning and evening. It is given out that Rev. Knox has been extended a call to this pastorate, and it is altogether likely that he will accept and engage upon his work at once. He is a good speaker, and the Thief River people speak highly of his ability as a pastor. Rev. Knox is married, and expects to move down here as soon as the details of the call have been arranged.

The band concert Friday evening was one of the best musical entertainments ever given by the boys, and another gratifying feature about it was the increased attendance. Practically every seat in the opera house was filled. The trombone solo by Harry Healy and the violin and cello duet by Messrs. Onstad and Berthon were features worthy of special mention. The entire program was first-class and demonstrates that our band has few equals in Minnesota or any other state for a town of this size.

The officers of the Red Lake Falls grange were installed last night at the regular meeting. They are as follows: Ildage Baril, master; A. D. Dufault, secretary; Frank Cyr, overseer; George Marchildon, treasurer; Mrs. Addie Longtin, lecturer; Oliver Caron, chaplain; W. F. Chatel, steward; T. Grandbois, gatekeeper; J. H. Lasha, assistant steward; Clara Cyr, ladies' steward; Stella Marchildon, Pomona; Mrs. Amanda Ducharme, Ceres; Annie Cyr, Flora. A number of new members were received and the meeting was highly successful in every respect. The next meeting will be held February 3.

Grip

Brought On Sciatic Rheumatism.

Nervous Prostration Followed.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Back Health.

"I was laid up during the winter of 94-95 with sciatic rheumatism and nervous prostration brought on by a severe attack of La-Grippe. The rheumatic pains were so severe at times that it was impossible for me to turn in bed. I was unable to sleep. I had two of our best physicians in attendance, took all the advertised remedies for troubles of this kind but got no help whatever until I took Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Six bottles restored me to health; I am better than for years; in fact am entirely relieved. I can say with a clear conscience that it was Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine that restored me to health. When the pains of sciatica and rheumatism were most severe I secured almost immediate relief by the use of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. I have recommended Dr. Miles' Remedies to many people."—Fred Myers, Redfield, S. D.

"I was taken with pain in my heart and under the left shoulder; with such heavy oppressed feeling in my chest that I could hardly breathe. I had palpitation so bad and my heart would throb so that it would shake my whole bed. I also had a weak, all-gone feeling in the region of my heart. My doctor treated me for liver and stomach trouble but I failed to receive any benefit until a friend recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine. I used both and one box of the Anti-Pain Pills. I believe I am completely and permanently cured."—Mrs. J. W. Golding, Noblesville, Ind.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. RUSSIA YIELDS TO BRITISH THREAT

Great Britain Will Carry Out All Obligations Imposed Upon Her by Her Treaties.

This Statement Made by Premier Balfour Causes Russians to Halt in War Preparations—In the Event of a Clash the United States May Become Involved.

London, Jan. 18.—The surrender of Russia to Japan because of the announced determination of Great Britain to adhere to the uttermost to the terms of the Anglo-Japanese treaty is reported by the Russian correspondent of the Times.

Opening to general commerce of all the important ports in Manchuria, the complete withdrawal of Russian pretensions to Corea, and the possible abandonment of Port Arthur as a military stronghold, are the most important points in the terms of surrender as reported.

The determination of the czar thus to sue for peace at the cost of a crushing blow to Russian prestige is attributed to the bold pronouncement by Premier Balfour in discussing the Anglo-Japanese treaty in a speech at Manchester last Monday night.

Premier Balfour's Threat.

"Great Britain to the fullest extent," said the premier at that time, "will carry out all the obligations imposed upon her by her treaties."

In its leading editorial the following morning the Daily News interpreted this declaration as "a plain and unnecessary threat to Russia." That it was a warning to the government at St. Petersburg was questioned by none. Its decisive effect, if the dispatches to the Times are confirmed, will be regarded as the greatest British diplomatic triumph in recent years.

China Embarrasses Russia.

The Port Arthur correspondent of the Daily Mail says China's firmness in reoccupying Mukden has complicated Russia's arrangements for the defense of Manchuria. It doubles the difficulties of guarding the long line of communications between the boundaries and the coast line. There are about 200,000 Russian troops in Manchuria. Half of them are employed in guarding the railway, which is 2,000 versts long.

America May Be Involved.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Inflammatory utterances against foreigners in the native press of Corea have brought sharply to the attention of the officials in Washington the possibility of an attack upon the Americans in Seoul and Chemulpo in the event of the expected war between Russia and Japan.

While the United States will do its utmost to prevent being drawn into the imbroglio, all possible precautionary measures to secure the safeguarding of American lives and property are being taken under the direction of the navy department.

TWO MEN KILLED.

Explosion Occurs with Awful Results in Powder Mills Near Peoria, Ill.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 13.—A terrific explosion Tuesday noon at the Buckeye powder mills, 15 miles west of this city, on the Burlington road, resulted in the death of two employes and the partial destruction of the plant. Twenty thousand pounds of blasting powder blew up, and the noise of the explosion, which shook the earth for miles around, was plainly heard in this city. William Justice and Leonard Shaller, the two employes killed, were blown 300 feet in the air and a distance of 400 yards from the scene. The mill is a new one opened last October and employs over 100 men.

Hanna Declared Elected.

Columbus, O., Jan 14.—In the presence of the joint assembly of the members of the Ohio senate and house Lieut. Gov. Warren G. Harding yesterday declared Marcus A. Hanna reelected United States senator for the term of six years, beginning March 4, 1905. The two branches in separate session had given Senator Hanna the largest majority ever given a senator from this state.

Man Freezes to Death.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—Matthew Maher, aged 35 years, a prominent citizen of Assumption, Christian county, was found frozen to death on the road side between Moweaqua and Assumption Wednesday morning. He had been to Moweaqua to purchase a team of horses. The horses he was driving returned to Assumption, and this caused a search to be instituted for Maher.

Goes to St. Louis.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The next democratic national convention will be held in St. Louis July 6. This was the decision of the democratic national committee, reached at a late hour yesterday afternoon.

Bank Closed.

Auburn, Ind., Jan. 15.—The Farmers' bank failed to open its doors yesterday morning and a notice posted on the doors promised that the bank would pay out dollar for dollar.

Hanna Reelected.

Columbus, O., Jan. 13.—The Ohio legislature by separate ballots of the house and senate yesterday voted to return Marcus A. Hanna to the United States senate for a second term.

Transport Arrives.

San Francisco, Jan. 15.—The United States transport Sheridan has arrived from Manila with the Twenty-eighth infantry on board.

THE ISTHMIAN POLICY.

Secretary of War Root Makes a Statement Concerning the Attitude of This Country.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Shortly after a cabinet meeting Secretary Root issued the following statement regarding the isthmian policy of the administration:

"The publication in various quarters of news indicating that the government is preparing to send troops to the isthmus to carry on military operations against Colombia has been the source of considerable annoyance to the executive and to the war department. No state of war exists between the two countries; no inauguration of hostilities is contemplated by this government; no preparation for war is being made. It is not believed by the president, nor by the secretary of state, that any occasion for the employment of troops on the isthmus is likely to arise.

"It is difficult to believe that the authorities in Bogota can be so blinded by passion and prejudice as to declare war against us; and even if this ruinous step should be taken by Colombia, this government would be in no haste to respond to her challenge. We have done them no wrong; we would like to be of service to them, and if they are wise they will not put it out of our power to help them by any act of rashness and violence."

NEARING THE END.

Iroquois Theater Fire Investigation Is About Over—Another of the Victims Passes Away.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Coroner Traeger begins to see the end of the Iroquois theater fire investigation. He expressed the belief that the inquest would be over by Wednesday. The jury, however, will probably consume several days in reaching its verdict, which will not only aim to fix the responsibility for the awful disaster, but will also contain recommendations bearing upon the construction and management of theaters.

Another victim of the Iroquois disaster, bringing the total number of deaths of 593, was added Saturday when Rev. C. L. Roberts, pastor of the Hamline Methodist Episcopal church, died at the West Side hospital from burns and injuries received at the theater fire.

AN AFRICAN WAR.

Tribe of Blacks in Demaraland Revolts and Slaughters German Garrison.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—Official dispatches received from Windhoek, capital of Demaraland, German southwest Africa, show that the Hereros tribe of blacks has risen in revolt, slaughtered part of the German garrison at Okahandya, a mission station, and is threatening the capital itself. All the black natives appear to be well armed. Thousands of them are mounted on horses they have stolen from settlers whose farms they have raided. The German troops are totally inadequate to meet the crisis and the militia of Damaraland has been called out. The Hereros tribe numbers between 30,000 and 40,000 warriors.

Confirmed.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations: Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, to be lieutenant general; Brig. Gen. George I. Gillespie, to be major general; Col. Alexander McKenzie, to be brigadier general and chief of engineers; John J. Sullivan, United States attorney, northern district of Ohio; Robert S. Cowie, Wisconsin, to be deputy auditor for the navy department.

Lumber Yard Destroyed.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—The Peter Vredenburg Lumber company, of this city, suffered a $50,000 loss by fire Sunday afternoon, when their large lumber yard was entirely destroyed. Thousands of feet of lumber were consumed and the local fire department was unable to cope with the flames in the high wind. Eight horses were burned to death. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Eight Persons Killed.

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—A crowd of employes pressing against the elevator gate on the sixth floor of the Brown Shoe company building caused the gate to give way and ten persons were plunged down the shaft. Six were taken out dead and the other four, seriously injured, were hurried to the city hospital. Two of the injured died soon after reaching the hospital and without regaining consciousness.

Bank Closes Doors.

Mount Ayr, Ia., Jan. 18.—The Citizens' bank of Mount Ayr, owned by Ray Dunning, made a general assignment Saturday to John Patterson, county treasurer. The liabilities are placed at $450,000. Dunning is a large landowner and a decline in prices is thought to be responsible for the failure. The bank was established 23 years ago.

James L. Blair Dead.

Eustis, Fla., Jan. 18.—James L. Blair, former counsel general for the St. Louis exposition, died here Saturday. He came here from St. Louis in search of health, but last Monday he was seized with a congestive chill, which he could not shake off.

Last Honors Paid.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 15.—Attended by military honors with the homage of his state and the southland, Gen. John B. Gordon, soldier, statesman and citizen, and the south's last great figure of the civil war, was buried in Oakland cemetery yesterday.

Gov. Cummins Inaugurated.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 15.—Gov. Albert B. Cummins was inaugurated governor of Iowa for the second time yesterday, Supreme Court Justice H. E. Deemer administering the oath of office.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Officers Elected.

C. N. Cosgrove of Le Sueur was elected for a third term as president of the State Agricultural society at the closing session of the annual meeting; B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis, first vice president; and Chester R. Smith of St. Paul, second vice president, were also re-elected, but exchanged places, Mr. Smith becoming first vice president and Mr. Nelson second. Secretary E. W. Randall and Treasurer F. J. Wilcox will no doubt be reappointed by the board of managers at their next meeting, Jan. 19, at the Merchants' hotel, St. Paul.

Of the board of managers N. S. Gordon, Crookston; J. C. Curryer Mankato; J. M. Underwood, Lake City, and L. D. Baird, Austin, hold over. William E. Lee, Long Prairie, whose term expired, was re-elected by acclamation; Colonel W. M. Liggett, dean of the state agricultural college, was also re-elected with little opposition.

Burned to Death.

A report received from the town of St. Anna, in northern Stearns county, tells of a fatal burning. The accident occured in the home of Rohurs Symanietz, living near the St. Anna church.

The mother left her two youngest children, aged 1 and 3 years, in the house alone, while she went on an errand to a neighbor's. The father was attending to his stock at the barn, and heard the horrible screams of the the children. Rushing to the house he found the clothing of both his children in flames.

With great presence of mind he seized both, carried them out of doors, rolled them in a snow drift, extinguishing the blaze. A messenger was immediately despatched to Holdingford for a physician, but before his arrival death ended the terrible suffering of the little ones.

Hospital Tragedy.

Mrs. Alice Osborne, who has been at St. Luke's hospital in St. Paul since Sept. 23, jumped from an interior fire escape on the second floor to the basement of the building and died soon afterward. Death, it is said, resulted from concussion of the brain. The young woman also broke her right arm and was bruised about the face.

Mrs. Osborne was thirty-five years old and the wife of B. F. Osborne, proprietor of the Occidental hotel at Casselton, N. D. She was suffering from melancholia, and was brought to St. Luke's hospital last September for treatment and was at all times under the care of special nurces. Her condition improved from the beginning, and recently Mrs. Osborne was permitted to take walks in the city under the care of a nurse.

Dying With Hiccoughs.

Hiccoughing at the rate of twenty times a minute, Joseph Kollak, an employe at a logging camp near Duluth, tottered up the steps at St. Mary's hospital in Duluth, to seek medical relief. He is said to be slowly dying.

The case is a pitiful one. Kollak has been afflicted with hiccoughs for the past ten days, and was driven from the camp by his companions, because he kept them awake at night. Kollak, after having suffered with the malady so long, was weak and could scarcely walk to the nearest railroad station to come to Duluth.

Rural Delivery.

The records of the rural free delivery division of the postoffice department show 1,243 applications for the establishment of rural routes in Minnesota. Of these 761 have been reported on favorably and routes have been established or will be established by Feb. 1. One hundred and seventeen applications were reported on adversely, some because there were not enough families on the proposed routes, others because the roads were not suitable for the service, and still others because conditions imposed by the department were not complied with.

Teacher Examinations.

Examinations for the benefit of those who desire to qualify for the teachers' state certificates will be held at the county seats of the different counties Feb. 4, 5 and 6. An elaborate program, arranged by the state department of public instruction, will be closely followed in each county.

News Notes.

Rueben Tuper, son of Henry Tuper of Chatfield while hunting, accidentally shot himself, dying soon after.

A rear-end collision on the Northern Pacific occured at Elk River, between the local freight and passenger train No. 5. The caboose was almost tore te pieces, altho no one was hurt.

Fire damaged the livery stable of John Redford at Ely.

Seven members of the family of Leo Schultz, 650 Blair street, St. Paul, are suffering from trichnosis. The family are sure that the disease was contracted from eating raw sausage made from fresh pork which they had in the house.

Henry Kleimann was bound over to the grand jury at Mankato, on the charge of assault in the first degree upon Andrew Anderson, a farm hand employed by his wife's brother.

Scarlet fever is said to be epidemic at Tenstrike.

S. A. Berni, a saloon keeper at Minneapolis, has offered a reward of $100 for the capture of the person or persons who have tried to burn his place of business six times within the past two months.

George Dart, a homesteader in the Big Fork country in northern Minnesota, had a thrilling experience. His cabin took fire, and he had to get out into the weather. It was five miles to the nearest neighbor's, and Dart started off, and had to fight with wolves all the way.

Conference to Frame Basis for Treaty with Great Britain Meets at Washington.

Will Try to Extend the Plan Throughout the Entire World—Notable Array of Speakers Address the Meeting—Resolutions Call Upon Congress to Take Preliminary Steps.

Washington, Jan. 13.—A conference called to frame a basis for an arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain and for extension of arbitration throughout the world was held in this city yesterday. There was a notable array of speakers, representing most of the large cities of the country, and messages of indorsement were received from many others. Ex-Secretary Foster was chosen president and Thomas Nelson Page secretary.

Previous Movements.

Gen. Foster reviewed the previous arbitration movements and said that no question can hereafter arise between the United States and Great Britain which will more seriously involve the integrity, the honor of the nation, its vital interests or its independence, than those which already have been submitted to arbitration without serious injury to our interests. He said there never was a time when the two countries were more closely united.

Addresses by Many.

Addresses in advocacy of international arbitration were made by President Jordan, of Stanford university; Frederick W. Seward, New York; Stuyvesant Fish, New York; Thomas Barclay, of London; President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor; Judge Gray, Gov. Durbin, President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton university, and Volney W. Foster, of Chicago.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions adopted called upon congress to take the preliminary steps toward a general arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States. The resolutions further declared that the world had reached a stage of civilization where a resort to arms to settle disputes should no longer be considered as even possible.

Mass Meeting.

A mass meeting was held in the afternoon under the auspices of the National Arbitration conference at the Lafayette theater. Gen. Foster presided, and a number of notable speakers, including Andrew Carnegie and Cardinal Gibbons, occupied the platform. The resolutions adopted by the conference were read and with a resounding chorus of ayes the audience voted its approval. Addresses were made by Cardinal Gibbons, Lieut. Gen. Miles, Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, of New York; J. M. Dickinson and Andrew Carnegie.

Cave-In in a Mine.

Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 16.—Three miners of Colfax, McLean county, were fatally injured by an accident in the mine at Frankfort, Will county, Friday. Charles Fells was almost instantly killed and James Nickerson and John Seymour were so badly hurt that they cannot live. The three men were engaged in sinking a new mine at Frankfort when a cave-in occurred.

Disaster in a Mine.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 18.—By the premature explosion of a shot in the Empire coal mine, five miles from this city, F. A. Street was killed and Earl Street, his brother, received serious injuries.

Negro Lynched.

Gainesville, Fla., Jan. 16.—Jumbo Clark, a negro, was lynched at High Springs. Clark had criminally assaulted a white girl about 14 years old, while she was on her way to school.

Ex-Congressman Dies.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 18.—Former Congressman Lyman N. Barnes died at his home here, aged 48 years.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Daily Summary of Work Done in Senate and House by the Lawmakers of the Nation.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The senate yesterday confirmed the nominations of William H. Taft, of Ohio, secretary of war; Luke E. Wright, Tennessee, civil governor of the Philippines, and Henry C. Ide, Vermont, vice governor of the Philippine islands. In the house the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, carrying $28,258,895, was reported. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Mr. Skiles, of Ohio, were adopted.

Washington, Jan. 13.—For almost five hours yesterday the senate debated the Panama question and it was still under consideration when the senate adjourned. The house considered the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, but reached no conclusions on it. A variety of topics, including Panama and the tariff, were discussed during the course of the debate.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The time in the senate yesterday was occupied in discussing the Panama question. The house, in committee of the whole, struck out the paragraph in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill providing for the salaries and expenses of the civil service commission and the clerks employed under the commission.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The senate yesterday listened to speeches by Senators Newlands and Depew on the Panama canal question, and to a speech by Senator Latimer in advocacy of the adoption of a plan for the improvement of the public wagon roads of the country. The house passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, carrying an aggregate of $29,711,760, and the senate joint resolution, authorizing the erection of a monument to the memory of the late President Benjamin Harrison, and then adjourned until Monday next.

Washington, Jan. 16.—In the senate yesterday a favorable report was made on a bill to pay Liliuokalani, formerly queen of Hawaii, the sum of $200,000 in full satisfaction of all claims to the former crown lands in Hawaii. A bill was introduced providing for a pension of $12 a month for all persons who had 90 days or more military or naval service in the civil war.

Destructive Fire in Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 18.—In one of the most disastrous fires ever experienced in this city an entire block in the heart of the city's business district was, on Sunday night, within the space of one hour reduced to ruins, entailing a loss of nearly $200,000. The fire originated in the boiler rooms of the Wheeling Daily News and spread rapidly, entirely consuming the newspaper plant, which was one of the finest and most complete in the state, a wholesale liquor house owned by Shaefer & Driehorst, and the extensive plant of the Locke Bros. Shoe company.

Dowie in California.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—John Alexander Dowie, with his party of Zionist supporters, has arrived in Los Angeles. He announces that he will remain in San Francisco until January 21, on which date he will leave San Francisco for Australia. He denied that he would build a Zion City in southern California, but said that it was very likely that he would found a city either on the gulf or somewhere on the Pacific coast.

Heavy Liabilities.

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—The Examiner announces the failure of Seymour R. Church, the California pig iron merchant, the liabilities being placed at $320,000. The failure is said to be due to overestimating the capacity of the coast to consume pig iron, resulting in the market being glutted and the general fall in prices all over the country.

Ex-Consul Dead.

Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 18.—Dr. Pollock F. Hyatt, who was United States consul at Santiago de Cuba for five years prior to the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, died at his home in Jersey Shore Sunday night, aged 68. During the civil war Dr. Hyatt was surgeon of Carver hospital, Washington, D. C.

Formal Announcements of Republican and Democratic Gatherings Are Made.

TEXT OF THE DOCUMENT GIVEN OUT BY CHAIRMAN HANNA

Basis of Representation for Convention—Ex-Senator Jones Requests All Loyal Democrats to Send Delegates to St. Louis Meeting—Socialists Issue Call.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The much-discussed call for the assembling of the republican hosts at Chicago on June 21 has been issued by Senator M. A. Hanna, of Ohio, chairman of the national republican committee. It follows in its important details the wording of the call for the last national republican convention and reads as follows:

"To the republican electors of the United States:

"In accordance with established custom, and in obedience to instructions of the national convention of 1900, the national republican committee directs that a national convention of delegated representatives of the republican party be held at the city of Chicago, in the state of Illinois, for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and vice president, to be voted for at the presidential election, Tuesday, November 8, 1904, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it, and that said convention shall assemble at 12 o'clock (noon) on Tuesday, the 21st day of June, 1904.

Invitation to Electors.

"The republican electors of the several states and territories, the District of Columbia, Alaska and Indian Territory and all other electors, without regard to past political affiliations, who believe in the principles of the republican party and indorse its policies are cordially invited to unite under this call in the selection of candidates for president and vice president.

"Said national convention shall consist of a number of delegates-at-large from each state equal to double the number of United States senators to which each state is entitled, and for each representative-at-large in congress two delegates-at-large; from each congressional district and the District of Columbia two delegates; from each of the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Hawaii and Indian Territory six delegates; from Alaska four delegates. For each delegate elected to said convention an alternate delegate shall be elected to act in case of the absence of the delegate, such alternate delegate to be elected at the time and in the manner of electing the delegate.

Election of Delegates.

"All delegates shall be elected not less than 30 days before the meeting of the national convention. Delegates-at-large shall be elected by popular state and territorial conventions, of which at least 30 days' notice shall have been published in some newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the respective states and territories.

"All notices of contest shall be submitted in writing, accompanied by a printed statement setting forth the grounds of contest, which shall be filed with the secretary of the national committee 20 days prior to the meeting of the national convention. Contests will be acted on by the national convention in the order of the date of filing of notice and statement with the secretary.

"M. A. HANNA, Chairman.

"PERRY S. HEATH, Secretary."

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Chairman Jones of National Committee Issues Call.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The following official call was issued Monday for the assembling of the democratic national convention at St. Louis July 6 next:

"Washington, Jan. 18.—The democratic national committee, having met in the city of Washington on the 12th day of January, 1904, has appointed Wednesday, the 6th day of July, 1904, as the time, and chosen St. Louis, Mo., as the place, for holding the next democratic national convention.

"Each state is entitled to representation therein equal to double the number of its senators and representatives in the congress of the United States, and each territory, Alaska, Indian territory and the District of Columbia, shall have six delegates.

"All democratic citizens of the United States who can unite with us in the effort for a pure, economical and constitutional government, are cordially invited to join us in sending delegates to the convention.

"JAMES K. JONES, Chairman.

"C. A. WALSH, Secretary.

Socialists Issue Call.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 19.—The executive committee of the national socialist party, in session in Omaha, Monday issued a call for a national convention to meet in Chicago May 1. The call, after stating the result of the referendum vote in place of meeting, says the basis of representation shall be one delegate for each 100 members in good standing and one delegate at large from each state.

German Empress Sustains Injury.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—Empress Augusta Victoria is suffering from a slight injury to her foot, necessitating a cancellation of her court for ladies, fixed for January 20. The debutantes will be presented to the empress at one of the court balls.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

Red Lake Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota.

WE ARE CLUBBING WITH

The Northwestern Agriculturist and the St. Paul Dispatch and we offer extraordinary inducements for our subscribers to pay up their subscriptions now to the RED LAKE COUNTY COURIER. If you pay us now for one year's subscription, plus only 25cents, we will give you a due-bill entitling you to the Northwestern Agriculturist from the date we receive your subscription up to the End of Next Year, 1904,

and the ST. PAUL DISPATCH one year from the date the payment is made. Old subscribers as well as new can take advantage of this offer. All that is required is that they pay up all arrearages and one year in advance.

By taking advantage of this offer immediately the subscriber will get the Northwestern Agriculturist for about a year and a half at a trifling cost. The longer you put off paying us, the shorter the time you will get this great farm paper, for the offer is simply "December 31, 1904, whether you begin now or waite until later.

We can supply only a limited number of Northwestern Agriculturist bue-bills on the above terms, having made a limited contract with that company. Hence, "first come, first served," must be our rule. A sample copy free will be sent to any address on application. all at our office, or write to DISTANCE LENDS ENCHANTMENT.

You long to play in gentle May,
When winter, king of frost, holds sway,
Or sit and spoon in leafy June
To pass an hour or so away.

When it is hot, as like as not
You figure snow would touch the spot,
But let it fly, and soon you cry
The weather mixer should be shot.

There is a charm when safe from harm
Sweet poems on the snow disarm
And calm your fear, but when it's near
You're apt to view it with alarm.

For sleet and ice seem cool and nice,
But when you've met them once or twice
You'd skip away to Florida
If you but had the needful price.

When frost and rime are in their prime
And cold almost incites to crime,
You wonder why you wished them nigh,
And long for good old summer time.

You wish for days when autumn haze
Somewhat obscured the sun's X rays,
Or idly sigh for lost July,
And even August gets your praise.

Not For Home Consumption.

"All governments," said the orator, working himself into a frenzy, "derive their just powers from the consent of the governed."

"You should have seen the side show at our house," observed his small son, who was in the audience, "when I sprung that on pa this morning."

Something Like It.

"They put their little western town on wheels and moved it over to the next township."

"That appears to have been a case of second site."

When You Awake.

I sit and smoke and vaguely dream
And wonder how the thing would seem
If I had wealth galore to blow—
About a million, cold, or so.

I'd buy a modest private yacht,
A cottage in a charming spot,
And for a place to settle down
A handsome brownstone front in town.

The pipe that fondly I caress
Would give way to cigars, I guess;
The clothes that dress my manly form
Might serve to keep a vagrant warm.

The girls that now reject my suit
Would at my lightest nod salute;
The men who pass me on the street
Would stop and touch me for a treat.

'Tis sweet to dream and scheme and puff,
But the awakening is rough.
I wonder how with groan and doubt
I'll make my seven a week pay out.

His Medicine.

"How did Blinks settle his breach of promise case?"

"He compromised it and married the girl."

"Ah! The judge gave him a life sentence and fined him the amount of his pay every Saturday night."

Touched His Pride.

The bird of freedom was enraged
And looking round for gore;
Things that were done in freedom's name
Had made the eagle sore.

For Her Peace of Mind.

"Do you think that a woman should know all that her husband does?"

"Not if she cares to have any sleep at night."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

When a man discovers that he is in love he is amazed to also discover that his acquaintances have been speculating for some time on how soon he will be buying household goods.

A stitch in time saves a lot of verbal darning.

Some people are so much in the way that they are continually falling over themselves.

A woman delights in showing her best new gown to her dearest friend and her worst enemy.

There is no use in crying over spilt milk unless you have a kind hearted milkman.

A successful man can never understand how there can be any failures.

A girl who improves upon nature is an artist, whether she work upon herself or on canvas.

A luxury is anything that you can't afford.

When a man has quarreled with his wife he usually comes around by trying to square himself.

A man's residence may have an imposing entrance, but if he is wise he will see that it has an easy exit.

A belle is a young lady into whose favor it is hard to enter and out of whose favor it is easy to slip.

Contiguity has more to do with most matches than celestial supervision.

Of Interest to Creamery Patrons.

Joel J. Winkjer, manager of the St. Hilaire creamery, is sending out the following letters to his patrons, and it will prove of interest to all the farmers interested in dairying: "This part of the country is well adapted for dairying not only because of its good grass producing tendencies but also on account of the quality of the butter it yields. From my observation during these few months it looks as if this part of the state will be the leader in producing good butter some day. The natural conditions are here, all in our favor, all we have to do to make use of them. We do not want this opportunity to slip by. We can make the best butter in Minnesota and want to do it. It means money in our pockets to do so. Only one day after the buttermaker had taken the gold medal, at the state convention this fall, the St. Paul house that handled the butter advertised that they "sold the butter that took the gold medal." We can see by this what it means to get a prize for the butter. We have already entered into a state educational contest which will last twelve months and next summer we will send butter to the world's fair. Let us be in it from the word go and do our level best and I am confident that we will make a mark worth working for.

"The first step in making good butter begins with milking; have the surroundings clean, the manure and every thing giving off bad odors removed and clean bedding put under the cow. Have the sides of the cow well groomed so that there is nothing offensive on her either to smell or drop in the pail. Wipe the udder good with a clean rag. Which ever way you milk, wet or dry, (dry is used by the best milker) be sure that nothing gets into the milk. Any fault given the milk when milking will stay with it and get into the butter. This way of doing the milking is not the only way, but whatever way you do it be sure that you do it cleanly."

A little hurt or a terrible wound or burn—it makes no difference. Cole's Carbolisalve will stop the pain quicker than anything else and will heal it without a scar. Corbolisalve has stood the test of thirty years constant use in millions of homes. It always cures. Get Cole's. If it isn't Cole's it isn't Carbolisalve. 25 and 50c by all druggists.

CHRONIC SORES
Signs of Polluted Blood.
There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.
A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.
Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.
SSS
S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health.
If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

Order to Show Cause on Filing Petition to Mortgage Land.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }

In Probate Court—Special Term, January 20, 1904.

In the matter of the estate of Mary Jane Letveg, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Andrew O. Letvig, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon her estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of her real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said Mary Jane Letvig, deceased, is insufficient to pay her debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon her estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of her real estate or any part thereof.

It is Therefore Ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Saturday, the 13th day of February, A. D. 1904, at 1 o'clock p.m., at the Probate office in the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Andrew O. Letvig to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased, for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessments and liens and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is Further Ordered, That this Order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the RED LAKE COURIER, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 20th day of January, A. D. 1904.

By the Court.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Omer Bushea (unmarried), Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 12th day of October, 1901, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m., in Book 21 of Mortgages, on page 342, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Mortgagee to Wm. M. Erb, by written assignment dated the 6th day of October, A. D. 1902, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 9th day of Decemder, 1902, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in Book S of Mortgages, on page 372, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if any installment of the debt secured thereby is not paid when due, that the whole sum secured thereby shall become due and payable at once; and whereas, by reason of said clause there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-two dollars; and whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if the party of the first part fail to make payment of interest due upon a certain prior Mortgage upon the land described in said Mortgage, that then the party of the second part may pay such interest and have a lien therefor upon upon said premises under this Mortgage; and whereas, pursuant to said clause, and the party of the first part having made default in the payment thereof, said party of the second part has paid such interest, amounting, with interest, to to the sum of Ninety-gve dollars and thirty cents, making the total amount due under the terms of the said Mortgage One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-five, in Township One hundred fifty, of Range Forty-two, in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt amounting to One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as provided in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Order to Show Cause on Filing Petition to Mortgage Land.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss
COUNTY OF RED LAKE }

In Probate Court,
Special Term, January 5, 1904.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ole John Ellingson Deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of H. O. Gjerberg, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon his estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of the said Ole John Ellingson, deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of his real estate or any part thereof.

It is Therefore Ordered, That all persons interested in said estate before this Court, on Saturday, the 30th day of January, A. D. 1904, at 2 o'clock P. M., at the Probate Office in the Court House in the city of Red Lake Falls in said County, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said H. O. Gjerberg to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased, for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessments and liens, and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is Further Ordered, That this Order shall be published once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 6th day of January, A. D. 1904.

SOO LETS BIG CONTRACTS

Bids Asked for Steel and Construction Work on the Glenwood Extension.

The Soo line is expected to have a through line to Winnipeg established within a year, according to recent press dispatches.

General Manager E. Pennington has asked ior bids for construction and the purchase of 20,000 tons of steel, to be used in the extension of the Glenwood line to Emerson, where the Soo will connect with the Canadian Pacific's short line to Winnipeg.

The construction will begin early this spring, and operations on the extension will be commenced in the fall.

The extension of the Glenwood line wili be pushed from the lower end of the White Earth reservation through to Emerson in almost a straight line, making a more direct line from Minneapolis to Winnipeg than the road has ever had before, and as short as that of any other line. This line goes through Becker, Norman, Polk, Red Lake, Marshall, and Kittson counties. There will be a distance of 268 miles, running from Glenwood, which will open up trade to Minneapolis that heretofore has gone to Duluth.

Why Do They Do So?

A man will run as fast as he can to cross a railroad track in front of a train. Then he will watch it till it goes out of sight. Then he will walk leisurely away. He seems to be all right and probably is. That is a man. A woman in a street car will open a satchel and take out a purse, take out a dime and close the purse, open the satchel, put in the purse, close the satchel and lock both ends. Then she will give the dime to the conductor, who will give her a nickel back. Then she will open the satchel and take out the purse, put in the nickel, close the purse, open the satchel, put in the purse, close the satchel and lock both ends. Then she will feel for the buckle at the back of her belt.—Exchange.

SOO STILL UNDECIDED.

Surveyors Working in the Vicinity of McIntosh and Erskine.

From present indications it would seem to be a mooted question with the Soo people whether McIntosh or rival town of Erskine will be selected as the ultimate objective point of the road in northern Polk county at its junction with the Great Northern, says the Thief River Press.

The surveying crew is still working in that vicinity. Some time ago they passed through McIntosh on their return trip over the original survey and it was hinted at that time that a new and more feasible route might be selected owing to the difficulties of construction seen to be encountered near that place. Now it is learned that men are coming back through the same territory but this time their objective point is Erskine, a town lying further west on the Great Northern. Here there are no extensive cuts or fills such as are in store for builders if McIntosh is selected and it is not unlikely that the latter route may be definitely decided upon. In any event the choice of the permanent route will soon be made.

Civil Engineer W. C. Smiley, who recently returned from the Twin Cities, was then informed by Chief Engineer Green, of the Soo line, that the surveying of the route to Winnipeg was being pushed with all possible vigor and that it was the intention to have the work entirely completed in time to begin operations at the earliest opportunity in the spring, it having been practically decided to begin construction from the Emerson end as well as to push forward from the south.

COURIER'S BARGAIN OFFER

Two Papers for One Dollar on Our Special Bargain Days—Feb. 13 and 15.

Don't forget the COURIER's bargain dyas on February 13 and 15. On either of those days you can get the COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist—three papers that every farmer ought to have—for only one dollar for an entire year. This offer is good only for the two days advertised.

The Red Lake county farmer cannot afford to neglect this opportunity to get such a splendid assortment of reading matter at a low price. The COURIER is acknowledged to be tbe leading county paper, and during the coming year will be better than ever. It will give all of the local and official county news, all the local and general grange news, besides the best selections of general reading, and a complete resume of the general news of the world.

There will never be an offer like this again. We expect to add at least a hundred new subscribers at this special sale, besides inducing many of our delinquents to pay up their arrearages. By getting a big bunch of new subscribers all in two days and making collections of a reasonable number of back accounts we can afford to give our patrons the benefit of an unusual offer.

Dear reader, if you like the COURIER, tell your friends aud ueighbors about this offer. Many of them will be sure to want to take advantage of it, and you will be doing them a real service.

Clergymen's Permits.

Abuse of half fare permits by some of the clergy has induced the western, southwestern and transcontinental roads to adopt a new style of permit in effect February 1. The clergymen must fill out their application and pay a $1.00 fee. This must be certified by the local agent and forwarded to the bureau. The certificates are in book form with 100 trip checks. The expiration is shown and inside is printed an ironclad agreement to be signed in ink. For each trip the clergyman must write, in the presence of the ticket agent, on the first unused ticket, the destination of the ticket desired and present it to the agent undetached from the certificate. The ticket is then sold at the line's authorized clergy rates, and is endorsed with the number of the certificate check in which the destination of the ticket is written must be signed before the ticket agent. When the ticket is presented to the conductor the bearer must produce the certificate and sign the certificate check in the presence of the first conductor, who will compare it with the signature affixed to the certificate contract. Signatures written previous to the presentation of the ticket will not be accepted.

CROOKSTON'S NASBY SHORT

Bondsmen Name C. E. Gildersleeve as Postmaster Pending Investigation.

The Crookston Times says that Saturday evening at 7 o'clock C. E. Gildersleeve took charge of the Crookston postoffice as the representative of the bondsmen of Postmaster Eiken. Special Inspector Morris of the postoffice department, arrived in the city on January 22d and found that the accounts of the office were $1,600 short. It is the duty of the postmasters in all offices to make remittances for the preceding month by the 7th of the month. The remittances which should have been made on January 7th had not been made on the 22d when Inspector Morris arrived, and checked up the books. Mr. Eiken at once sold real estate and in other ways raised enough to cover the shortage. Inspector Morris, however, reported the matter to the department at Washington and the bondsmen met Saturday afternoon at the Merchants bank and elected Mr. Gildersleeve to act as postmaster during the interval which would elapse pending an investigation by the department. The bondsmen are A. D. Stephens, E. M. Walsh, J. O. Sundet, Wm. Anglim, W. E. McKenzie, W. S. Lycan and Dan McKinnon.

Mr. Elken is optimistic relative to the outcome of the investigation. He admits that he was careless in remitting, but thinks that the fact that the money was in the bank when needed will exonerate him. He stated to a Times man this afternoon that there would be no prosecutions and that everything would be amicably settled.

Seems to Be Sure Thing.

Thief River Press: Advices from Roseau are to the effect that a party of prominent citizens have just returned from St. Paul where they went last week upon the invitation of Pres. J. J. Hill of the Great Northern. According to the report Mr. Hill is credited with assuring the gentlemen that the Thief River extension will go north early next spring and will be pushed to completion as early as possible. It is quite probable that the line may be extended farther than the present survey so as to reach Roseau during the coming year. The up country people are enthusiastic over the outlook and believe there is no question but that the extension will at least be built through Marshall county, Mr. Hill haying assured them that this rich section of the state would soon be tapped by his line.

LOUIS HANSON MAYOR.

Appointed by Thief River Falls Council Last Thursday.

Municipally Thief River Falls is now at peace. Ira C. Richardson, who was declared elected mayor in the contest proceedings brought before Judge Grindeland, resigned the office two weeks ago because of the fact that a postmaster is not permitted under the postal law to hold a municipal office. In this dilemma the attorney general was asked as the proper course of proceedure, and that official advised that the city council should elect a mayor to fill the vacancy. At the meeting Thursday night County Commissioner Louis Hanson was elected, receiving three votes and S. T. Johnson two votes.

Mayor Hanson is one of the leading citizens of the up-river town: is liberal and enterprising in his views, and his administration will undoubtedly be markedly successful. Mr. Hanson has never been indentified with either of the factional parties and will be acceptable to both the Richardson and the Kratka followers.

WILL NOT HANG.

Sentence of Owatonna Boys Commuted to Life Imprisonment.

Charles and Henry Nelson, the Owatonna boy murderers, will not pay the forfeit of their lives for the life of Henry Krier. Their sentence has been commuted by the state board of pardons, and the boys began yesterday the dreary routine of life terms at the Stillwater prison.

The pardon board decided on its action late Tuesday afternoon, and to avoid publicity in moving the boys sent word to the authorities before making the public announcement. A telegram was sent to Sheriff Misgen of Owatonna, and the commitment was sent down to Waseca, where the boys were confined. The Owatonna sheriff went there Tuesday night, received the papers, and took the boys at once to Stillwater, where they were received this morning.

The action of the pardon board was assured after Judge Buckham, the trial judge, made his recommendation that the sentence be commuted.

CHILLIEST DAY IN HISTORY

The Northwest Held Firm in Jack Frost's Embrace the Fore Part of the Week.

Sunday is believed to have been the coldest day northwestern Minnesota has ever experienced—at least the weather record does not show a lower temperature. Local thermometers varied considerably, some showing as low as 56 below at 6 o'clock in the morning, but as the government thermometer at Grand Forks registered 45 below it is safe to assume that it was not a great deal warmer at Red Lake Falls. Monday was nearly as cold, and there are no cases of sunstroke reported for Tuesday. It is milder now, however, and the cold waye has undoubtedly subsided.

No cases of injury are reported in this vicinity. The people up this way are prepared for cold weather at this season of the year, and as a general rule are not counting much on a winter crop of strawberries and bananas. The cold snap was quite general over the Northwest. St. Paul and Minneapolis report 33 below, and even down at Chicago it was 15.

FREIGHT CONDUCTOR HURT.

Jumped From a Box Car Which Had Left the Rails.

An accident occured in the Great Northern yards at Thief River Falls Friday afternoon. The local freight engine was pushing a box car down the mill switch when the car left the rails. Conductor W. C. Remshardt, in charge of the train, and Brakeman J. E. Berg were on top of the car. They both thought it was going into the ditch and jumped. Conductor Remshardt struck on his heel and sustained severe injuries. One of his ankles was broken and the other either badly sprained or broken, the doctors had not yet determined which when the affair was reported. He is in bad shape for the shaking up he received. Brakeman Berg was not seriously hurt beyond a jolting and several bruises. Conductor Remshardt was taken to Crookston on the evening passenger, and it will probably be several weeks before he reports for duty.

THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES
By HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON.
COPYRIGHT, 1901

"Look here," he said, "I am quite a regular patron of this place. You don't recognize me because—well, to tell the truth, I've been on a hard spree for a week and have got pretty well torn up, as you see. I'd like to sober up here in the bath and then I'll send out for a suit of clothes in which I can begin an era of reform by going home to dinner."

"What's your name?" asked the attendant, hesitatingly.

Drane looked over his shoulder as if to make sure that nobody could hear him declare his real identity, and then bending over the desk he whispered: "John H. Smyth. You remember the name, don't you?"

"Well, I've heard it before," the clerk admitted, "but I can't place you."

"Am I so changed by a single week of debauchery?" said Drane, sadly; then, in a still more confidential tone: "You must recall my name. I spell it with a Y."

The clerk smiled.

"I guess it's all right, Mr. Smyth. Shall I take care of your valuables?"

"You're too late, my young friend," said Drane. "Somebody else is taking care of them in a way that beats the safe-deposit vault out of sight."

The clerk laughed and gave Drane a little key strung on a rubber band designed to go about the latter's wrist.

"Number forty-one," he called to an attendant, who immediately conducted Drane to his dressing-room.

What a delight it was to lay aside the rags of poverty! When Drane emerged from the little room clothed only in a sheet, he felt as good as his neighbor. Even his hunger relented for a time, and he enjoyed his bath thoroughly.

It was two o'clock by the magnificent time-piece which stood among artificial flowers in the great hall of the bath, when he returned to his room and his rags. His soul and body rebelled against them more strongly than ever before. They contrasted painfully with the luxury by which he had been surrounded. He sat in his chair with his head in his hands and groaned aloud. Faintness had followed the bath, and had been aggravated by the sight of men enjoying rolls and coffee, while they reclined upon the divans in the hall. He almost made up his mind to order breakfast, and trust to luck to get away alive without paying for it.

"Here you are, sir, number forty-two," said a voice; and Drane heard an attendant usher a man into the next dressing-room.

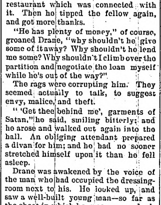
"Thank you, sir;" he heard the fellow say a minute later. Then he knew that the man in the next stall had tipped the attendant. They talked together a minute, while the visitor inquired about the bath and the restaurant which was connected with it. Then he tipped the fellow again, and got more thanks.

"He has plenty of money," of course, groaned Drane, "why shouldn't he give some of it away? Why shouldn't he lend me some? Why shouldn't I climb over the partition and negotiate the loan myself while he's out of the way?"

The rags were corrupting him. They seemed actually to talk, to suggest envy, malice, and theft.

"'Get thee behind me', garments of Satan," he said, smiling bitterly; and he arose and walked out again into the hall. An obliging attendant prepared a divan for him; and he had no sooner stretched himself upon it than he fell asleep.

Drane was awakened by the voice of the man who had occupied the dressing-room next to his. He looked up, and saw a well-built young man—so far as the sheet in which he was wrapped allowed his proportions to be seen—preparing to take the next divan. The stranger was about Drane's weight and height, and they resembled each other not a little, despite the fact that while Drane was a handsome man, the other would never have been accused of any thing more serious than the possession of a good figure. One face was almost a caricature of the other. Drane could not help thinking how much he should have resembled his neighbor if his own life throughout had been like the last few days.



"TAKE HIM IN."

The stranger ordered some breakfast, and the attendant drew up a little table, so that it stood between Drane and his more fortunate fellow-bather. In fact it was as near to one as the other.

"If he eats right under my nose, this way," said Drane to himself, "I shall become a raving maniac."

A luxurious repast was ordered, and then the stranger lay down upon the divan and went to sleep. He did not awake when the attendant laid the cloth nor even when the lunch was brought. Some gentle shaking brought him partly to his senses, so that he was able to sit up and pretend to be awake, but when the attendant went away he fell back upon the pillow and was asleep again in a twinkling.

Then Drane's stomach arose and read the declaration of independence. It would hear no excuses; no reproaches of conscience. "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," was its text, and it argued in a manner not to be answered by the precepts of mere honesty.

Drane stretched forth his right hand, and secured a roll. Almost immediately thereafter, as nobody was looking, he possessed himself of the leg of a chicken. Being honest by nature he returned the bone to the stranger's table. Other portions of the bird followed, together with sundry fried potatoes, and such like embellishments of the feast. Then he washed down his scruples with the stranger's coffee, and went back to his room a better man.

But then came the rags again, and not even the sustaining power of a stolen meal could keep him from temptation. He put on his underclothing, and then stood by the half-open door, looking in at the detested garments. They mocked him; they said: "You've got to come down to our level; you've stolen a breakfast on our account, and nobody knows what you'll do before we get through with you."

He shuddered and turned away his eyes. It wasn't that his conscience troubled him. No, indeed. He had left his conscience in the pocket of his other clothes, the ones the thieves had taken, and he wondered, by the way, whether the fellow had been able to make any moral use of it. But his shudder was caused by his disinclination to put on the suit which had no conscience in its pockets — in other words, no dollars.

So when he turned his head away the ragged clothes were responsible for it. Then they must also have been responsible for his noting that the door of No. 42 was ajar, and for the temptation which came of that knowledge. The first sin recorded against man led to clothing, and Drane now felt the weight of a fearful heredity. He, too, would sin and be clothed.

"I wonder if his garments would fit me outwardly as well as his breakfast fitted me inwardly," he muttered, and then laughed recklessly.

Nobody was watching. He pushed the stranger's door open a little. Yes; they were excellent clothes, to judge by the little he could see through the crack of the door. Dressed in that way Drane could establish his identity in no time; and no doubt pass the whole affair off as a joke. Thus he thought, for the poor fellow was really half crazed by the perplexing experiences of the last few days.

He pushed the door still further; he was conquered. It seemed that he could hear a derisive chuckle from the rags in the next room. He scarcely looked at the clothes, but hustled them on, all but the coat, which he carried into the hall because a strange feeling came over him that he had seen it before. Under an electric light he turned a pocket of the garment inside out and read the owner's name written there. It was Lawrence Drane! He had stolen his own clothes back again!

Yes, there was no doubt about it. The occupant of No. 42 had been the original tramp who had accomplished the exchange in the hotel so nicely, and had afterward collected the telegraph money-order at New Haven. The pockets of the coat were full of Drane's papers. He ran them over hastily, and could not discover that any were missing.

His watch and a considerable sum of money were there too. He wondered at this because prudent persons leave such things at the desk, but then he reflected that a thief distrusts everybody, and hates to hand over his plunder when he doesn't know who may be watching.

Drane was never so eminently satisfied in his life. The clothes restored his brain to its proper balance almost at once. He wondered how he could have been brought to the point of entering another's room, and he was shocked at the thought, though delighted at the result.

He strolled through the hall and noticed that the thief was still sleeping. Beside him lay the remnants of the lunch. Drane would have been glad to stay and watch the fellow when he waked up, but he had decided to go out and find a policeman to take the thief into custody.

There was none in sight when he stepped to the door. He stood there a moment, holding his chin in his hand, while reflecting upon the best course to pursue. The action reminded him that he needed a shave very much, and as the barber shops of the bath were so situated that he could keep an eye on the slumbering thief, he went in and had the last evidence of misfortune removed, and the unsuspecting wretch on the divan still slumbered.

As Drane emerged from the building the first thing he saw was the blue coat of which he was in search. A burly member of the force stood on the edge of the sidewalk, as if placed there by the hand of justice.

"How wonderful are the workings of chance," thought Drane, as he took in at a glance the advantages of the situation. "My luck changed from the instant my eyes rested on that ticket."

He decided not to call the officer into the bath so long as he showed no signs of going away, but to wait till the thief came out, clothed in his rags, to meet a fate still worse. He chuckled with a mean satisfaction at the thought. His experience should have taught him to pity the poor fellow, but it didn't. There can be no real sympathy between costly apparel and the habiliments of poverty. The brotherhood of man can never be accomplished except by putting all the world in one unvarying uniform.

So Drane stood there waiting for his revenge. Suddenly there was a hubbub at the door. An attendant rushed out hurriedly and looked about. Behind him Drane could see the thief expostulating with the man at the desk. Then the attendant's eyes fell upon Drane.

"Arrest that man," said he to the policeman; "he has stolen a man's clothes in our bath!"

"Come with me, sir," said the officer, laying his hand upon Drane's shoulder.

The blunderbuss of vengeance had shot both ways again, as is the habit of that antiquated weapon.

CHAPTER VI.

IT PUZZLED THE JUDGE.

While the little party was on its way to the abode of justice, Drane had time to bring his mind to one definite and valuable conclusion. His misfortunes on a similar occasion had been aggravated by his own injudicious utterances. He resolved to keep still this time, even if he had to hire somebody to gag him.

It was little that he knew about New York except as to its pavements and its distances, and both these he was prepared to condemn as emphatically as would any reformer. He had not supposed that his second arrest took place in the same judicial district in which his first came to pass. By reason of his rehabilitation his nerves had maintained a fair poise during the short journey to the court, but when he saw the ornate tower of Jefferson market ahead of him and then realized that he was bound to appear before the same justice who had lectured him but a day or two previously, they fell to quivering ominously. Nevertheless he kept up appearances and entered the court room with an air of dignified self-possession.

The bulk of the day's business had been cleared away, so he and his companion in distress were summoned at once to the bar.

"What is this case?" demanded the judge.

"This man," responded the policeman, jerking his thumb towards the ragged tramp, "accuses this gentleman of stealing his clothes."

The judge glanced in surprise from one to the other of the parties, and he looked sharply at Lawrence as if the face reminded him of somebody. Then he ordered the complainant to step up and asked him his name.

"Lawrence Drane," was the cool reply.

Again the judge seemed to be trying to recall something out of the dim recesses of his memory, but the effort failed, and he composed himself to listen to the complainant's story. The false Drane told exactly what had happened at the bath-house, not deviating in the slightest particular from the truth, except as his story implied his claim to ownership in the clothes which the real Drane had on.

"Did you ever see the prisoner before?" asked the judge.

"I think I saw him not more than three days ago," replied the impostor; "It was late in the afternoon and he had a skate on. I remember him because of these rags which he wore at the time."

The judge turned to Mr. Drane, who had been listening intently, and began the examination in the usual way by asking his name. Lawrence was vehemently moved to denounce his accuser, but he recalled his determination to control his tongue in this episode; therefore he responded simply:

"Lawrence Drane."

A big scowl tangled the judge's eyebrows and puckered up his lips. Judicial memory was again in process of castigation. This time the mental prodding turned up a clew.

"Haven't you been here before!" he demanded sternly.

Mr. Drane's conscience wriggled and groaned under the temptation of mendacity. He was immorally certain that a good lie would be more efficacious in the emergency than a guardian angel; but his gentlemanly instincts revolted at lying, especially when he knew he was in the right. Moreover the angel was present the court-room, though Lawrence didn't know it and she had not as yet discovered him. Perhaps her influence had something to do with inducing him to falter an affirmative to the judge's question. The reply stimulated the judge's memory wonderfully.

"You tried to pass yourself under two names then, didn't you?" he continued.

"May I explain, your honor—"

"Did you or didn't you? Speak up!"

"I did, your honor, but there were circumstances then that justified me. I was in trouble and hardly knew what I was about."

"What possible circumstances could have justified you in lying about your name?"

It instantly occurred to Lawrence that here was an opportunity to make a full explanation of his situation, but so much trouble had come to him from such attempts that he renewed his determination to say absolutely nothing. So he responded:

"I decline to say."

This surprised and angered the judge and he ordered the officer to search Lawrence. They took from him all his papers, his money and his watch. They considerately left him his handkerchief. Upset by the indignity of this proceeding, he exclaimed:

"I will say and maintain that I am Lawrence Drane! I live in Kansas City and am in New York simply on my way to Boston, where I propose to negotiate capital for a railroad."

"Very well," said the judge, dryly, and turning to the impostor: "What have you to say to this?"

"Why!" was the reply, "that I am Lawrence Drane and that this fellow is telling my story. Those papers and letters which you have will probably make the matter clear. Doubtless he glanced at them at the bath and so got his points."

The judge looked at the papers, but they failed to satisfy him. He asked for witnesses, and the attendants at the bath were sworn.

"Which of these men?" asked the judge, "came to the bath in good clothes, and which one in rags?"

"I remember," said the witness, hesitating, "that I took a fellow in those rags to a room, and I think it was that one," pointing to Lawrence. "When he was in the sweating room," he continued, "he looked just about like anybody else."

There is an individuality in legs, but few men recognize it, not even attendants at baths who have unrestricted opportunities for observation. The testimony of these witnesses made it pretty clear that Lawrence had left the bath with better clothes than he wore when he entered, but they could do nothing to clear up the question of identity.

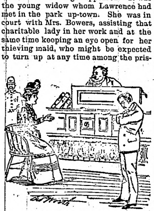
Then Lawrence requested the privilege of examining the plaintiff. This granted, he confused the fellow in short order by putting a series of questions designed to bring out his knowledge of Kansas City and his familiarity with the business mission in which he pretended to be engaged. The scale appeared to be turning in Mr. Drane's favor. Justice was still in doubt, however, and the court declared that it would be necessary to get some direct evidence as to the identity of each claimant to the name of Drane.

"I think, your honor," said the impostor, "that the people at my hotel can satisfy you. I should like to go there to get my grip and a decent suit of clothes. If I was better dressed my story would sound more likely."

Lawrence smiled grimly at this, for he knew too well how true it was. Things had changed. The clothes were on another man's back and he in turn was victimized by them.

"I'll send an officer with you to the hotel," said the judge.

Just then the angel appeared. It was the young widow whom Lawrence had met in the park up-town. She was in court with Mrs. Bowers, assisting that charitable lady in her work and at the same time keeping an eye open for her thieving maid, who might be expected to turn up at any time among the prisoners. During the examination of Lawrence and the impostor she had been busy with Mrs. Bowers in another part of the room, and so had not heard a word of the case. It takes an acute ear to detect any thing that goes on in a New York court, even when one stands beside the judge himself. The young lady had chanced to see Mr. Drane's face, and in spite of the great improvement effected in it by the barber and the radical change in his garb, she recognized him. It was not immediate, and she was not altogether sure. She whispered excitedly to Mrs. Bowers:



HIS NAME WAS JONES.

"See! is not that the gentleman who assisted me the other morning?"

Mrs. Bowers had recourse to her glasses.

"I should think so," she replied, "from his clothes. I shouldn't be likely to forget them."

"No, no; I mean the other one. I must go up and see."

Mrs. Bowers disapproved of this heartily, but the young widow took her own way, and presently Mr. Drane felt a light hand laid on his arm. It was at the point where the imposter had asked to be allowed to go to his hotel. Lawrence turned, and with a joyfully leaping heart saw the companion of his adventure in the park. He was never so glad to see anybody before, and forgetting his situation he cried:

"I am perfectly delighted to see you again."

She was about to reply when the judge interposed.

"You must not speak to the prisoner, madam, but you may come up here and tell me what you know about this man. You may be able to clear up this matter."

The young lady, blushing rosily and smiling at the thought of being able to give some assistance to her benefactor, stepped before the judge and was sworn. She gave her name, but in spite of all attention Lawrence missed it in the confusion attendant upon the bringing in of several new arrests. He began to see the end of his difficulties, and joy possessed him as the judge listened with evident belief to the young lady's account of the park episode.

"And what is the gentleman's name?" asked the judge when she had finished her little story.

"Mr. Thomas Jones," replied the widow promptly. It was the name she had heard Lawrence give at the police station.

When he heard this answer Drane groaned audibly. The impostor's face was lighted by a triumphant smile and the judge frowned. The young lady saw that something had gone awry and she exclaimed hysterically:

"Oh, dear! Have I done any thing wrong?"

"Nothing whatever, madam," said the judge. "You may step down. Now, Mr. Thomas Jones, you told me emphatically but a few days ago that your name was Jones. Have you any thing more to say?"

"Your honor," and Lawrence's voice was ragged with emotion as he spoke: "I see that I have been continually beset with my own blunders. I blundered in lying about my name, which is really Drane; since then I have blundered at every step until I committed the last in declining to explain myself. I will gladly pay the expense of telegraphing to Kansas City. My friends there will reply to your satisfaction."

"We will let you do that, Jones," said the judge, "but meantime I shall hold you, and if a reply does not come before we adjourn you will have to remain."

There was nothing for Lawrence to do but acquiesce and write his telegram as fast as possible. This, after some judicial editing, read as follows:

SANFORD DRANE—I am held in court on suspicion of stealing my own clothes and my name. Please wire the court at once a full description of my appearance and history. L. D.

Then his own statement of his adventures was taken down. If this should correspond to the account to be telegraphed he would be free. Confident of the result he followed an officer to the prison, leaving the pretty widow sitting on a front seat tearfully listening to a whispered lecture from that expert character reader, Mrs. Bowers.

The impostor, anxious to establish his case before a reply to Mr. Drane's telegram should arrive, hurried from the court accompanied by an officer. They went to a Broadway hotel and marched straight up to the pompous clerk.

"Do you know this man?" asked the policeman.

"Know him?" returned the clerk, scornfully, "I should hope not!"

"But you remember," cried the impostor, "that I came here this morning and took a room, don't you? I am Lawrence Drane, of Kansas City. You'll find my name on the register."

The clerk examined the big book.

"There's a Mr. Drane here," he said; "I remember him. He was a well-dressed man, and you—why, he wouldn't let you in at the door if you didn't come with a policeman. Besides, this Mr Drane came from New Haven."

"Oh, Lord! I forgot that!" exclaimed the impostor; "you see, I came down from New Haven on an early train. Why, I was married in New Haven yesterday!"

The clerk turned away with a sniff of disgust.

"Come now, whatever your name is," said the officer, "don't waste any more time. March back to court."

So back he went, regretting at every step that his sudden prosperity had so enlivened his respect for cleanliness that he had ventured to take a bath.

"First I've taken for years," he muttered, "and it serves me right. Got on well enough without before."

There were a lot of late arrivals at Jefferson market that day, and it was six o'clock before the court was ready to adjourn. Mrs. Bowers and the fair widow were still there, the former staying against her will at the earnest solicitation of the latter. She was sadly disturbed at having failed so signally to aid her benefactor, and was anxious to learn the result of the inquiry. Just in the nick of time, as it seemed to her, a messenger boy crawled into the room and demanded with amazing indifference:

"Is de judge here?"

The judge relieved the boy of his dispatch and addressed a remark to him which sent him out of court several thousand times faster than he came in. The two claimants to the name of Drane were already at the bar. The judge read the telegram silently, coughed, read it again and remarked:

"This does not seem to help matters for either of you."

Then he read the dispatch aloud:

"THE JUDGE, Jefferson Market Court, New York—If Lawrence Drane is in your charge please hold him. He is undoubtedly insane.

"SANFORD DRANE."

"There is a vile conspiracy back of this!" cried the real Drane.

"Oh, I give it up! I'm not Drane at all," shouted the imposter.

Thumpity-bag! said the judge's gavel, angrily, and the judge himself added:

"The court believes you are both demented. I shall commit you both to an asylum for examination and treatment."

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

HIGH IDEALS WILL EVENTUALLY RULE THE WORLD

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

WHAT is the GREATEST gift that man can bestow upon man? Feed a man and he will hunger again; give him clothing and his clothing will wear out; but give him a noble ideal, and that ideal will be with him through every waking hour, LIFTING HIM TO A HIGHER PLANE OF LIFE and giving him a broader conception of his relations to his fellows. I know, therefore, of no greater service that my country can render to the world than to furnish to the world the highest ideal that the world has known. That ideal must be so far above us that it will keep us looking upward all our lives, and so far in advance of us that we shall never overtake it.

* * *

I know of no better illustration, no better symbol, of an ideal life than the living spring pouring forth constantly of that which refreshes and invigorates, not the stagnant pool which receives contribution from all the land around and GIVES FORTH NOTHING. Our nation must make a large contribution to the welfare of the world, and it is no reflection upon those who have gone before to say that we ought to do BETTER than they have done. We would not meet the responsibilities of today if we did not build still higher the social structure to which they devoted their lives. I visited the Tower of London and saw upon the wall a strange figure. It was made of swords, ramrods and bayonets and was fashioned into the form of a flower. Some one had put a card on it and aptly named it the PASSION flower—and it has been too often the INTERNATIONAL flower.

BUT THE WORLD HAS MADE PROGRESS. NO LONGER DO AMBITION AND AVARICE FURNISH A SUFFICIENT EXCUSE FOR WAR.

The world has made progress, and today you cannot JUSTIFY BLOODSHED except in defense of a right already ascertained, and then only when all peaceable means have been exhausted.

The world has made progress. We have reached a point where we respect not the man who will die to secure some pecuniary advantage, but who will die in DEFENSE of his rights. We admire the moral courage of the man who is willing to die in defense of his rights, but there is yet before us a HIGHER ground. Is he great who will die in defense of his rights, there is yet to come a greater man still—the man who will DIE rather than trespass upon the rights of another. Hail to the nation, whatever its name may be, that leads the world toward the realization of this higher ideal!

I am glad that we now recognize that there is something MORE POWERFUL THAN PHYSICAL FORCE, and no one has stated it better than Carlyle. He said that thought was stronger than artillery parks, and at last molded the world like soft clay; that behind thought was love, and that there never was a wise head that had not behind it a generous heart. The world was coming to understand that armies and navies, however numerous and strong, are impotent to stop thought.

THOUGHT INSPIRED BY LOVE WILL YET RULE THE WORLD. I AM GLAD THAT THERE IS A NATIONAL PRODUCT MORE VALUABLE THAN GOLD OR SILVER, MORE VALUABLE THAN COTTON OR WHEAT OR CORN OR IRON—THE IDEAL. THAT IS A MERCHANDISE, IF I MAY CALL IT SUCH, THAT MOVES FREELY FROM COUNTRY TO COUNTRY. YOU CANNOT VEX IT WITH AN EXPORT TAX OR HINDER IT WITH AN IMPORT TARIFF. IT IS GREATER THAN LEGISLATORS AND RISES TRIUMPHANT OVER THE MACHINERY OF GOVERNMENT.

EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYEES SHOULD BE EQUAL PARTNERS

By Ex-Congressman W. BOURKE COCKRAN

THE way for the employers to rid themselves of the walking delegate is to treat the laborers as partners and give them REASONABLE CONSIDERATION when they come to them with grievances. They should realize that every man has a RIGHT to better himself, and that no man improves his condition without benefiting his neighbors. Trade unions have been an effective agency in enabling laborers and employers to adjust their rights, and they could not help but be BENEFICIAL to both.

WHEN A LABORER APPROACHES HIS EMPLOYER HE MUST NOT BE APPROACHING HIS SUPERIOR, BUT HIS EQUAL, PARTNERS JOINTLY INTERESTED IN THE SUCCESS OF THE ENTERPRISE.

I hope soon to see in America a truer relation between labor and capital instituted and fixed upon, and then PEACE, which is the secret of production, and boundless prosperity will be the result.

THE SCHOOLBOY AND FLOGGING

By Dr. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, President Columbia University

I AM glad to find after all these years an opportunity to justify some of the time spent upon my first copy book, in which I so laboriously wrote over and over the sentiment, "Principles, not men." It was a tradition in School No. 1 of Paterson, N. J., that it was one of the duties of the principal TO THRASH ME EVERY MORNING after prayers. I understand that we teachers are now without that desirable exercise and that the rising generation must get along as best it can on persuasion, but I hope that some day our large hearted, good natured, sympathetic friends will give us a chance to get back at the boy IN THE ONLY WAY HE UNDERSTANDS AND THE ONLY WAY THAT LASTS. I offer myself in evidence.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by
J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y.,
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

NATIONAL GRANGE POLICY.

Hon. Aaron Jones Re-elected Master. Full List of Officers.

The session of the national grange held at Rochester was one of much importance not only to the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, but to the agricultural class in general. As outlining the position and working policy of the grange the resolutions adopted were significant. They indicate that the high officials of the Order are awake to the needs of the farmers and are endeavoring to secure for them such legislation and other benefits as shall give agriculture its rightful position among the great productive industries of the world.

Of the resolutions that most clearly define the public policy of the national grange and will determine the line of action of the legislative committees throughout the twenty-eight states represented these may be mentioned: That reciprocal tariff relations should be maintained in the interests of farmers with those countries that consume the agricultural products of the United States; that our "agricultural products should be protected as well as our manufactured articles;" that since a small percentage of farmers' sons and daughters are able to attend state agricultural colleges the grange should favor the establishment of county or district agricultural high schools; that alleged excessive charges on railroads for carrying the mails as compared with those exacted from express companies should be investigated by the legislative committee; that rural free mail carriers should receive as much pay as city mail carriers; that the establishment of postal savings banks should be advocated; that the legislative committee should persist in its endeavors to procure legislation favorable to the parcel post system; that "good roads" legislation, as outlined in the Brownlow bill, should be favored, and that a federal law should be enacted to "protect the grape growing industry from imposition and fraud."

Many other resolutions were adopted, particularly with reference to the work within the Order. It was voted to remove the national secretary's office from Washington to Tippecanoe City, O. Grange headquarters will be established at the St. Louis exposition. The next meeting of the national grange will be held at Portland, Ore.

The following officers were elected: Master, Aaron Jones, South Bend, Ind.; overseer, T. C. Atkeson, Morgantown, W. Va.; lecturer, N. J. Bachelder, Concord, N. H.; steward, J. A. Newcomb, Golden, Colo.; assistant steward, George W. F. Gaunt, Mullica Hill, N. J.; chaplain, W. K. Thompson, Liberty Hill, S. C.; treasurer, Mrs. Eva W. McDowell, Rome, N. Y.; secretary, C. M. Freeman, Tippecanoe City, O.; gatekeeper, B. C. Patterson, Torrington, Conn.; Ceres, Mrs. Martha M. Wilson, Magnolia, Ill.; Pomona, Mrs. Emma M. Derby, Woodside, Del.; Flora, Mrs. Pauline S. Rain[illegible] Monticello, Mo.; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Laura T. Raap, Martinez, Cal. One member of the executive committee is elected each year for a term of three years. C. J. Bell, East Hardwick, Vt., was re-elected. The other members of the committee are E. B. Norris of New York and F. A. Derthick of Ohio.

NEW JERSEY STATE GRANGE

A Co-operative Business of Over $105,000.

Every grange in the state but two was represented at the meeting of the New Jersey state grange recently held at Trenton, N. J. Reports were most encouraging. By virtue of its small area, New Jersey can never be a large grange state, yet it claims 6,000 members of the Order, a gain of 1,000 last year.

The change proposed by the national grange providing for biennial elections in Pomona granges was approved. Among the resolutions adopted was one asking that the protection afforded the robin under the game laws of the state be removed while fruit is ripening or hangs ripe on trees and bushes, the destruction heretofore wrought by these birds having been very serious. Reports of the subordinate granges showed a co-operative business in the state of over $105,000, with a great saving to the members. One grange reported a business of $33,000. This is certainly a fine showing in co-operation, and larger states may find "food for thought" in the comparison.

The Ideal Grange.

I think that the ideal grange will be one which gives some attention to all phases of the individual needs—the social, the intellectual, the financial, the political and the moral or inspiring side. It is a mistake for any grange to permit any one factor to dominate. Nevertheless the grange finds people coming to it with all sorts of preparation for grange service, with all kinds of tastes and with all degrees of education. If it is to live and thrive it must deliberately cater to these varying needs.—Professor Butterfield.

Mrs. Brigham, wife of Colonel Joseph H. Brigham, assistant secretary of agriculture, died in Washington on Nov. 29. She was stricken with apoplexy on the Wednesday previous. Colonel Brigham is past master of the national grange.

Orange grange, in Vermont, recently held a "reminiscence" meeting, that grange having been organized a quarter century ago.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

GOV. CUMMINS' Iowa idea is something like the Minneapolis Journal's low tariff fever. It rages with pernicious activity between campaigns, but for sixty days on either side of an election takes to the woods.

IT has been decided that the national committee of the People's party will meet in St. Louis on February 22 to set the date for the national convention, which convention will name the candidates for president and vice president.

IRA C. RICHARDSON has been recommended for reappointment as postmaster at Thief River Falls. This is the expected outcome of the situation as Richardson was the solitary supporter of Congressman Steenerson at the primaries among the prominent Republicans of Thief River.

A DISPATCH says that arrangements are almost completed for establishing a Boer colony in Montana, and it is expected that a large immigration of Boers to this place will begin early in the spring. It is said that James J. Hill is largely responsible for the selection of Montana for the colony.

THE Sioux City Journal says: "A good newspaper cannot be made these days without good advertisers. What is of more general concern is the broad fact that a good town cannot be made these days without a good newspaper. It costs money to make a good town. It costs money to make a good newspaper.

THE report comes from St. Paul that Charles S. Mitchell will resign his position as world's fair commissioner to assume the management of Bob Dunn's gubernatorial campaign. There is generally something doing when Charlie gets busy, although Bob's campaign seems to be doing pretty well without an accredited manager.

IN an address before the State Agricultural society at Minneapolis last week J. J. Hill said: "There is more intelligence, more patriotism, more of everything that goes to make good citizenship on farms than any where else in the country. Not another acre of the public land should ever hereafter be granted to any other than the actual settler."

C. F. MCDONALD, the veteran editor of the St. Cloud Times, ought to be the next president of the Minnesota editorial association. He edits one of the very best country papers in the state, but by reason of a quarter century of service is entitled to the distinguished honor. McDonald wields a facile and trenchant pen, and never apologizes for his views of public men and measures. Few editors in the state are more universally esteemed by his brethren on either side of the political fence.

THE Thief River News says the entire Republican county ticket is going to be elected this year by enormous majorities. John has a great reputation as a political prophet. According to this oracle Valentine was to carry Red Lake county in 1902, and finished fourth in the race. Probably the only reason Ezra wasn't fifth was because there were only four candidates. And then John insisted that the Republicans would surely capture all of the county offices, and they got one of them. And there is no reason to believe that John's political foresight has improved. We suggest that he consult an oculist.

THE Philadelphia Inquirer pays this touching tribute to the memory of Ruth Cleveland: "A dozen years ago the newspapers were filled with the doings of 'Baby Ruth,' and when the Clevelands entered the White house the second time there were two babies to prattle in the historic halls. Death never seems so heart-rending as when it comes to the young girl just on the verge of womanhood, with all the beautiful things of life ahead of her. Death is never welcome (in spite of our professed faith) and always abhorred. In the case in question we have another confirmation of the saying of Horace, 'Pale death with equal steps, knocks at the hovels of the poor and the palaces of kings.' There will be tears and sympathy go out toward the bereaved of Princeton in unmeasured flow."

"Your Remedies are giving the best of results and outsell anything I have in stock. I have a customer who has been troubled with gravel and last winter I sold him a bottle of Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure and after he had taken about half of the bottle, a gravel passed from him about the size of a bean. It caused him great pain. He took it to his family physician who told him it was the largest he had ever seen. The man has been well ever since.

LIND ON THE TARIFF.

Former Governor John Lind, who now represents the Minneapolis district in congress, is making some speeches that will be good campaign material for the Democrats in the approaching election. Here is an extract from a recent address on the tariff question:

"There is hardly a village in the North having a population in excess of 5,000 where there is not a factory of some kind manufacturing implements, manufacturing engines, tools, carriages and what not. My city of Minneapolis sends hundreds and thousands of machines and engines abroad every year—threshing machines, harvesters, plows, cultivators, bicycles, gasoline engines, steam engines, wagons, carriages and a variety of manufactured articles requiring iron and steel—and there are many smaller cities in our state developing manufacturing in numerous similar lines.

"But they have been hampered and restricted for years in their work. Why? Steel and iron are their raw materials, and unless they can get their raw materials, their steel and their iron, substantially on the same basis of prices which prevails in the markets of the world they are handicapped. By these exorbitant schedules you unable the trust to hold up these hundreds of smaller manufacturers and prevent them from getting the raw material that they need to engage in the world's competition, which they are otherwise better equipped for in many lines than any other manufacturers in the world.

"In these and many other schedules your tariff has ceased to be a protective tariff because instead of futhering and increasing the demand for domestic production it has decreased it. Instead of encouraging industry it retards industry. Do you think that a tariff of 20 cents a bushel helps the price of grain in Minnesota? Do you think that a tariff on hog products help the price of hogs? Last year hogs were 5, 6 and 7 cents a pound; this year they are 3 cents a pound; steers, last year, 7 and 8 cents a pound, this year, under 3 cents. If the tariff helps those prices, for God's sake give us more tariff on hogs and more tariff on steers.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.
